THE HAIR

When not properly cared for, loses its lustre, becomes crisp, harsh, and dry, and falls out freely on any combing. To prevent this, the best and most popular dressing in the market is Ayer's Hair Vigor. It removes dandruff, heals troublesome humors of the scalp, restores faded and gray hair to its original color, and imparts to it a silky texture and a lasting fragrance. By using this preparation, the poorest head of hair may and beautiful. All who have once tried Ayer's Hair Vigor, at other dressing, Galbraith & Starks, Druggists, Sharon Grove, Ky., write: "We believe Ayer's Hair Vigor to be the best preparation of the kind in the market, and sell more of it than of all others. No drug store is complete without a supply of it."

Become Luxuriant

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor with great benefit and know several other persons, between the ages of 60 and 70 years, who have experienced similar good results from the use of this preparation. It restores gray hair to its original color, promotes a new growth, gives lustre to the hair, and cleanses the scalp of dandruff." — Bernardo Ochoa, Madrid, Spain.

After Using

A number of other preparations without any satisfactory result, I find that Ayer's Hair Vigor is causing my hair to grow." — A. J. Osmond, General Merchant, Indian Head, N. W. T.

"Ayer's Hair Vigor is the only preparation I could ever find to remove dandruff, cure itching, and prevent my hair from falling. I can confidently recommend it." — C. C. Bullard, Spencer, Mass.

"My wife believes that the money spent for Ayer's Hair Vigor was more than repaid to her in the improvement in her hair. It has given her so much satisfaction, it has given her so much satisfaction." — James A. Adams, St. Augustine, Texas.

It is really too bad that the republicans did not place a candidate in nomination for governor in this state suitable to the democrats.

ROYALTON would like to be represented on the republican legislative ticket this fall and in case her claims are recognized by Morrison county I. W. Bonck will be the candidate.

The republicans of the Third district have placed Jof P. Hestevold, of Northfield, in nomination for congress. The honors are fittingly bestowed and it goes without saying that Mr. Hestevold will be elected by a good round majority.

The democrats have placed D. W. Lawlor in nomination for governor. The gentleman will not have the honor of warming the chair in the state house in an official capacity for some time, however, as this is the year that the Minnesota republicans will roll up a majority of over 30,000 for their state ticket.

A SOCIAL reform has been commenced at West Superior by closing the saloons at 11 p. m. and on Sundays. All gambling has been stopped and houses of prostitution must all be closed to-morrow night. People on the street in the small hours of the morning must give good reasons therefore or be run in. All Sunday work will be stopped, an ordinance will be passedo losing cigar and news stands and an effort will be made to stop the running of Sunday trains.

PEOPLE who have looked the matter up have found that in Homestead over 60 per cent of all the mill workmen own their own residences while at Leeds, in free trade England with a population of 200,000, not one of the workmen can own a house, and in one of the largest English manufacturing centres. Protection is a pretty good thing after all and the more enlightened the masses become on the subject the more friends it makes for the republican party.

A Dandy Preacher.

The Minneapolis Tribune has the following to say of a former Brainerd minister.

"At 7:15 last evening a ho use belonging to ex-Rev. White, who now lives at Hastings, was discovered to be on fire. A bottle of gasoline was found uncorked in the middle of one room and a pile of rags on fire in another room. Near the fire sat a can half full of gasoline ready to explode. The flames had burned th rough the room board when discovered. It is thought that some of the couple of women the domine had homiciled in the house, they having left for St. Paul on the 6 o'clock train. These women have been in the house about one day a week for five weeks and claimed to be dressmakers. There are no garments in the house, but a dressmaker's outfit and a large sign in the line stove, and a cheap table with a very few cheap dishes on it, but none in the pantry. Since the present owner came into possession the house has been on fire twice before at a late hour at night and the flames have been extinguished each time by the citizens, the second time the ex-diving parson's wife. This third occurrence makes the people here hot. The reverend was formerly a prominent minister in the Methodist church and has preached as pastor at St. Paul Park, Brainerd and other prominent places. About two years ago he was the target of the Sunday Sun and Chicago Blade on account of an alleged girl scrape, but he took no notice of it and has lived on his dignity since."

Undisputed Merit.

