McGILL COLLEGE, Montreal, Quebec, March 6, 1885.—This is to certify that I have examined the formula and prescribed Dr. Leduc's Periodical Pills, of Paris, France. I have concluded that if this combination will not excite the menses, that there is nothing in medicine that will. It is not a 1½ grain emmenagogue, containing all the valuable properties of the drug, and being the generative system. I have them to be positively harmless and safe for all kinds of suppress on from any cause. I have used them in my practice for the last four years, and found that the most stubborn cases yield. The Interior department has given the farmers in the Devil's Lake country permission to cut six loads of wood each on the military wood reservation.

The Bennett school law in Wisconsin is likely to remain on the statute books after all. The one republican majority in the state senate will prevent its repeal.

The new mayor was not at all backward about explaining his views on gambling. In less than an hour from the time he was elected, he had every gambling house in the city closed as tight as an oyster.

The editor of the Journal has been elected to the legislature from this district by the grace of republican votes, and still you would think by the way he frantically tears his hair that he and the whole democratic ticket had been defeated and by fraud, when the fact is exactly the contrary and the five democrats have their certificates of election in their inside pockets. Let up for just one issue, Bro. Stivers, the thing is getting monotonous.

Advices from the Sandwich Islands says that King Kalakua, who is on his way to this country, brings with him about $2000,000, and as he has a mania for poker playing, and especially for playing without limit, the probabilities are that his visit will be in the nature a God-send to the gambling circles in the leading towns that he honors with his presence. The dusky monarch will undoubtedly give Brainerd a cold shoulder should he hear of the change in the administration.

Judge Chipperfield should feel considerable pride in his election to the office of municipal judge without opposition and without a dissenting vote. The council has placed great confidence in him by its action, and it is believed that he will be a credit to the position. Although a man young in years and only recently admitted to the bar, his qualifications were such as to make him eminently fitted for the place, and he presides with dignity over the court. He has received many congratulations.

Isn't it time that the people of this city and country began agitating the subject of drawing party lines in coming elections. If the democrats are in the majority in the city let them be responsable for the government of the same or vice versa. For some years every time a mayor has been elected, if he happened to be a democrat, the news has been heralded abroad that a victory had been gained by the democrats in this city when the fact was that no lines were ever drawn in city elections. Take it at the present time, for instance, and leaving the aldermen out entirely, every city office but one is filled by a democrat, not that they are not good officers but for a city like Brainerd which claims to be republican it looks as though the claim was unfounded. The democrats are not at all anxious to draw party lines, and why? Simply because democrats stick together and vote for men of their own political creed in any event and that is the secret of their success. Do you suppose that the democratic head of the city government would have resigned last Monday evening if he had not had the assurance that a democrat was to succeed him? And then it is over will be unless the republicans take some stand in the matter. If Brainerd is a republican city let's know it.

Price's Certificate.

County Auditor Ellenbecker is not very "slow" at selecting a canvassing board, ignoring the services of papers, and preparing certificates of election ahead of the canvass. Mr. Ellenbecker's actions were such as to disgust all citizens who favor the transaction of public business in its regular order, and none were more surprised at his course than his political associations, many of whom did not believe that he would be a party to any trickery for the sake of any candidate's interests.—Little Falls Transcript.

New Time Card.

On Sunday, Dec. 7th, a new time card will take effect on the Northern Pacific road. Nos. 2 and 3, through trains heretofore running over the cut-off, will be abandoned for the winter. Nos. 7 and 8, night trains running via the cut-off. Nos. 9 and 10, now running between Brainerd and Duluth, will then run between Staples and Duluth. Nos. 11 and 12 will run as at present on the East Minnesota division, going east at about 1:40 p. m. instead of 2:20, and west at 8:15 p. m. instead of 8:10 as at present. No. 10 will go east at 3:15 a. m., and No. 9 will go west at about 12:30 a. m. Nos. 5 and 6 will continue to run via. Brainerd, No. 6 going south at about 1:15 p. m. and No. 5 going west at about the same time, instead of at 2:20 p. m. as at present. Passengers will be carried between Brainerd and St. Paul and stations on St. Paul division via. Staples on the midnight trains, on tickets limited to continuous passage, at the same rate as by the direct route.

A Business Session.

Mayor Stivers Resigns and Alderman Wheatley is Elected to the Position.

The Gambling Houses in the City are Closed Within an Hour After His Election.

The meeting opened with a full board and the regular routine of business was transacted. The reports of the chief of police, city clerk and superintendent of electric lights was accepted and filed. Bill of the Gull River Co. for $24 was laid over without action, and the clerk ordered to make counter claim of $50 for hose burned at Gull River fire. The matter of raising money to meet interests due Jan. 1st, 1891, was referred to the finance committee to report at next regular meeting. The resolution introduced ordering a sidewalk built commencing at the mill track and running north to the south side of Laurel street and west to the Mississippi river bridge was adopted.

A communication from His Honor, the Mayor, was read as follows:

To the Honorable Council of the City of Brainerd.

Gentlemen: Having been elected to an office which will require me to be absent from this city the greater portion of the time between now and the expiration of my term as mayor, I feel it to be my duty to resign the office of mayor, in order that you may elect as my successor one who will be here, and will be able to give the duties of the office the required time and attention. Since the beginning of my term as a city officer with you I have been deeply gratified with the thorough unanimity and co-operation that have continued unbroken between the council and myself, and with the thoroughly efficient and competent manner in which your honorable body has performed the duties. For the reasons already stated I hereby tender you my resignation as mayor, to take effect as soon as my successor takes the oath of office.

