Local News

Vote for Gardner and a new deal. The railroad men are all sold to a man for Gardner.

Put no reliance in elect in traps spring at last moment. The ten mile race comes off Saturday evening at the yellow rink.

Our local columns are devoted almost entirely to politics. J. S. Pearce has withdrawn his name as candidate for city clerk.

Peter Ott for councilman in the first ward will receive nearly every vote. Will Agar has gone over to Furry's cause.

The G. A. R. Post will give a grand concert in the opera house all April 21st. A grand program has been arranged.

John Burns, of Jameson-Dr. T. 74 in the city. Mr. B. is a son-in-law of the late John Burns and was here at the last of the year.

Mr. Evans will preach next Sabbath at the Congregational Church on the question: "Is there another world and what is it?"

A paper up country says that a number of old conductors on the Northern Pacific will resign on account of the new tariff.

L. P. White is expected back to day from Jacksonville, Florida. He says he has been spending several weeks enjoying the winter months of the state.

See that your ballot for Mr. or Mrs. James S. Gardner and do not be deceived as there will be various dodges resorted to by the other candidates.

A man by the name of D. V. Gilmore, of Anoka, was killed by a falling tree in the lumber woods north of Aitkin this week.

Our citizens understand very well the situation of municipal affairs and the newspaper discussion if any is to be of any value.

The sheet and pillow masquerade on Monday night was quite an event at the rink and it was a dress affair.

Col. Canfield new swings into line a full fledged advocate of gambling and prostitution (see last week's Tribune) and has been seen at the Casino.

It is said that W. W. Hartley wrote the "reform article" in the Tribune. We are glad to believe Mr. Canfield from some of the odium of flattery the article would work an effort here for a while.

On Tuesday evening Miss Della Seelye of this city was married to Mr. George McMillan, of Anoka, at the residence of H. N. Koop.

There is really but two candidates for mayor in the field that stand any chance of being elected. Do not throw your vote away on the other candidates.

The woman who died suddenly at Monday's funeral was the wife of the late J. H. Taylor, an accident on the 12th inst., an account of which we had week taken from the Little Falls Sun.

Never before in the history of Brainerd has there been such a uprising of public sentiment in regard to municipal reform as at the present time.

Notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Spaulding received the majority of the votes for alderman in the second ward, Mr. A. E. Taylor has concluded to let his friends use his name for that position.

At two different times within a week have the fire companies of Brainerd saved the city from thousands of dollars loss and the property of the citizens.

The Tribune feels fearfully in an effort to strengthen its position in the city and to make it a more powerful and influential newspaper.

WILD AGERS.

It was a very charming little shoppin' bag, and Sadie had wanted such an one for a long time. When she discovered...

"Now, mother, you know—and if you don't, I do—that the very first time I carry this bag I'll leave it somewhere, as sure as sin."

"Very true, mother, but then I'm not, and I never shall be, very much fear."

"Perhaps if you love this it will be a lesson you will remember."

"But I don't intend to lose it, even if I do leave it; for I mean to have my full address engraved on this silver plate, instead of simply initials."

"And it engraved that afternoon, and displaying it to triumph."

There, mother! see that! Now she who runs may read: Sadie M. Franham, Pleasantville, Maine.

"Yes, perhaps 'somebody' will read it, though you won't wish to, responded the mother sagely."

"O, I shall keep that side toward me when I carry it."

The last of September she went to visit her most intimate friend, Laura McQuisten, lately married, and living in Ohio.

"There! these are almost equal to a big box, little box, hand box and bundle."

"Now Harry you know father says I'm a finished traveler. I never burden myself or any one else with luggage."

"You'll get sick enough of those flowers before you get there; they will be all withered, any way."

"Here are your tickets. Take care of yourself, and don't get into any scrapes."

"The car was empty save for a few passengers behind Sadie, whose faces she could not see."

"How did she know it, then?" "Just then Harry's eyes happen to fall on the pretty bag with its silver plate."

"The idea! I kept the plate out of suspicion, entered the car and looked anxiously up and down the rows of seats."

"It's a wonder to me," said Harry, "that you didn't leave it somewhere altogether, that being your usual custom."
