BRAINERD TRIBUNE.

VOL. IX.—NO. 49. BRAINERD, MINNESOTA, SATURDAY, JANUARY 15, 1881. WHOLE NO. 465.

The fourteenth annual meeting of Minnesota Editorial Association will be held at St. Paul on Jan. 20th.

Thirty new locomotives have been ordered for the business of the coming season on the N. P., and will begin to arrive in March.

Icy Jack is losing his grip on the Northwest. Old Sol is getting too high up for him and will continue to the ascendency until she breaks his back. Good.

A very unfortunate accident occurred at the N P. Railroad shops in this city on yesterday after oon by which Thomas King, a striker in the blacksmith shop had his right eye knocked out by a flying piece of iron chipped from a bolt by his fellow-workmen. He went to St. Paul last night for treatment by a skilled oculist but his eye is lost beyond hope.

The conflagration which destroyed the Congregational church last week, right upon the eve of our publication day, necessarily deprived our readers of several items of news and gossip which we had intended recording. One was a very pleasant evening party at the residence of Hon. L. P. White, which occurred on Wednesday evening, and was well attended.

Gen. G. G. Sanborn, who has filled the position in the employ of the Northern Pacific company of general ticket agent almost since its birth, and for several years that of general freight agent also, has, his many friends along the line will regret to learn, resigned his position. The duties are assumed by his able and faithful assistant, Jule M. Hanaford, well and favorably known in Brainerd, who is receiving numerous congratulations from all quarters upon his promotion.

We are authorized by Rev. Mr. Beard and Hon. L. P. Whit', local agent for the L. S. & P. S. Co., to correct that portion, of our account last week of the burning of the Congregational church, which referred to the present title to the property. Not only the lot upon which the church stood, as stated, but the entire block was deeded by Gov. Smith to the Congregational Union in trust for the local society. The erroneous statement last week was based upon the information of one of the trustees of the church who evidently misuderstood the facts.

At the meeting, in New York on Thursday last, of the commissioners of the World's Fair, of which Hon C. F. Kindred of this city is a member, Gen. Ulyses S. Grant was unanimously elected President of the Commission. By this we are reminded and our people should not forget that the value to the Northwest of Mr. Kindred's position upon this commission is incalculable. It is his purpose and he will use his utmost endeavors to make the Northwest, and particularly the Northern Pacific county the most attractive part of the exhibition. And he will succeed, for two reasons: First, the products of the country fully warrant the gigantic effort, and second, Mr. Kindred possesses the energy and ability fully to develop and display its superior advantages and resources. Every man, woman and child in the land should use their utmost endeavors to second his very laudable efforts.

The Minnesota Editorial Association, which is to meet in St. Paul on the 26th inst., is to have an "annual poem" by M. C. Russell of the Duluth Tribune. If there is anything under the sun that we would naturally suppose that an association of newspaper men would have, it is a poem. That poem business settles it for us. We will not be there to hear it read.—[Little Falls Transcript.

For shame, Bro. Stivers! We would never have supposed you capable of so unjust and uncalled for a criticism We will venture the assertion, without knowing the facts, that the task of preparing this annual poem was imposed unsolicited upon Bro. Russell and undoubtedly much against his will but his extreme good nature would never permit him to refuse to serve his newspaper brethren, when called upon, and those who know him best look forward with the keenest anticipation to the enjoyment of that poem which will be the leading feature of the meeting and we will miss our guess and we will bet Bro. Stivers a cookie that if he knew Bro. Russell as well as we do, even his prosaic nature would not miss that poem for a farm.

The U. S. Senatorship.

Once more the TRIBUNE enjoys the pleasure of announcing the success of a favorite candidate, that of the Hon. S. J. R. McMillan for the U. S. Senatorship. The Republican Legislative caucus convened on Thursday evening last at the capitol and placed the honorable Senator in nomination upon the first formal ballot which settles the contest and assures his re-election on Tuesday next without opposition.

