HOW A PUZZLE WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But how to determine which make is best or what position it ranks in?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, by authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the highest sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the "New Home" & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded said company the highest prize offered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further expression of authority, decorated M. Albaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in two of the No. 9 and No. 13 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing use, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be our own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine, and if he does not keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue, prices and terms.

Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory.

"Only the Scars Remain,"

Says HENRY HUDSON, of the James Smith Woolen Machinery Co., Philadelphia, Pa., who certifies as follows:

"Among the many testimonials which I see in regard to certain medicines performing miracles, cleansing the blood, etc., none impress me more than my own case. Twenty years ago, at the age of 18 years, I had swellings come on my legs, which broke and became running sores. Our family physician could do me no good, and it was feared that the bones would be affected. At last, my good old to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took three bottles, the sores healed, and I have not been troubled since. Only the scars remain, and the memory of the past, to remind me of the good Ayer's Sarsaparilla has done me. I now weigh two hundred and twenty pounds, and am in the best of health. I have been on the road for the past twelve years, have noticed Ayer's Sarsaparilla advertised in all parts of the United States, and always take pleasure in telling what good it did for me."

Mother Urged Me

THE Taylors Falls land office will be consolidated with the St. Cloud office January 1st.

THEY say that the owner of the Valkyrie is not Dunraven yet over the defeat of his yacht.

A WEATHER prophet predicts that the next storm period will be from the 15 to 18th. Heavy autumnal storm from the 26th to the 30th, with a cold wave the last four days of the month.

THE attendance at the fair on Monday (Chicago Day) was 761,646. This is nearly double the amount that attended the Paris exhibition on the banner day, and three times that of the Centennal exposition at Philadelphia.

AT St. Paul a patron of a barber shop has sued the proprietors for $500 on account of catching the barber's itch while being shaved. Here's a new and unique way of getting even with the talkative knight of the razor.

WITH the Journal editor's love of orating, what a snap it would be for him to be a member of the United States senate at the present time. We doubt very much if old wind-bag Stewart would be "in it" with the genial friar.

IT was 42 years ago that the yacht America won the cup which has been contested for during the week by the English "Valkyrie" and American "Vigilant," and in which the American yacht has won two straight races. There have been 16 international races since the first American victory, but England has never recaptured the cup won by the America in English waters, and probably never will.

Just for an Example.

Here is the way papers in the south express their feelings:

The North Carolina Globe, (democratic) thus expresses its opinion on the question of pensions:

The whole business
Is Theft
And pillage
Pure and simple.
We wish to God that there had been enough degenerat in congress to have slapped the
Lousy beggars
Of the North in their
Dirty faces.

Was Too much For Him.

In the issue of Oct 6th, of the Charlottesville, Va., Progress, Gen. Thomas L. Rosser announces his Democratic allegiance. He says it is with a sad heart and bitter grief that he leaves the democratic ranks as one leaves a burning ship. He denies that he is drafting a delegation, announcing himself as a candidate for congress, saying it would be folly to do so before a vacancy occurs. Rosser will take the stump for the Populists, several dates having already been made.

The St. Paul Globe, once an admirer of the ardent Southern says in connection with the above:

Gen. Thomas L. Rosser, of fire-eating fame, and long a resident of Minnesota, is indulging his natural predilections in Virginia. Here he has flung his gauntlet into the political arena, and in advance of caucuses and conventions declares that he will contest for a seat in congress now represented by Mr. O'Ferrall. The doughty general not only opposes Mr. O'Ferrall, but has announced his purpose of 'downing' President Cleveland and his financial policy. In the face of such a defiance no one will dare to doubt Gen. Rosser's bravery. His discretion, however, is open to question.

Low Wages in the Lumber Woods.

A telegram from Duluth under recent date:

The question of woods wages for the coming winter is the dominant one now, and on its settlement depends to a good extent the work of the woods this season. This question, however seems likely to settle itself. At least two firms have made written contracts with all the men they have hired so far to pay on a basis of $16 a month and $16 if they go to the woods before the job is done. This is a pretty low basis and one that some of the heaviest employers in the district do not feel to be just the proper caper. Still it is evident that wages will rule from $13 to, say, $13 or possibly $20 in exceptional cases. Over in the Ashland district I understand they are paying from $12 to $14 a month, and find no difficulty in getting men. Too low a scale will be likely, however, to result in too low a style of work on the part of the men.

There is likely to be a good logging season. Every lumberman interviewed by your correspondent admits that "we will go scrubbing anyway." The general idea seems to be that logs can be put in at 75 cents to $1 a thousand cheaper than usual, because of less wages, cheaper supplies, cheaper teams, etc. Horses are very plentiful and can be had at less than the usual price. It is likely that the force from three hundred and fifty million will be put in in this district, including the operations of loggers in the north end of this and Itasca county for Canadian mills.

Standard Weights.

At the last session of the legislature the following standard weights per bushel in pounds were established, and a penalty was fixed for taking any greater number of pounds in buying, or giving any less number when selling, unless expressly authorized by special contract agreement, of not less than ten or more than one hundred dollars, or imprisonment not more than ninety days:

Apples, green, 50; dried 28; beans, 60; barley, 48; buckwheat 50; beets 50; blue grass seed 14; blueberries 32; broomcorn seed, 57; corn, shelled 56; corn in ear, 70; clover seed, 60; hemp seed, 50; Hungarian Grass 48; millet 48; oats, 32; onions, 52; orchard grass seed, 14; peas, 60; parsnips, 42; rape seed, 50; redtop seed, 14; rutabagas, 52; rye, 56; timothy seed, 45; wheat 60.

Tramp Shot at Little Falls.