The great success of the Royal Baking powder is due to the extreme care exercised by its manufacturers to make it entirely pure, uniform in quality, and of the highest leavening power. All the scientific knowledge, care and skill, attained by a twenty years' practical experience are contributed toward this end, and no pharmaceutical preparation can be dispensed with a greater accuracy, precision and exactness. Every article used is absolutely pure. A number of chemists are employed to test the strength of each ingredient, so that its exact power and effect in combination with its co-ingredients is definitely known. Nothing is trusted to chance, and no person is employed in the preparation of the materials used or the manufacture of the powder, who is not an expert in his particular branch of the business. As a consequence, the Royal Baking Powder is of the highest grade of excellence, always pure, wholesome and uniform in quality. Each box is exactly like every other, and will make the pastry and produce the same and the highest leavening effect in any climate, at any time. The Government Chemists after having analyzed all the principal brands in the market, in their reports placed the Royal Baking Powder at the head of the list for strength, purity and wholesomeness, and thousands of tests all over the country have further demonstrated the fact that its qualities are, in every respect, unrivaled.

THE TARIFF AND LABOR.

How Free Trade Would Effect the Steel Workers. A Vivid Illustration.

Chicago Tribune.

Steel billets have been selling $22.50 per ton. That is equivalent to a cent and a tenth a pound. This duty on imported steel costing more than a cent a pound or $10 on a ton. That is quite sufficient to protect the American against the competition of the foreign manufacturer.

Being well aware of these facts, Mr. Carnegie's workmen say: "You have a protection of $10 a ton and you also have the protection of ocean and railroad freights. Being thus effectually sheltered from English, French, German, and Belgian competion you can afford to pay us old wages. It is not fair to charge the consumer that $10 and pocket proceeds yourselves, as our Democratic states-men tell us you are doing. We want our share."

The reply of the company is: "We admit that we are not troubled by our foreign rivals, but you lose sight of the fact that domestic competition has reduced prices so much that the consumers is not charged nearly all of that ten dollars extra you speak of. The American steel he buys does not cost him the foreign price with ten dollars a ton added, but only three or four dollars a ton above the foreign price. More steel is being made in this country than there are purchasers for. Many establishments, being in immediate need of money, put their product on the market at a loss and have forced down prices. There will be no change for the better till some of these competing concerns go to smash or shut down and increased demand enables the market of surplus stocks. Then prices will advance and wages can go up. Or improvements and economies may be introduced in the manufacture which will enable better wages to be paid though the price of the products "does not advance." This, in effect, is the reply of the employer to his men.

There is no question that domestic competition has forced prices down till steel sells for six dollars a ton below the protection of the tariff rate, or for only about four dollars more than it does in Europe.

But assuming that at a price of $22.50 per ton the old manufacturers find it difficult to continue paying the old wages, and that the workmen are justified in fighting against a cut, who is ready to assert that the former could continue to pay the old wages if the protection duties were repealed and steel costing $18 a ton in England were sent here by shipload to compete with Pennsylvania steel? If the Americans manufacturers had to sell 25 per cent less than they do in order to meet foreign competition how long could they keep on paying present wages.

It is clear that domestic competition has gone so far that it does not justify a cut in wages it is on the verge of doing so. Evidently the result of foreign competition, if it were given free scope, would be a heavy reduction in wages. And in view of the stalwart resistance which steel manufacturers refuse to keep on paying old wages when they get but $22.50 a ton for their steel, it is easy to see how fixed their determination would be not to pay the present wages if they got but about $18 a ton.

If the present fight over a comparatively small reduction is so serious in its nature imagine the gravity of the situation when the removal of protection demanded by a democratic platform called imperatively for a much heavier reduction. And if a small reduction in the wages of a few thousand men in one trade causes so great a commotion, imagine the effect of a great cut first in the pay of millions of men engaged in all the protected industries in the United States, and second in that multitudes of men employed in building trades, transportation and other business. The Homestead mill trouble would be as molehill to Mount Vesuvius in an eruption.

THE SCAFFOLD SIGN.

How the Pain of a Murderer's Hand Looks.

Examine your hand and see if you are a born murderer! But if you find the "scaffold sign" and "spatulated thumb," don't be pale, and commit suicide to escape the despair, for the natural best may be thwarted by resistance, the force of God or other means.

Chiromancies have been studying the hand a long time, and Desbarolles, the famous French savant, declares that the case is conclusively made out. He has drawn a map of the hand which is destined in all probability sooner or later to shake hands of a fellow man. There is first the "pouce en bille," or "ballhanded" thumb, "broad at the point, having often flattened or spatulated at the end, and imperfect as to the nail, which is usually small and narrow somewhat into the flesh. A similar conformation of the fingers is often observed. Second—The thickness of the "Mount of Mars," or outer edge of the palm, which chiromancists argue to indicate brute force.