The ballots stood as follows:

A New Church.

The energy liberality of the citizens of Brainerd, which has frequently been tried and never found wanting in any degree, but has proven itself adequate to any occasion, has once more manifested itself in a prominent degree in the raising of funds to rebuild the Congregational church, the loss of which, by fire, was announced last week. While the embers still smouldered a paper was drawn up and passed around, quietly, pledging the signers to the payment of the respective amounts subscribed in six monthly installments, beginning in February and ending in July next. To this over $2,00. was subscribed the 1st day, and the aggregate reaches over $4,000. at present writing, the amounts subscribed ranging from $200 downward.

The intention is to rebuild of brick, for which purpose Mr. Schwartz offers brick at a very low rate, and operations will be commenced immediately with the opening of the spring.

Birthday Party.

The social party of the season was given last evening at the Hodgins' residence, by Mrs. and Mr. Wm. Steel the occasion being the anniversary of Mrs. Steel's birthday. About thirty couples of the elite of the city were present, the large dining hall was cleared, and Seymour's band struck up "Dixie" and other familiar airs, while those who wished engaged in the pleasant recreation of "tripping the light fantastic." Lunch was served at eleven, and it was well on into the opening hours of the TRIBUNE's weekly birthday ere the guests reluctantly withdrew, wishing the hostess and host long life and happiness as unalloyed as the evening's pleasures.

A Mystery.

Dr. C. B. Jordan, of Duluth, stepped into our office this P. M. and shook hands with the editor, smiling with his usually benignity and, gazing fondly upon his ever welcome physiognomy, we were about to open our lips with words of welcome when he quietly but positively vanished, whether through the floor or walls or into thin air deponent having no positive knowledge is unable to affirm and therefore saith not. That we saw him we feel as positive as we do of anything transitory, and the effect has since been quite severe upon our nervous system which will not find relief until we learn of the Doctor's whereabouts The hour was about two o'clock and certain old woman's whims would, if we relied upon them, lead us to believe that something important has happened to the Doctor at that hour—usually transition from earth to aerial abodes. We anxiously await developments and meantime any information throwing light upon the subject will be gratefully received.

Golden Wedding.

On Monday evening, Dec. 27th, 1880, one of those rare occurrences, the 50th anniversary of a wedding, was celebrated at the residence of John and Fannie C. Hodgdon, of this place, of family gathering of relatives and friends. Among those who were present were Mr. and Mrs. Levi Lowe, of Brainerd, Minn.; T. C. B. Hodgdon and son, Mandan, Dakota; Mrs. J. Savary and children, Chicago; Warren Hodgdon and family, Janesville; Mrs. R. D. Stuart and son, Janesville; Mrs. G. W. Hodgdon and daughter, Sharon; Mr. and Mrs. Alden Field, Sharon; and the Rev. Dr. Snowden and wife, the Hon. W. R. Herron and wife, Mrs. D. J. Best, Mr. and Mrs. Beers and Mr. Russell of the Delavan Tribune. If there is anything under the sun that we would naturally suppose that an association of newspaper men would have, it is a poem. That poem business settles it for us. We will not be there to hear it read.—[Little Falls Transcript.

Col John Cooper and Hon. D. H. Freeman of St. Cloud visited the TRIBUNE office with a call this afternoon, enroute to Mr Cooper's camp in the pineries north of town.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has been before the public for years, and is pronounced by thousands superior to all other articles for Sore Throat and Colds, Influenza and all other Pulmonary Complaints. It costs only 25 cents a bottle.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Brainerd Reform Club, is called to meet at the residence of Mrs. W. H. Leland, on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. As matters of special importance require attention a full attendance is requested.

Messrs. Nevers & Brown, dealers in clothing and furniture, find their business increasing to that extent that they are obliged to divide it and conduct the furniture department separately. They have, therefore, perfected their plans for erecting a store building at once for that department where it will be conducted exclusively and on a much larger scale than heretofore, all kinds of furniture being kept in stock.

