HON. KNUTE NELSON,
Republican Candidate for Governor.

W. M. FULLER, one of the republican candidates for legislature, is highly spoken of by the press, as he deserves to be. Mr. Fuller's republicanism cannot be doubted, and, as he is a hustler and an all 'round good fellow, his election is assured. He is one of those men you can tie to and know that you will not be deceived.

New School Houses.

The board of education at its meeting last night decided to submit a proposition at the coming election to bond the district for money to build new school houses, provided public sentiment in the city seemed to be in favor of such a proposition. School meetings will be held in each ward in a few days, and if public sentiment as there expressed seems favorable, the proposition will be submitted. This proposition, if submitted, ought to have the support of every citizen of this city. Brainerd's school buildings, exclusive of the high school, would be a disgrace to a village like Aitkin. They are old, poorly ventilated, cold, barn-like structures, totally unfit for the purposes they are used for. But such as they are, they are not large enough to accommodate the pupils enrolled by at least 200. The board now rents four rooms outside of the regular school buildings, and all the other rooms are so crowded, that in order to do the scholars justice other rooms ought to be secured and these crowded rooms relieved. Brainerd now has 1,076 scholars enrolled, which, counting 40 scholars to a room, would call for 27 rooms. Instead of this number these scholars are crowded into 21 rooms, and four of these are kept in old store rooms outside of the regular school buildings. This is a disgraceful condition of affairs and should be remedied by voting the bonds and building new buildings. Nothing hurts the population of a city so much as the knowledge that school facilities are inadequate, and if we expect people to move here and help build up our city, we must secure facilities to decently educate their children without endangering their health while at school.

Another Legislative Ticket.

The district convention of the People's Party of this senatorial district was held at Little Falls last Tuesday, and the following ticket was placed in nomination: Peter Walters, from Crow Wing: F. X. Lafond, of Morrison, C. F. Bohall, of Todd, and Thos. P. Kerr, of Mille Lac county. This makes three full-fledged legislative tickets in the field.

The City Council.

The council met in regular session last Monday evening. All present but Aldermen McMurtry and Bain.

The usual monthly reports were read and filed. The fines collected in September amounted to $545. The monthly pay rolls and a number of bills were ordered paid.

The matter of leveling approaches to Hartley street bridge was referred to street committee with power to act.

The city clerk was instructed to issue an order for $1,800 for a loan for the city.

All the bids for paving part of Sixth street were rejected, and the city engineer was instructed to make estimates for said paving. An order was passed that the paving should be done as heretofore planned, with the exception that along the line of the street railway a five-foot strip should be left unpaved.

The street commissioner was instructed to make his report.

The liquor bond of O. B. Hamlin was approved and license granted.

A petition from merchants asking that signs on posts at side of sidewalk, not extending over sidewalk, be allowed to remain, was read and filed.

A communication from C. N. Parker, asking that a committee be appointed to confer with him with a view to the purchase by him of the city electric light plant, was read, and Aldermen Ferris, Sanborn and Johnson were appointed as such committee.

A motion was carried to accept with thanks the services of the Brainerd Band on Columbus Day, Oct. 21.

First Ward—Judges, J. W. Murray, F. W. Wieland and A. E. Pennell.

Second Ward—Judges, C. A. Richardson, A. P. Farrar and C. D. Johnson.

Council adjourned.

Fifth Ward Caucus.

A caucus of the republican voters of the Fifth ward will be held in the republican club rooms in the Dressen building on Sixth street, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 11th, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of electing three delegates to the republican city convention to be held Oct. 12th. Also to place in nomination two candidates for aldermen from said ward.

By order of Committee,
R. H. PAINE,
Chairman.

A Few Political Tips.

The republican city convention is called for the 12th inst.

Fred. S. Parker is being urged by the republicans of the Third ward to become one of the candidates for aldermen.

Aldermen Ferris and McMurtry are perfectly satisfactory to the residents of the second ward and there will be no opposition to their return if they can be prevailed upon to become candidates. They are both good staunch republicans.

The woods are full of candidates now and the farmers are being visited much oftener than in an off year.

The Donnelly county ticket will have a hard row to hoe and the early frost of October is likely to kill off most of the candidates.

When a man talks to you about beating Henry Spalding for sheriff, examine his head and see if he is all right. There will be many a day before Crow Wing county has as good and efficient a sheriff as the present incumbent, and the people know it. He will hold the office for two years longer much to the discomfiture of his competitors.

Treasurer Frater will have no opposition unless the prohibitionists put a county ticket in the field.

The republican county ticket is considered the best one in the field, the candidates are all tried and true men, and it goes without saying that it will be elected from top to bottom. It is not so much because it is republican as it is because the people demand men of good business ability and experience in the public offices of both city and county during the coming two years.

Louis Tache's friends are legion in the city and county and it will take very tall hustling to make any impression on his usual majority this fall. He is one of the best auditors we have ever had, courteous, accommodating and thoroughly conversant with every detail of his office. He will be returned with a good round majority.

The republican legislative ticket will receive a better vote in this county than it did four years ago. Crow Wing will redeem herself this fall and help swell the majority that will send Messrs. Fleming, Dunn, Lee and Fuller to the state capitol this winter.

"Mr. A. Mahlum can sit in his office and be re-elected without lifting his hand" is an expression we heard a democrat make yesterday. There is no doubt of his election as it is conceded on all sides.

Two Conventions.

A county ticket was placed in the field on Friday evening by the people's party in mass convention. Fred. Wehrle was chosen chairman and in his opening address he said that "the party is young and we will have to take up some democrats in order to oust the so-called ring in Brainerd." Charles Banks was then chosen secretary of the convention. Nominations were then proceeded with and the following is the result:

Auditor—Charles Banks; Treasurer—J. T. Frater, endorsed; Register of Deeds—Wm. Duthie; Superintendent of School—J. A. Wilson, endorsed; County Attorney—W. H. Mantor; Surveyor—J. F. Bartlett; Coroner—A. G. Gallup; Judge of Probate—M. McFadden, endorsed; Sheriff—C. P. Erickson. County commissioners: 1st district—R. H. Capistrant; 3d district—Peter Walters; 5th district—C. B. Stade.

The convention adjourned without electing any candidates to attend the Little Falls convention.

The democrats held their convention on Saturday afternoon and it was necessary for a person to be present to appreciate the state of affairs. C. D. Johnson was chosen chairman. The convention was divided on the question of placing nominees for county officers in field and it seemed for a time that they would adjourn without doing so, but after a lengthy discussion on both sides a vote was taken, and it was decided to do so. The chairman announced that it would then be in order to nominate a county auditor and a dead silence ensued. A motion was then made to pass the office of auditor and it carried, and a like motion prevailed on county treasurer. L. P. White, Jr., and Wm. Duthie were named for the office of register of deeds, Mr. White winning. W. H. Mantor was named for county attorney, and the offices of probate judge, surveyor and superintendent of schools were passed. For coroner Charles Cross was named and W. Hemstead for court commissioner. A motion was then made to reconsider the vote by which the office of auditor was passed which carried, and C. D. Johnson was named for that office but he declined and it looked for a time as though no one could be found who would accept, but finally the name of Henry Linnemann was proposed and accepted by the convention. A heated discussion was then indulged in over the treasurership and John T. Frater's name was proposed, but the convention adjourned before any action was taken on it.