Very respectfully,
H. C. Stivers.

The resignation was accepted as was also the resignation of Judge Fleming, after the following communication was read:

Brainerd, Minn., Dec. 1, 1890.

To the City Council of the City of Brainerd.

Gentlemen: I hereby resign my office as municipal judge of the city of Brainerd, and in so doing permit me to extend to the members of this honorable body, to the present efficient clerk, to the chief of police and to the other police officers, my heartfelt thanks for their kind consideration and uniform courtesy toward me during the time I have had the honor to hold the office which I now resign. Thanks to one and all. With my best wishes for my successor, I am,

W. A. Fleming.

The new charter provides that in case of a vacancy in the office of mayor may be filled by the council instead of calling a new election, and accordingly nominations were called for. Alderman Henstead placed in nomination N. W. Wheatley, president of the council, and no other nominations being made the ballot was prepared, the vote standing seven for N. W. Wheatley and two for J. J. Howe, Mr. Wheatley being declared elected. Immediately upon his election Mr. Wheatley arose and thanked the gentlemen for the honor, stating that he should endeavor to give the city a good government and that his efforts should be turned toward reformation in regard to the gambling in the city. He would say that if he could do so with the present chief of police or he would get a new one. He further stated that he had no friends to reward or axes to grind, and whatever he did would be with a sense of duty.

Mr. Hagberg was unanimously elected president of the council for the remainder of the term.

The council then adjourned to meet in special session for the purpose of electing a municipal judge to fill the vacancy. C. E. Chipperfield was nominated and received the unanimous vote for the position and was declared elected, after which the special session adjourned.

The reported robbery at Milwaukee, of William Clarke of Sheboygan, Wis., of $19,500 seems to take an negative aspect, and hints are to the effect that no high waxman held him up, but that the money has mysteriously disappeared as part of a simple deception. The police department pursues startling revelations.

There is trouble on the Menominee reservation in Wisconsin. One hundred and fifty armed Indians surrounded the logging camp of Harry Sherry, on the north side section, near Evergreen river, and burned the camp office and barn and all the hay. Two thirteen whitemen were unarmed and fled for their lives. The Indians also burned lumber on the premises, although the sixteenth section belongs to the state.

The arrest of John Clugg, a Union Pacific conductor, reveals the fact that a big swindling has been unfolded out of thousands of dollars during the last year. Local passenger conductors between Salt Lake City and Ogden would collect a fare and issue a return up tickets, and, without canceling them, collect the fare again. The tickets thus sold they were sold to scalpers. Some of the tickets sold as often as eleven times. The case was brought to light by detectives, who discovered Clugg's wife in the act of selling a bag of a bundle of 500 tickets. All the conductors, it is said, is implicated and will be arrested.

"What is the total strength of your force?" Gen. Miles asked of Gen. Brooke, after some what by referring to the great necessity of reinforcements for more scouts.

"Altogether," he said, "we have about 2,000 men to operate with. Of these 1,000 are Indian scouts, who cannot catch mounted Indians with white troops. Then I have 1,000 men, but I can only count on about 500 effective men to engage with the enemy. The rest are in frontier warfare."

"Is it not a serious thing," Gen. Miles asked, on the warpath at the beginning of winter?" turned the reporter.

"Yes, in some respects it is," replied the general. "Their supplies are limited. They have not better armed now than they ever were, and their ammunition is not as plentiful as it should. Every man has a Winchester rifle, and he knows how to use it. In the matter of subsistence they are more favored. The Indian can live on cattle just as well as they used to on buffalo, and the Indians have succeeded in turning them with fresh stock when cold and hunger compel them to do so. Besides, the Indian is really more accustomed to hardships. These hostiles have been scattered and divided, and their efforts in uniting against the troops have been frustrated. I hope the problem may be solved without further bloodshed, but such a hope is a canard. The story of the outbreak was started by some of the cowboys in order to create excitement and make themselves heroes in the eyes of the people."

It is stated on good authority that the Union Stock Yards and Transit company of Chicago have secured a lease on Armand Swift, Morris and Libby, the "Big Four" packers who own the stockyards on a large scale, and will be the purpose of controlling the stock yards in competition with the Union stock yards of Chicago.

Agent Wright, of the Rosebud agency, in South Dakota, who was some time ago suspended, was restored to his position with full pay. A special agent recommended Wright's suspension, but investigation by the latter opportunity to make observations, and I am satisfied that the Indians have not been treated with justice. Gen. Miles said that Wright had been drawing rations. The reason showed that Wright had been issuing rations for 7,500. Investigation showed that the fact was the same as stated by his predecessor, Spencer. Rations were issued to Indians who had left the agency. The reservation, the extra quantity was divided up by the Indians, and there is a good thing in thus perpetrating a fraud on the government.

How to Save Boys.

Women who have sons to rear, and dread the demoralizing influences of public institutes, ought to understand the nature of some boyish habits. Its excessively natural. It is disturbed by vain ambition, by thirst for action, by longings for excitements, by irrepressible animal spirits, by love of boyish ways. If you, mothers, rear your sons so that your boys are constantly met with the repression of natural instincts, you will be sure to develop in them a society that in any measure can supply the evil. Every girl knows that a public house at first for the anticipated and hilarious companionship they find there, which they find does not satisfy the natural longings of their young hearts in their breasts.

Now, to begin, let their homes compete with public places in their attractiveness. Every young fellow has a right to his share of fun by right, illumine your rooms. Hang cheerful pictures on the walls. Put books and newspapers upon your tables. Have music and entertaining games. Make liberal demands of dollars and sparkly that have to long rolled in your household. Its excessively natural. Its

THE MESSAGE.

