VOLUME IV BRAINERD, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, JANUARY 9, 1885. NUMBER 4.

MINNESOTA NEWS NOTES.

Minnesota State University.

At a meeting of the Board of Regents of the State University, held at St. Paul, Regent Pillsbury, as chairman of the executive committee, submitted a partial report, announcing the sale of the old experimental farm and the purchase of 250 acres, located about three miles east of the university, over which a number of improvements have been made, including a farm house and a barn, worth $8,000, the latter now being in process of construction. The cost of the new farm was $300 per acre for 150 acres and $400 per acre for ninety-four acres, or a total of $78,000—the improvements bringing the present value of the farm up to $100,000. The proceeds of the sale of the experimental farm have been entrusted to pay for the new farm and buildings, and there are still sixty-six hundred and odd dollars of the fund realized in the old farm having been platted and placed on the market. The treasurer submitted his report, which was adopted. During the past year the university improvement fund has been increased $100,000, making a total of $467,765.76 from the sale of lands for investment, and from which a revenue of about $32,000 was obtained in 1884. The total amount available the university during the year was $51,000, leaving a deficit of $19,085, which was made up by using for legislative appropriation. The cost of the geological survey of 1883 was reported at $9,000 (exclusive of Prof. Winchell's salary, $2,000), which has been paid from the sale of salt lands, the salary being payable as a current expense by the legislature of 1885. On the recommendation of President Northrop, Prof. W. A. Pike was engaged to prepare plans for a hall of mechanic arts and submit the same to the executive committee, who were authorized to proceed with the work of construction upon the building as soon as the funds appropriated for that purpose are available. Prof. Edward Maslauer, a graduate of Yale and the University of Berlin, was duly elected to the chair of English language and literature, in place of Prof. Moses Marston, deceased.

An analysis of these statements shows that there has been disbursed during the twenty months covered by the statements, out of the treasury $778,416.55 for the maintenance of the state institutions, $612,622.50 in the construction of new buildings and the purchase of lands for the same, and the state debt, and $650,158.99 for the general expenses of government; all of which has been met by the ordinary revenues of the state, except the $612,622.50 which is paid from the income of the internal improvement land fund. This latter account, almost wholly due to the railroad aid bonds, has been largely increased and augmented upon the treasury, and a large part of the expenditure for permanent improvements has been required to replace structures destroyed by fire. The fact that the state has been able to defease in the cost of maintaining the public institutions the past few years with but little increase in the aggregate of extraordinary demands that have been made upon the state treasury for the tax levy but for the rapid increase of the assessed valuation of the taxable property, the sources of the state. The one mill tax to which the state is limited by the law for the general revenues of the state, have, however, been sufficient to provide for all the ordinary needs and leave a balance in the treasury at the end of the fiscal year. If these amounts of "receipts and disbursements" for the fiscal years for which you were asked to make appropriations promise a continued healthy condition of the finances, and your appropriations are restricted within reasonable limits, as in the past, this practice has obtained to some extent of making appropriations for buildings to be met from revenues from which they were to be met, as a convenience to the legislature when impossible for the treasurer to meet the appropriations as they are presented, particularly against the revenues of the year. This practice will not fully scrutinize all propositions involving an expenditure of money; and I trust you will not make appropriations beyond the ability of the treasury to meet them as they are made. While providing adequately for the increased requirements of our public institutions and the several departments of the state government, consistent with the growth of the state in population, care and discrimination in making appropriations may save you many millions and perhaps wasteful drafts upon the revenues.

PERMANENT TRUST FUNDS.

In 1870 all receipts for taxes on railroad and telegraph companies were set apart as a permanent fund for the support of the state institutions. At that time the amount realized from these sources was only $643,000. It has now become the principal source of revenue for the support of the state institutions, and for the year to $651,378.18, largely in excess of the estimated fiscal year. While this is a sufficient reason for reserving this resource for the purposes for which it was created, I recommend that the law relating thereto be changed so that the income from the forestry fund, which is the present source of revenue for which it was created, be applied to the payment of the principal of the permanent school fund.

STATE DEBT.

The present indebtedness of the state is represented by the following issue of bonds:

Railroad aid bonds, issue of	1881	$1,000,000
1881, due in twenty and redeem-
able in ten years, 6 per cent		$4,923,000
Revenue bonds, issue of 1865, redeemable at the pleasure of the state, 4½ per cent		200,000
Total		$4,483,000

These revenue bonds will be redeemed within the next three years, provision having been made therefor. The bonds of 1881 are a state loan of $1,023,000 of the adjustment bonds, $222,000 of which are held by the state as "reservation" or "sinking fund." These latter bonds are to be redeemed in the absence of the state realized by that amount. There are in the treasury, also, $30,000 of contracts in the sinking fund, which will be invested in bonds from the first sale of school land. Whenever it is deemed advisable, the remainder of the $1,000,000 issue of the permanent school fund, and adjustment bonds to the amount of $222,000 will be redeemed and canceled. It may not be desirable to do this at the present time, but I would recommend that authority be given to the board of investment to exchange these bonds now in the hand of "sinking fund" for further bonds of like character it may acquire in the future. As opportunities offer, I would recommend that our state bonds the board of investment have authority to purchase them at not above par; the advantage of these transactions being a net gain of the face value of $65,000. The auditor makes some practical suggestions in his report for the improvement of the trust funds of the state; which merit your attention. The fire loss of the state over half a million dollars within the last five years, has been largely uninsured and by fire. Comparatively little insurance was upon the buildings burned, and what there was placed without direct authority therefor. The state has assumed and carried the loss, the premiums being paid from the current expense funds. In view of this experience and as a simple business precaution, I think the policy heretofore prevailing of refusing to insure property belonging to the state is reconsidered and the boards in charge of the several institutions authorized to procure reasonable indemnity against fire for the property now exposed to danger from that source. The state has property which is not practically fireproof and will not need to be insured.

THE PRISONS.

