FUSION didn't go in Montana, and after a hard fight the populists and democrats each nominated tickets.

THERE isn't anything particularly wrong with Vermont with its 40,000 plurality for the republican ticket.

"THE prospect of republican success never did disturb business" is a remark made by Benj. Harrison, and a true one.

THE United States courts no longer control the destinies of the Northern Pacific road, and it is now in the hands of its owners.

THE gold democrats at Indianapolis yesterday nominated Senator Palmer, of Illinois, for president, and Gen. S. B. Buckner, of Kentucky, for vice president.

THERE are few farmers but that know that the prices they are getting for products now are democratic prices. If the republican party is restored to power they will get good prices again.

THE republican county committee will meet on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the office of Chairman Frater at the court house for the purpose of calling the county convention to nominate county officers.

THE silverites have lost 75 per cent of their followers in the city within the past six weeks, and the reason is that those who thought they wanted free coinage have seen what it meant, but have studied the matter up and found they were wrong.

ON the 200 members of the Duluth board of trade not over five of them are for free silver says the News-Tribune, and of the 60 old members that are active operators, only one is counted in the silver column. And this is Populist Towne's home, too.

"WHOM the Gods would destroy they first make mad" will apply to Populist Towne. He is fighting mad over the way things are going against him and threatens to sue several newspapers and individuals for libel. Charlie's birds are coming home to roost.

AN Itasca county game warden publishes over his own signature the fact that he has just been appointed to the position, and forms the general public that he is after them. He will probably send word ahead when he is about to make a raid on game violators.

THE democrats of the seventh congressional district have decided not to place a candidate in the field. The gold democrats will vote for Eddy, the republican candidate, and the silver men will support Lommen, the populist. The democratic party is fast fading from view.

OF the wisdom of a stationer in New York this paragraph is pasted says the Boston Globe: "Until now the world has never seen men who were getting their pay in the most expensive dollars begging to be paid in dollars worth about half as much for no other reason than to make a few mine owners rich.

"THE managers of the silver campaign no longer class Minnesota in the doubtful list," says the Duluth Herald. The Herald is correct, there is no more doubt about the way Minnesota will go than there is that the sun will rise to-morrow morning, but it won't be for free coinage, oh, no. Minnesota is a McKinley state.

THE free silverites have been sending broadcast over the country extracts which they claimed were printed in the London Financial News, which have been proven to be forgeries, the article being in exact opposition to the views held by that paper. The silver kings are desperate and will stoop to anything to make converts to their cause.

BETWEEN 150,000 and 200,000 visitors were in St. Paul and Minneapolis on Wednesday, and never before in the history of the city was it so crowded. All public buildings, school houses, hotels and every place where there was available space was utilized and many a tired stranger found no bed to rest his weary bones upon. The Twin cities never before saw such a crush of people, and probably never will again.

Tom Fitch Tells Why He is a Republican.

At the late Republican convention of Arizona, held to elect delegates to the St. Louis convention, Tom Fitch, one of the most noted free-silver advocates in the Territory, was called upon to speak, and responded in a speech which, for simple eloquence and honesty of diction, deserves preservation. His reasons why he should remain in the Republican party are unanswerable, and should be read by all Republicans. The reading will in no way dwarf their enthusiasm for the grand old party. The fun text of Mr. Fitch's speech is as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Convention: I thought that the sech.ion that the upper and lower grants, combined with other circumstances, would exempt me from any invitation to speak before this convention; but your repeated calls leave me no alternative consistent with courtesy but to answer them.

"The speakers who have addressed you have spoken of the free coinage of silver as a cardinal principle of the Republican party. I fear that the St. Louis convention may compel us to retrace some of our steps in this matter; and, as the statesmen who control this convention have not included me among those designated most fit to represent Arizona at St. Louis, I feel quite at liberty to tell the truth.

"I suppose no one will question my long devotion to the cause of free silver coinage. I was, as I am, a believer in the movement, I, as vice president of the national executive committee of the silver convention, in connection with A. J. Warner, the president of the committee, traveled through the South and West, preaching the doctrine of bimetallism, and by our efforts helped occasion to change my views with respect to the great question that might result to the nation from the complete restoration of silver as a money-metal; and yet there are other circumstances quite as influential which must be potent in electing the next House of Congress, and the future action of many Republicans in this matter.