President Harrison Launches Something Like Twelve Thousand Words Upon Congress.

In His Opinion the New Tariff Law Is Precisely What the Country Needs.

To the Senate and House of Representatives: The reports of the several executive departments which will be laid before congress in the usual course will exhibit in detail the operations of the government for the last fiscal year. Only the more important incidents and results, and chiefly such as may be the foundation of the recommendations I shall submit, will be referred to in this annual message.

The vast and increasing business of the government has been transacted by the several departments during the year with faithfulness, energy and success. The revenues, amounting to above $450,000,000, have been collected and disbursed without revealing, so far as I can ascertain, a single case of defalcation or embezzlement. An earnest effort has been made to stimulate a sense of responsibility and public duty in all officers and employes of every grade, and the work done by them has almost wholly escaped unfavorable criticism.

Pursuant to the invitation authorized by congress, the representatives of every independent state of the American continent and of Hayti met in conference in this capital in October, 1889, and continued in session until the 19th of last April. This important convocation marks a most interesting and influential epoch in the history of the Western hemisphere. It is noteworthy that Brazil, invited while under an imperial form of government, shared as a republic in the deliberations and results of the conference. The recommendations of this conference were all transmitted to congress at the last session.

The legislation of congress at the last session is in conformity with the propositions of the conference, and the proclamation therein provided for will be issued when the other powers have given notice of their adhesion.

Toward the end of the past year the only independent monarchical government on the Western continent, that of Brazil, ceased to exist and was succeeded by a republic. Diplomatic relations were at once established with the new government, but it was not completely recognized until an opportunity had been afforded to ascertain that it had popular approval and support. When the course of events had yielded assurance of this fact no time was lost in extending to the new government a full and cordial welcome into the family of American commonwealths. It is confidently believed that the good relations of the two countries will be preserved, and that the future will witness an increased intimacy of intercourse and an expansion of their mutual commerce.

The peace of Central America has again been disturbed through a revolutionary change in Salvador, which was not recognized by other states, and hostilities broke out between Salvador and Guatemala, threatening to involve all Central America in conflict and to undo the progress which had been made toward a union of their interests. The efforts of this government were promptly and zealously exerted to compose their differences, and through the active efforts of the representatives of the United States a provisional treaty of peace was signed Aug. 26, whereby the right of the republic of Salvador to choose its own rulers was recognized. Gen. Ezeta, the chief of the provisional government, has since been confirmed in the presidency by the assembly, and diplomatic recognition duly followed.

In pursuance of the concurrent resolution of Oct. 1, 1890, I have proposed to the governments of Mexico and Great Britain to consider a conventional regulation of the passage of Chinese laborers across our southern and northern frontiers.

On the 22d day of August last Sir Edmund Monson, the arbitrator selected under the treaty of Dec. 6, 1888, rendered an award to the effect that no compensation was due from the Danish government to the United States on account of what is commonly known as the Carlos-Butterfield claim.

Our relations with the French republic continue to be cordial. Our representative at that court has very diligently urged the removal of the restrictions imposed upon our meat products, and it is believed that substantial progress has been made towards a just settlement.

The Samoan treaty, signed last year by the representatives of the United States, Germany and Great Britain, after due ratification and exchange has begun to produce salutary effects. The formation of the government agreed upon will soon replace the disorder of the past by a stable administration, alike just to the native and equitable to the three powers most concerned in trade and intercourse with the Samoan islands. The chief justice has been chosen by the king of Sweden and Norway, on the invitation of the three powers, and will soon be installed. The land commission and the municipal council are in process of organization. A rational and evenly-distributed scheme of taxation, both municipal and upon imports, is in operation. Malietoa is respected as king.

BEHRING SEA.

Hopes for a Satisfactory Adjustment of the Sealing Trouble.

The new treaty of extradition with Great Britain, after due ratification, was proclaimed on the 25th of last March. Its beneficial working is already apparent.

The difference between the two governments touching the fur seal question in the Behring sea is not yet adjusted, as will be seen by the correspondence which will soon be laid before congress. The offer to submit the question to arbi-[illegible]

It is not seen how this legislation, when it is understood, can be regarded by the citizens of any country having commercial relations with us as unfriendly. If any duty is supposed to be excessive, let the complaint be lodged there. It will surely not be claimed by any well disposed people that a remedy may be sought and allowed in a system of quasi smuggling.

OUR GROWING NAVY.

Nine New Vessels Put in Commission During the Year.

The construction and equipment of the new ships for the navy have made very satisfactory progress. Since March 4, 1889, nine new vessels have been put in commission, and during this winter four more, including one monitor, will be added. The construction of the other vessels authorized is being pushed, both in the government and private yards, with energy, and watched with the most scrupulous care.

The experiments conducted during the year to test the relative resisting power of armor plates have been so valuable as to attract great attention in Europe. The only part of the work upon the new ships that is threatened by unusual delay is the armor plating, and every effort is being made to reduce that to the minimum. It is a source of congratulation that the anticipated influence of these modern vessels upon the esprit de corps of the officers and seamen has been fully realized. Confidence and pride in the ship among the crew are equivalent to a secondary battery. Your favorable consideration is invited to the recommendations of the secretary.

NOBLE'S REPORT.

Review of the Work in the Department of the Interior.

The report of the secretary of the interior exhibits with great fullness and clearness the vast work of that department and the satisfactory results attained. The suggestions made by him are earnestly commended to the consideration of congress, though they cannot all be given particular mention here.

