IMPROVING THE MEMORY.

Simple Expedients Which Lead to Unmistakable Success.

The fault with most artificial memory systems is that they are too elaborate, and break down from the intricacies of their complicated conditions. For the purpose of improving the memory of figures, a little trouble and common sense will go further than most of these so-called memory systems. It is beyond question that some people have the insatiable boom of a good memory, but in many cases a poor memory is mainly the result of carelessness and want of attention. By the exercise of steady determination the power of concentration necessary for improving the memory can be gradually gained. The mind must not be loaded too much. A little every day is quite enough, but that little must be well and earnestly grappled with. If this is done consciously the results will soon be most gratifying.

The minutes of Honey spent daily, no matter how inconsiderable the items may be, may be written down in a memorandum book. If a note is given or taken the amount of it, the time it is given and the date of its maturity, together with the parties interest, can be held in mind with little difficulty. The mind will retain the facts which friend lives, and such things as the number of apple, peach, pear trees in your orchard, if you have enough to have one, and innumerable other items of daily life can be utilized by memory lessons. The main thing is that there must be no shirking. The memory must be used and indulgent, and the indisposition to exert itself can only be overcome by resolute will and determination. It is well to cultivate the habit of observing minute details. Disciplines in one direction will be pleasant, but it pays.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Peat in America.

Peat beds are commonly supposed to be peculiar to Ireland, and few people know that they are almost as abundant in the United States as on the Emerald Isle. There are many large beds in northern New York, while in New England and Pennsylvania they are also common, and are found in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota, and in Canada they are found in Canada, Labrador and Newfoundland, and in the island of Anticosti, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, has the largest peat bed in the world. It is over eighty miles long and from two to seven miles wide, the thickness varying from three to ten feet. The peat is of good quality, but owing to the cheapness of the coal is very little used.

Would you know how to manage a husband, read the latest receipt: When he is cross and cranky—all men are at times—take a book and read, or play some an agreeable movement on piano, but do not bother him.

Whenever you get onions go visit your worst enemy and stay a week, but do not go near your husband.

Whenever he asks whose place it is to give in tell him not the woman always, for not the man, but the one who loves him most. And then let him have his way.

THE PARSON'S CAYENNE.

"The Hoosier Friend Thought It too Hot for a Unconvinced to Use.

That a little fun now and then is relished by the best as well as the worst of men is not infrequently illustrated in the social meetings of the Protestant church of St. Louis. They enjoy a good joke as well as any one, and not a few of the St. Louis ministers are capital story tellers. As an instance, the following incident and anecdote is given at relishing one at a bold and prominent minister:

"Many years since," he said, "when Simon Pure Universalism was prevailed, I chanced to be in Indianapolis during the progress of a convention of ministers of that faith. Stopping at a hotel where I did was a young person who had come from the East to attend the convention. As it afterwards developed, he had taken the precaution in visiting that marvelous country to carry a vial of cayenne pepper in his pocket to sprinkle his food with as a 'preventative to fever and ague.' As dinner time came a tall Hoosier observed the parson as he seasoned his meat and addressed him:

"'Stranger, I'll thank you for a bottle of that 'ere red salt. I'm kind o' curious to try it,' he said.

"'Certainly,' returned the parson, but you will find it very powerful; be careful how you use it.'

"The Hoosier took the proffered vial, and feeling that a liberal quantity of raw whisky thought will be could stand the 'red salt' with impunity, and accordingly sprinkled a piece of beef rather bountifully. Unfortunately for the Northwest he introduced it into his capacious mouth. It soon began to take hold. He shut his eyes and began to wince. Finally he could stand it no longer. He opened his mouth and exclaimed:

"'Take a drink of cold water from the jug,' said the parson.

"'Will that put it out?' asked the martyr, suiting the action to the word. In a short time the unfortunate man began to recover, and turning to the parson, his eyes yet swimming in water, he exclaimed:

"'Stranger, you call yourself a "Versalist, I believe?'