"This morning a friend, who is a member of the convention, and who now honors me with his audience, said to me: 'Mr. Fitch, you have always been a pronounced advocate of the free coinage of silver; we but will you do it for St. Louis convention to adopt a plank in their platform favoring a single gold standard and denouncing the free coinage of silver?' To that my answer is a question then, but, with your permission, I will do so now.

"I belong to the Republican party because I believe in the history of the growth, the greatness and the freedom of this nation; because its purposes are patriotic; because it is the friend of labor without being the foe of thrift; because it is wise; because it is just; because its restoration to complete power would bring prosperity after stagnation to the turbine, and will fill the land with the music of contented and well paid toil, and because it has done more and hope into their hearts.

"I belong to the Republican party because it is the grandest political organization of free men that the world has ever known; because, under its wise guidance, star after star has been added to our flag, after star has been added to our fleets, factory after factory has been built to our cities, and millions upon millions have been added to the wealth of the nation; it has been developed from our villages, and the land has been laced with a network of iron rails, and furrowed by plows, illuminated the night, and the grand diadem of the toiler has been added to sound throughout the continent.

"I belong to the Republican party because, under its inspiration, these United States, once a struggling and discordant confederation, became United States, once shamed with slavery and decrepit with the disease of secession—these United States have become a nation, where no shred or presence dishonors labor; where no freeman's utterances are choked with the hand of power; where no man doffs his hat to another except through the impulses of equals; where education is free; where manhood is respected and where labor is protected.

"Under the patriotic rule of the Republican party these United States have become a nation whose credit stands at the head of the world's financial list, whose flag carries peace on the seas, and whose armies would come at the drum-beat out of the hives of industry to swarm in defense of the country on every side.

"I am a member of the Republican party these United States have become the greatest, freest and most prosperous nation under the light of the sun.

"I belong to the Republican party because it gave land to the landless; because it gave work to the industrious; because it gave freedom to the slave; because, when the nation was in peril, it gave armies and treasure for her preservation.

"Forty years ago when a lad of eighteen, I joined the Republican ranks; and, too young to vote, I flung my banner aloft for Fremont and Jessie. I was present as a newspaper worker at the Chicago convention in 1860, when all Illinois shouted Abraham Lincoln into the presidency. I heard the song of John Brown's soul sung in bated breath and in secret gatherings of his sympathizers, and four years later, on those distant fields, I almost caught the echo of its refrain when armies chanted it for their battle anthem. I enjoyed the eloquence and friendship of Baker and of Starr King, and Butler, and Bingham, and Garfield, and Logan, and I swear that noblest Roman of them all, James G. Blaine.

"WITH, THEN, IS THERE, IN ALL THIS LAND THAT SHALL DARE TO ASK ME TO REPUDIATE 20 full MEMORIES, BECAUSE OF A DIFFERENCE OF OPINION TO-DAY CONCERNING THE CONDITIONS UNDER WHICH SILVER DOLLARS SHALL BE COINED?

"Who shall dare to tell me it is my duty to leave my party in the midst of youth and my manhood marched, and with it, when the evening bugle shall sound the final reveille, my age shall be found still marching? Rather will I turn to the Republican soldiers the same steadfast face that I bore when my locks, now whitening, were black as the raven's wing, and say to her, as Ruth to Naomi: "Whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou dwellest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God; where thou diest, I will die, and there I will be buried."

Starting a Ground-Swell.

It is one of the most commonly-used arguments of the silver men that the purpose of the silver movement is the amelioration of the condition of the poor, workingmen and the poor farmer. It is asserted that the silver movement is a ground-swell from the common people," and all that sort of thing. Just to show what the "ground-swell" is and where it came from, 63 of the Benite statement is here given of the silver bullion that caught the ground-swell which started the "ground-swell," by keeping Bryan in the field for the past six years as the best exponent for the cause of silver. It includes all the leading silver men of the silver mining country, and shows the holdings of each, but it does not show, for obvious reasons, the amount of the stock which has been distributed among the silver candidates for congress in the various districts of the United States. The statement is the best answer in addition to their holdings in the event of the success of free coinage a government which was inaugurated for the benefit of the great silver syndicate.

It will be seen that the total amount of the holdings for these twenty-two concerns is nearly $650,000,000, and, of course, if they succeed in legislating 100 per cent of "value" into this amount by decreeing that 50 cents shall be a dollar, the profit to them will equal the amount of their present holdings. A donation of 10 per cent of their stock would certainly be a profitable investment, for it would result in a campaign fund of over $50,000,000—and in addition to the presence of the thousands of traveling missionaries for the silver cause, who, if they are like the Minnesota contingent, are not in the habit of working for their health.

