Japan is taking on American civilization very rapidly. The farmers of the empire have formed an independent political party and propose to chase the corrupt old parties into the ocean.

The Browning Society of Boston will give a farewell reception next week to the Rev. Phillips Brooks Monson, who is soon to become the pastor of a large Congregational church at Springfield, Mass.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph Parker of London is credited with a rather clever bit of sarcasm. The three present-day euphemisms for the "world," the "flesh" and the "devil," he said, are "society," "enlightenment" and "tendency."

Lord Rosebery, as the successor of Premier Gladstone, is still safe in the saddle, though it looked until the division of the commons yesterday which was substantially a vote of confidence in the government as though he were going to get a trouble.

Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., of Philadelphia, has rented a big French steam yacht, luxuriously appointed, and, after some preliminary cruising in American waters, intends to take a select party of friends to China and back, if not around the world.

Baron de Courcel says the difference between the English and American drinking habits is merely one of form. Very true. It may be likewise said that the difference between the pitted glass of good and evil is merely one of form.

Dollie Tester, the music hall singer, who married the Marquis of Aylesbury some years ago, now finds herself a widow, encumbered with a jointure of a million and a quarter of dollars. Her wedded life was a short but a merry one; her widowhood promises to be filled with sorrow and privation.

A rather unusual way of curing a living is followed by a man who lives in Antrim. He visits business houses and workshops, and sews on buttons for persons who need them. He receives 5 cents for each button sewed, and is equipped with a supply of buttons of various kinds.

A crowded street car in Chicago was "held up" Friday, and the passengers robbed of all the valuables they possessed. Unfortunately for them, a couple of policemen were in the vicinity and several of the highwaymen were taken to police camp. There are some phases of Chicago enterprise that are too enterprising to be pleasant.

Discontent in Cuba is again causing uneasiness among Spanish officials, and the government at Madrid has been requested to keep a watch upon parties of filibusters that may be organized here for operations on the island. The people of Cuba seem to be content under Spanish domination, which has long been oppressive and irksome.

Great Britain has taken another step in her policy of appropriating the whole world to herself. She has just annexed Pondoland, a country lying adjacent to her South African possessions. She has even used a pocket-book one the country for several years. A British protectorate, seems in all cases ultimate possession. The British lion is a good deal of a bear.

There was a good deal of common sense, as well as worldly wisdom in the plan reported to by the managers of a troupe of dancing girls who were arrested for San Francisco for giving an immoral exhibition. The girls were brought into court and gave an exhibition of their gracious wiles on the police both judge and jury that the prisoners were discharged forthwith. The dancing venture will not be again interfered with on the Pacific slope.

The Rev. David H. Greer, rector of St. Bartholomew's church in New York, who has been invited to deliver the Lyman Beecher course of lectures on preaching at the Yale Divinity school, is the third Episcopal clergyman who has been thus honored. Times have changed in Connecticut since the days of bitter prejudice against the Episcopal church, when a village church provided the fact that there was in the town, besides the Christian meeting house, an Episcopal church.

The German emperor is a genuine wine grower, as Prince Bismarck is a trader in alcohol and blubber, from his properties. The vineyards of Alsatia II are situated in the most favored localities along the Rhine, like Hochheim, Erbach and Hattenheim, where he produces the famous Johannisberger wine known by the name of Steinberg or Cabinet. It was a case of this famous wine which was sent recently by the kaiser to Bismarck on the latter's birthday anniversary—a delicate attention which re-established the friendly relations between the ex-chancellor and the young emperor. The Steinberger Cabinet costs about 28 marks, or nearly $6 a quart.

European countries are not always governed by men belonging to the nation which they are elected to govern or in other capacities. Without recalling the Hahn-Corsican origin of the Napoleons, and the foreign origin of Prince Bertha, Spatter, Waddington, MacMahon and other French statesmen, it may be noticed that the German chancellor, Capriti, is of Italian origin; Count Taaffe, the ex-Austrian premier, is of Irish origin; Brousart, the war minister of Prussia, is of French Huguenot race; the O'Donnells in Spain are obviously not of Spanish extraction, and Gen. Pelloux, the late Italian minister of war, as well as Baron Blanc, the present minister of foreign affairs in Italy, are of French origin.

Wisdom Tooth of a Mammoth.