"'I do,' mildly answered the parson.

"'Wal, I want to know if you think it consistent with your faith to let a feller about with hellfire in your breeches pocket.—St. Louis Republic.

His Hi-Benaved Leg.

"A cork leg is no end of a bore," said the gentleman with the limp. "I know of it! I was at a dinner party the other night, and it was my happy lot to have a most charming damsel fall to my share at the table. We conversed most pleasantly through the oyster and the soup, but when the fish came on she became silent, and I noticed she was uneasy in her chair. To draw her from this mood I redoubled my efforts to please, but in spite of me she grew flushed and looked angry. Finally, interrupting me in the middle of a little mot which I had composed carefully while dressing for dinner, she said, sotto voce:—

"'Will thank you to stop squeezing my foot!'

"Imagine my embarrassment! I had been unconsciously pressing her toe with my cork foot—of course, without knowing it. It is an annoying thing to have to explain to a young lady at a social festivity. Nevertheless, I was forced to do so. She accepted my apology, and then proceeded to injure my feelings by giggling.

Why Do Widows Outnumber the Widowers?

One curious fact which every census discloses is the numerical excess of widows over widowers. The usual ratio is 8 per cent, of the female population as widows to 4 per cent, of the male population as widowers. This proportion is maintained in all the female sex, this disparity has been explained on the ground that married men, as a class, are in a more correct appreciation of the benefits of the married state, are glad to repeat what has been to them a beneficial association, whereas women, having less reason to be pleased, disposed to take the second matrimonial alliance, unless it be an exceptionally desirable one. This is not a sufficient explanation. Why is it, in every land, that the widows outnumber the widowers by two to one?

THE SARATOGA MIRACLE

FURTHER INVESTIGATED BY AN EXPRESS REPORTER.

The Facts Already Stated Fully Confirmed—Interviews With Leading Physicians who Treated Quasi —"The Patient" Marvelous Case In the History of Medical Science.

A few weeks ago an article appeared in this paper copied from the Albany, N. Y. Journal, giving the particulars of one of the most remarkable cures of the 19th century. The article was under the heading "A Saratoga Miracle" and has been widely commented upon. But another Albany paper—the Express—despatched a reporter to make a thorough investigation of the statements appearing in the Journal's article. The facts as published by the Express reporter are given in the following article, which appeared in that paper on April 9th, and makes one of the most interesting stories ever related:—

A few months ago there was published in the Albany Evening Journal the story of a most remarkable—indeed so remarkable as to well deserve the term "miraculous"—cure of a severe case of locomotor ataxia, or creeping paralysis by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and, in compliance with instructions, an Express reporter has been spending some time in a careful investigation of the real facts of the case.

The story as published in the Journal was A. Quant of Galway, Saratoga county, N. Y., as first told in "The Journal," has been copied into hundreds of other journals of celebrity and weekly newspapers and has created such a sensation throughout the entire country that it was deemed a duty due all the people and especially the thoughtful, painfully afflicted, that the statements of the case as made in "The Albany Journal" should be copied into other newspapers which, if true, be verified facts, if false, exposed as an imposition upon public credulity.

The result of the Express reporter's investigation, which seems to him to prove the story of Charles A. Quant's cure of locomotor ataxia by the use of Pink Pills for Pale People, a popular remedy prepared and put up by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Morristown, N. Y., and Brockville, Ontario, IS TRUE, and that all its statements are not only justified but, verified by the further development of the further facts of the case.