Tuesday morning about 1 o'clock as Conductor Daye's train pulled into the depot a man held a revolver in the face of Brakeman Logan and told him to hold up his hands. Logan turned on the fellow in the dark and struck the revolver up with one hand, and struck the fellow in the face with his lantern. The revolver went off when knocked in the air. Ed. Guin, the night police at the depot, was near an rushed up to help Logan, when the tramp dodged under the cars and began shooting at Guin. The latter got down in the ditch and returned the fire, and several shots were exchanged while Guin was in the ditch and his opponent stooping down on the other side of the cars. Finally the firing ceased and Guin came back to the depot and then came down to the city and got Night Police Tourtilotte to come up to the depot to go after the man who held up Logan. When Tourtilotte got just north of the depot, a short distance from where the shooting occured, he heard a man groaning, and found him lying on the ground. He was assisted to his feet and was able to walk to the lock with a little help, and was taken to St. Gabriel's hospital. A 38-calibre bull-dog revolver was found on the ground near where the man stood when he was wounded. The man gave his name as James Davis, and said his home was in Dublin, Ireland, and that he was 28 years old and had no near relatives in this country.

The weapon used by Guin was a 32 calibre revolver. Dr. Trace, railroad physician, attended the man, and found that he was shot in the abdomen, two inches below and to the right of the navel. The doctor gives his opinion that the wounded man will die.—Transcript.

As Long As You Live

You will regret it, if you fail to see the World's Fair at Chicago. Every one who has visited it says it is the grandest and most beautiful display of the products of science, art and industry that mankind has ever seen, and beside it all previous "world's fairs" sink into insignificance. It represents an expenditure of two hundred millions of dollars, and we shall not look upon its like again in this generation. Only three short weeks remain in which you will have the opportunity to visit it. To see, even for a week, this World's Fair, is to supplement your education, no matter how good it may have been with invaluable information. Rates of fare are low, and you can live in Chicago as cheaply as anywhere in America. You cannot afford to miss the fair. Get ready to go soon, and then ask your home ticket agent for tickets reading via "The Burlington Route" to Chicago, vestibuled, compartment car, free reclining chair car, and dining car line, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn. 3w

A MISS BROOKS, of Chicago, wants to write a statue of Gov. Nelson and family in butter for the Minnesota state exhibit. Now's the time for some smart sleck to announce she butter not.

Responsible for Willful Falsehood.

The present system of assessing property for taxation, says a contemporary, is responsible for more willful falsehood than eternity can ever atone for. It presents the spectacle of an almost universal contest of falsehood, wherein the biggest liar saves the most money. Communities contend with each other to avoid, if possible, paying more than their respective proportions of the State tax. Precincts of counties falsify the tax list to avoid, at least, paying more than their respective proportions of the state and county taxes. Individuals wallow in open and barefaced falsehood to avoid paying their proper proportion of the tax of the community. Every year seems a renewed campaign of general falsehood that must create unbounded enthusiasm and merriment in inferno. The strangest part of the whole thing is, that all the participants in this barbecue of untruthfulness are sure they are making money by it, when in fact, they are simply depreciating the value of their property, ruining their own credit abroad and convincing the world that they are slaves to taxation. And yet in all this broad, fair scate, with its churches and ministers and Christian people, no one raises his voice against this common evil, this system so productive of falsehood.—Northfield News.

New Logging Roads.

The Minneapolis Tribune Says:—The Minneapolis lumbermen keep right on developing the northern part of the state, unhindered by financial stringency or other difficulties. During the past summer the Bass Lake Lumber Company has added another logging and freight railroad to the others which they have constructed from time to time. This last line will be a little under twenty miles in length, and by the time snow flies, and in brief it will bring some of the heavy bodies of timber the company own in the western part of Itasca county, to the Mississippi the logs to be floated down to Minneapolis mills. Fourteen miles of main line have been fully completed, and about four miles of branches. The main line runs from the Mississippi at White Oak Point, below Winnebigoshish lake, in a northern direction to Little Bowstring lake. The branches reach into the heavy bodies of pine to the east and west of the main line. It is the intention of the company to extend the main line the coming year to Big Bowstring lake and ultimately reach the Big Fork river. Besides the immense lumbering operations which will be done the line will be a godsend to the settlers who have in the past year or two been settling on the fine lands in that part of the state, and will induce many more people to go into that really fine country.

SEA BATHS IN ITALY.

USE MADE OF THE BLUE WATERS OF THE MEDITERRANEAN.

Exhilarating Plunges In Nature's Great Lavatory—In the Water All the Reserved Etiquette of the Dressing Room Vanishes—Interesting Features.

Those who have been fortunate enough to glide from Italy's picturesque shores into the warm blue waters of the Mediterranean and then promptly in the salty sea among a perfect school of happy bathers will never forget it. Never! Venice, Naples, Capri, Amalfi! It makes one's eyes glisten at the very thought of it. To Italy's splendid title, "The Land of Poetry and Song," might also be added "The Land of Bathe" were it not that the second name to some fastidious minds would detract from the beauty of the first.

The ancient Romans, borrowing as they did all the worthily imitable customs from their Greek and Egyptian neighbors, found the baths especially suited to their luxurious tastes and carried them to a degree of efficiency which had never been attained, making them not only of immense benefit in a sanitary way, but establishing them as a favorite rendezvous for people of culture and talent as well as for the poorer class who also enjoyed the privilege of their own compartments. Look at the baths of Diocletian, which are estimated to have accommodated no less than 18,000 people at one time. And those of Caracalla at Rome. What wonderful ruins of a still more wonderful architecture! In these walls bathing became a science. Cold baths, tepid baths, hot baths, oil baths, sun baths—every kind of bath! Why simply to visit the place was a real appreciation. Statuary and paintings lent beauty on all sides. Music charmed. Orators and poets entertained.

What is left of the remaining walls of the Pompeiian baths! The frescoes are as bright and beautiful as if they were done but yesterday, and the marble carvings and pavements which escaped the fury of the burning mountain have suffered in color almost to an ivory.

Then the baths of Nero. Around the coast on the charming picturesque road leading from Pozzuoli to Baiæ one alights from the little carozella and clambers up to a cave cut in the side of the mountain, wherein is a spring heated to a high temperature in its native bed, mean channels by, veins of volcanic life in the mountain's reservoirs. This spot suited well the comfort loving Nero, who made of it a favorite resort and caused his sumptuous couches to be placed there, which still remain.

