There is a possibility that the world's fair will not be held until '93.

The first municipal election occurred at Staples on Tuesday and a very hot contest was indulged in. R. B. Wine, proprietor of the Arlington hotel of this city, was elected president of the council. The others elected were A. C. McKillop, Joseph Davis and Sam. St. Pierre, trustees; C. A. Remond, recorder; S. A. Shalburg, treasurer; W. A. Walker and W. Y. Cook, justices of the peace, and S. L. Powell and S. Palmater, constables.

A prospect from Washington brings the information that Hon. Alvah Eastman, of Anoka, appointed revenue agent several months ago, and assigned to duty in Kentucky, has been summoned to Washington preparatory to being assigned to a larger and more important district, embracing the States of Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia. Mr. Eastman will have his headquarters at Philadelphia, to which place, he said, he will soon remove his family.

North American Review.

Max O'Hall was recently invited to write an article for the North American Review on the subject of "Comic Journalism in America." "That none of your journals," he replied, "are comic." Under the title of "Lively Journalism," however, he contributes an article to the March number. Among the other articles in this number are the following:

"The Great Northern," a continuation of the "Great Northern" by James J. McLaughlin, a former representative, and "The Life of J. P. Morgan," by the same author.

As Others See Us.

The St. Paul news contains the following from its traveling correspondent:

"Brainerd has got a bee in its bonnet. For the past three months the operations of the Wisconsin Rapids and now the Brainerd and now the Pillsbury, Walker and Morrison and his friends have seemed all pine lands they will definitely locate their central shipping and manufacturing base of operations at Brainerd."

And then the stations of the Northwestern Equipment Company, created by Henry Villard, of W. Dakas, Frederick Billings and other Northern Pacific magnates, are apparently definitely known as the local boomers. C. F. Kindred's water power, concentrated and hastened some years ago under peculiarly discouraging circumstances, is one of the factors in the promised development. A prominent official of the local board told us that the increase in Brainerd's coming advance, and the increase in the population, is a result of current times.

The dozen or two people who have plotted and plotted property and hoped through all those past difficult years are looking to the next day. Judge Judah Holland who once owned the town, and who is now an attorney, is one of the largest individual property owners in the town. He is a native of the city. The coming boom, it is confidently expected, will make him half millionaire. C. F. Kindred, who was once the town's most prominent citizen, is the most enterprising of the citizens, still has large interests here, and would not be at all surprising to see him back again within a year, with local development with his influence and electric personality.

The more sanguine among the citizens believe that the Great Northern Railway will enter the town from the north, a small matter for the Grand Duke at the head of that big corporation. The Brainerd, a product of King, is a product of King, and is a word long before the neglect. Brainerd, the neglected, is a word long before the neglect. Brainerd, the neglected, is a word long before the neglect.

From a lumber corner a distiller gets four gallons of whiskey, which retails at $16. The government gets $3.50, the farmer who raises the corn gets a cent, the railroad gets a cent, the manufacturer gets 6¢, the retailer gets 8¢, and the consumer gets drunk.

The utter variety of all earthly things was never better illustrated than by the fact that a cart of Egyptian mummies has just been shipped to England to be ground up and used for fertilizing purposes. It is considered to hold that possibly a couple of thousand years that mummy can be utilized to enrich someone's potato patch.

JOHN COLLINS, who lives near the city of Chicago, is reported as having been lying around a large stycaron tree. He chopped the tree down. As assumed, it turned out to be a tree of the richest kind. It is now a mere shrub, and when it struck the frozen ground split open, showing a network of veins of gold. It is all secured 1,100 pounds.

The American detective, as a rule, must take a back seat to the newspaper man. To a great extent the production of the newspaper is a plumb line, something that newspaper men can't get down to, but that for the past few years the best piece of detective work has been done by newspaper men, not in hope of financial reward, but purely on professional pride and jealousy rivalry.

Some one has been talking a photograph of ex-President McKinley. According to this picture, he is growing fatter than ever. He buttons his frock coat, as he did when he was in the white house, but allows it to hang in long ample folds, and as he walks from church with Mrs. Cleveland Sunday morning he is lounging and shapely figure is in sharp contrast to her slim and symmetrical form. Mr. Cleveland's hair is long and he has lost much of the neatness which characterized his appearance while in the white house.

It is estimated at the War Department that fifty long powder would tackle the country of ours it could be controlled by the enormous weight of 7,000,000 fighting men. Of course it would take some little time to put this host into the field, but to rank the militia of the United States army to any threatened spot, would be a matter of but a few days.

A woman from a remarkable fact the other day. Calling at the home of Jonathan Scott she found Mr. Ellis, who is 95 years old, sitting in the stove and reading a newspaper without glasses. His wife's name was Lydia Bellard, who will be 97 years old in a few weeks, and is sitting in a rocking chair near by and knitting vigorously. Another sister-in-law, Mrs. Hannah Bellard, who is 92 years old, was leaning up the dinner table and washing the dishes. Mrs. Ellis died three years ago at the age of 85. The old people were taken by themselves and all their work and Father Ellis yet refers to his success in his old age.