A fossil curiosity in the shape of a mammoth's tooth was found a few days ago in Venice, Seattle by John H. Hilbrants. The tooth was found at the foot of the bluff, not far from the beach, and was covered with clay at the time, indicating that it had been washed by the breaking away of the hill. The crown of the tooth, which was of an oval shape, measured 7½ inches in its largest diameter, 3½ inches in its smallest diameter, and 18 inches in circumference. The posterior edge of the tooth was 4 inches in length, the anterior edge 6 inches, the largest circumference 22 inches, and the weight 3½ pounds. It is supposed to be the lower back tooth from the left side of the jaw. The ridges have thinned by chalcedony, and extend entirely through the tooth, while the material between has the appearance of iron.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Needs of a Modern Editor.

The moustaches and goatees days of writing a newspaper are dead and buried in the same moss-covered grave with the pig-headed old fogy of ancient times. To wear bulldog jaws, and wielding make pulpit a man has to be constructed on a high plane and a cutely plane. It takes a sort of humorous and electrical journalist to write in this advanced age of civilization. He has to be able to write bright things and keep up with the times. He has to be able to write bright things and keep up with the times. The people of the world are enveloped in an intellectual storm and their brain broiler and throbs—incessantly—for beauty flash shots, and the newspaper man who is not erected upon this hypothetical hypothesis is an oblivious nobody. Cranks in quantity and the subjectivitous handling of the pencil is what counts in running a newspaper.—Red Lodge New Idea.

WORK OF CONGRESS

RESUME OF PROCEEDINGS OF THIS SENATE AND HOUSE.

Condensed Record of the Important Transactions of Our National Lawmakers—The Work Done in Both Branches.

Washington, April 13.—The Democratic caucuses in the house today decided to take heroic measures to force the Republicans to the support of the tariff bill. The committee on rules, consisting of Speaker Crisp, Mesars. Outhwaite and Hutchings (Ohio), Governor Reed and Burrows (Mich.), held a meeting just before the house convened and formulated a rule to crush filibustering, making the penalty of being absent chargeable for quorum of $10. The Republicans having cognizance of the rules by which the house was governed, before the meeting of the house, Messrs. Reed and Burrows determined to contest every foot of the ground, and a fierce parliamentary fight was immediately precipitated. Speaker Crisp, however, was in no humor for trifling, and with a stern hand brushaside the preliminaries and forced the fight on the main issue. As soon as the house convened Mr. Dockery moved Mr. Catchings, from the committee on rules, to report the rule. Mr. Catchings demanded the previous question. Mr. Reed tried to get recognition, but failed. The house was in an uproar.

The speaker lost patience, and with a bang of the gavel stated the question to be on the adoption of the previous question. Mr. Reed was left standing in the aisle while the speaker put the previous question. The Republicans declined to vote, and when the speaker announced the result—99 to 0—Mr. Dockery made a point of no quorum. The yeas and nays were demanded, but the Republicans contented to force the Democrats to produce a quorum at every vote, and parliamentary proceedings looking to the adoption of the rule, and when the roll was finally called to vote on the rule, the Democrats refused to give the proposed rule their support, and the tariff bill and demand for the previous question. They were as follows:

Canney, Springer, Coombs, Cummings, New York; Geary, California; Glenn-Camp, New Jersey; Hall, Illinois; Hopkins, California; McAleer, Pointer, Reilly, Ryan, Warner, Pa., 15.

The Populists voted with the Democrats in favor of the rule. The announcement of the vote—141 to 11 showed that the Democrats were thirty seven short of a quorum. Thereupon a boistering a motion was finally carried requiring all leaves of absence, and the house adjourned.

Washington, April 14 In the senate Messrs. Poffer and Mitchell discussed the tariff bill. Mr. Mitchell occupied over a motion to adjourn, but it in ultimately prevailed.

In the house the Republicans continued to filibuster, and as the Democrats refused to vote, no business was transacted to adjourn and hold a caucus, which decided by a vote of 150 to instruct the committee on rules to report a rule to compel members present in the presence of a quorum whether voting or not. Practically all the Democratic members of the house were present, and Mr. Bland presented a resolution directing the sergeant-at-arms to enforce the provision of section 40, chapter 2, of the revised statutes, which requires excuses from the absentees of members shall be made for every day's absence, except on account of sickness, and in accordance with the action of the judiciary committee, which, by a vote of 7 to 4, unanimously adopted. Speaker Crisp took the floor and made a lengthy ruling pointing out the doubtful position in which the house found itself on account of continued and persistent absenteeism. Quite a number of speeches were made in opposition to any and all rules looking to the counting of members who refused to vote. Mr. Dearmond made a resolution expressing it as the sense of the caucus that the committee on rules should prepare a rule that will determine the presence of a quorum, and also some method of compelling the attendance of absent members. Mr. Dearmond's resolution was carried by a vote of 150 to 20, forty—80 to 44. This completed the work of the caucus.