One reads little of sea bathing in those days. Even Horace, rather thought to construct its baths as it thought of anything its temples. But now all Italy runs to the sea to the natural advantages, and with one accord cries as early as May, "Let us to the sea!" Not all the establishments are as convenient and as well constructed as the Lido at Venice and those of Posilipo at Naples, but they are all on the same general plan. Every place open to the use of the public is provided with a pavilion where people congregate to discuss the latest topics, or to devour with eager ears the latest gossip, while there is always music, from morning till night, if only one of those harassing "organettes" or portable pianos, which grind out scarcely and seem always to be playing "Sons de Lucia" or "Bella Napoli" and vary sometimes with the "Provenza."

On either side of the pavilion are the "cameriri," or dressing rooms—one side reserved for ladies, the other for gentlemen. These "cameriri" are the roughest kind of little wooden boxes, carpeted with a mat of braided straw and furnished with four rude chairs for the four persons each is supposed to accommodate. Then there are many boys flocking to the water. The fee for the use of each room is one franc fifty (or 30 cents), including the linen sheet in which you never varying whether there be one or four persons together.

Once in the water and presto! change! all the reserved etiquette of the Italian drawing room vanishes. Then and there only does liberty exist, and the pretty little signorinas, as well as the handsome signoras, in the very simplest kind of bathing costume, generally dark blue with a little white braid, transformed into veritable water nymphs, swim off with all the grace and alacrity of a fish, never fearing, never tiring, just as if they had been born to it. And there is no end to romance. Fancy a boat full of handsome young officers tawing a trail of pretty, bright eyed girls to some picturesque and quiet, or fancy little luncheon. It doesn't seem as very much, does it? And yet one recalls that these same young officers may never have dared address the young ladies on land, or if they have had the good fortune to do so it was only under the watchful eye of the omnipresent chaperon, then we realize what it really means. Then there are the quieter times, like the placid blue waters of Sorrento, away down under the high walls of rock, where one may float and gaze up at the beautiful villas and fragrant orange gardens. And Capri, where the wonderful blue grotto is to be found and to swim there, while the hurried traveler inevitably falls a victim to the merciless boatmen who shave their heads in one's face and demand "la tariffa," which never fails to exceed the fee regularly established.

Yes, the sea is a blessing to the Italians, open to all and appreciated as well by poor as by rich. Indeed, one cannot help self wondering what would become of the Italian women, the Neapolitans, for instance—if it were not for this free provision of nature. They are said to be extremely economical in the use of water in winter on the grounds that it means certain death by cold, but in summer, when the sea is warm, and the little street urchins frolic about and dive for the pennies of the "forestieri" without even the encumbrance of a bathing costume.—Chicago Tribune.

Head a Little Gray, but Heart All Right.

"Jason," said Mrs. Calliper to her husband as they were riding home from the theater, "what should you say of a man of middle age and with a gray mustache who wept over the troubles of the people in the play?"

"Why," said Colonel Calliper, "I should say that whatever his years might be God had blessed him with a young heart."

"And I am sure," said Mrs. Calliper as she looked the colonel square in the eye, "that he is duly grateful for it."—New York Sun.

Chinese In Mourning.

When a Chinese emperor dies, the intelligence is announced by dispatches to the several provinces, written with blue ink, the mourning color. All persons of rank are required to take off silk ornaments from their caps with the ball or button of rank; all subjects of China, without exception, are called upon to forbear shaving their heads for 100 days, within which period none may marry, play upon musical instruments or perform any sacrifice.—Exchange.

AT THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA.

How the Enormous Pressure of the Sea Water Affects Sunken Objects.

An extraordinary circumstance that has been noticed with interest, and that always creates surprise when first learned, is the entire absence of foreign matter in the deeper part of the ocean's floor. Of all the vessels lost in midocean, of all the human beings that have been drowned, of all the marine animals that have perished, of all the clay, sand and gravel let fall by dissolving icebergs, of all the various substances drifted from every shore by shifting currents, not a trace remains, lost in their place water from 1,000 to 2,500 fathoms in depth covers the uniform deposit of thick, bluish, tenacious slime called globigerina ooze.

A bit of this under a powerful lens is a revelation of beauty not readily forgotten. The ooze is composed almost entirely of the daintiest, most delicately beautiful shells imaginable. At depths greater than 2,500 fathoms the bottom of the sea consists mainly of products arising from exposure for almost the same periods to the chemical action of sea water and pumice and other volcanic matters. This finally results in the formation of the red clay deposits that are considered characteristic of the profoundest depths of the ocean.

Carbonate of lime, which in the form of the shells of foraminifera, makes up so large a part of the globigerina ooze, is here almost entirely absent. Sea water is commonly a universal solvent, and before any shell, large or small, reaches the bottom of these tremendous depths it is chemically eaten up, literally dissolved—a result which the enormous pressure of the water must materially hasten.

At 1,000 fathoms the weight of the water pressing on all sides of ——— object immersed to the ——— depth is very nearly ——— ton to the square inch, or more than 100 times that sustained at the sea level, and at the greatest depths the pressure is so increased that it would seem nothing could withstand it, in fact, heavy metal cylinders let down with the sounding apparatus are sometimes, on being drawn up again to the surface, found bent and collapsed. Strongly made glass vessels which the metal inclosed are shattered into fragments. —Cosmopolitan.

Dreams an Index of Character.

Nearly all dreamers can be brought into one theory—namely, that since in dreams we pass through a great variety of experiences, none of which is ever likely to befall us in real life, we are put to tests of character which we should never endure otherwise, and therefore that we ought to come to a better acquaintance with ourselves. Thus, if I have never been placed in a situation of extreme danger, as by attack of armed thieves or in a burning house (together with others more helpless while there is always music, from morning till night, if only one of those harassing "organettes" or portable pianos, which grind out scarcely and seem always to be playing "Sons de Lucia" or "Bella Napoli" and vary sometimes with the "Provenza."

London has a donkey show every year. It is conducted by very important personages for the benefit of the costermongers. Prizes are given for all sorts of excellence, but the highest prizes are awarded to the donkey showing the best care, the object of it all being to make the easier kind to his donkey. The affair is always a great success, the donkeys and donkey carts looking smart with their rosettes and ribbons, and some of the donkeys showing coats like velvet. There were sixty-seven entries at the show held last week.