Saved a Doctor's Bill—Gen. M. Walter, Messenger of the Adams Express Co., Delto, Ala, says: "Having used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for the past ten years in my family, I wish to say that I consider it the best Cough Syrup I ever used. It has cured my children of the Croup several times and saved me many a doctor's bill.

Installation of officers in Rushworth Encampment, No. 19, I. O. O. F., took place at Odd Fellows hall on Tuesday evening last, the ceremonies being conducted by D. D. G. C. E. R. French and the officers installed being those previously announced in these columns. After the installation a well spread banquet was discussed by those present and a pleasant social evening enjoyed. E. R. French was elected Representative to the Grand Encampment during the evening.

SECRETARY SCHURZ has no hankering to return to Fatherland as American minister.

THE limit to the Ohio man's offical desires has been found. General Garfield declines the senatorship.

LORD DUFFERIN proposes to pack all the chronically destitute Irish off to Manitoba. What has Manitoba done?

WITHIN the past year 7,500 miles of new railroad have been built in the United States. Most of these are Western.

THERE was a boom in the national debt reduction last month. The total reduction reached the cheerful sum of $8,699,450.

THE little game-cock government of Chili seems disposed to follow the example of Uncle Sam in '44, and gobble up the whole Pacific coast of South America.

THE South Carolina legislature has enacted a new batch of laws against dueling. It seems to amuse the legislature, and interferes with nobody's pistol-practice in diversion.

THE Union Pacific railway proposes to pull out of Omaha instead of the north of Pullman, by refusing to renew their contract, which soon expires. They are disposed to try building their own sleepers.

SIX more pairs of shoulder-straps are to be retired from the national police squad, by courtesy called the army. The privates will out-number the officers if this sort of thing becomes epidemic.

THE socialmatics of New York are preparing to turn themselves loose in a grand reception to Hartmann, the Russian nihilist who served several years' apprenticeship to the art of czar-extermination, and failed to master it.

MR. WILLETT, of Michigan, proposes to disfranchise the Mormons as an antidote to polygamy. It would then be only a question of wives versus votes. The uxorious followers of the prophet pays his money and takes his choice.

RUSSIA, having determined to occupy the country of the Turcomans—"occupy" being czarese for steal—is having plenty of fun doing it. They have had several lively fights, in which, though defeated, the Turcomans made the victories expensive. But as it is only a question of time, the Tekkes are shedding their blood for pure glory.

THE British lion and the African bear seem determined to fight it out. The people of the Orange River Free State are joining with their neighbors of the Trans-Vaal in their insurrection against English rule. This combination places in the field a much larger force than the British can oppose to them for some months, and serious trouble is anticipated.

CAPT. EADS, having milked the jetty cow dry, has been exercising his persuasive powers upon the unsophisticated Greaser with the most gratifying success. The "horseback government" granted him the right of way for his ship railroad across the isthmus of Tehuantepec, and gave a bonus of a million acres of land on the Pacific coast to build his depot and warehouse upon.

THE Connemara sensation has reached New England, and has developed into the largest assemblage of black crows that ever flew from Minnesota. The Boston Journal has jumped to the sudden conclusion that the entire population of Minnesota are starving; and as anything emanating from the Hub is unquestioned gospel in the remote East, Minnesota receives a vast amount of gratuitous sympathy.

THE Irish unpleasantness is a bonanza for the gunmakers, who are doing an unprecedented business. The government expresses confidence in its ability to meet any emergency with the forces now in the country. Queen Victoria asks for special discretionary powers to keep the turbulent Hibernians in order. If it was only suggested to her, a dose of moral suasion might have a better effect than iron and lead.