The report of the superintendent of public instruction shows an exhibit very favorable of the educational interests of the state; their development during the past two years, the improvements noted, and the defects still remaining for the action of the legislature. Due attention to the criticisms and suggestions of the superintendent will discover wherein that system may be much improved and the standard of education greatly raised by the people of the state. There is no question of state interest of more importance to our people to a greater degree than the means and methods of elementary and popular intelligence. With its admirable plan of organization and its liberal provisions, now supplemented by a large tribute of annual revenue, the school system of the state has made a model of its kind. Assuming that it is your desire to maintain it in the front rank of secure that end, I commend the recommendations of the superintendent to your favorable consideration. The increase in the public school revenue for the year 1883-84 was $23,509, an increase of 2,566 since the last year. The number of children of school age of ninety-two new school buildings have been erected during the year 1883-84. There has been raised for educational support $1,000,000 in the state, $1,000,000 in the state, $1,000,000 in the state,

OFFICIAL PAPER OF CROW WING COUNTY, STATE AND AITKEN COUNTIES, AND THE CITY of Brainerd.

Entered at the Post Office at Brainerd, Minnesota, as second-class matter.

H. B. Morrison has been commissioned postmaster at Motley.

There are 400 newspapers published in London. Of these sixteen are morning, nine are evening and 375 are weekly.

The Grand hotel in Fergus Falls is closed for the winter. Fergus Falls is a thriving town, but it will not support a first-class hotel during the winter months.

The Duluth fire department advertised for hose, samples to accompany bids, and the next day fourteen different kinds were laid on the recorder's desk, there being garden hose, striped hose, etc., among the number.

W. F. Thompson made answer to the two new indictments brought against him for embezzlement, and gave bonds for future appearance for trial. Mr. Thompson has been acquitted on six previous indictments on the same charge. Thompson has a libel suit pending against the Pioneer Press.

According to the signal services New Year's night was the coldest ever experienced in the United States, with the exception of January 1, 1879, when it was colder in some localities, but the average temperature was not lower than January 1, 1885.

The Minneapolis Lumberman's Association, at a meeting held Saturday, unanimously passed a resolution, asking the legislature to reduce the price of scaling to three cents, and to make the books of the surveyor general public records.

We are informed that several of the attorneys of Brainerd signed a petition to the governor for the appointment of Judge Reynolds as additional judge of this district, under a misapprehension of the facts. Why not urge the appointment of some resident of Brainerd and facilitate the business centering here! It looks to us as though this endorsement is a little hasty and out of place.

Regarding the report that the Wisconsin Central will make its eastern shipments via the Detroit and Grand Haven line, in case it should be refused an entry into Chicago over the Milwaukee and St. Paul road, President Colby stated to an associated press representative the other evening that the statement had no foundation in fact. He expects to perfect a satisfactory agreement with the Milwaukee and St. Paul, but in case he cannot the company will in all probability build an independent road to Chicago, gaining an entrance to the city by some non-competing line already having terminal facilities there.

St. Louis, with twenty thousand of her industrial operatives out of employment and eight thousand of them at the point of starvation, and depending for subsistence solely upon private charity, has adopted what seems to be not only a humane but a very wise plan for their relief. Money is to be raised by assessing property owners at so much per block in the central portions of the city and expended in giving employment the destitute in thoroughly cleansing the streets and sewers and bettering the sanitary condition of the city. Already twenty-five thousand dollars have been raised for this purpose, and it is hoped to swell this sum to fifty thousand.

Swan, the Defaulter Captured.

David E. Swan, a former official of the Northern Pacific railway, who was dismissed from the local treasurer's office on the 1st of July 1884, and whose departure was afterwards lamented on the discovery being made that he had used $30,000 of the company's money, was captured at Sutton's Bay, Mich., yesterday by one of Pinkerton's detectives. The history of Swan's shrewd manipulations of the Northern Pacific finances, and later on of his successful efforts in eluding capture have already been made known to the readers of the DISPATCH. Shortly after his departure he was at one time nearly cornered in New York, but succeeded in leaving there without arrest. Nothing further has been heard of his whereabouts until yesterday, when, as before stated, one of Pinkerton's men "bobs up serenely" with the gentlemen in Michigan. At the time of his arrest he was living as a highly respected citizen under the name of D. F. Edington. Although he had been a resident of Sutton's Bay for only a few months he stood high in leading circles being the agent of the Masonic Insurance company for the district, chief clerk of W. S. Johnson, a large lumber dealer, a pillar of the Baptist church, a Sunday school teacher, and last fall was elected prosecuting attorney of Sutton's Bay. On being arrested he confessed his identity, and expressed a willingness to return to St. Paul.

The Additional Judge for the 11th Judicial District.

We notice that Senator Stenersen, of Polk county has introduced a bill providing for an additional judge for 11th judicial district. We have not been informed what its provisions are, but believe that it will provide for the appointment of a judge, west of Becker county. Our idea is that if the legislature is wise, and desires to meet the emergency, that this bill will not pass. We understand there is a desire to relieve the judges of the 4th district by attaching Wright, Anoka, and Isanti counties to some other district. Judge Collom's (the 7th) district is large enough at present, and it would not be be right to impose greater burdens on him.

It appears to us the proper remedy to be applied is to create one new district out of the following counties: Wilkin, Clay, Ottertail, Becker, Norman, Polk, Marshall, Kitson, with Beltrami attached. Remodel the 11th so that it will be composed of Wadena, Todd, Hubbard, Cass, Itasca, Crow Wing, Morrison, Mille Lacs, Aitken, Carleton, St. Louis, Lake and Cook. Five of these counties are unorganized, and are attached to other counties, and one judge could do the work. Then attach the three counties of the 4th to the 7th district, which would then be composed of Stearns, Sherburne, Wright, Benton, Isanti, Anoka, Douglas, and Pope. This would undoubtedly meet the requirements and give better satisfaction.

Just why Brainerd and Crow Wing county should be ignored in this proposed legislation we can not imagine, unless it be that our attorneys are passive to their own as well as the general local interests.

Should a judge be appointed as the bill provides, west of Becker county, then we are 115 miles from one judge, and about 190 miles from the other. We are not aware that any of the men whose names have been mentioned as the proposed judge are better qualified than many of our Brainerd attorneys, and we would suppose that there would be sufficient self interest on their part, if for no other reason, to cause them to adopt some measures to influence legislation, if possible, to favor Brainerd. Come gentlemen, be up and doing.