There is a large bowlder lying in a field near Forestmark, Eng., which is known throughout Derbyshire as "Hangman's Stone." The exposed portion of the bowlder measures about six feet above the surface of the surrounding field and has a narrow ditch or indentation running across the top. The mark, so tradition says, was made in this way: A sheep thief in the dead of night, while leaning against the bowlder to rest, placed his booty above on the flat surface of the stone. The man had the sheep tied with a rope and in its efforts to escape the creature slipped on the opposite side and the rope, catching under the thief's chin, choked him to death. The indentation in the rock was made by the friction of the rope while the dying man was engaged in an effort to extricate himself.

Chicago ought to erect a monument in honor of Mrs. O'Leary's cow. Mrs. O'Leary's cow was Chicago's benefactor, and well deserves a monument.

FIFTY THIRD CONGRESS.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SPECIAL SESSION OF CONGRESS.

Condensed Record of the Business Being Transacted by our National Lawmakers—Routine Report Day by Day.

Washington, Oct. 5.—In the senate the first proceedings of importance on the repeal bill was made and attracted the closest attention on both sides of the chamber. Senator Voorhees of North Carolina, in an impassioned speech against the passage of the bill, made complaint of the salient feature. In reply to the question which he said had been asked over and over again as to when he vote would be laid on the bill, Mr. Butler said: "Congressmen responded to the question of the struggle here." At the conclusion of Mr. Butler's remarks Senator Blackburn (Dem. Ky.) addressed the senate in opposition to repeal, and said that if he were going to vote on the silver bill a gold and silver basis for the financial standard of the country, he would prefer a silver one. He hoped some acceptable compromise would be reached. Mr. Blackburn closed his speech by stating that vote he allowed no one to exceed him in friendship for, and loyalty to, silver, but would not engage in any obstructive tactics in opposition to the bill. The people demanded action, and they were entitled to know their fate.

In the house many committees reported bills, but the most important of the day was that reported by Mr. Bailey, from the committee on rules, providing for the Everett bill, amending the deary taxation act, and Mr. Wheeler (Dem. Ala.) spoke in favor of the bill, always passing through territories to enable them to get down to the standard by the interior department. The debate on the elections bill was taken up by Mr. Hopkins of Maryland, in support of the repeal.

Washington, Oct. 6.—In the senate Mr. Hill (Dem. N. Y.) gave notice that at some future day he would move to proceed to the consideration of that upon any roll call other than one to expressly declare that the bill under consideration by the senate who is pained may announce such pair, and his presence may be counted for the purpose of making a quorum. The repeal bill was then taken up. Mr. Call of Florida forcefully resumed the floor and on motion of Mr. Voorhees the senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. The senate remained in executive session until 5:15 p. m. and then adjourned.

Interest in the elections debate is not manifested even in the house. It is flagging instead of increasing. Today the only speeches that attracted any attention were those of Messrs. Bynum, Mr. Murray of South Carolina and Mr. Bland. Mr. Murray's speech was accorded unusual attention, largely, perhaps, out of curiosity to see how a colored man looked. The public gallery was packed to the doors with negroes who applauded his utterances.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Congressman J. A. Tawney of Minnesota addressed the house for more than an hour on the subject of the repeal of the state banking laws, making what such Republican leaders as Henderson and Hepburn of Iowa, Dolliver of Maine, Grosvenor of Ohio and Burrows of Michigan pronounced the strongest speech on the Republican side during the progress of the debate. He was listened to with marked attention, and there was an unusually large attendance of members on the floor and in the galleries. He was also in from the cloak rooms and lobbies during the progress of the speech. Even Speaker Crisp, who has resigned the chair early in the afternoon and was congratulated by every Republican he met, stood and listened attentively to the Minnesota representative. As he concluded he was congratulated by a democratic member on the floor. Altogether, it was as favorable a debut into the arena of national politics as Representative Tawney and his friends could have wished for him. The elections repeal bill was discussed by several others on both sides of the house.

In the senate Mr. Blackburn of Kentucky submitted an amendment to the act repealing the silver purchase clauses of the act of 1890. It strikes out the words "Hereafter coined," in the act as it passed the house, and then provides for the free coinage of silver of American production. The amendment also provides that it is authorized on the first day of each month to purchase silver bullion to be coined for the following month, which is to be the difference between the market price of silver bullion and the bullion value after coinage. This seignorage is to be also coined, but Mr. Blackburn's secretary of the treasury for gold, to be used for the purpose of maintaining the parity of gold and silver. This is an amendment which Mr. Blackburn in his speech opposed, but now presents it from a view of reaching a compromise. The debate on the repeal bill was continued by Senators Hill, Gorman and others.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Repeal senators are preparing to use heroic measures at the ell-eighth session Wednesday. A resolution will be offered by Mr. Frederick Stevenson will call Senator Washburn to the chair in order to carry on the proceedings. A motion to proceed to vote on the pending amendments and bill will be made by Mr. Hill. Washburn will refuse to recognize the obstructionists and put the motion to vote. Should the vote The day in the senate was devoted to further discussing the repeal bill.

In the house Mr. Aldrich of Chicago opened the battle for the elections bill with a vigorous defense of the Republican attempt to change the present law. He said in that great city and put down the "Carter Harrison ring." Mr. Dolliver of Iowa, one of the Republican orators of the Northwest, followed with a brilliant speech in favor of the measure to support and the bill. Then came Mr. Boutelle of Maine, against the measure.

Washington, Oct. 11.—The Tucker bill to repeal all existing laws providing for laws was passed by the house by a vote of 206 to 101, party lines being strictly drawn for and against the bill. The bill of New York, who is the author of a similar bill in the senate, was not put on the while the vote was being taken. Quite a jubilant demonstration was made by the Democratic members on the passage of the bill. Then came Mr. Boutelle of Maine, against the measure.

MINERS ARE OUT OF WORK.