CONGRESS should tender a vote of thanks to Prince Bismarck. The intolerable rigors of his government are driving to America all the better classes who can raise sufficient of the needful to pay their passage to America. Uncle Samuel is thereby the gainer of multitudes of thrifty, educated and honest citizens, who will be a great developing factor in our vast unoccupied domain. The Germans will settle their social and political problems by a short cut—to America.

THE process of instantaneous photography, recently perfected in London, does away with the necessity of swallowing a crow-bar to maintain the erect inflexibility usually supposed to be essential to catching the shadow. The photographer now lariats his victim on the run. The whole job requires only the hundredth part of a second, and the escaping thief, or the party anxiously seeking to cut the acquaintance of a mad bull, may be photographed as perfectly as if he had slicked up and planted himself for the purpose.

OUR LITTLE FOLKS.

Willy's View of Things.

Charley he's my little brother,
And we have the greatest fun
Don't we, Charley? Our dear mother,
Whenever we whips one 'nother,
Tries to whip us, and we run.

Don't we, Charley?—and new home-by,
Nen she gives us cakes and pie;
Don't she, Charley?—when we come in,
And promise never to do it gain.

He's named Charley; I'm named Willy,
And I got the prettiest name!
My Uncle Bob he calls me "Billy,"
Don't he, Charley? Our Bill!
I named "Billy," the same
Thist like my mother said
"Bob gets foolishen in our head."
Didn't she, Charley?—and she don't know
Much about boys, cos Bob said so.

Baby's the funniest fellier—
Nain't no hair on his head.
Is they, Charley?—He mailer
Wile yo there; I'd sell him.
And boy one at wasn't so red.
Wouldn't you, Charley?—nen we could play,
And have most fun will him every day.
Couldn't we, Charley?—and have most fun;
Wisht they'd a buyed a purtifier one.

Our little sister she's seven
I'm ten olds, and Charley is
Jist it, Charley? I'm seven,
But our little sister's heaven—
Dat's what yopies goes to that place.
Don't they, Charley? Nen she was winey,
Thist like I skrape—you jist hear me!
Don't they, Charley? Nen they can fly,
Thist fly—and everything! Wisht I'd die!

A Brave Dog.

Brave was a wise dog that lived in Alton, Maine. He belonged to the old-est, boy in a family of ten children, so you see that he had a good many little masters and mistresses; but he loved them all dearly, and served them faithfully, and protected them, and defended them whenever they needed him, until he died.

There is many a pleasant story to tell of him, for though he was large and strong, he was so gentle and good-natured that the neighbors and the school children would say, "What a good dog Brave is!"

When the baby was learning to walk, she would pull herself up and cling to his back, and he would wag his tail and look lovingly around at her, and walk slowly and softly about with her, accommodating himself to her uncertain step. And once, when she lost her hold and fell back, he expressed the tenderest sympathy for her, and licked her bumped head until she laughed with delight again.

I am going to tell you one story about Brave.

Once when Nan and Nell were strawberrying down by the stream in the meadow, the sheep got out of the pasture and came trooping past them, with the cross old buck at their head. The little girls dropped their baskets and ran, for they knew he would attack almost everything he saw, and only a few days before he had broken the neck of a neighbor's buck in a fight.

There was a large stump near, upon which they climbed and sank down breathless, but they were ready to faint with fear when they saw that he had stepped out from the flock and followed them, and was stamping and shaking his head, and making other threatening signs.

For a moment they hoped his attention was taken by the baskets they had dropped, but, after smelling of them and finding nothing to his taste, he put his head down and charged upon the stump. The shock almost sent them off, and a large piece of motion was dropped out of the side of the stump and fell off.

The children were frantic. The wide flat stretched west nearly a half-mile, then there was a hill, and on the top of this stood a barn. They could only see the back of the barn, and there was no one stirring in sight.

Again the old buck came, and the stump shook to the foundation. They were certain that it could not stand many such assaults, and they were in the greatest fear of falling off, tumble you know, and be rolled into the street. Now what do you say to that? for I am a man of my word!"