Boecher's Fix

New York Sun; Beecher is in a bad way. When he was in his great emergency before, he addressed himself with desperate cheerfulness to the task of lying his way out of it. The measure of his success was in a direct ratio to the degree of sympathy he inspired in the people he appealed to; and the natural consequence was, that while he grappled to him the essential few, he incurred the contempt of the unbelieving many. Then, too, he had an emotional and frenetic sort of mendacity, of which he is a master, and to which a certain morbid tendency, that he had cultivated in his audience, made them an easy prey. Now, however, he is concerned in lying of another kind, a colder and more common place form of mendacity, with no novelty in it and none of the quality which appeals to the imagination and substitutes warm impulse for the slower judgment of deliberate reason. He makes a poor fist of it. He has invented a new set of charges against the Republican party, ascribes new motives to himself for his course in the campaign, says he was actuated by his solicitude for the south, takes back his vehement assertion that all the men in New York were libertines and prodigates, and that north, south, east and west, with the vigor and candor of a railroad map. But it doesn't seem to be of any use. The people who were with him when he was on the ragged edge and who covered his nestliding with garlands of flowers, and deacons who wept publicly and opened their coffers to his need, show no more feeling than so many wall-eyed pike. His friends may bolster up the pew rents next week and make a show of escape for their battered pastor: they may drag new elements into the congregation and fill the vacancies left by the sad-eyed seceders; but the impression prevails that Beecher has pranced up and down the vestibule of Plymouth church just once too often.

State News.

Charles Coburn, school treasurer of Green Prairie township, near Little Falls has skipped the country with $96 of the district fund. His bondsmen are insolvent.

A young man named Colinson was arrested and held to the grand jury at Little Falls for taking a letter out of the postoffice at Pipe Creek addressed to a man named Coleson, which contained a time check of the Manitoba railroad for $15. Colinson had the check cashed at Richard Bros., and spent the money.

A report reached Duluth, from Tower, that the body of a young man, name unknown, had been found in the woods, frozen stiff. He went out with a party three days ago and got separated from the rest, who tracked him three miles in the snow. At one time it was seen where he fell, his eye striking a stick, and when he picked himself up, his eye was left sticking to the stick, having been pulled out of the socket. It was evident he fell over fifty times before he dropped dead.

Fight at Fergus Falls.

FERGUS FALLS, Minn., Jan. 5.—Four hundred people were disappointed at the open house tonight by the non-arrival of C. A. Smith to fight Hafey. Every one was looking for a good fight, when the manager announced that Smith had failed to come to time, and the money was awarded to Hafey. Smith was denounced as a coward. A fight was arranged between the negro Gilbert, of the Jefferson combination, and Hafey, on the same terms as the other fight. In the first round Gilbert showed that he was the better man, as Hafey was winded and acting on the defense. In the second round Gilbert forced the fighting, pounding Hafey in good style. Hafey continued to grapple him, and refused to break when called upon by the referee. Gilbert showed that he was game and pounded Hafey in a terrible manner, but escaped himself without losing a drop of blood. At the close of the second round Hafey was bleeding profusely and refused to come to the center for the third round. The money was then awarded to Gilbert.

Try for the Book.

Ten estimates have been furnished the DISPATCH by a correspondent in the city, two of which will be printed each week until they have all been published. The answers to them will be sent to some popular young lady and gentleman of this city. The person sending us the greatest number of correct answers during the five weeks will be presented with a copy of Whittier's poems. If two or more send in the same number of correct answers the recipient will be determined by lot.

My 3, 2, 1, 4, a mixture of things.
My 8, 5, 6, 7, an institutes of learning.
My whole the name of a popular young man of Brainerd.

The one completes the ten enigmas, and parties who desire to be classed among the contestants for the book will please send in the send in their answers as early as Wednesday evening of next week in order that the answers and the name of the lucky person may be announced in our next issue.

Slugger Sullivan's Sprees.

Slugger Sullivan never denies that he more than touched the Boston waiter girl lightly with his glove. It might have been lightly, but it seems to have been enough. It is further alleged that the party left the girl where she fell, finished their supper and left the saloon. On reaching the sidewalk Sullivan struck one of his horses a sledge hammer blow on the side of the head with his fist and began kicking the animal ferociously. A policeman came up and ordered him to desist, whereupon the champion threatened to treat the policeman in the same way if he interfered. The officer says that if Sullivan had been alone he would have arrested him, but he was no match for him and his friends, who were all sluggers. John next jumped into the sleigh and attempted to drive down Oak street. The horses were frantic and the driver too drunk to control them. The team instead of turning the corner swerved up Washington street, overturning the sleigh completely. Sullivan clung with drunkeness to the reins, and was dragged at a breakneck pace 600 feet through the mud and slush with the sleigh on top. The team was stopped and the bedraggled prize fighter was pulled out. He was a vile looking object, and apparently uninjured, and as full of fight as ever.

D. D. Whitney, a real estate dealer and a prominent church man of Minneapolis, visited California last year, and while there his wife learned of his attentions to a wealthy widow, in whose society he traveled a great deal. Mrs. Whitney alleges that upon his return he treated her illnaturedly and pestered the life out of her, soliciting her consent to a divorce. Last summer she occupied her cottage at Lake Park, where his visits were few, and one morning he left a note on the table, saying if she wanted to come and live with him she might, but he did not want her mother around, for he hated her. At the end of the season Mrs. Whitney returned to town, and her husband left his home and took up his abode as a boarding house, visiting his five children in the evening. A separation was agreed upon, Whitney deeding two stores he owned to his wife who retained possession of the children. About two weeks ago Whitney invited his two boys to the skating rink, and while the elder one was skating, abducted the younger and when last heard from was on his way to California. The mother is nearly crazy with grief, and as the stores deeded to her are now vacant, she and her family are suffering for the necessaries of life.

The news has just reached this city that Harvey F. Clark, formerly of this city, and hand store in Brainerd, was married on January 9, at Helena, to Mrs. Elizabeth McFarland, of Plainfield, Wis. Mr. Clark is running a second hand store in that city, and is doing a good business.

The St. P. & N. P. officials have concluded to award the contract for supplying the brick, to be used in the new shops at Brainerd, to Scott & Duclos, of Little Falls. Upwards of 3,000,000 brick will be required. Controller Postlethwaite and Chief Engineer Kendrick will visit Little Falls this week, to close the contract.

F. H. Elvidge has this week sold his wood and coal business, together with the stock on hand, to Mr. F. A. B. King. It is Mr. Elvidge's intention to make Minneapolis his future home. He has been a resident of this city for some years, the most of the time being employed as fuel agent for the Northern Pacific road, and during his stay has made many friends, who will be sorry to hear of his intended departure. Brainerd loses a respected citizen, while Minneapolis gains one.