R. H. Capistrant was named for county commissioner in the first district, Louis Stallman in the third and Wm. Harmon in the fifth.

DR. HEMSTEAD wants the republicans to attend the democratic rally on the 19th inst. The genial doctor knows that there are not enough democrats in Crow Wing county this year to make a respectable showing, hence his desire to have republicans attend the rally and make it a success.

Meeting of the Board of Education.

The board of education held its regular monthly meeting at the high school building last evening, all the members being present except Mr. Titze. After the usual routine proceedings the resignation of Mr. Titze was considered. On motion a committee was appointed to confer with Mr. Titze in regard to the matter with a view of having him withdraw his resignation.

On motion the report of the committee on repairs was accepted, and the matter of outhouses was referred to said committee.

The report of the special committee concerning the submission of a proposition to issue bonds to build new school houses was accepted, and on motion the secretary was instructed to issue 2,000 circulars setting forth the need of new school buildings to accommodate the increased enrollment, and showing the saving that such a measure will effect in saving rents, repairs, etc. It was also decided to call a school meeting in each ward to explain the necessity of such action and test public opinion in regard to the matter. The board, realizing the inadequacy of our present school accommodations, are to a man earnestly in favor of doing so.

The report of the committee on tax levy was on motion accepted and levy ordered. The report calls for a levy of 7 mills the same as last year.

On motion the mayor was requested to appoint P. Nelson special police without pay.

On motion it was decided to hold the exercises on Columbian Day in the afternoon instead of evening at the opera house.

Second Ward Caucus.

A caucus of the republican voters of the second ward will be held at the roller rink, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 11th, 1892, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of electing 3 delegates to represent said ward at the city convention to be held Wednesday, Oct. 12th. Also to put in nomination two candidates for aldermen from said ward.

First Ward Caucus.

A caucus of the republican voters of the first ward will be held at the municipal court room, on Tuesday Oct. 11th, at 8 p. m. for the purpose of electing 3 delegates to the republican city convention to be held at the republican league club rooms, on Wednesday, Oct. 12th. Also to place in nomination two candidates for aldermen from said ward, and one candidate for member of board of education. All republican voters of the ward are earnestly requested to attend.

Little Tippett.

Brainerd will have for its next attraction Harrison & Bell's comedians in Little Tippett of which the Omaha Bee says:

The Harrison & Bell comedians gave their first performances of "Little Tippett" yesterday at the Farnam Street theater, and a critical estimate must award the new play the triumph of an exceedingly promising inauguration. Indeed, it is quite within bounds to say that it scored a great hit and that it has every quality for a pronounced and continued success. There were crudities, as was to be expected in initial performances, but the performance demonstrated that the drama is exceptionally strong in the comedy element, which is not only worked up naturally into effective climaxes, but is sustained in a crescendo action until the last fall of the curtain. The play is presented by an excellent company, every role being interpreted by a capable artist and no part being slighted.

"Little Tippett" is an adaptation by Harry and Edward Paulton (themselves the authors of several noted theatrical successes) from the French of Alexander Bisson, one of the most successful of living writers of farce and comedy. French plays are apt to be risque, but the Gallic dramatists are wonderfully clever in the contriving of dramatic situations. In this case the adapters have removed everything objectionably suggestive and produced a play that will pass the gauntlet of the most exacting Anglican test. The intricate French complication of situation is there, but the story is absolutely clean, with not a line to offend American taste.

Last night's performances went with fine spirit, and the enthusiastic audience, not content with an almost continuous laugh and innumerable bursts of applause, insisted on several curtain calls. The role of Tippett was interpreted by Mr. Charles Bowser who treated it in a farcical vein, which was entirely permissable and thoroughly acceptable. Mr. Edward Bell, handsome enough to be the idol of the matinee girl, has a fine stage presence, is a finished actor and most admirable foil for Tippett in his interpretation of Newton. Miss Mabel Bert is a regal beauty and as Mrs. Tippett was an ideal wife, all tenderness and devotion. Mr. Harry Allen is one of the best old men of the stage, and as Uncle Dunker he was as good and benign and meddlesome as the genuine article. Miss Marie Lewes is attractive of face and voluptuous of figure, and portrayed Mrs. Newton with an admirable play of varying expression. Mr. Harry Morgan as Gibbs and Mrs. Harry Bloodgood as Mrs. Gibbs were not wanting in excellence, and the two babies, bless 'em, captured the audience on sight. In short, the company proved to be one of those organizations in which there is no star, but every member is an artist of a high grade of excellence. The action of the play never halts, and not only is there comedy in the situations, but the lines are bright and full of wit and repartee. "Little Tippett" is an undoubted go. It will be repeated at the Farnam street theatre until Wednesday evening.

Not So Easily Fooled.

The Dear Farmer: Who's that hiding behind you, Friend Baker, with his skulking cur? This sudden love for me is not so thick but I can see through it. The Democratic party has formed a partnership with the Chicago wheat gambler and the cur, Wolcott, who are our enemies.

Wheat Gambler, to Friend Baker: Give him some more taffy, old man; I'm afraid he's getting on to me and the dog.

To the Public:

As a matter of justice to ourselves and to the reputation of Dr. Leslie E. Keeley's Double Chloride of Gold Remedies for the cure of the Liquor, Opium, Morphine and Tobacco Diseases, and Neurasthenia, we warn the public that these remedies are used by no institution or sanitarium in the United States, except those established by our company under the uniform name of "THE KEELEY INSTITUTE."

All others claiming to use our remedies are frauds and impostors.

We have now sixty Keeley Institutes established in various parts of the United States, where the Keeley Treatment is administered, and the Keeley remedies sold. We, however, caution all to examine well and know that they are dealing with GENUINE REPRESENTATIVES, authorized by us, before taking treatment or purchasing remedies.

The misleading establishments use the name of "Bicloride of Gold" or similar titles. The newspapers often fail to discriminate sufficiently to know that they are imitators. This is a matter of public welfare, and hence this warning.

We desire inspection of our Institution and invite correspondence, which is strictly confidential.

Respectfully Yours,

THE LESLIE E. KEELEY CO.,
PROPRIETORS OF THE KEELEY INSTITUTE,

HOW A PUZZLE WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But how to determine which make is best is what puzzles you, isn't it?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, by authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle, and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France.

This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine, and if he does not keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue, prices and terms.

Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory.

The Ex-Attorney General Tells Why He Joins the Democrats.

Philadelphia, Oct. 5.Ex-Attorney General Wayne MacVeagh has written a letter to John W. Carter, secretary of the Massachusetts Reform club, in which he announces that he will vote for Grover Cleveland. The writer finds himself in full accord with the Democratic party, and finds it more easy to act with it because of its Republican party, securing its return to power four years ago, and promising to preserve matters as they were, at once embarrassed and upset in regards as a reckless and revolutionary policy, even overturning all the safeguards of legislation by the action of representatives in their haste to pass the force bill. The Republican party, both, to his mind, unnecessary and unwise measures.