The several acts of congress looking to the reduction of the larger Indian reservations, to the more rapid settlement of the Indians upon individual allotments, and the restoration to the public domain of lands in excess of their needs, have been largely carried into effect, so far as the work was confided to the executive. Agreements have been concluded since March 4, 1889, involving the cession to the United States of about 14,726,000 acres of land. These contracts have, as required by law, been submitted to congress for ratification and for the appropriations necessary to carry them into effect. Those with the Sisseton and Wahpeton, Sac and Fox, Iowa Pottawattamies and absentee Shawnees and Coeur d'Alene tribes have not received the sanction of congress. Attention is also called to the fact that the appropriations made in the case of the Sioux Indians have not covered all the stipulated payments. This should be promptly corrected. If an agreement is confirmed all of its terms should be complied with without delay and full appreciations should be made.

The policy outlined in my last annual message in relation to the patenting of lands to settlers upon the public domain has been carried out in the administration of the land office. No general suspicion or imputation of fraud has been allowed to delay the hearing and adjudication of individual cases upon their merits. The purpose has been to perfect the title of honest settlers with such promptness that the value of the entry might not be swallowed up by the expenses and extortions to which delay subjected the claimant. The average monthly issue of agricultural patents has been increased about 6,000.

The disability pension act, which was approved on the 27th of June last, has been put into operation as rapidly as was practicable. The increased clerical force provided was selected and assigned to work, and a considerable part of the force engaged in examinations on the field was recalled and added to the working force of the office. The examination and adjudication of claims have, by reason of improved methods, been more rapid than ever before. There is no economy to the government in delay, while there is much hardship and injustice to the soldier. The anticipated expenditure, while very large, will not, it is believed, be in excess of the estimates made before the enactment of the law. This liberal enlargement of the general law should suggest a more careful scrutiny of bills for special relief, both as to the cases where relief is granted and as to the amount allowed.

The increasing numbers and influence of the non-Mormon portion in Utah are observed with satisfaction. The recent letter of Wilford Woodruff, president of the Mormon church, in which he advised his people "to refrain from contracting any marriage forbidden by law," has attracted wide attention, and it is hoped that its influence will be highly beneficial in restraining all infractions of the laws of the United States. But the fact should not be overlooked that the doctrine or belief of the church that polygamous marriages are rightful and supported by divine revelation remains unimpaired. President Woodruff does not renounce the doctrine, but refrains from teaching it, and advises against the practice of it because the law is against it. It is quite true that the law should not attempt to deal with the faith or belief of any one; but it is quite another thing, and the only safe thing, so to deal with the Territory of Utah as that those who believe polygamy to be rightful shall not have the power to make it lawful.

The admission of the States of Wyoming and Idaho to the Union are events full of interest and congratulation, not only to the people of those states, now happily endowed with a full participation in our privileges and responsibilities, but to all our people. Another belt of states stretches from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The work of the patent office has won from all sources very high commendation. The amount accomplished has been very largely increased, and all the results have been such as to secure confidence and consideration for the suggestions of the commissioner.

The enumeration of the people of the United States under the provisions of the act of March 1, 1890, has been completed and the result will be at once officially communicated to congress. The completion of this decennial enumeration devolves upon congress the duty of making a new apportionment of representatives "among the several states according to their respective numbers."

THE NEW DEPARTMENT.

Especial Attention Called to the Report of the Secretary of Agriculture.

The report of the secretary of agriculture deserves especial attention in view of the fact that the year has been marked in a very unusual degree by agitation and organization among the farmers looking to an increase in the profits of their business. It will be found that the efforts of the department have been intelligently and zealously directed to the promotion of the interests intrusted to its care.

A very substantial improvement in the markets prices of the leading farm products has been realized during the year. The price of wheat advanced from 81 cents in October, 1889, to $1.00¾ in October, 1890; corn from 31 cents to 50¼ cents; oats from 19¼ cents to 43 cents, and barley from 63 cents to 78 cents. A man named Rakovitz, living in the town of Krain, Stearns county, was found by his daughter suspended from the limb of a tree in his pig pen dead. The decline of the price of wheat and the loss of some land by the resurvey of the town rendered him insane and led to the deed. He was in good circumstances.

Upwards of $50,000 has been expended in improvements during the past summer at the Second Minnesota hospital for insane at Rochester. Besides the sewerage improvements and a large and substantial brick building to be used for storage and an office for the steward, a slaughter house, poultry house and a soap factory have been erected on the farm.

The supreme court of Minnesota has handed down a decision which settles the question of validity of a railroad ticket purchased of a ticket broker or scalper and the liability of a railroad company to accept such ticket when offered by an innocent purchaser. The court reverses the decision of the lower court that the holder of such a ticket could not recover, and holds that a round trip ticket used by the purchaser in going to the station named on it and then sold and transferred is valid in the hands of the holder.

W. Gaumnitz, a farmer living at Rice, was held up by a robber between St. Cloud and Sauk Rapids about five o'clock one morning and released of $52. Gaumnitz was on his way to St. Cloud where he intended to make a deposit at one of the banks. He overtook the robber, who was walking along the road. The latter demanded money, and Gaumnitz who is an old man, did not refuse, although the robber did not display any weapon. When he had searched the old man's pockets the robber said good morning and strode away into the woods. A sum of money which the old man had in his boots was missed by the highwayman.