Washington, April 16. The steady's over the adoption of the new quorum-counting rule in the house. The tariff debate in the senate on Friday will be the feature of the week. The debris of the rule have not yet been formulated by the Democratic members of the committee on rules, but it is understood that a majority of the Democrats are violently opposed to any quorum-counting rules as dictated by the speaker, and it will be impossible for the Democrats alone, should the Republicans decline to vote and the Democratic opposition sustain its opinions to the extent of forcing the vote, to make a quorum to adopt a rule. In other words, unless the rule framed by the Democratic members of the committee on rules should frame a rule calculated to meet the views of the majority, if they chose, they can defeat it. The Republicans will, however, be prepared to offer a substitute of any rule that contains the essential principal of recording as "present" and "voting" those numbers who decline to respond to their names.

Washington, April 17.—After a session of two hours today the Democratic members of the committee on rules agreed to the new quorum-counting rule, and the report of Messrs. Reed and Burrows, the Republican members of the committee, was adopted. The rule provides for ascertaining a quorum by counting members present and not voting, and has been framed to compel the absent members from the house. The rule will probably be presented to the house tomorrow.

The senate portion of the senate today was devoted to the adoption of resolutions in memory of the late Senator Vance, and to the appointment of a committee of senators to accompany the remains to Asheville, N. C. The committee consists of Messrs. Hansom, George, Gray, Dubois, Smith, Wilson, Morgan, Blackburn and Chandler. Messrs. Morrill, Sherman, Harrison and Hale represented the republican party on bears. Later memorial services were held, attended by senators, congressmen, the president and his cabinet, diplomats and others. Afterward the remains were taken from the capitol to the train for Carolina.

The forenoon session of the house was similarly occupied. As a committee on the part of the house to accompany the remains to North Carolina the speaker appointed Messrs. Henderson, Kerr, Cox, Cockran, Cobb, Cooper, Black of Illinois, Brookshire of Indiana, Dunn of New York, Bailey of Texas, Blair of New Hampshire and Hook of Tennessee. Resolutions in honor of the late Senator Vance were adopted and the house took a recess.

Washington, April 18.—There was a quorum of senators present in the senate house when it met to-day, in anticipation of the fight over the adoption of the new quorum-counting rule, and the galleries were also unusually well filled, many of the spectators having evidently plunged into the contest. In order to prevent parliamentary embarrassment, Mr. Harrison, from the committee on rules, secured recognition before the journal was read, and presented a report that will be reported from that committee last Thursday, providing for a quorum of senators agreed upon just before the house adjourned. The report was read from the clerk's desk, and the rule follows:

"Amend rule 15, by inserting between clauses 1 and 2 the following as clause 2, and change the number of clause 2 to clause 3:

"Upon every roll call, and before the beginning thereof, the speaker shall name two members, one from each side of the aisle, to act in the place of the clerk, and shall make a note of the names of those who are in the left of the house during the roll call, who do not respond when called to those responding to make a quorum. When a quorum does not respond upon a roll call, then the names of those so noted at any time shall be reported to the speaker, who shall call the list to be filled by the clerk's desk, and recorded in the journal, and the ascertaining the presence of a quorum to do business, those who voluntarily answered to be present and those so reported as present shall be considered. Members noted when their names were called, record their presence, notwithstanding the provisions of clause 1 of this rule.

"Amend clause 3, of rule 8, by adding to the rule the following words: 'And on a roll call should he not vote he shall answer "present" so as to be counted' even but shall be present within the hall of the house during its sittings unless excused or necessarily prevented, and shall vote on each question put unless he has already voted on the question in dispute at the time of such question, and on a roll call shall not vote he shall answer 'present.'"

A long discussion followed regarding the time to be allowed for debate, the Democratic opponents of the new rule claiming that the time, Messrs. Springer, Enlers, Reed and Burrows, took no part in the discussion. Mr. Reed finally decided to limit the debate to two hours for each side. Later, however, Mr. Wills was in the chair and Mr. Springer was unanimous consent. After the expiration of the time allotted, Mr. Springer moved to have which resulted in the quorum-counting rule being adopted by the house by a vote of 212 to 47, the Republicans voting for it.

The Republicans all voted for it and it was adopted—212 to 47. The Democrats who voted against it were:

Abbott, Barnes, Black (Ga.), Bland, Breckinridge (Ky.), Bryan, Bynum, Cooper, Cox, Crisp (Ala.), Dockery, Fitzgerald (Tex.), Covert, Cummings, Dunn, Durborow, Fitzgerald (N. Y.), Fitzgerald (Mass.), Grady, Hall (Minn.), Hines, Holman, Hunter, Kilgore, Lane, Lapham, Lewis, Mallory, Martin (Ind.), McAleer, McRoig, McMillin, Reilly, Russell (Ga.), Ryan, Sheets, Ay, Stockdale, Swanson, Turner (Ga.), Warner, Wells, Wheeler (Ala.), Whiting, Williams (Ill.), Williams (Miss.), Wise—47.