The missionary was perplexed, but at length quietly said:

"I will take you."

"Well, then," said the man, "here goes. Is the word girl in any part of the Bible? If so, where can it be found, and how often? This is my question."

"Well, sir, the word girl is in the Bible, but only once, and may be found in the words of the Prophet Joel, iii. 3. 'The wench also: And sold a girl for wine, that they might drink.'"

"Well," replied the man, "I am dead beat; I durst not tell the old gent you did not have told." "And I could not have told yesterday," said the visitor. "For several days I have been praying that the Lord would open my mouth to this house, and this morning, when reading the scriptures in my family, I was surprised to find the word girl, and the concordance to see if it occurred again, and found it did not. And now, sir, I believe that God did many, and does know what will come to pass, and surely His hand is in this for my protection and care." "

The whole of the inmates were greatly surprised, and the incident has been overruled to the conversion of the man, his wife and two of the lodgers.—American Wesleyan.

ANNA BOYNTON.

The Heart as a Machine.

The heart is probably the most efficient piece of physical apparatus known. From a purely mechanical point of view it is something like eight times as efficient as the best steam engine. It may be described, mechanically, as little more than a double force pump furnished with two reservoirs and two pipes of conduit, and the main problem of its action is hydro-dynamical. The left ventricle has a capacity of about three ounces; it beats 75 times a minute; and the work done in overcoming the resistance of the circulating system is equivalent to lifting its charge of blood a little short of ten feet (9,923 ft.) The average weight of the heart is a little under ten ounces (9.89 oz.) The daily work of the left ventricle is, in round numbers, ninety foot-tons; adding the work of the right ventricle, the work of the entire heart is about one hundred and twenty-five foot-tons. The hourly work of the heart is accordingly equivalent to lifting itself twenty thousand feet an hour.

An active mountain climber can average 1,000 feet of ascent an hour, or one-twentieth the work of the heart. The prize Alp Jungfrau, Bavaria, lifted its own weight 2,700 feet an hour, thus demonstrating only one-eighth the efficiency of the heart. Four elements have to be considered in estimating the heart's work: (1) the static pressure of the blood column equal to the man's height, which has to be sustained; (2) the force consumed in overcoming the inertia of the blood-mass; (3) the resistance offered by the capillary vessels; (4) the friction in the heart itself. This, in a state of health, is kept at a minimum by the lubricated serous membrane of the pericardium.

THE DRED SCOTT DECISION.

(From the Albany Law Journal.)

The original opinion in the famous Dred Scott case was prepared by Judge Justice Nelson, and, if this opinion had stood as that of the majority, for which it was written, it would have called for no expression of judicial views on the constitutionality of the Missouri Compromise act. But after this opinion was written a motion was made in conference of the court for a reargument of the case at the next term. This motion prevailed. Judge Nelson's opinion was set aside, and two questions were framed by the Chief Justice to be argued de novo at that term, the questions involved the facts set up in the plea to the jurisdiction, and the power of the court to take notice of and determine the citizenship of the plaintiff on those facts, after that plea had been overruled by the Circuit Court, and the defendant had been ordered to plead to the merits. If the facts could be noticed and amounted to proof in law that Scott was not a citizen, the court had no jurisdiction. If on the facts Scott should be held to be a citizen, then the merits come into question, and the validity of the Missouri compromise restriction became a question before the court. On this basis the case was argued. It became important that Scott was not a citizen, but the court notwithstanding assumed jurisdiction of the merits.

The result was brought about by the influence of Mr. Justice Wayne, who had convinced himself that "the peace and harmony of the country" required a judicial "decision" to the effect that Congress had no constitutional power to prohibit the introduction of slavery in the Territories. With his impulsive and impassioned way of treating such a question he succeeded in drawing Chief Justice Taney, who could only have been mastered by Judge Wayne's appeal to his feelings—to that kindness and benevolence toward all human beings which so eminently distinguished that great jurist and Christian gentleman. It was not surprising that Judge Wayne should have carried Judge Grier and Judge Catron with him—they had a good many of the same qualities of mind and disposition that were conspicuous in their sanguine and enthusiastic colleague. But Judge Taney's nature was different, and he for once sank his judicial in his political character, because he brought the end that seemed to him desirable (and the means by which he proposed to attain it.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY.