Perhaps the readers of the Express are not all of them familiar with the details of this miraculous restoration to health of a child, for three weeks and months of treatment by the most skillful doctors in two of the best hospitals in the state of New York—Albany hospital in Albany, the city and St. Peter's hospital in Albany—was dismissed from each as incurable, and because the case was deemed incurable, the man was denied admission into several others to which application was made in his behalf. The story as told by Mr. Quant himself and published in the Albany Journal reads as follows:—

"My name is Charles A. Quant. I am 37 years old. I was born in the village of Galway and excepting a short interval on the Canal, I have lived all my life in Amsterdam, have been my whole life here. Up to about eight years ago I had never been sick and was then in perfect health. I was full and fat tall, weighed 180 pounds and was very strong. For 12 years I was traveling salesman for a prominent Albany company, which had to do, or at least did do, a great deal of heavy lifting. My trade was very rough on my and kept in enough spare beds' in country towns to freeze any ordinary man to death, or at least give him the rheumatism, about eight years ago I began to feel uneasiness in my stomach, and consulted several doctors about it. They all said it was dyspepsia, and for dyspepsia I was treated by various doctors in different places, and took all the patent medicines I could hear of that claimed to be a cure for dyspepsia. But I continued to grow gradually worse for four years. Then I began to have pain in my back and legs and became conscious that my legs were getting weak and my step unsteady, and then I staggered I walked. I had lightning pains and all the many different kinds of electric applications would cure of, and spent hundreds of dollars on them, but they did no good whatever. Mr. Quant then read the medical reporter an electric suit of underwear, for which he paid $124. In the fall of 1888 the doctors advised a change of climate, so I went to Atlanta, Ga., and acted as agent for Atlanta Hygeia Consumptive Home. There I took a thorough electric treatment, but it only increased my nervous disease, and the only relief I could get from the sharpness of lightning pains was in hard morphine. The pain was so intense at times that I would walk the floor and scream and it, and I almost jumped or death as the only relief. In September of 1888 my legs gave out entirely and my left eye was drawn to one side, my head was double sight and was dizzy. My trouble so effectually shook nervous system that I had to give up business. Then I returned to Albany and was under the best medical treatment there for four months I was treated by specialist and by best family physician—case inconvertible ataxia and incurable. After I had been under treatment by Prof. Starr and Dr. Ware for four months, the latter said he did all he could, they could for me. Then I went to the New York hospital in Fifteenth street, where upon examination, they said I was incurable and could not take me in. At the Presbyterian hospital they examined me and told me the same thing. In March, 1890, I was taken to St. Peter's hospital in Albany, where Prof. H. H. Hun frankly told my wife my case was desperate; that he could do nothing for me and that she had better take me back home and make me comfortable. But I wanted to make a trial of Prof. Hun's skill and he kindly consented to take my treatment for nine weeks, but secured no benefit. All this time I had been growing worse. I had become entirely paralyzed from the waist down and had entirely lost control of my hands. The pain was terrible, my legs felt as if filled with red hot iron, and my stomach was in a constant state of revolt. I left St. Peter's hospital, and went home to die. In the January following I was given up by the doctors, who said there was no more for me to do

After the concluding exercises the congregation went forward to extend their cordial greetings to their new pastor. Mr. Ware has been serving this church as stated supply for a few months past with most beneficial results. The congregations have been steadily increasing. Thirteen have been added to the membership. The Sunday school has very considerably increased its membership, and generally the church in its several departments evidences a growing prosperity.

She Couldn't Marry Three.

Monday, May 9th, Lillian Kennedy in the N. Y. success, "She Couldn't Marry Three." This company use their own special scenery entirely for this production and the company is first-class in every particular. Manager Alexander assures his patrons of full return for their money.

The small boy who, when asked his age, replied that, judged by the fun he had had, he was 100 years old, pretty accurately described the feeling of the large audience at the Academy last night. Lillian Kennedy made a decided hit, and the amusement that was crowded into three hours to unravel "She Couldn't Marry Three" was enough for two nights, and all the roles essayed by Miss Kennedy and the strong support, was equally charming and successful. The company is far above the average, and is sure of big business.—[N. Y. Herald.

A Sudden Call.

David Swanson, a well known citizen of Brainerd was found dead on Wednesday morning at 3 o'clock near the corner of Eighth and Laurel streets.