Populists Not In It.

Jacksonvill, Fla., Oct. 5.—The vote of the state is found to be very light and scattered. This is accounted for by the fact that the populists have scarcely made up a grouate of qualifications in all parties. Up to the time of the election the vote was received from any one of the forty-five counties. The Democrats have furnished a good basis for calculation.

Michigan City, Ind., has carried its debt by at least 20,000 majority, though his vote hardly reaches 30,000, which is 10,000 less than the vote polled in the county in 1888. Baskin (People's party) cannot by any possibility win the election with the vote votes, which is 18,000 less than the Republicans, and 10,000 less than the Democrats, where they voted at all, generally speaking, the People's party ticket, the regrence, strange to say, divided about equally between Democrats and Republicans. Of the forty-five of the counties declared that the People's party ticket was not voted at all, the Democratic ticket; this, too, without solicitation of any kind except in close contests on county candidates.

Friday a Lucky Day.

One of the luckiest periods in the world's history was that in which Columbus discovered America. It is a question for one to dispute this proposition. Has it occurred to you that the unfortunate people who never want to start any enterprise on Friday, who will not begin a journey on Friday, who wouldn't ever trim their nails on Friday, forgot that it was the day on which Columbus sailed from Palos on his memorable voyage? Has it ever given a glimpse of the promised land on Friday, or, rather, has it ever let you see this grand world for the first time on the anniversary of the Rocket's first flight? Has it ever been a lucky day for you in any action. Friday is as good a day as is any other day, and, if you will but, the lucky day for Christopher Columbus.

Correspondence is now in course in regard to the time and place of meeting, and will probably result in an agreement on the subject within a few days.

Satolli's object ostensibly will be to obtain information as to the Catholic population in the United States and to report back to the pope the growth and influence of the church here. It is said those who know whereof they speak, believe that the real object of Satolli's mission is to leave Rome forthwith, is invested with the authority of a legate, and sent for the fulfillment of pastoral duties, and to "investigate the accounts to be discussed at the archbishops' conference." The mission is thought to be regarded as so marked as to render necessary the presence of an authorized agent from Rome.

BLUFFED DOWN BY A PARSON.

A London Thug Who Thought the American Preacher Carried a Gun.

"I had an adventure in London last spring, of a very unpleasant nature," said Rev. Theo. Swain, a Memphis minister, the other day. "I was wandering about the city sight-seeing one day and finally found myself near the notorious Whitechapel district. I was approached by a begger, who appeared to be a complete physical wreck. I questioned him, and his story was so pitiful that I concluded to investigate it. He said that he lodged in the next block, and thither we went. He led me into a gloomy old building and up three pairs of rickety stairs to a little stuffy room lighted only by a dirty sky-light. Once in there he locked the door, laid aside his crutches, pulled off his gray wig, and stood up, a powerful six-footer in the prime of life. 'Well,' said I, 'I see that you are a fraud; what do you want with me?' He replied that he wanted my purse, watch and chain, and to enforce his claim produced an ugly looking knife. 'It will do you no good to cry out,' he said, 'for you cannot be heard in the street, and no one in this building will come to your aid.'

"I had sized him up pretty close and concluded that he was bluffing, that he would not dare kill me in the very heart of London, so I assumed a very careless air and told him if he robbed me he would have to kill me first, and that he might just as well get at it. 'Oh, I know that you have got a pistol, but I'm not afraid of it,' he said. 'Most Americans carry pistols for just such cattle as you,' I replied with all the coolness I could assume. 'Now, if you are not afraid of it why don't you get to work?' I saw that he was cowed, and throwing my hand to my hip pocket, I stepped forward and said firmly: 'Give me that knife.' He handed it to me without a word, unlocked the door and held it open for me to pass out. No, I had no pistol—never carry one; but I made no more visits to the dens of London beggars without a burly officer at my elbow."

A BALLET IN AFRICA.

When we arrived at Mashoupa a dance was going on—a native Sechuana dance—in consequence, of the full moon and the rejoicings incident on an abundant harvest. In the kotla some 40 or more men had formed a circle, and were jumping round and round to the sound of music.

Evidently it was an old war dance degenerated; the sugar cane took the place of the assegai, many black legs were clothed in trousers; and many black shoulders now wear coats; but there still survives, as relics of the past, the ostrich feather in the hat, the fly-whisk of horse, jackal or other tail, the iron skin scraper round the neck, which represents the pocket handkerchief among the Kafirs and is used to remove perspiration, and the flute with one or two holes, out of which each man seems to produce a different sound, while round the group of dancing men, old women still circulate as of yore, clapping their withered hands and encouraging festivity. It was a sight of considerable picturesqueness, amid the beehive huts and the tall overhanging rocks.

Mashoupa was once the residence of a missionary, but the church is now abandoned and falling into ruins because when asked to repair the edifice at their own expense the men of Mashoupa waxed wroth and replied irreverently that God might repair his own house; and one old man who received a blanket for his reward for attending divine service, is reported to have remarked when the dole was stopped: "No more blanket, no more hallelujah." I fear me the men of Mashoupa are wedded to heathendom.

And the funny part was that the man couldn't see an inch before his face.

Rev. Samuel Longfellow was a verse-maker, and once compiled a collection of hymns for publication. When he asked a fellow parson to suggest a title for the work the friend thought it might be called a Sam-book.

PUBLIC SCHOOL CELEBRATION.

Official Program of the School Celebration of Columbus Day.

The following is the program adopted by the executive committee for the occasion of the Public School celebration of Columbus Day, Oct. 21:

1. Reading of the President's Proclamation, by the Master of Ceremonies.
2. Raising of the Flag by the Veterans.
3. Salute to the Flag, by the Pupils and singing of "America."
4. Acknowledgment of God, Prayer or Scripture.
5. Song of Columbus Day, by Pupils and Audience.

Columbia, my land! all hail the glad day
When first to thy strand Hope pointed the way:
Hail him who thro' darkness first followed the Flame
That led where the May-flower of Liberty came.

Dear County, the star of the valiant and free!
Thy exiles afar are dreaming of thee,
No fields of the Earth so enchantly shine,
No air breathes such incense, such music as thine.

Humanity's home! thy sheltering breast
Gives welcome and room to strangers oppressed.
Pale children of Hunger and Hatred and Wrong
Find life in thy freedom and joy in thy song.

Thy fairest estate the lowly may hold,
Thy poor may grow great, thy feeble grow bold:
For worth is the watchward to noble degree,
And manhood is mighty where manhood is free.

O Union of States, and union of Souls!
Thy promise awaits, thy future unfolds,
And earth from her twilight is hailing the sun,
That rises where people and rulers are one.

6. The address, "The Meaning of the Four Centuries."

7. The Ode, "Columbia's Banner."

This is the end of the Official Program. Whatever additional Exercises, Patriotic Recitations, Historic Representations, or Chorals may be desired should follow this. The Addresses by Citizens and the singing of other National Songs should also follow, not precede nor interrupt, the Official Program.

Whittier used to admit that he had no ear for music and could not tell "Yankee Doodle" from "Old Hundred."