RICE GRIDDLE CAKES.—One cup cold boiled rice, one pint flour, one tablespoonful salt, two eggs beaten very light, milk to make a tolerably thick batter. Beat all together well, and bake.

WHITE INTERVAL CAKE.—One pound of flour, one of sugar, and a half a cup of butter; six eggs beaten separately, the cup of sweet milk, a teaspoonful of soda, and two teaspoonfuls of cream tartar. Flavor to the taste, and use fruit if desired.

TO RENOVATE A BLACK CRIP HAT.—Add to one pint cold water teaspoonful spirits of ammonia; use with a soft tooth or nail brush; then rub over with cold water and place in sun to dry. Do not soak or scrub sufficiently to destroy the shape. It will look as good as new.

WHEAT BREAD.—Boil or bake three potatoes and mash fine. Soak a yeast-cake and add to the potatoes when cool enough. Add two teaspoonfuls of salt; let it stand three or four hours; then add water enough for two loaves of bread. Stir in flour enough to make it stand over night. In the morning add half a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in water, and knead for a well-nut. Knead thoroughly, and then let it raise very light, and put in bread-pans without further kneading. Let it raise quickly to twice its bulk when put in the pans.

POTATO YEAST.—Boil six good-sized potatoes in two quarts of water till done—then take four table-spoonfuls of flour and two of sugar, and work them together with the potatoes and a little of the water until perfectly smooth, taking care to keep the remainder of the water on the stove until needed; when sufficiently mashed, add the rest of the water, and, after stirring together, put through a colander to prevent any lumps in the yeast; when about lukewarm, add a little stock yeast, and set in a warm place for about half a day, and it will be sufficiently raised to put in cans or jars in a cool place.

Strangles in Horses.

Most persons conversant with horses must be aware that certain glands lie just under the angles of the two jaws, and run up in the direction of the ear. They are the seat of the affection peculiar to young animals, known under the name of strangles and fabby in their results. With well-bred and well-formed animals it is often very difficult to find them at all under the skin. Sometimes the abnormal size of these glands is evidently constitutional, sometimes it is a consequence of disease—strangles, for instance—and sometimes it appears wholly from the pressure of the angles of the jaws, especially when these lie very close together, and the rider or driver has attempted to force a certain position, either by the use of severe bits, or, what is still worse, a combination of these with the bearing-rein in harness. If such a state of things be overlooked or neglected very serious consequences may arise. The forced pressure of the jaw-bones on these glands is sometimes perfectly exercising to the animal, and it has recourse, to the great astonishment of its ignorant rider or driver, to all sorts of expedients to get rid of the intolerable pain. It will refuse its work, or run away, or throw itself down, or rear up, or do anything or everything in its desperation, and the brute on its back or in the harness, knows no other remedy for it than to "dog the silk out of him," whereas the whole thing is probably the result of bad bitting and bridling. —Driver, in Seats and Saddles.

Sweet and Low.

A gentleman in New York was recently descanting to a friend on the soft notes of a linnet which he had heard a few days before.

"Why," said he, "it sang so softly at times that you couldn't hear it at all."

"S-h-h-h!" said the other, placing his hand to his ear, "perhaps there is one singing now."—Scribner's Bric-a-Brac.

The Herring.