Third—The "scaffold sign," a peculiar cross in the palm beneath the second finger.

Other signs are added, but these are chief. A correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer inspected the hands of the convicted homicides in the Ohio penitentiary and found corroborative. Almost every one had the sign, and Warden O. S. James was so impressed with it that he refused to allow an examination of the seven murderers in the annex awaiting execution, as he thought it might prejudice their chances for commutation. W. J. Elliott, the late Chicago murderer, whose hand when his hand looked at, so he is not born a murderer by accident or sudden heat rather than by nature.

Benedict Zucher, who killed his own father, has such thumbs absolutely en bille, and the scaffold sign sharp and distinct in one hand. His mother was perfectly typical, according to Desbarolles' theory.

John Riddle, who murdered a convict in the penitentiary, after he had received a life sentence for a murder committed in Shelby county, is another prisoner who has the murderer's characteristic hand in every detail.

Johnny Real, of Preble county, confessed on circumstantial evidence at the age of thirteen of killing his own mother, has hands perfectly free of the distinctive sign. So has George W. Brashears, convicted also on circumstantial evidence, and Samuel Hummell. All the men have the signs, and many of them to an astonishing degree. Some of the women, however, have the signs but very slightly.

William Berner, of Kirk, killed his mother of Kirk, in Cincinnati, whose light sentence caused the great row of 1886. In a perfect "murderer's hand"—the square, bulious thumb, with a short nail, the outer edge of the hand high and the "line of life directly bisecting the line of head just under the little finger—Desbarolles explains it thus: The thumb distinguishes man from all similarly formed animals, the nearer the thumb is to that of an ape or gorilla the more animal in the man, the stronger the animal nature when aroused. So take stock of your thumb, and if it is apish don't drink whisky but pray for grace.

Life in Argentina.

In the colony Zenon Pereira, says, the Buenos Ayres correspondent of the Colonial named Octavia Viale, who had been married but three weeks and was a newly married bride. His brother keeps an almacen quite close to the colony. It appears that he was taking his wife to his house one Sunday, the two riding in a cart, and when passing a portion of the ffuse de pan (wild steeds), naturally suspecting nothing, this legal officer came out of the doorway to bring a soldier to whom he had lent a dog, and shot the unfortunate man in the chest, killing him instantaneously. Leaving the criminal was brought and two men drolly worn to tell of what the colonists were with difficulty prevented from lynching him. He underwent a trial. The body of the dead man was buried next day, all the colonists attending. We hope, adds the correspondent, that the law will refuse to allow such a bloodthirsty villain to live to play any more of his murderous jokes.

A Duck Filled with Gold.

Writes a Blakely (Ga.) correspondent of the Atlanta Constitution: "I noticed the other day a Polkin duck that was moping about and making strange motions with its bill. Upon killing the unfortunate bird it had some foreign substance in its digestive organs and it occurred to me that I therefore resolved to make an examination and see what it was. On opening the bird I found a large nugget, two lumps of gold and a cartridge hull. The gold pieces were too badly worn to tell of what denomination they were, but I think they must have been one dollar pieces. The cartridge hull was all worn away and gone except the head."

Killing Off the Squirrels.

Squirrels are to be the results year hence, after the manner of the jack rabbit hunts in the Dakotas, are becoming very popular in Washington state. A party of farmers and either works as one band or divides into two sections, the section being the fleetest falls paying a forfeit of a dinner. As a squirrel hunt is now on in the vicinity of Tekoa, a party of eleven persons brought in over 900 squirrel tails as the result of the day's sport.

Facts About Heads.

Intellectual strength and executive ability are attributed to the man with long head. But a German scientist who made examination of the cranial capacity of 5,000 soldiers at Berlin, found that the intellectual side of the skull depends almost invariably on the proportions of the body. Tall men be found to always have long skulls, or skulls of medium length, whereas the short, fat men, as a rule, had round, flat heads.

The results obtained from using sulphate of copper dressing to prevent the growth of the fungus on potatoes are decidedly satisfactory.

GUS BAUMLER'S FLIER.

How He Made the Distance from Wyandotte to Trenton.

If any one wants to go from Wyandotte to Trenton ahead of train time I would recoomend him to Gus Baumler. Gus Baumler keeps a running horse with which he ferries through Wayne county mud people who are in a hurry. Gus driver had me pretty well under way for Trenton before I realized that I had started. I was also under a heavy fire of shot. It was shot like hailstones on Gus Baumler's running horse.