One of the most remarkable cases of old age in the country is that of Mrs. Marit Staven, of Madelia, who has just completed her 100th birthday. The day she became a centenarian a large number of friends and relatives gathered together and celebrated the event in royal fashion. Mrs. Staven was born in Lesje Gudbrandsdalen, Norway, and was married at 17 years of age. Her husband died in 1861, and in 1878 she emigrated to America. The old lady is said to be in good health, and bids fair to live many years more. Her chief occupation is at the spinning wheel, with which she is very proficient. She has had nine children, four of whom are living.

NORTH DAKOTA.

The Great Northern railway bridge over the Marais between Mallory and Fisher was recently destroyed by fire, impeding travel for a short time.

I. Holstein, aged 65 years, who has been a resident of Fargo some six or seven years, dropped dead in his little cigar manufactory from what is supposed to be heart disease.

While George Challis was endeavoring to pull a stick of wood from the wood pile at the rear of the Ingalls house at Grand Forks, the whole pile fell on his hand, crushing it.

A mountain lion is running loose in Archie's Point, at Conkling. It has been seen by different persons. It is thought to be the mate of one killed there a few years ago.

An easier feeling prevails on the frontier, and the settlers are returning to their homes. A Sioux teamster, who was in Mandan reports the Sioux waiting for freight supplies, which were due at Fort Yates a week ago, and thinks there will be no trouble immediately.

The farm buildings and a portion of live stock belonging to S. W. Bell, living about nine miles southeast of Lisbon, were destroyed by fire, involving a loss of about $5,000. It was partially insured. The origin of the fire is not known.

The Indian scare has reached Lakota and there seems to be just cause, for redskins are roving the country in bands of half a dozen, all mounted, and seem very insolent, going so far as to enter houses and order meals. Lakota is totally unprotected and would prove a snap in case of an outbreak. Citizens will take some action for defense.

Fred Clark, of Mandan, died at the Northern Pacific sanitarium at Brainerd, from the effects of a pistol shot. He is the first victim of the Indian scare at Mandan, having received the wound by the accidental discharge of a revolver during a public meeting at that place to devise means to resist an Indian attack.

The Northern Pacific Railroad company will put down six artesian wells along their Dakota division, the first one to be drilled at Buffalo. The sinking of these wells will be beneficial, as it will show farmers where flowing wells can be found, besides furnishing the road with a more abundant supply of water, which is much needed owing to the increased traffic.

The little 2-year-old boy George Pettie, of Turtle Mountain, disappeared the 18th of of October and it was supposed he had been stolen. Recently a couple of boys found the dead body of the missing boy. It lay in a clump of dry bush about three miles from home and about twenty feet from Willow Creek. The flesh was nearly all eaten off from the face and neck, no doubt by mink and birds.

Considerable excitement was caused at Bismarck by an assault committed by an Indian on Miss Dora Wright, a stenographer employed in Capital National bank. She left the bank for her home about 9 o'clock, and while walking along the street was accosted by an Indian. As she attempted to evade him he struck her over the head with some heavy instrument and knocked her down. The scoundrel then fled. No motive can be assigned for the assault and it is probable that the Indian was drunk. Miss Wright's injuries are painful, but not dangerous. Two Indians are under arrest, but have not been identified.

The Northern Pacific has been obliged to press every car it can beg, borrow or steal into service during the last month, in order to cope with the wheat business. A railroad official at Fargo is reported as saying that the business of the Northern Pacific for the month of November would exceed that of any previous single month in the existence of the road—that the earnings would be fully $3,000,000 for the month. People in Fargo, he said, could easily believe this statement, for never were so many heavily loaded freight trains seen to pass through the city as during this fall.

Commissioner Holes in Fargo Republican: Last spring I planted ten acres in potatoes with an Aspinwall planter. I used 250 bushels for seed. They were of medium size and planted whole. During the season they were cultivated twice and hilled up once. I gathered from the ten acres 2,800 bushels, and the cost of raising the crop was about as follows: The seed, at 25 cents per bushel, $62.50; labor of four men and four mules in planting, $25; four days' labor of man and team in cultivating, $12; three days' labor of man and horse in hilling up, $6; digging, at 5 cents per bushel, $140; marketing, at 5 cents per bushel, $140; depreciation in the value of the planter, and the interest on the price of the planter, $19.50—making a total of $425. I have sold $1,004 worth of the potatoes, and still have nearly 800 bushels left. I shall save enough of these for seed and for my table, and the remainder I shall sell. I estimate my profit from ten acres at about $900. The potatoes are the Early Ohio variety.

The Moody County bank has secured a temporary injunction restraining the county auditor from delivering the tax list to the treasurer for collection against said bank on account of doubling of the assessment by the state board of equalization. This injunction is one of the steps in a proceeding to test the legality of the action of the state board and the constitutionality of the law under which the board acted in doubling the assessment of all moneys and credits in the state.

There's a muttering all over the state that sounds like the suppressed growling of a slumbering volcano. It comes from the census enumerators who have not yet been paid for their work.

The editor of the Eagle, published at Gray this state, is perhaps the busiest man in the state. Besides running a first-class weekly paper, he keeps a hotel, runs a livery stable, manages a general store, and at the last election was elected justice of the peace.

A handsome blonde female, with a very "sick" husband is working the charity racket with great success in the eastern cities of the state. She was canvassing Muscatine recently, doing a business of about $25 a day, when the authorities dropped to her little game and ordered her to leave town. She dresses in the best of style and her sick husband is a robust dude of the cigarette variety. They started west from Muscatine and the Journal advises sympathetic people to beware of them.