Ashland, Wis., Oct. 11.—The situation of the unemployed on the Gogebic range at Hurley is becoming serious. Bread riots have already occurred, and the problem of providing for the unemployed miners on the range is becoming more serious every hour. The riots that have occurred are only a prelude to the coming storm, an indication of what is to be. Many destitute families are now put forth by those in charge of public relief agencies. At least 500 people south of the Wisconsin Central line are out of employment. At Ilmwood and across the Michigan line the number is at least 1,000. There is no prospect of work for them. It is estimated that one-half of these people have families. A special election will be held in the town of Ogden this week for supervisors, and the vote on the question of raising money to feed the unemployed. It is proposed to raise about $10,000. There is not much doubt that the tax will carry at the polls. At this time a bread riot occurred in Fort Bell yesterday. Over 100 men congregated in front of one of the principal store provided they were not given work. They were finally talked into adopting pacific measures and no damage was done.

In the back of the lower floor of his residence he had a large iron safe which was opened with the key. In this was found a large sum of money and jewelry, amounting in value to fully $25,000. This was looted.

MORE ARRESTS.

TO FIGHT THE TRUSTS.

St. Paul, Oct. 11.—There will be a possibility of something definite according from the anti-trust combine movement inaugurated here this morning. Acting in accordance with the provisions of the call issued recently by Governor Nelson, Gov. Nelson called a convention in Chicago three months ago, and it was a representative gathering of prominent men from all parts of the country. Just when he took the chair as presiding officer was not announced, but the meeting accomplished at that time was the adoption of a resolution providing for a permanent organization to be perfected in Minnesota, and that he might be wanted in Minneapolis. In regard to the amount of the fund he would not tell. From other sources it was learned that the amount was $100,000 or more, and that the Flour City National bank was the one selected as depository.

The bank began an attachment suit against De France for all the property he had here in the state, also that belonging to his wife. Deputies left for Pembina to serve the writs on the prisoner back, so a telegram from that city says.

STATE MEDICS MEET.

Hurd, St. Paul; vice president, Dr. K. Hoegh, Minneapolis; secretary, Dr. Tomlinson, Minneapolis. FOUND THE SKELETON

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 9.—A murder mystery was unearthed here to-day by the discovery of the bleaching skeleton of Paul Loy, a wealthy farmer, in the woods about two miles from the city. Loy was one of the pioneer farmers of Dakota and had amassed considerable property.

It is understood that Loy had not lived happily with his wife, and about two years ago he left for an extended visit at his old home in Canada. Early last fall in December last he found that during his absence his wife had secured a divorce on the grounds of desertion, and that they had married. Loy's estate had been employed by Lee. He visited his home to effect some settlement with his former wife about property, and was enabled to leave the husband in possession of his former wife. Neither the woman nor her new husband would speak to him or allow him in the house. He returned to East Grand Forks and stopped several days at a boarding house, drinking heavily. He disposed of a large section of land, receiving $500 in cash. He then went to a saloon, where he purchased a jug of liquor, telling the barkeeper of his trouble. Lee remarked that he was going back to Canada and leave his property here.

Nothing further was seen or heard of him since until today, when a skeleton was found in the woods, which, upon investigation, is found to be the remains of Lee. A hole in the skull told the story of his death. The body lay on the top of the ground. A search failed to find any money. It is believed that he was murdered for his money. The coroner will investigate.

EDITOR SUICIDES.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—What promises to develop into a sensational suicide occurred today on the railroad tracks at the foot of Monroe street. From papers found on the body it is learned that the dead man is Henry Kershaw, editor and manager of the New Century Commercial. Early this morning the police on the central police station saw a well dressed man standing on the tracks. He appeared apparently engrossed in deep thought. After he had stood there several minutes he was in drew near him the man threw himself upon the track and placed his neck across the rail. Before he could move two patrolmen hastened from the station but were too late. They reached the man before they had crossed half the track, however, and severed the suicide's head from his body.

PEACE IN BRAZIL

Washington, Oct. 9.—President Peixoto of Brazil has consented to disarm all the guns in Rio de Janeiro, and Admiral Mello, commander of the rebel fleet, has agreed not to fire on the city or bombard the port. Such information in official word was received from Commander Picking, of the United States cruiser Charleston, now in the harbor of Rio Janeiro, last night. The agreement was to be taken effect at once, through the efforts of the representatives of the foreign powers in Brazil. The last two days the foreign ministers have been trying to bring about an agreement between the contending forces, and the action at the hands of the rebels, and, according to foreign official dispatch, they have been successful, for the present at least.

AFTER A BLACK DEVIL.

Fort Scott, Kan., Oct. 9. The family of Miss Alice Sutton, of this city, who was outraged in this city Saturday, succeeded in suppressing the tale of intense brutality until this morning. A negro fiendishly lacerated the girl's body, struck her with his fist and left her for dead in the stockade, and when leaving dragged her to the door and compelled her to kiss him good-by. The girl will probably never see her again. A colored man giving the name of Jack Ward attempted a outrage in Kansas City an hour after the assault, and suspicion rested upon him. The officers are now searching for criminal. A posse is also searching the woods near here. The sheriff with twenty-five officers has started for the scene.

SHOOTING AFFRAY.

Minneapolis, Oct. 9. What may prove a fatal shooting affray took place in South Minneapolis last night when Thomas Lawless, a saloon keeper, was shot and seriously wounded Louis J. Schlink, a barber. Lawless and Schlink disagreed over a game of pool, and Schlink, who is said to be a quarrelsome fellow, drew a pistol and fired at Lawless, the ball entering the latter's abdomen. Schlink was arrested and locked up in the police station. Lawless was taken to the hospital, where it was said was drunk, fired four shots at Lawless, one of them taking effect in the back, and a prove fatal, should inflammation set in.

VIGILANT WINS.

New York, Oct. 9.—Bowling along under a fair wind, the American cup defender Vigilant crossed the line at Sandy Hook, this morning, thereby securing the winner in the first of the international races for the cup. The Vigilant and Valkyrie arrived home almost eight minutes later, and both were at once taken in tow by their respective tugs and then hurried to their places of shelter off Bay Ridge. It was a magnificent race from every point of view, and demonstrated, for that day at least, the superior construction of the Vigilant and the skill of her crew as well as the superior sailsmanship of the Earl family and Captain Cranfield, who sailed the Valkyrie.