The practice of denistry is of great antiquity, for, as early as 500 B. C., gold was used for stopping teeth and gold wire was employed to hold artificial teeth in position, and it does not seem then to have been a new art. Herodotus declares that the Egyptians had a knowledge of the disease of the teeth and their treatment. In the writings of Martial, first century, a man is mentioned as either stopping or extracting teeth. The date of the introduction of artificial teeth into England or Europe is uncertain. They came to America from England, but just when it is difficult to determine. "The Mathematical Jewel," published 1585, contains an account of Sir John Blagrave, "who caused all his teeth to be drawn out, and after had a sett of ivory teeth in agayne."

Some enterprising American newspaper should at once send a reporter to Russia to examine into the conflicting stories about matters and things in that empire. We had just got into the way of thinking that the czar and his people were not so bad and nasty as previous accounts indicated, when a writer in the Fortnightly Review comes forward with tales of cities so filthy that they pollute the atmosphere from afar and streets in such condition that children and even soldiers have been known to drown in them upon falling from the primitive sidewalks.

Official information reached the headquarters of the military department of Texas recently of an affray on the lower Rio Grande border above Rio Grande City between the detachment of the United States troops under command of Capt. Francis P. Hardie, of the third cavalry, and a band of Mexican outlaws, who are believed to have organized for the purpose of carrying on smuggling operations and other depredations. The skirmish took place, but resulted in no fatilities. A posse of deputy United States marshals was with the soldiers and participated in the fight.

At Denver, a gambler named J. H. Kelly shot and instantly killed his mistress and then blew his brains out. Jealousy.

But she did not attempt to reply. She had come there not to argue points of theology with him, but to plead for her father's happiness and life. She saw now, however, that she had made a mistake, and her racial pride caused her to feel that it were better that both she and her father died than that they should be under an obligation to such a heartless tyrant as Peter Alexieff. And so she remarked, as she drew her veil about her face again:

"Mercy is not in you. So be it. I will go, and in Heaven's good time the wronged shall be righted, and mayhap your eyes will be opened to your errors."

She turned, and in the doorway still stood Pavloff, barring her exit.

"Stay," said Alexieff, commandingly, and with a low chuckle as of triumph. Rachel turned to him once more, and now for the first time a thrill of fear swept through her, for she realized that this man was her foe and her father's foe. "You say," he continued, "that some day mayhap my eyes may be opened to my error. I claim not to be free from errors, but my eyes can see them not, for has not your father deprived me of part of my sight? That is a wrong that all your tears, all his repentance, and all the wealth he could command could not right. No, woman, I hate your father with a hate that not even his death could gratify. God forbid that he should die yet, for I would rend and crush his heart, and torture him as he has tortured me."

Rachel uttered a suppressed cry, and a rising sob choked something she would have said. Alexieff struck a bell that stood upon his desk. Pavloff moved on one side, and two gendarmes entered, their swords drawn.

"This woman," said Alexieff, "has uttered threats against me and used seditious language. She is your prisoner."

He had been writing as he spoke, and handing to one of the gendarmes an order of committal, which, as Chief of the Police, he had full power to do under the despotic laws of Russia, he added: "You are responsible for her until you place her in the safe keeping of Litovskiv Zamok. Go. You know your duty."

For some moments Rachel looked as though she had been suddenly turned to stone. But as the gendarmes laid their hands upon her shoulders she shuddered, and with that shudder a strange change seemed to come over her. She drew her veil on one side with a movement of passion, and with eyes of fire she looked at Alexieff until he quailed.

"You are a traitor and a dog," she hissed, excitedly. "But vengeance will overtake you, or Heaven itself will be unjust."

"Remove her," cried the Chief of the Police, hoarsely; and, obeying the order, the gendarmes led her out. Then, turning to Pavloff, who waited his chief's pleasure, Alexieff said: "My son is safe, any way; and if I can prevent it, it will be long ere the prison doors swing open to let her free."

One would have thought that with this daring move Peter Alexieff would have been satisfied, for he knew only too well that he could trump up information that would serve to keep Rachel in prison indefinitely. But that was not enough for him. He wished not only to humiliate but crush the spirit of the unfortunate girl, and his position enabled him to do it effectually.

Three days later he went to Litovsky Zamok with his friend and patron Count Suvorot, who, amongst many other official duties he undertook, was that of inspector of prisons. The coward, Peter Alexieff was determined that Rachel should be flogged, flogging being one of the commonest punishments in all the prisons, and resorted to on the slightest provocation. He had told the Count that Rachel had not only threatened him but had used the most violent language in speaking of the Czar and of Russia. The Count was only too ready to believe anything that was said against the Jews, and, as his mind had been greatly inflamed against Arama, he rejoiced when he heard that Rachel had been incarcerated.

"What of your new prisoner, the Jewess?" he asked of the governor of the prison, who bore the reputation of being a particularly brutal person.

"She is refractory," answered the governor.

Now, it should be explained what was meant by being refractory. Rachel had been delicately nurtured and brought up, and her whole being revolted against the dirt, the filth, the coarse fare, and hardship of the prison. Suddenly called upon to do the most laborious and degrading work not only was her strength unequal to it, but she protested that it was an outrage to ask her to undertake it, since she had committed no crime. This was what the governor termed being refractory, and it afforded Alexieff the very excuse and opportunity he wanted; so, turning to the Count, he said:—

"It seems almost difficult to teach these people a lesson, but surely there should be some means of giving this saucy Jewess to understand that, having broken the law, she must submit to the law."

The Count was not obtuse. He comprehended and took the hint.

"The rod should do it," he answered.

"You hear," exclaimed Alexieff, exultingly to the governor. "Let the woman be beaten at once and if it please his greatness, the Court, he and I will witness the punishment."

"His greatness" signified that it would please him, and the governor gave orders that Rachel was to be prepared.

In ten minutes' time they were notified that the prisoner was ready, and then they went forth to an enclosed courtyard, where in the centre the unhappy Rachel was fastened by the wrists and feet to a wooden triangle. Her shoulders were bare and beside her stood a goaler with a rod in his hand. This rod consisted of two lithe willows fastened together from the middle upwards by thongs. The victim was as pale as death, and seemed indeed to ...

... circumstance, that the beautiful and gentle Rachel had been flogged in goal in the presence of the Chief of the Police and of Count Nicholas Suvorof; and it being so well known that the Count and Alexieff were fanatical haters of the Jews, the storm of indignation grew louder. The pendulum was swinging the other way now. It was the reaction after the fever of excitement and the passionate outburst of fury which had led to the massacres and burnings. The people, however, who were at present agitating had remained dumb and silent while the Jews were being harried and slain and despoiled of their property. Now it was the other way about, and the rioters held their peace.

Perhaps after all there would not have been such an outcry had the matter not reached the ears of those who were high above even the Count Suvorof and the Minister of Justice was at last instructed to make some inquiries. Things moved slowly in Russia, and these inquiries occupied six months. But the result was, much to the joy of Peter Alexieff's enemies, that he was deposed. Through having powerful friends at Court, he was immediately appointed to a governship in Siberia. It was the ordinary way of getting rid of an official who had brought the authorities into bad odour, and the ex-Chief of the St. Petersburg Police was ordered to proceed at once to Sakhalin.