Postmaster Hartley informs us that hereafter the postoffice will be open on Sundays, until further notice, from 2:30 to 3:30 p. m., instead of from 12 to 1, on account of the Sunday afternoon mail from St. Paul, which arrives at 2 p. m., bringing Sunday morning papers.

The residents of Deerwood, Crow Wing county, have petitioned the governor for the redistricting of the county, so that the fourth district shall consist of towns 44 and 47, range 28 and 29, north ½ town 45, and that R. H. Morford be appointed county commissioner from that district until the next election.

John Martin was elected chairman of the board of county commissioners, on Tuesday. This will make it a little unhandy about getting orders signed, unless attended to on commissioner's day, as Mr. Martin lives some miles out in the country. Uncle John will fill the chair in a very acceptable manner.

C. F. Kindred and G. G. Hartley of Brainerd, and D. M. Clough of Minneapolis, started for Washington on Thursday, for the purpose of assisting congress in its legislation concerning some Northwestern interests, says the Pioneer Press. It is understood that they have been asked to come to the capitol by congressman Nelson.

Job work done in the neatest style at this office, and at low figures. A man who will send his printing out of the city when he can get it done at home at the same price, does not deserve to be patronized in return; and we defy any Minneapolis or burn out work at a lower rate than we are at present asking. Paste this in your seal skin.

The skating rink was packed last Thursday night, to witness the fancy skating of Miss Sandberg, a young lady of this city, but who for some-time past has been giving exhibitions along the N. P. road. Miss Guilfoil is a fine skater, considering the time that has elapsed since she made her first attempt on the rollers, and, with training, she will make a star skater.

A. L. Hoffman has purchased the feed store that was recently started in the Odd Fellows' block, and has taken possession. It is Mr. Hoffman's intention to keep in a large and choice line of groceries, as soon as he can get his business fairly established in the new location. His feed store, at the corner of Sixth and Laurel, and the one on Front street, will be moved to the new location immediately.

S. F. Alderman has been retained by County Auditor Wilson as deputy. Mr. Alderman will be useful in that capacity under Auditor Thompson, and is thoroughly conversant with the routine business, the books, and matters pertaining to the office, and is a valuable man for the position. Mr. Wilson could not have made a better selection, or one that would have given better satisfaction to the public.

As a pointer on job work, and where to get the best at the lowest figures, the DISPATCH comes modestly to the front. The first week of the present year we turned out upwards of $65 worth of job printing for the principal business men of the city, which, considering that the two months following the holidays are the dullest of the year, is good. For the same time last year this office only turned out $15.75 worth of job printing, and then thought that for the first seven days after the holidays we were doing a rushing business. During the year just passed, the average for each month has been $166, or $2000 for the year.

The New Railroad.

The Pioneer Press of Friday says that a number of gentlemen were in Minneapolis on Thursday, representing the St. Paul, Brainerd & Northwestern railroad company, which is projected to run from Brainerd northwest to Crookston. The road has been surveyed and is only waiting for cash. The directors have been negotiating with eastern parties, who have consented to place their bonds, and several of the party went east last night to perfect these arrangements. Those forming the party were C. F. Kindred, G. G. Hartley, Wm. Selye, and L. P. White, of Brainerd, J. C. Flynn of Little Falls, and D. M. Clough of Minneapolis.

A Royal Dinner.

The time set for the first dinner of the A. C. G. was on Wednesday last, the 7th of the present month, at the residence of Mrs. Mulrine, and, from what information we could glean, it was a most enjoyable particular, and those in attendance report a right royal repast, which was gotten up by the members of the club. The following is the bill of fare, with the names of the ladies and the particular dish that was prepared by each:

Soup, prepared by Miss Mulvine.

Fish, prepared by Mrs. Ed. Hazen.

Turkey, prepared by Mrs. A. V. Snyder.

Vegetables, prepared by Miss Guest.

Puddings, prepared by Mrs. S. F. Alderman and Mrs. F. M. Cable.

Bread, prepared by Mrs. C. E. Smith and Mrs. C. P. Kindred.

Cake, prepared by Mrs. J. H. Bryant and Mrs. J. L. Smith.

Coffee, prepared by Mrs. G. S. Ferrald.

Tea, prepared by Miss Mabel White.

Salad, prepared by Mrs. H. H. Barber.

Cranberry Sauce, prepared by Mrs. J. R. Howes.

The next meeting will be held at the residence of Mrs. H. H. Barber, on Seventh street, on Wednesday, January 21. The organization bids fair to become very popular.

The Band Boys' Ball.

Tuesday, February 17, 1885, will be the third anniversary of the Brainerd Cornet Band, and the boys propose to celebrate the occasion by a grand ball at the Roller Rink. It is needless for us to say that this party will be first-class in every particular, and that the band will be greeted by a large crowd on that occasion.

What is It.

In last week's Tribune, its editor turned himself loose on the city government and police force, as usual. In the course of his remarks he takes great pains to make the public believe that the men who are employed on the police force are entirely without sense—perfect idiots, and says so in so many words. That the police force of this city would be a credit to Chicago or St. Paul, we do not claim, but if there is a man in the whole force, who has not more brains than the Tribune editor, we will take a back seat hereafter. Then he says the city is running in debt at the rate of $800 per month. The Tribune editor knows this to be untrue. The whole expense of running the city does not amount to $800 per month, and the income for the year is something like $11,000. This gentleman of statistics claims he got his figures from the city records, but the statement itself proves the lie to the whole thing. This disreputable sheet also claims and asserts that the council "is made up of incompetent men, men to whom the people would not intrust any private affair of their own," and calls them "low tricksters who have some end of their own to secure, gamblers who play the 'dear workingman' for what there is in him."

That the city council is made up of the best and most intelligent men our city has is an undeniable truth. Such men as J. J. Howe, D. E. Slipp, Thos. Watts, A. E. Taylor, Peter Ort, and George Forsyth compose that body, and when the Tribune stands them as rascals, thieves and gamblers it over steps the bounds of decency and self respect, and it is a wonder that some member of the city council does not take the satute mill pusher by the bottom of the pantaloons and the nape of the neck and mop up the floor with him.