DROWNED.

Kaukauna, Wis., Oct. 9.—John Phillips has been missing since Thursday. This morning his body was found in the canal from runs back of the Kaukauna water power canal. It is supposed that he fell from the bridge while crossing over Thursday night and was drowned. He is a single man. He has lived here for years, and was well-to-do. He leaves a large family.

WANTED IN MINNESOTA.

Detroit, Special.—Since ravte Monday morning, when Frank Ellis, a young assumably an insurance agent, has been missing from his home in this city. It is at first refused to have anything to say in regard to his arrest, which, until yesterday, was kept a close secret. It is learned, however, that a peace warrant was sworn out in this city several days ago and the police were asked to arrest De Prange and hold him until further notice. Ellis was arrested on questioning the head of the police department said that he was wanted in Minneapolis, in Minnesota, and that he might be wanted in Minneapolis. In regard to the amount of the forgeries he would not tell. From other sources it was learned that the amount was $1,000 or more, and that the Flour City National bank was the one selected as depository.

The bank began an attachment suit against De France for all the property he had here in the state, also that belonging to his wife. Deputies left for Pembina to serve the writs on the prisoner back, so a telegram from that city says.

A FAMOUS TOUR.

FOREIGN COMMISSIONERS VISIT THE GREAT FARMS AT LARIMORE.

They See Forty-Five Dearing Self-Binders Handed by 150 Men, Moving in the Same Direction at the Same Time.

Forty-five Deering Twine binders, forming a continuous half a mile in length and steadily moving through a waving field of wheat—such was the sight that greeted the foreign commissioners to the World's Fair during their recent famous visit to the banner farms of North Dakota. This impressive spectacle was witnessed on the great Elk Valley farm at Larimore, N. D., a farm comprising 12,000 acres or nearly nineteen square miles, 10,000 acres of which were under one unbroken, fenceless field of wheat. Never in this sight the distinguished spectators, comprising the foreign delegates to the World's Fair commissioners and representatives of the foreign press, together with an equal number of American eminent in World's Fair, railroad and commercial circles, had undertaken the discomforts of a journey during hot weather from Chicago; and the exclamations of delight and surprise with which the "brave" that rang out on the air bore witness that the expectations were vastly more than realized. From Fort Pembina to Minneota and North Dakota they traveled as guests of the Great Northern railroad, and the rather unique service by which the warmer and more cordial was their reception. Here at Larimore they found the climax of their journey at the height of hospitality. They were met at the train with the strains of a band playing what seemed to be the whole population of the city of Larimore, headed by O. H. Phillips, mayor, Gov. Shortridge and N. G. Elliott, Deering service boss, and a fleet of farm wheels they were to see. Silently, but with the closest attention to the working of detection and punishment is so great that the regular professional American detective has given way to the use of watchfulness and the unconscious self-betrayal of the guilty. Yet, curiously enough, a small band of Italians have persisted in the criminal practice of making nail uttering counterfeit silver dollars and passing the bad bills. Taken as a whole, the Italian immigrant is to be placed among the most desirable that land in this country. As a rule, they are temperate, frugal and hard working. Their dark green blood does sometimes get hot when they cross the quarrel. It is not an unsafe fault. Why the Italian criminal should take to counterfeiting is an unsolved mystery, the fact remains that a great majority of the counterfeiters in this neighborhood are Italians.

The latest case of counterfeiting in which the authorities have been engaged was discovered yesterday at New Haven, over the same road as that of 1892. However, must the contest be complete, but its place is indefinite. To make sh and the dollars are of the usual proportions of the false money. The $5 counterfeit, which is known as the "trifling $2 one and, according to the banks, was a pretty good imitation. The engraving of the counterfeiters has the month-eaten appearance of the per-fect bill, but the finished effect is the blemishes by which the note was shown to be bad.

About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon two Italians approached an Italian fruit vender in New Haven and purchased some peanuts, paying him with a quired, either to the edges of the teeth or to the junction of the teeth with the gums, where the sound and repaired well be made. Though for the t and a complete contact of the tip and edges of the gums with the teeth is required, yet the place of contact is not limited to the tip and edges, more important share in the action than the sides of the tongue in speaking will find there occur go cases in which the adjustments must have an exactness corresponding to the extreme power of perception of which the ear is capable for speech this endowment is useless. Even were it useful it could not be applied, for it is destroyed by the survival of the fittest; for though perfect articulation is a joy that work men clever enough to counterfeit pass current, and would not see that it does not pay. Sooner or later they are certain to be caught and sent to prison. Of the many persons who carry on its work successfully for more than a quarter of a century in my own city this country.—New York Evening Sun.

NOT IN THEIR LINE.

Texas Cowboys Have No Time for a Spelling Bee.

Two Texas cowboys recently had the novel experience of riding over the Missouri, Kansas & Texas road, says the Atlanta Constitution. But they seemed to enjoy the novelty of the situation. Along some time the train pulled out from the point that they got on out in the brush. When they got to the sleeper, one of them said to the other:

"Bill, you'll have to take you spurs off before you can go in there. Get on your boots on the top of that seat."

Bill did so, and they were joined and surprised when the porter told him that passengers were not expected to put their feet on the cushioned seats. He toyed with his gun until the porter retired. Then he rolled a cigarette, and the conductor showed him where the smoking receptacle of the combined train was located, and enjoyed.

At supper time, when all the passengers were in the buffet gave their orders and the two cowboys gave theirs, telling the waiter to bring them a dozen. It was on the programme and be sure to bring them plenty of sardines," they added. The waiter looked at them and were surprised when he asked them for 15 cents.

Both of them said, "Thaf settles it. If we say in this here concern that we're going to have a spelling bee before we get to the next station. No wonder you gang had with you a dictionary. I am surprised at 'em goin' after the mail when they would have such a soft snap as that on the road. I'm not worried. If ever I was to go into the train robbery business I would go clean bunnies first and git the black scoundrel that wanted four bits for stickin' up one o

THE SMALL CHANGE POCKET.