Most other men would have felt somewhat appalled at the journey to the far-distant and desolate region of Sakhalin. But Alexieff was rather elated at the prospect, for he knew that the pay was good, and the appointment could be made the stepping-stone to something better; while every governor in Siberia, and particularly those in the eastern provinces, had absolute power in their hands, the power of life and death. They became petty kings and autocrats, and could give unrestrained vent to their passions and their hates.

The consideration of these points could not fail to weigh with such a man as Peter Alexieff; and though for the time he would have to abandon the comforts and gaiety of the great city, he felt that he would be compensated for that by the power that would be his. A fallen official in St. Petersburg would have to remain a nonentity, but in Siberia, where he was far removed from the seat of government, he could become a person of importance, and rule his subjects with a rod of iron, according to his caprice and his will.

And so Alexieff set off for his new sphere of action with a sense of delight, considerably enhanced by the knowledge that preceding him was the unfortunate victim of his hatred, Aaron Arama, who, without trial and in accordance with the barbarous Russian law, had been condemned to exile, on the grounds that he was "suspected of subversive ideas" and had shown "revolutionary spirit against the authorities." The place of his exile was Sakhalin, whither Alexieff was going as governor.

Peter Alexieff would have liked to have taken his son with him, but Ivan was studying for the Civil Service, and he absolutely refused to accompany his father, who consoled himself with the thought that all danger of Ivan and Rachel ever coming together had now passed.

To those unacquainted with the ways and mysteries of legal procedure in Russia, which, more than any other country in the world, is hampered with red tape, and moves in a rut from which it seems as if no power on earth could lift it, it will appear strange that Rachel Arama was not released immediately. But when once the Government, in the name of the law, gets its hold upon a person, it is singularly reluctant to let go that hold. To us, with our Western notions of the sacred rights of the subject, all this sounds almost incredible, and yet, alas, 'tis true. Russia is still ruled by the rod, and her people groan in chains.

"I WILL SWEAR IT BY YON IKON."

Some day they will rend these chains, and then woe to them who have kept them so long enthralled, until they have hardly been able to call their souls their own.

And so it came to pass that more than a year elapsed before Rachel Arama recovered her freedom, and then it was only bestowed upon her as an extreme favor, notwithstanding that it was proved that she had been committed on a groundless charge. When she emerged from the prison she was an utterly changed woman. The iron had ground itself into her very heart, and had empoisoned and embitted her. The recollection of all she had endured and suffered maddened her, and she was stirred and filled with a fierce desire for vengeance on him who had wrought all the wrong, and shattered her hopes and blighted her life and the lives of those so dear to her. Those weary months she passed as a prisoner had seemed to her like years. They had been fraught with a misery that had no words wherewith to express itself. No news ever came to her of the dear ones, and so suspense was added to her weighty burden of woe. Was it surprising, therefore, that silver threads began to show themselves in her raven hair, and the brightness of her eyes grew dim? She had entered the prison as a tender, gentle, guileless girl. She came forth as a hard, stern woman, with only one aim, one object in life.

The Rachel of yore was dead, and a new Rachel had come to life. Her beauty still remained, though a little marred by the confinement, the fetid atmosphere peculiar to a Russian prison, and the vile and coarse fare. Her sorrow and shame might have prompted her—as many hundreds of unfortunates have been prompted—to end her broken life. But one hope sustained ...

CHAPTER XIV.

FOR A WOMAN'S SAKE.

"Then will I attempt the impossible," she returned.

"Oh, Rachel," he cried, with the passion of despair, as he seized her hand, and retained it in spite of her efforts to free herself, "have you no pity for me? Will nothing turn you from this mad purpose?"

"Nothing," she answered, with strong emphasis.

"Then will I go, too," he exclaimed, "for I can at least perish with you, and since to live without you is impossible I will die; for what will life be to me if I am to see you no more?"

She looked at him fixedly and strangely for a little, and then a new idea flashed upon her.

"This love of yours seems to be a very real thing," she observed.

"Can you doubt it? Neither time nor circumstances have subdued my passion, and to possess you there is no sacrifice I would not make."

GHOST THAT DRIVES A PLOW.

Strange Apparition That Is Now Puzzling Florida Farmers.

A respectable farmer named Peterson, who owns a place a few miles from town, says a Fernadina special to the Philadelphia Times, brings a curious story of a ghost that haunts his cornfield and plows by moonlight. He says that he first noticed the apparition about a month ago when sitting up with a sick child. He happened to look out on the field about the hour of midnight, and to his amazement he saw the figure of a man guiding an ox team over the ground. The animals, man and plow were all as plain to be seen as if it had been daylight, though the rest of the field was in comparative gloom.

Not knowing what to make of this singular light he called his eldest son to go and see who the stranger was. The boy went at once, and his father watching him, was further amazed to see the lad walk right through the plow and man as if there was nothing there. When the boy returned he declared that he had found nothing and nobody in the field. Mr. Peterson was resolved to go, and he did so, but could see no traces of the man and team, though on returning to the room from which he had seen the sight he found them as plain as before. The man was dressed in the clothes of a laborer, and wore a large broad-brimmed hat, which completely concealed his features.

He was intent on his work and never raised his head, but would crack the whip he carried over the back of the oxen, but without noise. Since this time Mr. Peterson says he has repeatedly seen the phantom plowman and has called his neighbors in to see it with him, though always on going into the field nothing was to be found. The people about declare that the figure is that of the farmer who owned the place before Peterson bought it, and who early one morning was found dead in this field, and it was thought by his own hand.

VAST ARMIES IN EUROPE.

Russia Has a Standing Force of Over a Million and a Half.

Giving the countries alphabetically, Austria-Hungary leads, with an active army of 875,000 men, a first reserve (men who have served their time "with the colors") of 290,000 men, and a second reserve, of men who have served their time in the first reserve, of 866,000; the grand total is 2,032,420 officers and men. France has a war force of 4,169,472 officers and men; 1,124,000 are in the active army, 910,000 in the field reserve, 956,000 in the first and 1,176,000 in the second reserve. Germany has 2,913,599 officers and men, of whom 810,000 are with the colors, 405,000 in the field reserve, 900,000 in the first and 799,000 in the second reserve. Great Britain has a regular army of 136,842 men, a field reserve of 68,200 men, a first reserve of 750,000, a second of about 224,000, and a total on paper of 1,179,350. Italy has 925,000 men under arms, a field reserve of 291,000, a first reserve of 1,398,000 a second reserve of 17,800, and a total of 2,522,314. Russia has the largest standing army, 1,698,000 men always under arms, with field reserves of 1,124,000; first reserves amounting to 1,191,300 men; 4,000,000 in the second reserve, and a total of 7,914,000. Turkey keeps 155,000 men with the colors, but has an estimated reserve of 617,000 men. As between France and Germany, some critics expect France to beat Germany. The French have matched every improvement made by the Germans in military matters, and they will fight for revenge, which, the Globe-Democrat thinks, is a feeling that will help them. It will be a great war when it comes.

WILD BEAST TAMERS.