The herring, though a small fish, is commercially attractive enough to often find its own proposals of peace and tranquility seriously endangered. In the fishing season it is a matter more from funny mistakes than either the cod or the mackerel, and its spawning capacity is comparatively feeble—a mere trifle of thirty thousand eggs, which the mackerel exceeds by fifteen or twenty times, and the cod by a hundred or more. And yet there seems no limit to the quantity of herring. Were the demand many times as great as it is, it could easily be supplied from this side of the ocean. This is doubtless due in great measure to the peculiar security enjoyed by the spawn and the young. Instead of floating, critice downward, like the eggs of most other fish, herring spawn sinks to the bottom, the prices of the eggs being upward, and, as it is deposited in deep water, there are but few fish that interfere with it. The young, finding no loving parent near to guide their youthful steps, sensibly remain close to their birth-place, feeding upon diatoms and the smaller crustacea, until they grow old enough and strong enough to venture abroad. Migratory only to a limited extent, it is probable that the herring changes its base only on account of annyance from larger fish. They are caught in great numbers by varieties of seines and pounds, and the hook has occasionally been tried upon them by self-sufficient city youths, urged thereto by sea-shore friends who wished to remove the conceit from their visitors. To attempt to lure with hook and line a fish which seldom bites but lives wholly by suction, and to spend long hours at the attempt, under the stimulus of some wonderful story about how many some other city youth caught in the same way, is very stimulative of one's memory of the improvement in Scripture and of other scripture as misquoted by the wicked.

The herring, like the other fish named, inhabits cold water, the line of Long Island sound being its southern boundary, while it is far to the north and east. It must be sought in quantity. The secret of the selection of particular localities for fish homes seems explained by an examination of the course of the great Arctic current. This body of cold water, starting from the Spitzbergen seas, flows westerly until it strikes the Greenland coast, when it changes its course to the southward, and carries great masses of cold water into localities the latitude of which leads one to look for a high temperature in the water. It is a branch of this current that enables the cod to live and multiply about Block Island and Nantucket shoals, in water at 40 deg., while farther north bathers at the beach luxuriate in water at 70 deg. The same current forces its way into the Gulf of St. Lawrence, which is the most profitable fishing ground in the world, and probably has something to do with the phenomenal tides in the Bay of Fundy. This current brings not only cold water but food for the fish. This food consists of diatoms and other minute forms of vegetable and animal life. Coming into existence in a latitude higher than that of the fish that devour it, this food is swept southward by the great Arctic current, and wherever it is found, it and others are almost alive with fish. Proof. Hind says that although the sea off Canada and the United States appears abundant in life, it is nevertheless almost a desert compared with the Northern seas, particularly on the Labrador and Greenland coasts. There the ocean at times seems to be thick with fish, and to such an extent that during a single night the temperature of the water will be materially influenced by animal life!—John Habberton, in Harper's Magazine.

SPLITTING PAPER.—It is one of the most remarkable properties of that wonderful product, paper, says Design and Work, that it can be split into two or even three parts, however thin the sheet. We have seen a leaf of the Illustrated News thus divided into three thin leaves. One consisted of the surface on which the engravings are printed; another was the side containing the letter press; and a perfectly blank piece on each side was the paper that lay between. Many people who have not seen this done might think it impossible; yet it is not only possible but extremely easy, as we shall show. Get a piece of plate glass and place on it a sheet of paper; then let the latter be thoroughly soaked. With care and a little dexterity the sheet can be split by the top surface being removed. But the best plan is to paste a piece of cloth or stronger paper to each side of the sheet to be split. When dry, violently and without hesitation pull the two pieces asunder, when each of the sheet will be found to have adhered to one and part to the other. Soften the paste in water and the pieces can be easily removed from the cloth. The process is generally demonstrated as a matter of curiosity, yet it can be utilized in various ways. If we want to paste in a scrap book a newspaper article printed on both sides of the paper, and possess only one copy, it is very convenient to know how to detach the one side from the other. The paper when split, as may be imagined, is more transparent than it was before being subjected to the operation, and the printing ink is somewhat duller; otherwise the two pieces resemble in appearance of the original if again brought together.