What effect will such reports as is allowed to be circulated by this man have on the outside public, people who do not know but what there might be some degree of truth in them? It will be disastrous in the extreme. No man wants to come to a city and invest his hard earned wealth when the aldermen steal money out of the treasury, or give to a traveling showman, where the only aim of the city council is to "beat the poor working man" where "houses of prostitution carry on their nefarious business under the very eyes and noses of the law, without being disturbed, and are permitted to sell intoxicating liquors without license, where drunkenness and debauchery run riot on the streets and rowdy women promenade the thoroughfares in masquerade dress, revolvers in hand, and murderously assault citizens while immbecile police stand idly by and do not interfere," as is claimed by this blackguarding sheet. The Tribune painted the town a very deep black in its last issue, and although it claims to be the "friend of Brainerd," there is not an issue gotten out of the dingy den where it is published and printed from a mass of broken down type and worn out machinery, but what does more injury to the town than it could repair in six months. The circulation of that paper outside of the city consists of a few exchanges and that is where the injury comes in, for it is copied and spread over the whole country, while if its list was confined to the city which consists of what few papers four urchins can sell on the streets, there would be no need of protest for what few people buy a copy do so out of idle curiosity to see what new break this young man from Wheeling has made.

Their Pedigree.

In speaking of the different senators and representatives, the Minneapolis Tribune of Tuesday says:

Howes, John R.; M. D.—Thirty-ninth district.—Born in 1851, in Canada, received a liberal education and a full medical course in Philadelphia; practiced medicine in Indiana, and removed to Brainerd, Crow Wing county, in 1880, where he largely operated in real estate, together with practicing medicine; is president of the Crow Wing County Medical society, and Crow Wing County Agricultural society; also owns large flouring mill; married, and has two children.

Clarence B. Buckman, the distinguished representative of Benton, Crow Wing, Morrison and Todd counties in the senate, is a native of Bucks county, Penna., where he was born in 1850. In 1873 he came to this state, locating in the eastern part of Morrison county, where he secured a large tract of farming land in what became the town of Buckman. To farming operations on a large scale he added lumbering, and carried on large logging operations on the tributaries on the Mississippi. In 1880 Mr. Buckman removed to Little Falls, and was elected to the house from the district as then constituted. Being transferred to the senate from the new district, as made, he was two years ago one of the republican leaders, and with the northern cohorts that broke the republican caucus opposing Windom, and supporting C. P. Kindred for senator, held the balance of power until the moment came for making Mr. Sabin's election certain. Mr. Buckman is a natural orator; a shrewd manager, and a strong business man.

MARRIED:

VANDERSLICE—BURSON—In Philadelphia, Jan. 8, 1885, Geo. W. Vanderslice to Miss Lulu Burson. At home after Feb. 1, 1885, at 143 south Sixth street, Brainerd.

The above is a copy of the announcements that were received in this city, the first of the week. Mr. Vanderslice and wife will receive the congratulations of a host of friends.

COHEN—SCHOENMANN.—Henry I. Cohen to Minnie Schoenmann. Married Thursday, Jan. 1, 1885, at Milwaukee, Wis. At home, 325 Fifth street, North, Brainerd, Minn.

Mr. Cohen and bride returned to this city on Friday night. Congratulations are in order.

Permanently Located.

The Mud Mill.

BRAINERD, Jan. 9, 1885.

MR. EDITOR:—Still the Tribune mud throwing machine continues to grind, and last week a larger and more polluted batch than usual. What its object can be or what good it expects to accomplish by such a course is a puzzle to any candid reader. All newspapers are entitled to discuss evils and questions of reform, and agitate subjects that tend to arouse the people to an active consideration of what is productive of the most possible good to the community at large; but it is doubtful if the cultivation of these slandering and mud throwing propensities will be productive of much private or public good. Let us hear from the citizens on the mayoralty.

First citizen—"Would it not be well to agitate the election of the dude editor of the Brainerd Blowhard, A. J. Halsted, for mayor?"

Second citizen.—"Well, yes. If elected, his paper would be flooded with our policy, our reform, the righteousness of our administration, the wisdom of our appointments of police officers, and besides he would have an "office and some visible means of support." The "puffed out and strutting alderman" is hardly to blame for indulging in humble feelings, for the unjust criticisms of that sheet is enough to create such feelings—had he put them into execution, it might have been well, as the editor might have given an exhibition of the metal that good policemen should be made of. The "penny wise and pound foolish councilmen" may be to blame for the non-working condition of the telephone; although it is not generally supposed that the council regulates them. Or may be the "pompous and imbecile McMahon (as that sheet very lovingly calls him) does not know enough to call fire through the telephone, or, what is still more probable, the mayor, council, police force and health officers are all to blame for the recent fire, as it would not answer the ends of that sheet were it not able to lay it at the door of some city official. Perhaps the dude editor of the Tribune would enjoy the mayor's position; he may think it an easy matter to steer clear of the cross fire of friends and foes. The time will soon come when the people can elect a man (under the guidance of this great reform editor) who will run things to the Tribune's idea of propriety, and who will appoint superior police officers, over which Halstad should be made chief.

A CITIZEN.

The Singing Classes.

The class for beginners will meet Saturday night, this week, at 7:30 p. m. The advanced classes will meet on Monday night, at the same hour. Let every one come early, so as to get to work promptly at 7:30.

Commissioners Proceedings.

AUDITORS OFFICE, CROW WING CO., January 6th, 1885.

The board of County Commissioners met according to law.

Minutes of the meeting of Dec. 24th were read and approved.

The board then proceeded to elect a chairman the first ballot resulting as follows: A. P. Farrar, one vote, J. M. Martin two votes, and J. M. Martin was then declared elected chairman.

The report of the auditing board was then read which was as follows:

To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners:

We, the Auditing Board of your county have examined the books and accounts of the County Treasurer, and beg leave to report as follows:

CASH ON HAND JAN. 6TH, 1885,

Crow Wing County	$1,852 23
Cass County	1,570 22
Itasca County	433 29

City orders	83 32
Wolf orders	20 00
Currency	10 00
Coin	20 60
Total	$3,674 74

Respectfully Submitted,

F. B. THOMPSON,
A. P. FRARER,
J. C. ROGERS,
Auditing Board.

Motion was made by Commissioner Gardner and sustained by Commissioner Martin that the report of the auditing board be accepted and approved. Motion carried.

The following bills were then allowed:

he is in no sense any check whatever, as he can audit the treasurer's accounts only by means of data furnished by that officer himself." A remedy for this is to appoint auditors who are urgently demanded by the simplest principles of business, and it is understood, that it would seem only necessary to call attention to the defect in the system to have the remedy promptly applied. I trust that what has been done at this session, as recommended by the examiner, will be brought to the next session. Innovations in the tax law of the state. Your attention is directed to the suggestions prescribed by the examiner, of misappropriation of public funds by boards of county commissioners. Though these cases are rare, their existence should suggest some action against by legislation, against their possible recurrence in the future. In the examiner's statement of county finances shows receipts for 1884-5 of $8,381,760.90; balance from last year, $1,000,000; and disbursements of $7,369,703.09.