Successful Ones Are Always Close Observers of Nature.

The most successful beast tamers are generally small, wiry fellows, with plenty of nerve, and a good stock of trade secrets, derived from the close study of wild animals, says the San Francisco Chronicle. In the latter respect, savages, with their out-door mode of life, have considerable advantage over their civilized rivals. In the Chilean Andes the naturalist Tschudi made the acquaintance of a Creole Farmer, who confessed that he had experimented for several years before he succeeded in capturing alive alpaca. He had imitated the traps of the Indians, their method of fixing them in the sand of the river banks, the precaution in obliterating the traces of their footsteps, but all in vain, till an Indian renegade revealed the secret—namely, that the alpacas select their drinking places where there is an audible ripple in the current of the river, perhaps for the same reason that a cow prefers a brook to a pond and a running spring to a sluggish creek. The murmuring of the stream seemed to suggest the idea of purer and cooler water, and where the current was slow the Indians contrived to produce a ripple by an artificial obstruction.

Excavating for History in Tunis.

It is announced from Tunis that excavations are now being made in the famous two-headed mill mentioned by Virgil, which hill is situated about eight miles from Tunis. Many interesting remains have already been unearthed, and it is confidently hoped that better will follow. A temple of Baal Saturn, which had been almost entirely laid bare, is attracting particularly the attention of the French archæologists because of its peculiarly interesting statues and bas reliefs. The building is situated at an elevation of over 1,600 feet; and this is another proof that the Carthaginians practiced their religious ceremonies on hills. On all the statues of the gods to which the temple is dedicated the names Baal and Saturn are found together, which would seem to indicate that to flatter their Roman conquerors the Carthaginians had added to the name of their chief god that of the highest Roman deity.—Chamber's Journal.

The White Sponge.

The white sponges sold in drug stores are not dangerous to use, as some people suppose. No drug store could afford to sell sponges which had once been in use, and in the hospitals refuse sponges used in cleaning wounds and sores are now generally burned. The white sponges have been bleached. Only the finest and best are selected for bleaching, and these are placed in a bath of diluted hyposulphate of soda. Left in this mixture a few hours the sponge becomes as white as snow, though the process is not generally carried so far, a light shade of yellow or straw color selling more readily than the white.—Globe-Democrat.

THE GREAT SENSATION.

SOME FACTS CONCERNING THE WOLCOTT PAMPHLET.

The Financial Adventurers and Commission Pick-Pockets of the Chicago Board of Trade Are the Blood-Suckers Who Are Sapping the Life-Blood of the Farmer.

The most profound political sensation of the campaign of 1892 thus far has been the publication of the Wolcott Pamphlet entitled "A Gigantic Conspiracy." It professes to give facts, figures and proofs generally establishing the existence of a conspiracy against the farmers among the grain dealers and milling companies of Minnesota, whereby the producers are yearly swindled out of thousands of dollars.

That the farmers are swindled and robbed goes without saying. Who is the robber? is the main question to be settled. For the past ten years Minneapolis and Duluth have been sapping the grain trade of Chicago. The laws governing the trade in wheat have so ordered it, that practically all of the hard northern varieties of this great staple have of their own volition been finding a market at Minneapolis and Chicago. Such wheat as Chicago now receives in her elevators consists of the soft southern varieties—an interior article in the world's markets.

The big Board of Trade in Chicago has thus been compelled to sell the chief product of the city by the lake——wind. Option dealing has taken the place of legitimate trade in actual wheat on the Chicago market. This "industry" of selling wheat they do not have and purchasing wheat they know they cannot get has been a very profitable one to the financial adventurers and commission pick-pockets of Chicago. The Board of Trade men have pocketed pretty much all the profits of each recurring crop of wheat, and smiled at the innocence of the northwestern farmers, who allowed themselves to be despoiled and robbed, year in and year out, with never a protest.

Finally the Hon. W. D. Washburn, United States Senator, from Minnesota, determined to make the effort to compass the defeat of the Chicago commission men, by causing a law to be passed making option dealing—or buying and selling that which did not exist—a penal offense. Early last winter, in pursuit of this object, Senator Washburn introduced his well-known "Anti-option bill" in the senate of the United States. Some weeks later, Mr. Hatch, a member of the National House of Representatives, from the State of Missouri, introduced a similar measure in that body. Senator Washburn and Representative Hatch, later on, met and combined the essential features of their two bills into one, and then proceeded to combine every influence possible for the passage of the joint bill.

No bill ever introduced into Congress has produced the opposition provoked by the Washburn-Hatch "Anti-option" measure, introduced into Congress in the interest of the farmers and producers of the nation.

The bill prohibits dealing options, covering wheat, oats, corn, pork, cotton and other farm products, and, under its provisions no man my purchase, or sell any of these fruits of the soil, unless the articles so sold or purchased are actually in sight, and absolutely owned by the man who offers them or any of them for sale. Under this bill "wind" is no longer recognized as a commercial commodity, and all dealers must first purchase the articles from the farmer and own them before he offers them for sale in the open market, otherwise he becomes a common criminal and is liable to be prosecuted and sent to the penitentiary as a violator of the law.

Its introduction into Congress brought on an army of agents and attorneys from all the large cities of the land to the lobbies of Congress. Every option chamber in the nation had one or more attorneys in Washington. The Chicago Board of Trade was especially active. It opened a barrel of money right under the dome of the capital, and proceeded to endeavor to defeat the passage of the bill by the most open and lawless bribery. The press was subsidized, and characterless and venal writers salaried to slander every representative of the people in Washington who pronounced in favor of the bill. Lobbyists waited upon members and senators, using all their wily and seductive powers to secure votes against it.

Senator Washburn was particularly singled out for the malevolent shafts of these corrupt hirelings of the brazen gambling houses. He was accused of having wasted a fortune in gambling at options, when the literal fact was that he had never lost a dollar in gambling in wheat during his entire life.

The bill passed the house of representatives by a vote of almost two to one, and came to the senate during the closing days of the session—too late to force action upon it before adjournment. It is on the senate calendar for final action early next session and will finally come up for a vote upon its passage in December or January next. The almost absolute certainty that this great reformatory measure will pass the senate and become a law, has driven the option gamblers wild. They have so long robbed the farming classes with impunity, that they have learned to think that the agricultural interest is their particular property, and they are using every means—even the vilest and most criminal to discredit the men who are forcing the measure through Congress.

We now come down to the latest "scheme" called into life by the Chicago Board of Trade. It consists in this ridiculous and slanderous pamphlet, prepared and published by one C. C. Wolcott.

This man Wolcott seven or eight years ago was a "snide" and characterless country banker at Larmore, North Dakota. He was engaged in the disreputable business of loaning money on mortgage to the pioneer farmers of that region, and collecting from 20 to 100 per cent interest thereon. He was again and again prosecuted before the courts of Dakota Teritory for this crime (for under the laws of Dakota an over collection of interest was a criminal transaction) and the records of the courts of Grand Forks County prove this in numerous cases.

