Dresslaid & Shedd have the first time in history in this city. The water in the dam began rising over the top of the dam on Tuesday, above the dam the water has reached the level of about 20 feet while below there has hardly been enough water to keep the turbines and most reservoirs have been filled, and are ready to hold over for the next time the river rises.

In accordance with petition sent from Crow Wing and Cass counties the commissioner of Indian Affairs has issued a license to J. T. Gov. Baile's Talks. In conversation with Gov. Baile on Tuesday at Brainerd, Minn., the following: "You people in Brainerd don't realize that you are situated in this city in the state for the building up a great commercial center. There is no reason in the world why Brainerd should not be a great commercial center as you are in the geographical center of the state with no large cities near by. It is a magnificent piece of property that is a great advantage to you. How is the political horizon, Governor?" "Well, things are warming up somewhat. I am up here to-day looking after matters political. I think my prospect for the nomination is as good as any of the candidates. White Brainerd tells me he is in it in the field, it looks a little as though either he or Charlie Kindred were figuring for the plum. I am more confident of this since the meeting at Fergus Falls last week. You see it might be a good scheme for Baile to make some delegations and turn them over to Kindred at the right time and if I can read between the lines some scheme on foot, I would not be surprised if I cannot win that way I am out of the field."

"What do I think of the strength of the different gubernatorial candidates? Well, I am more confident of this since the meeting at Fergus Falls last week. You see it might be a good scheme for Baile to make some delegations and turn them over to Kindred at the right time and if I can read between the lines some scheme on foot, I would not be surprised if I cannot win that way I am out of the field."

Logging Operations at Grand Rapids. A. J. Campbell, president of the Grand Rapids Logging Co., on the upper Mississippi, says: "The logging operations on the upper Mississippi are about closed and the surplus is different as usual. It is all down from the lower and nearly all are gone to the lumber companies. Most all the lumber in the immediate vicinity fell short of their expectations with the possible exception of the Grand Rapids Logging Co. The surplus is about 100,000 cords. The surplus is about 100,000 cords. The surplus is about 100,000 cords."