Following is the statement, and it can be relied upon as accurate and complete as far as the concerns named are concerned, for it is taken from public records:

HOW WEBSTER PET IT.

Mischievous Legislation in Money Matters Affects the Toiler.

It is the testimony of a statesman's utterances to the great issues which concern the welfare of the people's minds, that gives them their comparative importance and prominence in literature. The question of the permanence of the national Union and the Constitution at the time of Webster's reply to Hayne, and for years thereafter. Hence, that oration was enshrined in histories and school readers and books of elocutionary exercises. But now that the question of the nation's financial honor is uppermost, the other utterance of "the godlike Daniel" is seen to glow with the same supernal fire as his reply to the blatant South Carolinian. This is how he puts the question of the laboring man's relation to the money system:

The very man, of all others, who has the deepest interest in a sound currency, and who suffers most by mischievous legislation in money matters, is the man who sees his daily bread by his daily toil. * * * His hard earnings are in his hands. His reliance, his fund, his protective freehold, his all, is his labor. Whether he work on his own small capital or another's, his living is still earned by his labor, and when the money of the country becomes depreciated and debased, whether it be adulterated coin or paper without credit, that industry is robbed of its just reward. The laborer for a country whose laws cheat him out of his hire would act very much like the owner of every quarter section of land in the West who would say to every man in the East who follows his own plow: "Beware! beware! neither you nor laborer of every city in the country—I would say every town, everywhere, who wishes by honest means to gain an honest living! Beware of voting in favor of paper money. Whoever attempts, under whatever popular cry, to shake the stability of the public currency * * * stabs your interests and your happiness to the heart.—Pioneer Press.

Bob. Dunn is All Right.

The silver men of Minnesota have gloried in holding State Auditor R. C. Dunn up before the people as a republican who was advocating free coinage of silver, but whatever views Mr. Dunn may have entertained on the subject he has after a careful study arrived at the conclusion that free coinage is a very dangerous experiment, and will make a powerful canvas in the interest of Page Morris, the sound money nominee of the republicans for congress from this district. Mr. Dunn has thousands of men who thought the free silver movement would bring relief, but thought and study convinces them of their error, and the free silverites are daily losing hundreds of advocates on whom they depended for support and influence. The thinking people will vote for honest money.

Democratic Prediction.

Comptroller Eckels says that from his observation on his trip through the west he is of the opinion that the silver wave is receding very rapidly. "And when the votes are counted" said he, "you will find that ten democrats voted for McKinley where one Republican voted for Bryan."

Business Man—I see, Senator, that you make your mortgages payable in gold.
Senator Stewart—Yes; or rather my agent does.
Business Man—But isn't that rather an inconsistent method for a free silver man?
Senator Stewart—Not at all; I don't want to be paid back in a depreciated money.

MY LADY'S HAT.

Mysterious Thing!
Composed of frills and feathers, ribbons,lace And flowers, and birds, and vegetable things, Imitation jewelry, and fruits, And buckles, wire and silk, and cotton bombastics,
And Lord knows what besides;
I wot not what blows may be.

Inordinate Thing!
Stupendous, then, and vast beyond clear comprehension.
Thou scarest like some heaven kissing hill;
Thou spreadest like a harvest field;
Prodigious, ample, large, indefinite in size.
Enormous, huge, immense, colossal, gigantic.
Thou monstrest much too much to reckon up.

Outrageous Thing!
The shadows 'neath thy spreading brim
Are frights in their darkness.
Thou wearest off the brightest rays
Of sun, moon, electric light or gas.
Methinks thou'rt good as plaster a Hessian ray.

Exasperating Thing!
I sit behind thee at the play,
And, holding myself together, not with ease.
So monstrous is the rage that rends my soul,
Innocuous all the deer, delightful naught!

Displayed upon the stage—but not for me.
Unseen, the beauties of the ballet fade,
And I, who paid two prices for my seat,
Sit, cursing, writing hands
In anguish, all because of thee.

Beloved Thing!
My fair one likes thee, and I needs must too.
Those errant whims that lead her fancy far
Beyond the limits of my feeble wit
Sufficient are to justify worse things than thee.
So, though my habit is fair within me, when I ponder thy preposterous character
I still do love thee for that thou art here.
—David A. Curtis in New York Sun.