Finding that his criminal practices were becoming unprofitable at Larimore, Wolcott removed to Minneapolis in 1886, and commenced business as a "grain dealer." His business was black mailing legitimate and well established dealers in wheat, owners of established elevator lines and others. In prosecuting his criminal practices, he organized what is known as the "Scandinavian Elevator Company." Of this company he was practically the sole owner, although he had taken into partnership one or two characterless adventurers like himself, some of whom were prominently identified with the North Dakota Farmers Alliance.

His method was to buy, nearly always on credit, some worn-out warehouse or small elevator at a competing railroad point, and enter the field as "an independent buyer." Then he would approach the Alliance of the neighborhood with the statement, that the other elevator companies had raised the price of wheat on him to crowd him out and ruin him. Upon this plea he would beg his "farmer friends" to stand by him, and sell him their wheat below the card price so that he would not be "ruined" by these "grinding monopolies."

It is perfectly amazing what a large number of farmers would listen to his story, and sell him their wheat at a reduction from the established price. But the season of this sort of a harvest is always a very brief one. The farmers soon came to understand the character of this common swindler and deserted the Scandinavian Elevator Company and went where they could get best price for their produce.

After he had thus plucked all of the silly geese who would be plucked, and his elevators and warehouses stood empty on his hands, he proceeded to organize another and a bolder swindle. He sailed for Europe, taking with him a Frenchman named St. Croix. These two conspired together to sell the Scandinavian Elevator Company to British capitalists. But the scoundrel had reached the end of his villainous rope. The British millionaires refused to take his bait, and Mr. Wolcott went broke. The Scandinavian Elevator Company went into the hands of a receiver, paying only a fraction of a cent on the dollar of its indebtedness, and Mr. Wolcott made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. Mr. Thomas Taylor, of Minneapolis, who had known Wolcott in North Dakota, mortgaged a farm near Larimore for three hundred dollars, and sent the proceeds across the water to pay his passage back to America.

This is the instrument used by the Chicago Board of Trade to traduce the characters of honest men—men who have a world wide reputation for strict commercial honor and unassailed business integrity—and bring them into contempt. A professional blackmailer, a confessed trickster and self-proclaimed fraud finds his employment in concocting slanders for which he is rewarded by a so-called commercial organization (?) doing business in one of the chief cities of the land.

Is it not time that the option rooms of the Chicago Board of Trade was catalogued with the Louisiana State Lottery and relegated to the shades as an ancient and barbarous method of appropriating the unearned increment from the pockets of the honest and hardworking citizens of the great northwest. By the side of comparatively honest methods in gambling, trading in options will in the history of the near future take its place as the co-partner and twin-fraud of bunco steering.

Because of this expose of its methods and pushed forward by the conscience of the nation—option dealing is doomed to an early destruction. Its "business methods" are the methods of the policy shark and sneak thief; its attorney and defender is the public swindler and the black mailer. The "Anti-option" bill will be passed by the senate of the United States next winter, and in a few brief months the honest and trustworthy business men of the nation will wonder how such a machine for common plunder was ever tolerated for a day in the midst of a civilization calling itself intelligent and enlightened.

But what is to be said of a great political organization like the Democratic party, the leaders and agents of which proudly stand sponsor for the lying slanders of this quasi-criminal! Political parties are supposed to enunciate principles for the lawful government of men. Through political agencies society is held together and the law thus becomes the agent to protect the weak from the strong, the honest man from the knave, the legitimate business operator from the confidence man and the common thief. And yet, here is the great Democratic party, through its chosen and accredited agents, employing a criminal as a servant; a violater of the law whose proper home is the penitentiary in his criminal capacity, to deceive the people of this state and section, so that it may militate in favor of their party and place their candidates in office.

It can be understood how the Chicago Herald might be bought up by the Chicago Board of Trade to publish to the world a dirty sensation in the interest of the illegitimate business of the city in which it is published. But why the St. Paul Globe should besmirch the character of leading men of its own party in chosing power, it passes the bounds of common decency to comprehend.

The dirty scheme and the fowl schemes will not succeded. Already the farmers of the Northwest understand that the real "Gigantic Conspiracy" is a party between the democratic party and the Chicago Board of Trade to injure honest business men of Minnesota.

Conclusive Testimony.

When the beneficient effects of the Republican policy of protection is fully and completely proved by statistics coming from Democratic sources the people will accept such testimony as conclusive. That is exactly the case with regard to Mr. Peck, the New York commissioner of labor whose report has made so much trouble in the Democratic camp. The leaders have caused Peck's arrest on the charge that he burned the evidence—the letters from manufacturers and employers—upon which the report was based. And now comes a New York paper with page after page giving figures accompanied by the sworn affidavit of Mr. Peck, setting forth "that the above tables were prepared and are transcripts from the original blanks filled up by the manufacturers of this State and returned to me, and that such tables are in every particular correct and true transcripts of said returns of said manufactures." They are also accompanied by the sworn affidavits of Mr. Peck's chief clerk, Mr. Kean, and of all the Democratic employes of the bureau engaged in the work of tabulation, setting forth that the results are correct.

Here is the Republican policy of protection summed up in a nut shell by Governor McKinley. "The things that we cannot make for ourselves or produce for ourselves we must buy elsewhere, and therefore, we want no tax upon them, but the things we can produce among ourselves and for ourselves, it is economy for our people to buy from each other, and if the foreign producer wants to enjoy any part of this market he must be subject to the terms we shall tax in the interest of our own country-men first. That is the principle of protection. That is the doctrine of patriotism. That is the principle of our country first and our countrymen first. That is the principle of home and family. That is the doctrine of true Americanism."

These columns have shown by excerpts from President Harrison's speeches that his sentiments are lofty and expressions felicitous. His running mate, Whitelaw Reid is also surprising even hitherto warm admirers by the dignity and earnestness of his public utterances. Contrasting the two parties Mr. Reid says most happily:

"We do not need to turn our faces, even in reminiscence, to the past. We may leave out of the discussion the whole history of the Republican party—which is through thirty years one of the most glorious and the most prosperous period of the Republic. We may even overlook the record of the Democratic party for the same time—a record which they are about to consider unkind and unfriendly to mention. We need only to fix attention upon the policy for the future, which they have at least openly and manfully avowed, to insure their renewed defeat."

Entitled to a Pension.

A Preference for Pop.

An Order Assigns.

PHILADELPHIA, Special.—The Order of Fraternal Guardians has made an assignment for the benefit of its creditors. The instrument is dated to-day, and is executed by W. E. Cruseen, supreme secretary of the order. It was stated at Mr. Tull's office this afternoon that the order expected to pay its creditors dollar for dollar, and that it has about $800,000 in a number of banking institutions in this city. The troubles of the Order of Fraternal Guardians date back to last March when a certificate holder filed a bill in equity in the common pleas court against the order and its officers, asking that a receivership be appointed and that the affairs of the order be wound up.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

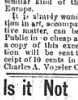
Just What Is Wanted.