It Breeds Profligacy, and There Should Be a Crusade Against It.

"A Congress to abolish the Small Change Pocket! would be an appropriate way in which to wind up the series of meetings under President Bonney," remarked a sad-eyed man yesterday. "There is nothing in the world that tends more in the direction of profligate expenditures.

"The Sherman law has had the major part of the burden of hard times laid upon its shoulders, but no greater evil to the prosperity and financial well-doing of humanity exists to-day than the little receptacle on the right-hand side of a man's coat, where the stray nickels, dimes, quarters and halves find their way when a large bill is changed.

"From the moment the coins drop into the pocket they might as well be charged up to dead loss, for the owner immediately forgets all about them and loses their identity right then and there, so far as value is concerned.

"It is easy, when strolling along through the streets, in the shops, or the many places where there are cigar stumlites to spend money in little drib-lets, to dip into this pocket, and it is cleaned out before one has any notion of it. To the change pocket also I lay the blame to a considerable extent for the increase of the drink habit. Many a man has indulged himself in a cock-tail simply because he had the money to handy, whereas had he kept it in a purse he might have thought twice before drinking."—Chicago Tribune.

They All Saw It Move.

Mrs. Burton, with her husband—Sir Richard Burton, the famous traveler—and two ladies, had driven out on Trieste to a village dance, and were sitting in the carriage listening to the band.

Suddenly, at the top of a roof, I caught sight of a rat, which appeared to me to be spellbound by the music.

"Look!" I said. "Don't move, but watch that rat fascinated by the music."

So we all sat and watched it, and thought it most interesting that rats should be susceptible to music like lizards and snakes.

We all saw it move; we all saw its head turn and its tail move, but it kept still, not to frighten it away. The next day, feeling so much interested in the affair, we sent to inquire about it. The rat, it turned out, was made of painted tin, and fixed to the roof of the house. So much for imagination.

Invitations to Church Weddings.

Or receipt of an invitation to a church wedding it is proper to mail, at any time before the ceremony, a wedding envy, representing the person invited, to the persons issuing the invitation, whether or not you intend to be present at the ceremony, writes Mrs. Hamilton Mott in the Ladies' House Journal. If a reception card is inclosed, a written acceptance or declination of both invitations should be sent at least a day before the wedding. For afternoon "At Homes" cards should be left for the hostess, though for evening receptions it is not usual to leave cards—a card-case not forming a necessary part of the evening costume. And finally it may be said, that some prompt acknowledgment should be made to every friend of social invitation, or the recipient will be guilty of a breach of etiquette.

How to Keep Butter Sweet.

It is the endest thing in the world. Simply put it in clean jars and cover with strong brine. This will keep pure butter a year fresh and sweet, as we know by experience. It is almost equally good to put it in oak casks headed tight. This is equivalent to canning fruit. The brine in the case of the jars acts as a hermetic seal to exclude the air out. But butter should be made well; we have never experimented on poor butter. When cut the butter-termilk till you have only pure "beads," clear as rain water but do not work so much as to break the grain, in which case you have a tough, heavy article in which gases are liable to develop. Such butter we advise no one to try to preserve.

A Woman Planter.

A planter's wife was left with a Mississippi river plantation, under a $25,000 mortgage, and a family of five children, just ready for school and college. The two years' illness of her husband had given her a grasp of the business. After his death, when the commission merchant came up to "close her out," the improved condition of the place and the wisdom of her plans caused him to say: "I'll advance all the money you want this year." At the end of three years she had paid the mortgage, sent her sons and daughters to college, and her plantation was universally confessed to be the best improved one in the county. Not very long after she married the young man whom she had placed in charge of a store and opened

"Is it? Well, then, trim it square across behind."

"Certainly, sir, just as you say; but that is the way they do it on the Bowery."

"Well, s'pose you let a little cowlick lie in front so I can sleek it down."

"Like Jim Corbett, you mean?"

"Who is he?"

"Some of society."

"Well, I don't hanker much after society myself, although my girls give two or three big parties every winter. Some of the neighbors can equal them for splendor, either."

"Well, how would you like a nice quiet Van Allen cut; that is, high in the neck, will a dry shampoo? They are all the rage now, you know."

"And who in the thunder is he?"

"The new minister to Rome and the political lion of the hour."

"No, I reckon I'd better just give me a plain Jim Corbett pompadour. Probably he ain't a social scion or a politico\ lion like them other fellows you speak about, but everybody up in our neighborhood has heard of him, and his style goes with us."

Then an expression of contentment stole over his face; he closed his eyes and the barber proceeded to throw his thrusts.—New York World.

SEDITION IN DOLL'S CLOTHES.

Conternation Caused in Alsace by the Gay Dress of a Baby's Plaything.

The little province of Alsace has had a hard time to suffer prosperous since it was conquered by the Germans, says the Youth's Companion. Every possible precaution is taken to guard against any demonstration of the French national spirit, and though the children are allowed to learn the language of their ancestors they are not allowed to be taught it by French governesses. The following story shows how far this rule is carried. A lady formerly carried its practice of watching, the people of Alsace some half a little girl was seen playing with a doll which was dressed in red, white and blue. The costumes of the officials were aroused, for it was certainly dreadful to see the colors of the German empire so badly threatened. The child was tracked to its home and there the doll was found and the doll was a present. He went immediately to the lady who had given it to the little girl and noted the address of the store where the dangerous plaything was bought. It was a fancy-goods store, and the police officer found it at last, and then discovered that the doll was a perfect model dressed in Leipsig. This was a surprise, but the matter did not end here, for the proprietor of the store was officially requested not to send any more red, white and blue dolls to Alsace.

An Earnest Dog's Gratitude.