"Whoa, Bill. Darn your skin. I'd just like to take a little of it out of you," said the driver. Bill looked like an accordion horse. He had his neck up from the first jump, and when the driver pulled with all his might on the lines Bill humped his back like an angry cat. He was a fine looking horse, with clean limbs when washed, a lot of nervous bulbuedstrec and a high, proud head.

"He's a flier," said the driver.

"He is, ch! Has he ever flown with you?" I asked.

"Yes, you bet he has. Steady, Bill! whoa, darn you! I'll knock it out of you in a minute!"

"Say, hoh! lim down," I said. "I never flew anywhere. I'd rather go on a run or a trot."

Just then a railroad engine belched a cloud of black smoke out of its stack about a hundred yards away. Bill stopped so short that I nearly took a header. The driver quickly wrapped the lines around his hands, and holding a tight rein kept his eyes on Bill's ears.

There's a funny thing about a horse's ears. He can turn them in any direction, like funnels on a steamship.

Bill stood just a second or two shivering with fright or cussedness. Then he leaped sideways into the air. "Look out—he's going to fly?" I yelled.

"I can hold him," said the driver. However, he appeared to me to be too self confident.

Bill danced along sideways and appeared about to vault the ditch. The train pulled down toward us, and at every puff of the engine Bill's front feet went up in the air.

"Say," I asked, "do you think he could jump the fence with the buggy and not hurt us?"

"Bill!" yelled the driver, and for the next minute Bill received a custing that I expected to see him kick on. He had made a final attempt to go over the ditch sideways.

"I guess he can," said the driver. "He's mean boggy." He can go, though. He's gone in 0:53."

I began to wish he had gone in '53 or some other year earlier than my time.

But the engine had now fallen a little behind Bill and he showed signs of a desire to go ahead. The driver eased off an inch on the lines and Bill made a clean sideway jump of about twenty feet. He went along kangaroo fashion until the driver eased off several inches on the lines and then dropped into an easy canter. The driver still held his chin down pretty close to his chest, but his back was humped a good deal. In a few minutes we drew near to a carriage containing two men driving a trotting horse. "Come on!" yelled one of the men, "take a little of our mud." "Gosh!" said my driver, with a broad grin, "if I let Bill straighten his back out those fellows wouldn't know what went by em."

"Let 'im straighten it," I said, with sudden desperation.

I got my next breath at Trenton.—Detroit Journal.

To the Public:

As a matter of justice to ourselves and to the reputation of Dr. Leslie E. Keeley's Double Chloride of Gold Remedies for the cure of the Liquor, Opium, Morphine and Tobacco Diseases, and Neurasthenia, we warn the public that these remedies are used by no institutions or sanitariums in the United States, except those established by our company under the uniform name of "The Keeley Institute."

All others claiming to use our remedies are frauds and impostors.

We have now sixty Keeley Institutes established in various parts of the United States, where the genuine Keeley Treatment is administered, and the Keeley remedies sold. We, however, caution all to examine well the credentials of those who profess to be GENUINE REPRESENTATIVES, authorized by us, before taking treatment or purchasing remedies.

The misleading advertisements are the name of "Bichloride of Gold" or similar titles. The newspapers generally are discriminating enough to know that they are imitators. This is a matter of public welfare, and hence this warning.

HOW A PUZZLE WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you? But how are the dealers going to make it best what puzzles you, isn't it?

Well, we will tell you how that one puzzle was been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of Europe. They jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine was the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving that company only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine, and if he does not keep them, write to us for descriptive catal

IT IS KNUTE NELSON

The Republicans of Minnesota Name Him as Their Candidate for Governor.

A Brief Resume of the Proceedings of the State Republican Convention.

THE STATE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

The state Republican Convention was called to order at Minneapolis, Tuesday, June 21, by the chairman Hestonie of the state central committee, Rev. Dr. Smith offered prayer.

The state platform was read, and as he concluded L. F. Hunt of Mankato presented the name of Hon. Knute Nelson, and Hon. Owatonna for temporary chairman. There was a great deal of enthusiasm displayed in his election and the ex-congressman came to the front amid a storm of applause.

Gov. Baico of Sauk Center nominated A. R. Gilmore of Hennepin county for temporary secretary. His election was unanimous.

Nomination of S. A. Phillips of St. Louis county F. J. Chipman was elected assistant secretary.