STATE STATISTICS.

are summarized as follows:

	Number of banks	213	since 1882
	Gen. stock (149 banks)	$10,904,775	$6,553,537
	Surplus fund	2,784,844	1,579,844
	Deposits (all banks)	27,284,174	4,572,815
	Loans and discounts (99 banks)	37,275,756	10,443,429

Of the above banks, 48 are national, 32 state, 6 savings, and 126 private. The rates given being for less than one-half the banks in the state are not very satisfactory, as showing the resources and liabilities of these institutions. The increase in the several items will indicate to some extent, however, their growth in business.

The phenomenal growth of the insurance business of the state is shown by the seven years ago. A striking and not altogether pleasant feature of this showing is the rapid disproportion of the losses to premiums and risks; from which the commissioner draws comparisons like the following: In Minnesota has not of late been remunerative to the companies. The ratio of losses as to the causes of such excessive fire losses, and suggests as to how far insurance companies, present a subject for serious reflection. The reverses which have been experienced, as denoted by taxes and fees collected through the state examiner's department the past two years, as follows:

	Taxes.	Total
1883	$7,352	$47,952 91
1884	7,000	45,000 00

HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

The historical society has been remarkably recovered from the disaster if not in the form of its library in 1881. Many of the archæological and historical specimens destroyed could not be replaced, and especially cases do not exist. Other valuable contributions have been made to its museum, however, to a very considerable extent, and the variety and attractiveness of its collections be the true. Its usefulness has been substantially made good, and further valuable additions made with the passing years.

It now can number 11,000 volumes of standard and valuable books, and a number of unbound volumes sufficient to swell the total to 22,000, all of which are being thoroughly catalogued by an assistant. The secretary regrets that the newspaper throughout the state have not more generally contribute their journals to the permanent collection of the society. A considerable of the current history of the colonnewswalk, he believes will be of invaluable service to the succeeding generations. The rapid accumulation of the library additions has made such demand the increased accommodations which a separate building will afford. The site for which an eligible site was secured some years ago remains available, subscription is already pledged.

LOGS AND LUMBER.

The following statistics of the lumber interests of the state are furnished by the state assessors general of the districts named, as required by law:

	Pine Logs Scaled.		Pine.
	1883.	1884.
First district	283,901,479	279,327,178
Second district	279,064,440	306,024,358
Fifth district	58,272,260	55,737,333
Totals	622,202,240	691,223,154
	Ft. Lumber Manufactured.

FISH CULTURE.

The work of fish culture commission has been much extended the last two months. The considerable additions made to the state hatchery, greatly increasing the facilities for the propagation of its product.

The distribution among the waters of the state has been as follows:

	1883.	1884.
Whitefish	4,000,000	4,950,000
Lake trout salmon	10,000	10,000
Lake Superior trout	262,000	767,000
Brook trout	240,000	240,000
German carp	4,500	4,500
Brook trout eggs		9,000
Totals	5,252,000	5,466,000

The suggestions of the commissioners regarding the necessity for protection to the food fishes of our waters deserve attention. Their wanton destruction is to be deplored, unless checked, threatens the speedy extinction of many of the most desirable species of fish that inhabit our lakes and streams.

THE EXPOSITION.

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of congress, approved March 3, 1881, inviting the age the holding of a world's industrial and cotton centennial exposition at the city of New Orleans, in Louisiana, on the 10th of next month, which will probably prove to be the most extensive and varied exhibition of the products of the industries, products and resources of the world that has been held anywhere together. The act referred to provided that the governor should communicate to the recommendation of the governor thereof, and appoint one commissioner and one commissioner for each state and territory, whose special function it was to represent the best interests of their several communities at the proposed exposition. It remained for congress, in January last, Oliver Gibbs, Jr., of Lake City, was appointed commissioner for Minnesota. San. E. Adams, of Minneapolis, alternate commissioner. In addition to the $100,000 for this exposition were developed, and particularly effective by the legislature, which appropriated $1,000,000 as a loan to aid in the exposition, and provided for the erection for a governmental representation in the exhibition. The magnificent scale of the plans and purposes of the exposition were thoroughly indicated in these changes, and that it would be productive of results of much significance to the whole country. Remembering with painful regret the poverty-stricken condition must, the failure of our state to make a proper representation of her natural and industrial resources at the centennial in 1876, it was extremely desirable that she should not show a like indifference to the opportunities now presented to her.

MONEY CONTEMPLATED.

It soon became apparent that most of the states and many of the territories would present an illustration of the varied principles of their arts, industries and resources at New Orleans, that would be unsurpassed, if not to afford the several time to become conspicuous, as by no means the case with the state at the exhibit. To collect, arrange and install such an exhibit properly and in time for opening the six months' continuance of the exposition would require that there be no delay in appropriated $1,000,000 as a loan to aid in the exposition, and provided for the erection for a governmental representation in the exhibition. MONEY CONTEMPLATED.

It soon became apparent that most of the states and many of the territories would present an illustration of the varied principles of their arts, industries and resources at New Orleans, that would be unsurpassed, if not to afford the several time to become conspicuous, as by no means the case with the state at the exhibit. To collect, arrange and install such an exhibit properly and in time for opening the six months' continuance of the exposition would require that there be no delay in appropriating the necessary funds. From as careful an estimate as could be made, the sum of not less than $30,000 would be required to give Minnesota an adequate representation at the fair credit. There was no appropriation available for the purpose, and the commissioners were not favorable for procuring the amount required by private subscription. Believing that the people of the state would willingly indorse any action properly taken in the matter by the fact that the legislature of 1878 made an appropriation of $25,000 for the world's exposition then in contemplation, but which was not held, I appealed to several of the prominent citizens of the state through their commercial bodies and leading citizens, for the advance of the required sum, with the assurance that the money would be repaid as appropriated at this session to reimburse them. In response to this appeal I received about $7,000 each from the two cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis, and smaller sums and additions from other cities of the state. Four thousand dollars was contributed by the state management of the exposition from the commissioned the sum, and the requisite means would be provided, effective measures were taken to secure the best possible illustration of the varied interests and resources of the state in the most eminently satisfactory. The state collective exhibit, I am assured, was highly commended by any state. It is especially complete in the line of agricultural products, fruits, lumber, flour, geological and mineralogical specimens, and in the general characteristic of the state, also in the departments of education and fine arts. These departments were perfected for a complete display of dairy products, and also of live-stock specialties, at later dates, designated for exhibitions in these departments. A large number of private exhibitors from this state also made very creditable displays in the competitive departments of the exposition.

