In Yonatan a herb has been discovered which, it is claimed, will cure almost any case of kidney trouble. A few barrels of this root should be shipped into Minnesota for use during the next campaign. In fact some cases are now appearing, and light doses might be used effectually.

Josephus Downey's tomb is kept himself before the public and the libel suit on between himself and the Pioneer Press will bring out some very interesting facts concerning the history of Minnesota politics that the public year for its life or death will dignify this trip.

The city of Ashland, over in Wisconsin, is in hot water financially. The city treasury is empty, the mayor has vetoed a resolution to raise money by certificates of indebtedness, and the committee positively refuse to issue bonds. In fact they are in about as bad a fix as the World's Fair commission is in Minnesota.

There is no doubt but that the farmers world about with joy at the thought of having his mail delivered at the door of his farm home every morning by horse or by wheel.

At East Grand Forks and county attorney has served notices upon the proprietors of the city of Minneapolis, who are alleged to have used a proclamation that they must stop business or suffer the consequences, and the mayor of that city has also issued an order closing all school places, and has instructed the police officers to arrest all violators of this order.

The murder of Judge Woods brought the authorities to their feet.

Speeches about the deadly blow at our commore that the last bill would cause which was hurped so much about by the democrats, reminds us that the secretary of the New York chamber of commerce has reported that the commerce of that port for 1890 was greater than that of 1889 by $10,000,000.

Some of those of 1890 were $3,857,555 greater than those of any preceding year on record, save 1881.

In Minnesota a new departure has been taken by the grand jury in dealing with the social evil and instead of indicting the "madams" the owners of the premises in which they hold forth will be brought to a realizing sense of the strength of the law. It is claimed that by dealing with the madams in this way that a difficult matter for people of that class to secure quarters as "respectable" people will not take the chance of being brought into court for leasing property for immoral purposes.

Does the Alliance Pay? A few days ago a man-to-be called on a Minneapolis man explaining to us the costs and benefits of belonging to the Alliance. We asked him what he had to do and he said he would not do anything more than he had to do.

Vanished in a Single Night.
There were many people who stroll idly into the Cafe building Sunday morning for their mail as they had been in the habit of doing every morning for the past five or six years, and were much surprised to find that the post-office part of the institution had been transferred to other quarters. In fact the removal had been so quietly and secretly done that some imagined it had strayed or been stolen. Upon investigation it was found that Postmaster Durham had, according to instructions from the public, moved the office to the Ship-Abertons block on Front street, next door to Hoffman's bazaar. The work of removal began at 11 a. m. Saturday night last, and at 6 a. m. Sunday morning the post-office force was easily landed on the letters and papers to the many patrons of that institution.
In case of this kind where the public is generally interested there is always a division of sentiment, and in this matter there was no exception as to what to do. The people in the block where the office had been and the block below it, felt that they had not been used in a manner which they considered fair. They felt that where the new location was they should be a matter of fact the manner in which the removal took place was in discrete to say the least. There was an occasion to keep the public in ignorance of the intended change. If the government had rented a new location it was the business of the people to know, and it was not fair to keep them in the dark. It is not fair to keep them in the dark. It is not fair to keep them in the dark. It is not fair to keep them in the dark.