J. D. Jones of Todd county moved for the appointment by the chair, of a committee on credentials, to consist of one from each congressional district. Carried. Jones also moved an amendment to the effect that each district should elect a member of the committee, but there was no second. Another amendment was offered by ex-Lieut. Gov. Rice for the appointment of one additional member at large, so that the committee should consist of seventeen members. This amendment was accepted and the resolution adopted.

Hon. Thomas Simpson of Winona made a motion for a similar committee on resolutions and Senator Dunn of Stearns moved for a like committee on permanent organization.

Chairman Stevens, wishing to fill the calendar at the afternoon session, moved that the chair appoint the same. The motion prevailed, after which an adjournment was taken until 2 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

On the reassembling of the convention at 2 o'clock it was learned that the committee on credentials was not prepared to submit its report, and W. H. Jones of Minneapolis was called upon to address the delegates. He said he was glad to be present, as being in a state convention where the affairs of National and Democratic Political Parties were weak when they should be strong, he said, Minnesota was the exception of their candidates they did not always hit their mark on the ground but hear the voice of the people.

The following sentimental was then presented, which elicited the wildest applause when the name of Knute Nelson was announced. The approval of the convention was given amid great cheering, and with the delegates all on their feet.

RESOLUTIONS.

The Republicans of Minnesota desire to express their keen and grateful appreciation of the brilliant and distinguished services rendered to country by the Hon. Knute Nelson, secretary of state. His administration of our ter-ritory and state has been marked by conspicuous character and extent of the work done, and by a rare degree of the best interests of American citizenship. The settlement of long disputed boundary, the organization of state government, the adjustment of public property, and fostering its far-reaching trusts, he made, and in land every Minnesota soldier, on sea every American ship, now or soon, will feel the continued power, wisdom and sympathy of the statesmanship and the patriotism of our fellow citizen, Knute Nelson.

During these years of arduous toil for the state he has not forgotten the duties of a more more site within the shadow of a great sorrow.

We desire to assure him of our unchanging love, and tender him the sympathy of a people in sorrow lately. After a session of men from more than a hundred counties, we feel that we speak for the people of Minnesota, when we express our high sense of the services of the forensic statesman of the world.

Short speeches were made by other prominent delegates.

The committee on credentials then made their report which was adopted.

The committee on permanent organization then made their report of making the temporary organization permanent and the convention adjourned. The delegates then thanked the delegates for the honor done them in the past.

"For the first time in the history of the state, the Republicans of Minnesota have made nominations in time to have a campaign for the first time. In case the electoral college is not able to elect a president, it will be in time that honor, the vote of Minnesota's representatives will be cast for Minnesota's favorite. We must not let the Republican State of Minnesota be behind any state in the union, in loyalty to the house, and therefore in the election of our representatives in congress, we must make all personal feeling and work to secure a Republican victory."

Chairman Stevens then read the report of the committee on resolutions, which presented the following platform for the enunciation of the Republican party.

THE RESOLUTIONS.

The Republicans of Minnesota, through their delegates in convention assembled, do affirm and declare as follows:

First—We endorse and approve the platform of the Republican national convention of June 7, 1892, in all its principles and declarations.

Second—We endorse the wise, pure, firm and patriotic administration of the affairs of President Harrison.

Third—From the very infancy and for upwards of a third of a century our state has been unswerving in its support of the party of Lincoln and Grant, and of the principles of Republican government.

Fourth—We believe in protecting the industry and the wages of American citizens against the competition of the pauper labor of Europe, and we therefore, we believe in the tariff, and in the reciprocity and reciprocity treaties, and we believe in the tariff, and in the reciprocity and reciprocity treaties, and we believe in the tariff, and in the reciprocity and reciprocity treaties, and

FAITH AND THE TZAR

COPYR'T 1892

A picture of health—the woman who has faithfully used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. She feels well and she looks so. It's a medicine that makes her well, whether she's overworked and "run-down," or afflicted with any of the distressing diseases and disorders peculiar to her sex. It builds up—and it cures. For all chronic weaknesses, functional derangements, and "female complaints" of every kind, it's an unfailing remedy.

And it's the only one, among medicines for women, that's guaranteed. If it doesn't give satisfaction, in any case, you have your money back.

Can anything else be "just as good?"

"They're about as bad as the disease!" Not all of them, though. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are pleasant—both when taking and when being acted upon. They cure permanently Sick and Nervous Headaches, Biliousness, Costiveness, and all derangements of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.