For some reason, not explained to me, the state exhibit at the exposition, a new and enlarged edition of the pamphlet descriptive of Minnesota was authorized by the board of immigration, and prepared under the supervision of the secretary, Mr. H. H. Young. The new work contains over 100 additional pages, with many illustrations, and is now a compact book. The management, affording more full descriptions of the various counties and cities, and the most valuable publication ever made by the state. Of the first edition over 20,000 copies. It is believed that a much larger number will be required to be advantageously used. I feel that I do not overstate the case when I say that the people of our state, to all her people and interests, of a proper presentation, such as has been made at this exposition. That its beneficial results will be felt in years to come in the extent and character of the immigration that will be directed to our state, and in the promotion of relations of amicably with our sister states of the republic, there can be no question. It is with confidence, therefore, that I recommend an appropriation of $25,000 to reimburse the gentlemen who have become responsible for that amount, and but for whose public-spirited and patriotic action the gratifying results accomplished would not have been possible. Inasmuch as the effect of state exhibitions may be mentioned the success of the New Orleans exposition secured at the meeting of the American Pomological society, held in this city last September, with a selection from the best orchards in the states, it received the high honors of the Wilder medal, a prize only to be won by displays which do not, in the opinion of the judges, fall short of perfection. The medal has been awarded to the secretary of state.

THE THIRD STATE CENSUS.

According to the constitution of the state, an enumeration of the inhabitants should be made the present year. The congress, in pursuance of the right to make provision for cases, by act of March 3, 1870, widely, also by the census of the state, and by the same schedules of enumeration in their respective numbers, to be made in the season of 1885 between the censuses of the United States, in which the results of the two enumerations would form one series of similar, unbiased and authoritative data. The advantages of this to the states which conform there to the United census, however, are obvious, and the cost of such enumeration. The amount which this state would be entitled to is $31,000.02. Besides the saving in the matter of increased cost of the federal census over such a one as proposed, it is the less expensive one would contain all the information desired, and that it is the best plan for collecting and returning agricultural statistics. Vital statistics are also collected in the operation of those laws might be embodied in the census.

It is the conviction of some whose relations to the subject entitle them to be heard, that the assessment of property, and the expenses under them be saved. From estimates of county auditors it appears the assessors of the state are paid about $100,000 per year, and the agricultural statistics in 1884, the sum of $30,000. For the census of 1885, the next year, town clerks received about $10,000; assessors, $30,000; and for the first time, a large state having by suspending the collection of the census statistics for one year ($32,000), added to the federal census, would be saved the entire expense and cost of the enlarged schedules. Nearly the same amount would be saved in the second year. The towns pay the assessors, and the assessments are made in accordance with the spoken of, and it is easily feasible, if desired, to have the lists made up from the county, by charging them with the expense. The commissioners of the state enumerators for filling up the second and third schedules, the first relating to agricultural and vital statistics, and properly provided, would be sufficient to enumerate all the schedules. A change in the manner of collecting the statistics of the census is referred to. Some change seems necessary in order that the returns may be made up in certain more accurate results. A good many assessors, especially in the large towns and cities, the assessors in their counties give little attention to the matter, and do not sufficient pay for their time does the mischief of the system. Prejudice against the publication of such facts as are called for, the changes which have sometimes been made, in the returns, have contributed to the same result. The effects are to cause many of many towns to say that in some counties the returns appear to be fictitious, and to advise your wishe to consider how to procure the collection of the facts desired, and to represent the facts they are intended to make known.

IMPROVEMENTS OF WESTERN RIVERS AND HARBORS.

I transmit herewith a report of the state commissioners for the improvement of the Western rivers and harbors, appointed by our state in connection with the expenditure by the general government for the improvement of Western rivers and harbors, and the appropriation of $5,000 by the state legislature of 1883. It is of great interest to Minnesota and the Northwest, that the commission has not been able to be prosecuted since 1878, for the improvement of the Mississippi river between St. Anthony, St. Paul to the Des Moines rapids, should be completed, and that the work of locks and dams for full booms are realized. Results already accomplished have demonstrated that a depth of sufficient depth to accommodate the largest upper river steamers at all low seasons of an open river. The competition of railroads has been found to be the best regulator of rates of transportation. Where competition has been restrained upon combinations that seek to maintain unreasonable rates for carrying trade. With such assurances and prospects of the future, and the complete development of this system of navigation, will be necessary to secure the export of our surplus products would be the most prompt and cheapest way to the seaboard and to foreign markets.

The growing importance of the trade of the Red River valley, will be necessary to a state should command such governmental aid as to improve the navigation of its harbor the fullest possible facilities. Duluth has a future of unbounded commerce. The development, also, of our mineral resources, and the immense wheat and lumber of Lake Superior, make it the most important of the Western lake ports. Its harbor engineers, once the fled River of the North, would be of a character to secure that character, and thereby confer inestimable benefits upon the large and growing state population occupying the fertile valley of the Red River.

Their wanton destruction is to be deplored, unless checked, threatens the speedy extinction of many of the most desirable species of fish that inhabit our lakes and streams.

THE EXPOSITION.

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of congress, approved March 3, 1881, inviting the age the holding of a world's industrial and cotton centennial exposition at the city of New Orleans, in Louisiana, on the 10th of next month, which will probably prove to be the most extensive and varied exhibition of the products of the industries, products and resources of the world that has been held anywhere together. The act referred to provided that the governor should communicate to the recommendation of the governor thereof, and appoint one commissioner and one commissioner for each state and territory, whose special function it was to represent the best interests of their several communities at the proposed exposition. It remained for congress, in January last, Oliver Gibbs, Jr., of Lake City, was appointed commissioner for Minnesota. San. E. Adams, of Minneapolis, alternate commissioner. In addition to the $100,000 for this exposition were developed, and particularly effective by the legislature, which appropriated $1,000,000 as a loan to aid in the exposition, and provided for the erection for a governmental representation in the exhibition. The magnificent scale of the plans and purposes of the exposition were thoroughly indicative of the importance to the state it would be productive of results of much significance to the whole country. Remembering with painful regret the poverty-stricken condition must, the failure of our state to make a proper representation of her natural and industrial resources at the centennial in 1876, it was extremely desirable that she should not show a like indifference to the opportunities now presented to her.