Mr. Hall was immediately surrounded by his party friends and given an ovation. Some of the Democrats got up a severe demonstration over Mr. Springer.

The senate resumed consideration of the tariff bill. It was agreed that next week a vote will be taken on the time when the bill will come up for passage.

THE POLLARD CASE.

A VERDICT RENDERED IN THE BREACH OF PROMISE CASE.

The Jury Thinks That Col. Breckinridge Should Pay Miss Pollard $15,000—He Will Appeal—Miss Pollard Suffers a Nervous Collapse.

Washington, April 14. — Judge Jere Wilson continued his speech to-day and he concludes in time the case will be given to the jury this evening. During the time Mr. Wilson has been addressed the jury he has been left by cab many "He has been equally guilty with my client," declared the lawyer, "yet you, for the good cause taken a serious vow to heaven and she had not. He had broken that vow by the act of adultery, and he ever met Madeline Pollard. He has admitted that he knew Sarah Gooch, knew the character of her house and had been there before he met Madeline Pollard. He has lived a life for ten years, his life has been that of faithlessness to the most sacred relations of life. He has lived a life of duplicity, of hypocrisy, such as you could not even begin to express the length and breadth of. He tells you that he went to Mrs. Blackburn's house to see her sister. He tells you that he went to Moore to tell him a lie. When he attempts to explain his conduct to my client I want to measure his testimony by the rule of law. He tells you he knew that he is not telling this story to deceive you? The probability is that he is doing it for he is caught in the toils; he is brought to bay, and in his extremity he asks you to believe what is the plea his unsupported word. This man stepped and made that the lowest depth he could. I want the world to know that whatever of slime is on her comes from the defendant. It is the slime of the serpent over her life. I wish all the mothers of the land may know that she is by her true light. They would open their hearts to this young girl and they would well up for her. She would be, if not accused, undertaxed as not being the pure, good, and virtuous woman, but as injured by his machinations."

Washington, April 16. — Freeman Charles H. Cole, of the eleven man jury, at 4.45 o'clock Saturday afternoon announced a verdict for the plaintiff, Madeline Pollard, for $15,000 damages from Congressman W. C. P. Breckinridge for breaking the promise of marriage. Results ending the long and exciting Breckinridge-Pollard breach of promise case.

Sensations have followed fast in the last day of the trial. There had been a rumor in the house during the afternoon that the jury could not agree. Speculation was rife as to the cause. No one being present to represent the plaintiff, a bailiff was dispatched to her home in Ashland street, and Colonel Carlisle arrived.

The clerk called the roll of the jury, then grumbled loudly an interrogatory which, in substance was, "Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon your verdict?"

"We have," responded Foreman Cole.

"We find for the plaintiff."

Another sensation then started, which the bailiffs quickly hushed. One man near a window called to the crowd, "Twenty-15,000, plaintiff, but he was not represented."

Col. Breckinridge rose from his chair and said: "I have not a word to say." Colonel Carlisle said: "Nor have we."

Almost at the moment from the door of the judge's left was thrown the silvery head of Congressman Breckinridge, who had come from his home before he entered. Following him came his ex-Dodge, and Col. Breckinridge. No,

Birds That Can Sew.

Sewing seems so ingenious an art that it might be reserved for the human species alone. Yet the tailor bird, the Ortiotomus longicauda, and other species possess the elements of it. They place their nests in a large leaf which they prepare to this end. This bird seeks the pieces two rows of holes along the lower edges of the leaf; then pass a stout thread from one side to the other alternately. With this leaf, at first flat, they form a horn in which they weave their nest with cotton or hair. These labors of weaving and sewing are preceded by the spinning of the thread. The bird makes it itself by twisting in its beak spiders' webs, bits of cotton and little ends of wool. It is from that the threads used for sewing were knotted at the ends.—Pop. Sci. Monthly.

Specimen of St. Louis Intelligence.

It is not necessary to go into the backwoods to find cases of refreshing ignorance as to everyday current events. Although the newspapers have been discussing the single chastisement question for three or four years, I found a man in South St. Louis the other day who said he had never heard a word about it, and who was evidently speaking the truth. He was engineer at a factory from whose chimney smoke was coming out in torrents, and when I called his attention to it he asked why it couldn't be developed in considerable quantity when I insisted that there was a big problem going, told me he had not read a newspaper since the war, and that if he caught me on the premises again he would call the police.—Globe-Democrat.