"Poor Maggy," an insane woman, died at the Linn county poor-house. Although insane and without a dollar, she imagined that she was very wealthy; that the poor-house was her palace and its intimates her pensioners. As she lay in her coffin the inmates all wept as they gazed on the gentle and noble face they had known so many years, and that never once looked unkindly on a living creature.

But few towns in the world are like Eagle Grove, in respect to water. There, when a man builds a house he finishes it, puts a sink in the kitchen, and then bores down through the sink into the ground, puts in a pipe, and has running water just where he wants it, or the pipe can be run into the second story and still have flowing water. The town seems to be located just over nature's waterworks. Goldfield and Webster City, as well as Belle Plaine, of "Jumbo" fame, are also blessed, but not to the extent, or rather it is not taken the advantage of, as Eagle Grove.

WOMAN.

A queen in her beautiful garments,
She stands on the ramparts to-day
To herald the dawn, and the cerements
Of her past are folded away.

She stands with the prophets and sages;
She speaks, and her tongue is a flame
Leaping forth from fires which for ages
Have smoldered in silence and shame.

Her feet have come up from the valleys,
They are climbing the mountains of light,
And her call the world rouses and rallies,
Bearing arms in the battle of right.

She treads on the serpent that struggles
And grinds out its life with her heel;
She grapples with sorrows that wrong her,
Converting her woe into weal;

Made strong through her slaughtered affections,
She comes, with her sons by her side,
An angel of power and protection,
Their beacon light, leader and guide.

No longer a timorous being,
To cringe and to cry 'neath the rod,
But quick to divine, and far seeing,
She hastens the purpose of God.

—Rose Hartwick Thorpe, in Ladies' Home Journal.

A LESSON FOR HUSBANDS.

THE little silver column in the thermometer was gradually mounting toward the nineties, the leaves hung motionless in the furnace-like air, and the scent in the perfumed swaths of newly cut hay pervaded everything, as squire Sadley stood under the umbrella-shaped apple-tree and wiped his reeking brow with a yard-square pocket handkerchief of yellow silk.

"Phew!" cried the squire, "this is getting too much. I think I shall go home an hour earlier than usual."

"So'd I, if I wasn't workin' for days' wages," said Israel Newcomb, who was vigorously turning the fragrant billows of green with a fork which gleamed like serried lightning in the sunshine. The squire glared angrily at Israel; it was his pride that he worked as hard as any of his hired men, rich land-owner though he was.

"I s'pose I' can do as I please?" said he.

"Sartin!" observed Israel. "I only wish I could!"

The squire went home, selecting the shady path which lay part way through the woods, and crossing the noisy little stream on a makeshift bridge formed by a fallen cedar tree. Far down in the green crosslights and glinting reflections of the glen, he could see Will Dallas, who had abandoned all pretenses of fishing, and lay on the moss at Mary Sadley's feet, reading aloud to her, out of some pocket volume of poetry. The squire frowned.

"Spooning—as usual," growled he, under his breath and pushed steadily on.

The old homestead, painted white, with a refreshing contrast of green blinds, lay basking in the vivid sunshine. The squire looked at it with a complacent sense of proprietorship as he went around to the back-door, where a great honeysuckle vine was all in curls of buff and white blossoms. The roomey kitchen, with its shining copper boiler and white-board floor, was silent and empty. He looked around.

"Hallo!" he shouted "is every one dead?"

Little Kitty came running out of the front room.

"Hush, father!" said she, holding up a small forefinger. "Mother is asleep."

"Asleep!" roared the squire. "A pretty time a day to be asleep, and the whole house wide open, ready for any tramp that may come along, and your grandmother's silver spoons in plain view on the dresser-shelf. Asleep!"

"I'm sorry, Titus," said an apologetic voice, as a pale, shadowy little woman issued from the hall beyond, where she had been lying on a procrustean lounge, fashioned of unpainted pine boards, and draped with a lumpy mattress. "I hadn't any idea of falling asleep when I lay down, but my head ached a little—It's the heat I suppose—and I felt dizzy. I'm very sorry, but surely it isn't 12 o'clock yet."

"It don't lack many minutes of it," said the squire, gloomily looking at the big, wooden clock, whose fat, black Roman numerals glared back at him from behind a green nebulæ of asparagus branches. "The heat, eh? Well, I s'pose other folks feel it, too. My head aches, but I don't take to my bed. And when a man comes home tired and beat out from the hay-field he naturally expects to find things comfortable. I don't know what a woman has her board and keep for if it an't to see that meals is reg'lar and things decent."

"I'm sorry, Titus," nervously reiterated the little woman, fluttering to and fro like a lame-winged pigeon, "but I'll make all the haste I can. Dinner will soon be ready. Here, Kitty [to the child], wash these potatoes in the sink as quick as you can, and trim the beets, while I run out for some kindlings to hurry up the fire."

A minute afterward he could hear the quick strokes of the hatchet and he bethought himself that, in the hurry incident to haying-time, the pile of kindlings had been allowed to get low.

"It does seem," he said, petulantly, "as if everything hindered a man's dinner."

"Then, father," said Kitty, glancing shrewdly over the top of the tin potato-pan, "why don't you go out and split the kindling and let mother 'tend to the things indoors?"

"Hush, Kitty," said Mrs. Sadley quickly, as she touched a match to the mass of crumpled papers under the grate.

"Where's the last Gazette?" snarled the squire, ignoring Kitty's query.

"Oh, Titus," cried the wife, "I've just set fire to it! I supposed of course you'd read it—its a week old to-day, you know."

"Of course," said Squire Sadley, "I might have known without asking! It's waste, and fling away, and burn up in this house. There an't nothing safe where an extravagant woman's concerned!"

