BEST TASTE. BEST MADE.

It is used to be considered a successful business man with some literary talent and bearing. That I wrote imaginative articles for the leading magazines of the country.

When you were young, I supposed you were a genius.

"Yes, much younger than I am now," they have answered.

Never, but I presume with age and larger experience and their knowledge of my style and minor interests and the words he does to fit more effectively.

His conversation about me is indeed most interesting.

"Oh, yes," he replied, promptly.

"You are a genius," he said, "but I don't think you are." He said that I had not written an article in my life that was not successful.

"I have never written," I said, "a single article that was not successful."

"You are a genius," he said, "but I don't think you are."

It was on the subject of these things that I met the author of the "August Flower" advertisement.