"German Syrup"

Just a bad cold, and a hacking cough. We all suffer that way sometimes. How to get rid of them is the trouble—! I am a Rancho man and Stock Raiser. My life is rough and exposed. I meet all weathers in the Colorado mountains, sometimes take colds. Often they are severe. I have used German Syrup five years for them. It always does will cure them at any stage. The last one I had was stopped in 24 hours. It is infallible." James A. Lee, Jefferson, Col.

CORNY O'TOOLE.

He Cautioned the Colonel and Took Him to the Union Men.

When the Union troops retreated across the Rappahannock after the battle of Fredericksburg, among those left lying on the field was one Corny O'Toole.

He was not wounded, nor was he even stunned, but he lingered behind till it was too late, and hearing he would be taken prisoner, with his ready Irish wit, hedecided to lie down among the killed and wounded, hoping to find his way back to camp when night came on.

He had just stretched himself in a comfortable position when several of the enemy carrying stretchers came up.

"Here's Col. Bunting!" exclaimed one, as they stopped to examine a Confederate officer lying near Corny's feet.

The surgeon knelt by his side to examine the wound, which was near his heart.

The Colonel in command was a short, fat man about 40 years of age, and to bend over comfortably he had to rest his elbows on his knees. He stood with his back to Corny when he opened his eyes. Seeing the Irish Colonel, Corny drew up both legs till his knees almost touched his chin, and then with full force he sent his foot straight against the Colonel.

Out shot the Colonel, knocking down three of the soldiers in his hurried flight and gracing the surgeon's bald head with his boot as he rolled over and the ground.

When they recovered themselves, they seemed inclined to think that they had suddenly been set upon by the enemy from some unseen quarter.

"What—in the name of—!" asked the Colonel, not yet realizing what struck him.

"I wish you'd notify me beforehand the next time you want to try to kick in my head," mumbled the surgeon, applying plasters to his crown.

"I reckon somebody gave you a kick, Colonel," ventured one of the privates, doing his best to keep from laughing in his superior's face.

"Ha, ha!" now came from the ground, and, looking around, they found Corny, his eyes still closed, but a huge grin in his face.

Finding himself discovered, he broke into a loud laugh, in which the Colonel joined by the whole party—all but the Colonel.

Taking charge of the prisoner, the Colonel started off, ordering the rest to follow.

In a small strip of woods near the Rappahannock, Corny and his captor, through some means, became separated from the rest.

Corny, watching his opportunity, suddenly threw his arms around the Colonel, pinning them to his sides.

He then dragged him down to the river and both were fished across by some Union soldiers, who were on the lookout.

Corny told his story, produced his prisoner as proof and received as a reward his corporal's stripes.—N. Y. Recorder.

Nurses Instead of Missionaries.

Miss Collins, a Maine girl who has been out among the Dakotas as a missionary, says the way to civilize the Indians is by nurses rather than by preachers and teachers. Instructions in the care of the sick, the nature of disease and the proper treatment of disease, she says, will do more to free them from the influence of the "medicine man." It is these who, working on the superstitious minds of the Indians, are the greatest obstacles to their civilization. The Indians have been peculiarly susceptible to epidemic diseases, which have created greater ravages than war and aggression combined. Miss Collins instances an epidemic of measles in which cleanliness and nursing saved every life but that of a child whose grandmother was a medicine woman. When the influence of the medicine man is gone as a healer of the body he has lost his power as a spiritual director and the Indian's mind is open to the words of the Christian teacher and preacher.—N. CHAPTER I.

IN THE CONTINENTAL OPEN.

"Here will I build a wooden church which I can look into Europe," exclaimed the hyperious monarch Peter, pointing to the lofty dome and desolate marshes through which flowed the sluggish Neva, and where the boom and the bittern piped and boomed in the keen Arctic blast. And, in accordance with the Czar's behest, there across the stately city of St. Petersburg, the edifice which is the pride of passion and pilot commences. Peter was an autocrat despot, and thousands of his poor subjects died in rearing his city, and the suffering and the misery are unutterable. But it was all endured in silence, for the people toiled and died "For God and the Czar." St. Petersburg is a strange city, full of contradictions, and no one sought for a similar to typify it, not an idol, one would be a casket, gilt and bright seeming on the exterior, but full of rotten ness and corruption within.

Generations have passed since the footsteps of the czars of yore went down into the dust from whence he sprang, but his "wine" remains, and it is in St. Petersburg that the pulse of all the Russians beats.

"The voice of the Lord cried aloud from the waters, saying: 'Come hither and receive the spirit of wisdom, the spirit of understanding, and of the fear of the Lord of Christ, who is manifested unto you.'"