"Mother an't extravagant!" said Kitty.

"Where's them peas I brought in this morning?" sharply demanded the squire, looking around him, with Argus eyes.

"There isn't time to shell them now," said Mrs. Sadley, timidly.

"Time—time!" repeated her husband. "Of course there an't time, if you sleep away your life on that there sofy. I mean to have it taken away to-morrow. It's a deal too handy. What's the use o' my plantin' the earliest peas in market and hoein' and brushin' 'em, and then goin' out afore sunup to pick 'em, if my folks han't life enough to cook 'em?"

"I'll have 'em for supper," said Mrs. Sadley, with a little tremolo in her voice.

"No you won't, neither," said the squire. "I'll send 'em over to Neighbor Barton's. His wife's got some snap in her! I declare, it's clear discouragin' for a man to be dragged back all the time by a shiftless wife!"

A big round drop splashed down into the frying-pan which Mrs. Sadley was just preparing to receive sundry slices of well-cured ham which she had been cutting; she made no verbal reply, however.

"Eh?" said the squire; "why don't you say something? Sulking, I 'spose, as usual?"

At this poor Mrs. Sadley burst into tears.

"No, Titus," said she, I an't sulking. But I feel awful bad to-day, and it don't take much to upset me. It's all true what you say. I am a poor, worn-out, feeble creature, and I don't blame you for getting out of patience. But if I hadn't worked so hard all these years——"

"Oh, yes, there's always some excuse," growled the squire, and taking a stray "sample number" of a paper, he went out to sit in the honeysuckle shade.

"I can't stand that roasting fire," said he.

"Then," said Kitty, the enfant terrible, "how do you suppose mother likes it?"

In an instant, however, her fickle, childish attention was diverted.

"See!" she cried; "there comes Cousin Mary and Mr. Dallas over the hill! Oh, father, they're engaged. Did you know it?"

"Yes," absently answered the squire, intent on his paper.

"I was in the parlor that night; it thundered and rained so hard," said Kitty, with a twinkling eye, "and they didn't know it. And I heard them talking to each other. And he called her his darling love——"

"Hump!" grunted the squire. "A reg'lar case o' spooning."

"And she said he was her dearest, dearest one," added Kitty the circumstantial.

"Young fools!" snapped Squire Sadley.

"Father," said Kitty, leaning on his shoulder—she was the only one in the house who was not afraid of the stern despot—"don't all lovers talk so?"

"They'er fools for their pains if they do?"

"Didn't you love mother when she was a girl like Cousin Mary? Didn't you say just such things to her?"

The squire moved uneasily in his chair under the calm searching light of Mary's eyes.

"I might ha' done," he owned at last. "I 'spose I was just as great an idiot as other folks be."

I don't see why people ever leave it off," said Kitty abstractedly. "Was mother a pretty girl?"

"Don't talk nonsense," said the squire, almost angrily; and he got up and walked around the old wooden bench beside the well-curb.

Had Kitty's mother been a pretty girl? Yes, that she had—rose-cheeked and limpid-eyed, with a laugh as sweet as the note of a thrush, and the lightest foot in a Virginia reel of any girl in the neighborhood. And now, "I am a poor, worn-out, feeble creature," she said, in the faint, weary accent, looking at him out of the dim, faded eyes, "and I don't blame you for getting out of patience." Yes, it was all true. But what had wrought the change? Whose fault was it?

"I don't know," said the squire, staring at heaven's blue eye reflected far down in the heart of the deep, cool well, "but I 'most think I've been too hard on her. Now I come to study on it, I've had lots o' hired help about the farm, and she's done all the housework herself. And she never was very strong! Was she a pretty girl? There wasn't none prettier in a radius o' twenty miles around Kingsley church. And to look at her now!"

The squire got up and stamped uneasily around the well.

"I've been a brute!" he muttered to himself. "Worse than a dumb brute—for they an't supposed to know no better. I don't know what I've been thinkin' of all these years. Leave off loving her? I han't never left it off. I love her now, bless her faithful, patient soul, as well as ever I did, only I've fell into the way of bein' careless and neglectful. But I'll turn over a new leaf this very day, see if I don't."

He kept his word.

"Engaged, Mary? Is it really a settled thing?" said Mrs. Sadley. "Oh, I hope you'll be happy. I hope, after twelve years of marriage, dear Mary, you'll be as happy as I am now!"

Her eyes shone; a faint color glowed on her ordinary pale cheeks. Mary Sadley looked at her in surprise.

"Would you believe," went on the squire's wife, "he has hired a girl to come here and do all the rough work so as to spare me? And there is such an easy, spring-upholstered sofa in the hall in place of the lumpy old lounge, and these's one of the hay-hands splitting a pile of wood to last from now to Michaelmas. And we are to keep our wedding anniversary in real old-fashioned style next week, and Titus has ordered a dress trimmed with white ribbon, just like the one I was married in. He says I shall look as young and pretty as I did then. Such nonsense, you know! And yet it is nice of him to say so—now, isn't it?"

And Mrs. Sadley laughed through her tears.

Poor soul! The sunshine had come late in life, yet it filled her whole being with blessedness.

"I'm so glad!" said Mary. "But you deserve it all, Cousin Eunice."

And the newly betrothed lovers whispered to each other that the millennium must surely be at hand. For what else could so have changed the squire?

While a Jersey City blacksmith was turning off horseshoes recently, a man stood in the door and watched him for awhile, and then slowly advanced, stooped down and carefully picked up an old shoe which had been kicked aside weeks before. He held ready to drop on the instant, but after a minute grinned all over his face and chuckled:

"She ain't hot."