A Letter to a Milkman.

"My dear sir: your milk is excellent; your prices are reasonable; your service is entirely satisfactory. We do not desire to complain in the least. I would like, however, to know if you boil your boiled water. It is very important that you should not sell such adulterated milk by the infusion of the microbes that swarm in ordinary streams. These are finished with black velvet collars. Just now a black taffeta silk is the proper thing, although trimmed with bands of velvet or satin. Among the new silks recommended for fancy waists are serpentine stripes of fine flowers on black satin grounds and crinkled Roman stripes which are vivid in color.

Might Do Better There.

Mr. Nuwed—Where shall I go?

Mrs. Newed—Why, to an intelligence office, where I got the last one.

Mr. Newed—Well, if you got the last one in an intelligence office I think I'll try some other agency this time as my experiment.—Town Topics.

His Plea.

Thompson, while bicycling yesterday, came to a baby carriage to make way for it and, of course, he was killed and he arrested.

"Have you an excuse, himself?"

"He pleaded self-defense."

"The Dickens!"

TWO REPUTATIONS TO SUSTAIN

Philadelphia Clubmen Contend With Each Other in a Novel Drinking Match.

Two men sat down to a small table in a Philadelphia club a few evenings since for a purpose. It was to decide who possesses the greatest capacity for white wine. Each had a reputation, which he studiously sustained, of being able to stand more fortunes as juice of the grape than the other, and their criticisms of each other had become so unbearable that several persons determined by opposing the boasters to end or mend their lives. So a fine match was arranged. On the evening before the test, one Jack Rose, a friend of the elder contestant, who was a practical joker, prepared the two drinkers and, laying one hand confidingly on his shoulder, spoke thus:

"Look here, old man, I speak as a friend. You've got a reputation to sustain to-morrow evening and the other fellow hasn't. Now, as a friend, let me insist that you accept the best white wine I, as a judge of the contest, shall prepare. They'll be filled with water."

A sad look of hopeless despair passed over his face. To drink water, even though he won, was humiliation; but to drink wine and perchance lose, that was infinitely better. This decision required a struggle of more than half an hour, and the wine drinker was then convinced. On the evening of the two men sat down to the table, a bottle before them. The younger man was quick to the fray, the older disguised when he tasted the pure colorless liquid in a glass. But he relished his tastes and drank with a conquering smile. The artist then filled the glass of each contestant stirred at each other. The man wondered at his opponent's cheerful feeling, and so they promptly glared at one another. That made them angry, however, and they drained one ponderous flat on the table, and he swore. "Jack, you've played out. "Fool, how can you win. I'm drinking water."

A wan, sweet smile passed over the face of the younger man, as he faintly murmured, "So am I."

The Coming Evangelist.

C. N. Hunt, the Evangelist who will arrive in Brainerd next Monday, has had remarkable success at Austin, St. Cloud, Sank Center and other places. Less than one year ago Mr. Hunt was a prominent lawyer of Minneapolis, of the firm of Hunt & Morrill. With rare gifts, natural and acquired, he had thrown himself into the practice of law with all the enthusiasm of an ardent nature, rendered more intense if possible by his stubborn resistance to a call to preach which for six years had been haunting him. During the visit of B. Fay Mills to that city, he decided to go into the ministry.

He was so well liked in Austin that he had to stay longer than he planned and at the close the Austin bar gave him a brotherly testimonial of the appreciation. The Daily Register of the 19th says:—"Every church has felt new impulse towards Godliness. Men who have not attended religious service for years have been night after night, often standing for hours to hear the simple message of faith, love and, service from this most devoted servant of his master and every class of the community has felt the power of this movement. The day laborer has been led to see that Jesus Christ is his friend and has stood up to confess him. The brightest lawyers in the city have testified to the need in their lives and profession of some one and something more than human to keep and help them. Active and retired business men have been reached and blessed."

The work of such a man is a boom to any town and our city is fortunate in having the promise of his coming. His time is taken up for months ahead. Meeting will be held at Congregational church next Monday, Tuesday & Wednesday, then in Gardner Hall.

Cheap Rates to California.

The Northern Pacific Railroad Company has put into effect a series of low round-trip rates to California points. Tickets are good until July 15th, 1894, and are good for stop over under certain conditions.

These rates will enable those desiring to do so, to spend the winter in southern California, or to visit the mid-winter fair to be held at San Francisco. This latter event will undoubtedly be second only to the World's Fair and will repay a visit as it will exhibit the resources and capabilities of California.