Thus chant the priests when on the festival of Epiphany they go to bless the Neva which for thirteen miles winds its way through the city, and on which stands the Russian bellows that it is in St. Petersburg that the spirits of wisdom, the spirits of understanding, and the fear of the Lord of Christ" abideth. Presently we shall see that extreme the belief is justified.

Come we now to this City of the Marshes, it is an early Janvier, and the boreal winter still grips the north, as it reluctantly lets go its hold. But there is hope in the spring, which, slowly shaking, casts long, waving shadows across the rippling Neva, and the grim pile, so full of bitter memories, and known as the Fortress of St. Peter and Paul, with its gilt spire, its towers, its chimes, and its enlightened dilettanteism, stands out like a painted picture, as all the angles and shadows are brought into sharp relief against the pale green sky which is such a marked feature of the strange Russian climate. Some day, in the not so distant future, the Russian people will rise in their might and sweep the oppressors from the face of the land, even as the angry multitude in France hurled the Bastile to the ground. St. Peter and Paul is the Russian Bastile. The graves of its victims go to the Throne of Grace, and its stones are witnesses to the cruelty and wrong that have been done to death in the name of the Czar.

Through the Gostinnoi-dvor, or Great Bazaar, walks the stately pride Aaron Aranus. He has been transacting business, and feeling and contemplating that he is coming to his home, where a welcome awaits him, and where beauty shines like a northern star of the first magnitude on a night of rosiy splendor.

"Ho, there, my friend," asks a stranger to the city of a companion, as Aaron passes them.

"A Jew," is the contemptuous answer, accompanied by spitting, as if the mere utterance of the word "Jew" had defiled him.

"By St. Peter, that is manliness! Is he a stately pride Aaron Aranus. He has been transacting business, and feeling and contemplating that he is coming to his home, where a welcome awaits him, and where beauty shines like a northern star of the first magnitude on a night of rosiy splendor.

"Aye, truly, it is the answer the speaker compelled.

"It is strange that our Little Father, the all-powerful Czar, permits these accursed Jews to find refuge in his realm. He permitted them first man. "Were I the Czar, I would commence throughout the Empire 'Death to the Jews' be a watchword, and there would be no Jews left to drag the soil and blight."

Aaron Aranus, who had overheard the conversation, paused in his walk, and turning, faced his critics. He was a picturesque, almost majestic figure. Tall and straight, with a dark eye and a face full of dignity and beauty, with features so strong and refined, little beard gave him a patriarchal appearance, and from the crown of his head to the sole of his foot he was a gentleman. They were brought up by a pompadour, they started to a rather, with startling impressiveness: "God of gods!" exclaimed the first, "the Jew is handsome! Very long shall our people groan beneath their yoke, and yet we have committed that we should be ground into the dust, and our blood be used in place of water? Answer, O Lord, for long have we suffered, and be wait for a sign!"

"Dog of a Jew!" neared the man who had interrupted his friend's question. "French not to us; we are Christians."

"And my friend," addressed Aaron, "is a curse on you," cried the second man, passionately and with a deep contempt, movement towards the Jew. "You pollute the land, and shall be spitted like a pig!"

"Down with the Jew!" cried several angry voices in the crowd that had collected around, attracted by the altercation, and the mob began to press upon Aaron with the evident design of hurling him, and taking his light hand heavenward, his accusers.

"He who respects not the grey hair of honourable age, and defiles the temples of the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac will protect us," said the Jew, and his hand instinctively sought for his sword. "Dog of a Christian, I spit on thee! Jew! Jew! I spit on thee! Jew! Jew! I spit on thee!"

The McMillin-Gleason Wedding.

The St. Paul Dispatch gives the following account of the wedding of Mr. Charles McMillin and Miss May Gleason which occurred on Thursday of last week:

Yesterday afternoon the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Kaley, of Hewitt avenue, Hamline, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, the contracting parties being Miss May Gleason, daughter of Mrs. Kaley, and Mr. Charles E. McMillin, a prominent railroad man of Staples, Minn. The darkened rooms looked very cool and dainty in their wealth of flowers and ferns, with a softly-tinted light here and there. The ceremony occurred at 4 o'clock, the Rev. J. W. Frizell, of Wassea, a friend and former pastor of the family, assisted by the Rev. R. E. Hawley, of Hamline, officiating.

The bridal couple stood in the bay window under an arch of pink roses and ferns, the bride looking lovely in a trained gown of soft, creamy silk, with roses in her hands. She was attended by Miss Dottie Smith, of St. Paul, as bridesmaid, who was charming in her dress of Nile green silk. Mr. Howard Curry, of St. Paul, acted as best man.