"Who said it was?" asked the smith.

"But that's where I've got dad. He picked one up yesterday, and we heard him holler seven miles. Dad says my skull is too thick, but I ain't hollering any to speak of, am I?"

Hair Powder.

On Feb. 23, 1795, Mr. Pitt proposed a tax on persons wearing hair powder, which he estimated would bring to the revenue £210,000 annually, but was the death blow to the custom, for its use was immediately discontinued. Those persons who continued to wear it were termed guinea pigs, because one guinea was the amount per head of the tax.—Notes and Queries.

The articles were not missed until the next day and Mr. Paine was not long in obtaining a clue. He followed the fellow to Staples, and on Monday night located him in a tie camp some miles out in the country. He was brought into town by Officer Burns of that place, and on Tuesday Sheriff Spalding went up and got him. The guns were found in his possession, but he claims to have bought them. He gives the name of Harry Greene, and is about 19 years old. The examination was set for to-day.

The concert of the Swedish Singing Quartette, under management of Mr. Lutteman, took place in "Ludwigslust." Friday evening. You feel thoroughly enraptured when letting these northern fanciful songs act upon you, and you must heartily laugh when you hear Bellman's most excellent humorous musical ralleries, for instance, "Susanne in Babylon."—Nordisce Zeitung, Jan. 5, Bremerhaven.

Fatal Accident.

On Saturday last John Dasher, formerly a well-known resident of this city, was killed at Tacoma while in the discharge of his duties as engineer on the Northern Pacific. An account of the accident is that a Northern Pacific freight train from Portland escaped from the control of its crew through the air brakes giving out on the grade entering Tacoma, and collided with another freight. Both locomotives and a dozen cars were hurled into the bay. Engineer Dasher and Fireman Horton, of the runaway train, were killed and two brakemen were fatally injured, and one brakeman is missing. The deceased was a man of family.

Police Court Cullings.

Harry Greene, the youth who stole the articles from Paine's gun shop, plead guilty to petty larceny, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 or serve ninety days in the county jail. He accepted the latter and thereby escapes a cold winter.

Jack Burns, who answered to the charge of having assaulted Police Officer Delaney with a Winchester rifle against the peace and dignity of the state on the morning of Dec. 3rd, was before Judge Chipperfield yesterday morning, but the examination was adjourned until Monday, at 10 a. m., in order to secure witnesses. In the meantime Burns is out on $500 bail.

John Willet, a very black coon, was up before the court yesterday morning to answer to the charge of assault with intent to rape a ten-year-old girl in East Brainerd on Monday night He waived examination and was committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury in March. The complaint was made by Jas. Lackey, who was on the ground about the time the alleged assault was committed, and assisted in running the coon down and delivered him to the police. The girl is the daughter of P. Ort, and the assault took place in the railroad yard. Her cries, when the nigger throwed her down, brought assistance in time to avert the perpetration of the crime. The villain claims he was only playing with her and denies having committed any offence against the laws, but his actions by attempting to escape seem to indicate that he was well aware of what would follow.

Died at His Post of Duty.

Mrs. James E. Goodman received a telegram from Minneapolis on Wednesday morning bringing the sad news of the sudden death of her father, and she started on the noon train for that city. Mr. Palmeter, the deceased, was quite well known in Brainerd, having spent several months at different times with his daughter here during the past two years. He was a gentleman universally respected and liked, and his death brings a pang of sorrow to many a heart. The Minneapolis Evening Journal in speaking of his death says:

It was a singular death reported to Coroner Towers this morning. An old and trusted employe of a great railway corporation, stationed as a night switchman at the most important railway junction in the city, had thrown his last switch and lay stretched out dead in his little watch house at 1st street and 4th avenue N. The trains that thundered past him at an early hour in the morning, on their way to the far west or east, disturbed him not, and the passengers slumbered on, all unconscious of the fact that a most important guardian of the safety of the rail lay dead at his post.

The dead man was J. S. Palmetier, once roadmaster of the Minneapolis & St. Louis road, and well known to old residents. He was found shortly after 8 o'clock this morning at the foot of his cot where where he had evidently fallen off while suffering from a paralytic stroke or a stroke of heart disease. His hands clasped the cot and on his face was the peaceful expression of one who was still in deep slumber. The police were notified, then the coroner and a patrol wagon bore the remains to Connelly's morgue. Death had evidently occurred only a short time, for the body was still warm. The deceased was a man of about 60 years of age and has several grown up children. One, a son, is a switchman, and was at the spot when the remains were borne away. He said his father had suffered from a paralytic stroke about two years ago. A post-mortem examination, however, will be held. He was roadmaster for the St. Louis road some 10 years ago, and was held in high regard by the company. His wife has been dead several years.

A Mere Suggestion.

Matters must be in bad shape at St. Cloud judging by the following from the Journal-Press:

We would in our gentlest and most dove-like tones suggest to the ladies of St. Cloud, in the name of hungerand thirst-stricken, that this ladies-tea-party—five-o'clock-tea-ladies—reception-ben-party business has gone about far enough. The present numerosity of these affairs would seem to indicate that man was only born to eat a cold supper and enjoy to shiver ten or fifteen minutes on the door-step while the social portion of the household draws on the seal skin and tells her hostess what a "delightful time" she has had. There is growing danger of a series of gentlemen's reception-stay-all-night-pull-home-in-the-morning-stag-parties that will startle the frosty air of some of these wintry mornings.