Business is alive to a great coming event, and in the hurly-burly of its preparations for the Columbian Exposition in 1893; too much is already seen on the streets of a fanciful or amusing nature, both superficial and catch-penny. There has been observed a void in the line of the strictly useful; combining therewith instructive object lessons and the beautiful in art. Books there may be by the score, but the experience of the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia shows that the mass of these were mere trifles and unserviceable. The horde of visitors were ever at loss for a handy pocket guide of official stamp, not only reliable, but pleasing and always fit to keep. Just what is wanted of this unique kind has happily already made its appearance, and we have before us "THE OFFICIAL PORTFOLIO OF THE WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION," illustrated from Water Color Drawings.

This Portfolio is a rare and beautiful exponent of the main architectural features of the Great Exposition at Chicago in 1893. The fourteen magnificent structures are faithfully exhibited, while the Bird's-eye View gives a realistic glance at the lay of the grounds, with their principal buildings, lagoons, etc. The illustrations are exact reproductions, in water color effects, of the original drawings, made especially for this purpose from the official plans, by America's best known water color artist, Charles Graham. The pictures therefore are not only official, but they are genuine works of art, and competent critics pronounce them to be equal to the finest productions of a similar kind of the famous art centres of Europe.

It is simply wonderful how such perfection in art, accompanied by a full descriptive matter, can be served to the Great Public in so cheap and handy a form. But, a copy of this exceptionally fine production will be sent to any address upon receipt of 10 cents in postage stamps by The Charles A. Vogeler Co., Baltimore, Md.

Is it Not Wonderful?



The unequalled cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla certainly entitle it to be called "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Jacob A. Kunkel, a reliable farmer of Mt. Royal, York Co., Pa., says that a running sore broke out on the leg of his nephew, Milton A. Kunkel, when he was 5 years old. It grew to a great size and the leg became weaker until he could not walk. Two years ago they began giving Milton Hood's Sarsaparilla and in a short time he began to improve. The sore healed up.

Milton A. Kunkel.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

restored perfect health, and he is now, at 13 years, lively and rugged. Mr. Kunkel says: "His cure is little short of a miracle."

A LITTLE PARABLE.

I made the cross myself, whose weight
Was later laid on me.
This thought adds anguish as I toil
Up Life's steep Calvary.

To think mine own hands drove the nails!
I sang a merry song,
And chose the heaviest wood I had
To build it firm and strong.

If I had guessed—if I had dreamed
Its weight was meant for me,
I should have built a lighter cross
To bear up Calvary.

Doesn't "look" as she ought—the weak, nervous and ailing woman. As long as she suffers from the aches, pains, and derangements peculiar to her sex, she can't expect to.

But there's only herself to blame. With Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, she's a different woman. And it's a change that can be seen as well as felt. The system is invigorated, the blood enriched, digestion improved, melancholy and nervousness dispelled.

With the "Favorite Prescription," all the proper functions are restored to healthy action. Periodical pains, weak back, bearing-down sensations, nervous prostration, all "female complaints" are cured by it. It's the only medicine for woman's weaknesses and ailments that's guaranteed to do what is claimed for it. If it doesn't give satisfaction, in every case for which it's recommended, the money is returned.

PROGRESS OF IMPROVEMENTS.

Now Being Made in this Vicinity, and Others Contemplated.

Great progress on the improvements now in course of construction in this city is being made, and others of great magnitude are contemplated and will be realized early in the spring, and all because of the enterprise of our citizens in accepting the proposition of the Northern Mill company last spring. As we have repeatedly said, one industry brings another, and already sufficient improvements have been made and are planned for construction in the early spring, to pay the increased taxation.

Work on the new mill and railroad is progressing nicely. The mill structure is complete and the machinery is now being put in position. The new brick round house is fast approaching completion, and the new bridge across the river will be entirely completed this week, although the construction train for track laying has crossed for several days. The work of laying the track is progressing finely, about five miles being finished last night. The track has been laid at the rate of about half a mile a day thus far, but greater progress will be made from now on as the ties are more convenient to get. The work of ballasting with gravel is following closely on the the heels of the track layers. The road is graded for over 40 miles. The large bridge over the thoroughfare at Gull lake is in course of construction by Messrs. McLain & Sons, who will have it completed by the time the track layers reach there. A prominent official said yesterday that logging trains would be run over the road within 60 days.

Actual work on the new street railway has been commenced, all the poles for the road and nearly all the ties having arrived, and are now being unloaded and distributed along the line of the road. The work of setting the poles will begin immediately, and it is expected that the work of laying the track will begin the 15th, when the rails and other material will be delivered here.

The large three-story brick business block which we stated Mr. Parker would construct in the near future, has been definitely located, Mr. Parker having on Wednesday purchased four lots at the corner of Front and Eighth streets from H. Spalding and Leon E. Lum for that purpose, the consideration being $5,000 cash. The building will be built early in the spring.

T. McMaster has purchased the three lots on Sixth street just south of the mill track, and we understand that next season he will build a fine brick business block for store rooms, and a fine ware house and barn to accommodate his ever increasing wholesale grocery business. Mr. McMaster feels the need of a large ware house in connection with his store room, which he cannot get at his present location, hence his determination to build for himself.

Several other new buildings, among them a fine new three story brick building, are contemplated for construction in the spring, besides the erection of at least three new brick school buildings, at a cost of at least $50,000. Taking into consideration all these improvements, we can safely venture the prediction that next year will be the most prosperous in the history of the city. Brainerd's future never looked so bright as at present.

Come in and get one of these practical Souvenirs free Saturday and all next week.

Fruit in Crow Wing.

Mr. G. A. Hunt, of Bay Lake, left us fine a box of fruit at this office on Monday last as any one could desire to see and all raised by himself on his farm in that town. There were six varieties of grapes, the Roger, Agawam, Merrimac, Golden Pockington, Concord and Isabel, all ripe and excellent, any grapes we have seen in the market for sale. Four different varieties of apples and a sample of the Desota plum. The gentleman finds a ready market for his fruit in this city and will go more extensively into the business of raising the more choice varieties. It has been only four years since he began to experiment in this kind of farming here and he finds that the climate and soil is especially adapted to it.

Don't forget to call on us if you want to buy a cloak cheap.

HENRY I. COHEN.

A Thriving Industry.

The Brainerd brick yard, as conducted the present season by Messrs. Kelehan & Brosson, has undoubtedly been one of the most thriving and profitable industries in Brainerd this season. Over three million brick have been manufactured and a ready market has been found for the entire output at high prices. The bricks produced are pronounced of even better quality than those manufactured in former years, and brick from this yard have always been considered of excellent quality. It is undoubtedly the quality of the article produced that makes them in such demand. Mr. Kelehan informed a Dispatch scribe that the output this year is the largest ever produced, not excepting 1881-82, the years of the boom in this city. Mr. Kelehan also said that they could have sold more than twice as many as they could produce, and another season will probably see at least five million brick produced by this yard.

A new post office has been established at Bay Lake with Mrs. N. H. Gunnell as postmistress.

C. H. Closterman, of Anaconda, Mont, is in the city. Mr. Closterman is interested in silver mines there and reports good prospects.

The mammoth tableau reflector that Prof. Shepherd brings with him will make Columbian tableaux worth the price of admission at the opera house Oct. 21.

McLain & Sons, the Minneapolis firm that is building the bridges on the new railroad, have been awarded the contract of repairing the Mississippi river wagon bridge.