Immediately following the marriage service light refreshments were served informally, after which the happy couple departed for a short trip on the Soo. They will return to Brainerd Tuesday evening, where Mr. F. W. Wieland, sister of the bride, will tender them a reception, it being the former home of both bride and bridegroom. After that date Mr. and Mrs. McMillen will be at home to friends in Staples, Minn.

Many handsome and valuable gifts were received, among which was a solid silver tea and coffee set from Mr. McMillin's railroad friends, and a Haviland China dinner set, given him by his parents.

Among the many guests were J M Glunt, J A McGoff, John Garvin, of Staples; Mr and Mrs R C Blanchard, of West Superior; Mr and Mrs F W Wieland, of Brainerd; Mr and Mrs Geo Howard, of Chicago; Mr and Mrs H Mathews; Mr and Mrs J E Leonard, Miss Anna Fuller, Minneapolis; Mrs C D Smith, Mr William Haggins, Miss Dottie Smith, Mrs M A Smith, Howard Curry, P Corcoran, James Smith, of St Paul; the Misses Howard, of Illinois; Mr and Mrs O L Warren, Mr and Mrs E T Congdon, Mr and Mrs F T Crittendon, Mr and Mrs H Johnson, Mr and Mrs W M Ransom, Mr and Mrs Schartgen, Mr and Mrs J North, Mr and Mrs W J Stacer, Rev R E Hawley and wife, Mr and Mrs Webber, Misses Hosmer, T and W Griffith, Brown, Congdon, Hawley, Hanson, Sunbarde, C and L Wiles, Messrs North and Parks, of Hamline, and Mrs H Campbell, of Macalester.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. McMillin returned from their wedding trip on Monday evening and were tendered a reception on Tuesday evening by the bride's sister, Mrs. F. W. Wieland, on Sixth street south, which was largely attended. Mr. and Mrs. McMullin have gone to Staples which will be their future home.

A Peculiar Death.

Some little excitement was caused on Saturday morning when it was learned that Edwin Teller, a land cruiser for N. P. Clark, of St. Cloud, had been picked up in front of the Stratton hotel in an unconscious condition, and foul play was suspected. Later developments, however, showed that the gentlemen had gotten up from his bed and walked out onto the veranda and fallen off while in an apoplectic fit. He was taken into the hotel and later on conveyed into the barn to sober off, as it was supposed he was in a drunken stupor. As he did not recover a physician was called and his symptoms were found to be something other than intoxication and he was taken to the northwestern hospital where he died at 2 o'clock on Sunday morning never regaining consciousness.

The father of the deceased come up from St. Cloud and took the remains to Sauk Centre where they were buried Tuesday. Deceased leaves a wife and seven children.

Things Do Move.

The improvements at Rice lake are being pushed along with all possible speed and the place is a very bee hive of industry. The frame work on the mill proper is being raised and the engine placed in position. The machine shop is up and enclosed. The piling for the railroad bridge are being driven as rapidly as possible and the grading is nearing completion. The Minneapolis Lumberman says of the improvements:

The mill and logging road works at Brainerd are making good progress. The Gull River (old Pillsbury) mill is now all removed here including the engine machinery, which was the last to be moved. Besides the saw mill now building, the company will remove the Gull River planing mill, and also enlarged, locate it here. The site of the latter is near the saw mill on the Rice Lake Point, and on the Northern Pacific main spur. It will be put in operation as soon as it can be got up, not waiting for the completion of the saw mill, stock for it to be shipped temporarily from the Minneapolis yards. The railroad bridge for the logging road (Brainerd & Northern Minnesota,) was commenced on Wednesday of last week. The crossing of the Mississippi is directly at the mill site at the Rice lake entrance into the river. Grading on the railroad line itself is going on rapidly and the greater part of the whole to be done is ready for steel. The Northern Mill company are making preparations to cut 80,000,000 feet of timber this coming season. Superintendent McEwen has begun hay cutting, and will put up about 1,800 tons. Hay is an excellent growth, but its gathering is another thing, as the meadows are greatly unsuited for with excessive rains.

Little Falls Daily Herald: Line Repairer Portch says that he has considerable work to do on the cut off at present putting up new insulators. Some people out that way think it real funny to throw rocks at the insulators, and when they break them where the line curves, the wires become crossed and cause considerable damage. The penalty for damaging the telegraph wires is $100, and it will be made mighty interesting for the first party who is caught doing so.