A big yellow dog has just fallen into the Tiber that day (July 24) from the parapets of the Ponte Margherita. The current was very strong, the accident merely ran hither and thither on the bridge and the banks calling for some one to help him, but nobody dared to do so. Two policemen spent the whole bathing inquiries as to whether "it was a case of murder or suicide?" The child, meanwhile, was visibly growing weak, when a dog, a workman's miserable dog, destined to end a wretched day in the Stabilimta Municipale (lost dogs' yard)—leaped hastily into the Tiber, under the eyes of all the people, but no one appears alive. The poor beast, accustomed to food upon street refuse, and to sleep in any shed it could find, swam out to the little girl in peril, caught her dress and drew her to the shore. When he saw her in safety the dog bayed and jumped for joy, licking the child's face and hands. It appears they had been friends. The child had known the dog in a manufactory by Prati di Castello, and the poor animal was grateful to her for some crumbs of macaroni. The crowd then tried to catch the dog, to see how an animal more brave than so many men was made. But it ran through their midst and disappeared.—Zoophilist.

THE STORY OF A LETTER:

OR, DAWN.

Lady Rosedene came in, and they had luncheon together; then, while she rested in the quiet, pretty parlor, Lord fair Elsie had made such brief sunshine, and Alan went out to see that the horses had been fed, Francis Vane and his daughter walked across the garden into the church-yard, and stood by her green grave. He laid his hand on the fair bright head.

"Hyacinth, your mother lies here, often fancy I see a soft, white cloud above the grave, and that she rests upon it. Tell me, do you love Alan Branston?"

"With all my heart, father," she said. And he knew, from the quiet, self-contained tone, how deep and true her love was.

"I should like to give you one warning, child. You have experienced one severe ordeal, and mine has been true. I loved your mother while living, and have loved her since her death. And yet there is which she lies is more to me than the living, beating heart of my sing-woman. But, Hyacinth, my dear child, you must not expect such a love —neither so deep, so true, nor so lasting. It does not often fall to a woman's lot."

"It is much, father," she declared, in a tone of quiet conviction.

He looked sadly at her.

"Hyacinth, do not expect too much," he said; "the love we give and receive on earth is but a faint type of that which we shall know more than all. Your mother and I loved as we could, Alan Branston. It was characteristic of him that he was among the foremost in showing kindness on Francis Vane. He established a rule that he should be allowed to see and talk to Hyacinth. Francis Vane made some gentle remonstrance; but he was overruled.

"You live out of the world, and I live in it," he continued. "I see what Hyacinth wants, and you do not. I shall think you do not know it, if you forbid her to see you; you allow me to send what I will."

The father seemed to remonstrate, and the gallant young lover lavished costly gifts on his beautiful fiancee.

Francis Vane had a deadly legacy left him, and he gave it all for his daughter's happiness. He remembered Lady Morley, who was only too delighted to assist. The most wonderful work of Worth's, that of the German empire in London, shopping with Mrs. Morley. No one knew what gifts were being supplied, and some of the brightness of old times came over the house.

S. S. Watkins, of St. Paul, superintendent of the state fish hatcheries, was in the city on Tuesday for the purpose of looking over the ground at Lake View where it is proposed to put in a bass hatchery by the state fish and game commission. The lake which is to be used for this purpose is located just south of Long lake and lies entirely within the bound of Sheriff Spalding's property. The reason that this place was selected for the raising of bass fry, for distribution throughout the state, was because it was free from all kinds of fish which feed upon and destroy the young fish as soon as they are hatched, and in consequence the lake will not have to be cleaned before the bass are planted there. Mr. Watkins was very much pleased with the surroundings and as soon as he returns from a business trip to Chicago will proceed to stock the lake. The bass will be taken from Long and Hubert lakes by means of seines and placed in Bass lake and a watchman will be stationed there to see that the fish are undisturbed. A lease will be made by Mr. Spaulding with the state for the lake for from three to five years.

Bold Burglary.

C. B. White's gun store was robbed last night of three Winchester rifles and two large revolvers, the value of the goods taken being about $100. The job was done by throwing a brick through one of the large windows on the side where the guns are displayed, after which the articles were taken out with ease, and the only wonder is that the entire lot of guns, valued at about $600 was not taken. The brick which was used was still inside this morning when Mr. White came down town to open up. The police heard nothing of the occurrence when it was going on, and the job was a good deal similar to the one done at McGinnis & Co's a short time ago, when the whole front of their store was knocked in by the negro without disturbing the policemen.

The plays presented have all been first class and the Brainerd public can rest assured that they will be well repaid by attending the closing performances.

Stolen Horses.

Chief Barron is in receipt of a communication from Wm. McKinnon, sheriff of Carlton county, under date of October 11th, which says that he has two men in custody there with a team of horses, which he has every reason to believe were stolen at or near Brainerd. The men followed the railroad track all the way from this place to Carlton, shipping the buggy on ahead. While there the men stole a quantity of stuff from a livery barn and are being held to answer to that charge. The horses are young, the mare being three years old, black, and weighs 1150, while the horse is four years old, bay, and weighs 1350, both hind feet being white. If any one in this vicinity has lost a team it would be well to communicate with Mr. Barron at once, as the men can only be held a short time on the charge against them.

A Guilty Pair.

On Wednesday morning Chief Barron received a telegram from Staples with instructions to arrest and detain a man and woman who were aboard the Duluth train answering to a certain description. The man when arrested gave the name of Herman Shernder and said the lady was his wife. They were escorted to the county jail under protest, of course. It seems that on Tuesday night they stopped at the Jones hotel in Staples and during their stay went through the pockets of a pair of pants belonging to J. Barber, of West Superior, taking about $68 therefrom, the latter gentleman occupying an adjoining room. The pair stoutly protested their innocence but just before the train left yesterday morning the man turned over the amount to Sheriff Spalding to give to Mr. Barber, it being understood that no prosecution would follow and that they would be allowed to proceed on their journey, which they did. As the money changed hands Shernder stated that he hated to give it up for people would think he had actually stolen it and he didn't want that impression to get out.

A Monstrosity.

Reports from the town of Luxenberg, Stearns county, state that a human monstrosity was born in that town last week to Mrs. Mat Hammerding, a farmer's wife. It is said to be devoid of arms, and the face and whole upper portion of its body resembles more or less closely that of a frog. The curiosity is attracting considerable attention and is the subject of a great deal of talk in the neighborhood.—St. Cloud Journal-Press.