Mr. Swanson was down town the evening before in his usual good health and started home at 11 o'clock in company with Mons. Mahlum. The two parties went to sleep together and when they reached that point they separated each going his way home. Charles Swanson, of the firm of Parsons and Swanson, and a son of the deceased, arrived home about 1 o'clock, and was alarmed at the non-appearance of his father as he knew he had started with the intention of going direct to the house, and he at once began search for him, and found his lifeless body only a short distance from the place where Mr. Mahlum separated from him. The cause of his death was heart disease, and it was evident that the gentleman had been dead several hours when found. Mr. Swanson was a respected citizen and leaves a wife and son besides scores of friends to mourn his untimely death. The funeral took place from his late residence yesterday afternoon.

Doing Good Work.

We clip the following from the columns of the Princeton Union:

EDITOR BANNER, Minn., April 20, 1892.

Mr Editor:—Perhaps some of your readers would be interested in what is going on in this neighborhood. About nine days ago Mr. Archibald Speers, the American Sunday School Missionary, and his son, Rev. Luther Speers, came here and commenced a series of gospel meetings in the school house. The attendance has been good and there has been a wonderful awakening, between thirty-five and forty have professed salvation, among them a good many heads of families, and others are under conviction for their sins. The preachings of these brethern are simple, plain, pointed and forcible. The doctrines that they preach does not consist in creeds, but urging sinners to repent, forsake sin and turn to God and accept Christ as their savior, through faith in His atonement for sin. The Sunday school was organized at the close of the meetings, with glowing prospects of success, and a christian Society and weekly prayer meeting appointed for Wednesday evenings, and a leader chosen to take charge. We were sorry the brethren had to leave so soon, as some said the whole neighborhood would be converted if they could stay a few days longer.

One of the Saved.

EMILY HENRY.

Gorton's Minstrels.

The Alpena, Mich., Press of April 12th, in speaking of the performance there the evening before, says:

This company opened in the opera house to good business last night. The curtain rolled up on a magnificently set stage and Gorton's Gold Cornet organ started the program by a fine selection. The first part contained the usual songs and dialogue—probably the best being the bass solo by J. W. Wilson.

Sam Lee, cornetist, rendered the Last Rose of Summer accompanied by the Gold Sextette. Mr. Lee is a cornet player, and his fine triple tonguing and execution has never been equalled in Alpena—not even by the great Levy, who has appeared here. We are not comparing Mr. Lee to Levy, but he has a brilliant future before him if he does not waste his opportunities.

Welby, Pearl and Keys, in their specialties, are the strong feature of the show—their tumbling, high jumping and high kicking being particularly good work.

The Elliotts are fine dancers, as good as there are in any company on the road, and those who enjoy a refined song and dance will be entertained by this team.

Corporal Johnson is a gem with a gun, and DeWitt Cooke is a wonder with Indian clubs.

The closing features of the show are good, and the whole performance is worthy of patronage. They appear again to-night.

At the Opera House Saturday evening, May 7th—25 high class artists. Open air concert at 12 noon at First National Bank corner. Uniformed parade to follow.

A Lumbermaa's Rendezvous.

This term might be applied to Stevens Point, located on the Wisconsin Central Lines, at the gate-way to the vast forest region which extends North to Lake Superior, a distance of 200 miles without a break, on account of its vast lumber interests. The Wisconsin River to which the lumbermen have given the familiar and somewhat affectionate title of "Old Wisconsin," not alone acts as a lumber feeder to the city by furnishing through its numerous tributaries an outlet for thousands of acres of pine in the upper country, but it furnishes a water power that is second only to that of Neenah and Menasha, which cities are also located on the "Central." Millions of feet of lumber are cut every year, giving employment to hundreds of men. In addition to the lumber trade, it has numerous other manufactories; it is here where the large car shops of the Wisconsin Central Lines are located.