MONEY CONTEMPLATED.

It soon became apparent that most of the states and many of the territories would present an illustration of the varied principles of their arts, industries and resources at New Orleans, that would be unsurpassed, if not to afford the several time to become conspicuous, as by no means the case with the state at the exhibit. To collect, arrange and install such an exhibit properly and in time for opening the six months' continuance of the exposition would require that there be no delay in appropriating the necessary funds. From as careful an estimate as could be made, the sum of not less than $30,000 would be required to give Minnesota an adequate representation at the fair credit. There was no appropriation available for the purpose, and the commissioners were not favorable for procuring the amount required by private subscription. Believing that the people of the state would willingly indorse any action properly taken in the matter by the fact that the legislature of 1878 made an appropriation of $25,000 for the world's exposition then in contemplation, but which was not held, I appealed to several of the prominent citizens of the state through their commercial bodies and leading citizens, for the advance of the required sum, with the assurance that the money would be repaid as appropriated at this session to reimburse them. In response to this appeal I received about $7,000 each from the two cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis, and smaller sums and additions from other cities of the state. Four thousand dollars was contributed by the state management of the exposition from the commissioned the sum, and the requisite means would be provided, effective measures were taken to secure the best possible illustration of the varied interests and resources of the state in the most eminently satisfactory. The state collective exhibit, I am assured, was highly commended by any state. It is especially complete in the line of agricultural products, fruits, lumber, flour, geological and mineralogical specimens, and in the general characteristic of the state, also in the departments of education and fine arts. These departments were perfected for a complete display of dairy products, and also of live-stock specialties, at later dates, designated for exhibitions in these departments. A large number of private exhibitors from this state also made very creditable displays in the competitive departments of the exposition.

For some reason, not explained to me, the state exhibit at the exposition, a new and enlarged edition of the pamphlet descriptive of Minnesota was authorized by the board of immigration, and prepared under the supervision of the secretary, Mr. H. H. Young. The new work contains over 100 additional pages, with many illustrations, and is now a compact book. The management, affording more full descriptions of the various counties and cities, and the most valuable publication ever made by the state. Of the first edition over 20,000 copies. It is believed that a much larger number will be required to be advantageously used. I feel that I do not overstate the case when I say that the people of our state, to all her people and interests, of a proper presentation, such as has been made at this exposition. That its beneficial results will be felt in years to come in the extent and character of the immigration that will be directed to our state, and in the promotion of relations of amicably with our sister states of the republic, there can be no question. It is with confidence, therefore, that I recommend an appropriation of $25,000 to reimburse the gentlemen who have become responsible for that amount, and but for whose public-spirited and patriotic action the gratifying results accomplished would not have been possible. Inasmuch as the effect of state exhibitions may be mentioned the success of the New Orleans exposition secured at the meeting of the American Pomological society, held in this city last September, with a selection from the best orchards in the states, it received the high honors of the Wilder medal, a prize only to be won by displays which do not, in the opinion of the judges, fall short of perfection. The medal has been awarded to the secretary of state.

THE THIRD STATE CENSUS.

According to the constitution of the state, an enumeration of the inhabitants should be made the present year. The congress, in pursuance of the right to make provision for cases, by act of March 3, 1870, widely, also by the census of the state, and by the same schedules of enumeration in their respective numbers, to be made in the season of 1885 between the censuses of the United States, in which the results of the two enumerations would form one series of similar, unbiased and authoritative data. The advantages of this to the states which conform there to the United census, however, are obvious, and the cost of such enumeration. The amount which this state would be entitled to is $31,000.02. Besides the saving in the matter of increased cost of the federal census over such a one as proposed, it is the less expensive one would contain all the information desired, and that it is the best plan for collecting and returning agricultural statistics. Vital statistics are also collected in the operation of those laws might be embodied in the census.

It is the conviction of some whose relations to the subject entitle them to be heard, that the assessment of property, and the expenses under them be saved. From estimates of county auditors it appears the assessors of the state are paid about $100,000 per year, and the agricultural statistics in 1884, the sum of $30,000. For the census of 1885, the next year, town clerks received about $10,000; assessors, $30,000; and for the first time, a large state having by suspending the collection of the census statistics for one year ($32,000), added to the federal census, would be saved the entire expense and cost of the enlarged schedules. Nearly the same amount would be saved in the second year. The towns pay the assessors, and the assessments are made in accordance with the spoken of, and it is easily feasible, if desired, to have the lists made up from the county, by charging them with the expense. The commissioners of the state enumerators for filling up the second and third schedules, the first relating to agricultural and vital statistics, and properly provided, would be sufficient to enumerate all the schedules. A change in the manner of collecting the statistics of the census is referred to. Some change seems necessary in order that the returns may be made up in certain more accurate results. A good many assessors, especially in the large towns and cities, the assessors in their counties give little attention to the matter, and do not sufficient pay for their time does the mischief of the system. Prejudice against the publication of such facts as are called for, the changes which have sometimes been made, in the returns, have contributed to the same result. The effects are to cause many of many towns to say that in some counties the returns appear to be fictitious, and to advise your wishe to consider how to procure the collection of the facts desired, and to represent the facts they are intended to make known.

IMPROVEMENTS OF WESTERN RIVERS AND HARBORS.

I transmit herewith a report of the state commissioners for the improvement of the Western rivers and harbors, appointed by our state in connection with the expenditure by the general government for the improvement of Western rivers and harbors, and the appropriation of $5,000 by the state legislature of 1883. It is of great interest to Minnesota and the Northwest, that the commission has not been able to be prosecuted since 1878, for the improvement of the Mississippi river between St. Anthony, St. Paul to the Des Moines rapids, should be completed, and that the work of locks and dams for full booms are realized. Results already accomplished have demonstrated that a depth of sufficient depth to accommodate the largest upper river steamers at all low seasons of an open river. The competition of railroads has been found to be the best regulator of rates of transportation. Where competition has been restrained upon combinations that seek to maintain unreasonable rates for carrying trade. With such assurances and prospects of the future, and the complete development of this system of navigation, will be necessary to secure the export of our surplus products would be the most prompt and cheapest way to the seaboard and to foreign markets