FEARLESS IGNORANCE.

Illustrated by a Tourist Who Insisted Upon Going Into a Crater.

Captain Basil Hall tells this one of those stories which are always coming up to prove that the man who knows nothing about a danger is the one to fear the least and to neglect a salutary obedience toward those who have trodden a path before. The incident was narrated by an old guide at Vesuvius.

"Some years ago," said Salvatore, "I came up the mountain with a party of gentlemen, one of whom insisted on going not only around the cone, as we are doing now, but actually into the crater, though I told him that such an adventure was attended with more danger than the thing was worth.

"'Pooh! Pooh! Danger!' said the pigheaded gentleman. 'What do I care for danger? Am I not a soldier? Why, man, I have faced the foe before now! Lead the way, I'll follow.'

"I merely said that to face a human enemy and to face an active volcano were two very different things.

"'Are you afraid to go?' he asked.

"'I don't much admire it,' I answered; 'but as I think I know how to evade the danger when it comes, having been at the work for nearly half a century, I'll go into the crater if you are determined upon the adventure. Only I warn you again, the danger to an inexperienced person is great.'

"'Well, well!' he called impatiently, 'come along!' And away we went, he floundering his stick like a sword, while I only shrugged my shoulders.

"'Now, sir,' I said to him, 'the only plan by which we can hope to accomplish this expedition in safety is to be perfectly steady and if a shower of stones come about our ears to stand as cool and collected as if nothing were happening. I hope we may not have any while we are in this awkward place, but if we should be so unfortunate, mind, your only chance is to stand fast and look forward. If you swerve ever so slightly to one side or the other you are gone.'

"'Oh, nerves,' said he skeptically. 'Is that all? You shall see.'

"So away we went, climbed the lip of the cup, descended into the fearful abyss and, though half choked with the fumes, saw all we wished to see. We were on our return when the mountain roared like thunder, the ground shook, a furious eruption took place and rocks and stones were shot a thousand feet into the air.

"'Now, signor, mio!' I called. 'Stand your ground and make good use of your nerves! Look! Be steady, and you may yet escape.'

"But the man who had been metal foes quailed before the powers of nature. He looked up, as he was bidden, but when he saw a cataract of fire falling on his head the cowardice of which he had boasted forsook him, and he incontinently fled.

"For my part, I was not much afraid to fly. I never saw such a shower of stones, and I wonder we were not both demolished. As it was, my companion had scarcely run before he was struck down by these missiles.

"One of them broke his leg, and another stunned him, and I had enough to do to get him out of the cone on my shoulders. Much work we had to take him to Naples, where the hotel keepers and the Italian doctors between them had the pleasing of this precious pigeon for the next six months."—Youth's Companion.

SIXTY MILES AT A RUN.

The Winning Horse Reached the Goal in Four Hours and Twenty-eight Minutes.

The longest horse race in history took place at Deer Lodge, Mon., on Nov. 17, 1870, a distance of 60 miles' continuous running, to test the staying qualities of two local horses called Lizard and Billy Boy, and the stakes were $1,000 a side. The first riders selected were: For Billy Boy, Nat Evans, 90 pounds; Bobby Graham, 68; Eddy Keenan, 75; for Lizard, Tommy Woods, 82 pounds, and Ben Phillips, 84, the intention being to change every 10 or 15 miles, as the articles permitted the horses to go as they pleased between start and stop.

At 12:30 the judges mounted the stand, called up the race, and precisely at 12:30 by the judges' time the horses, the second turn, were off even on the race of 60 miles. Both horses led off slowly, Billy going at an easy lope, leading a length to the quarter post, crossing the stretch a length behind. Time, 4:18. In the second mile Lizard was ahead. The fifth mile was made in 8:16, with Lizard half a mile in the lead. At the end of the eighth mile Billy was a third of a mile behind. Fifteen miles were covered in 1 hour and 16 seconds, both horses being down to steady work and sweating freely. Lizard changed by the competitor on the sixteenth mile and at the end of the eighteenth mile was a mile ahead.

At the end of the twenty-first mile Lizard had gained one mile and one-third. The horses kept pretty well together, Lizard still maintaining his mile lead. The time ranged from 3:45 to 5:50, except on the thirty-fourth mile, which was made by Billy in 5:30 and the third by Lizard in 3:15. In the forty-second mile both horses trotted considerably, Lizard having the advantage, as he compelled a rope from Billy. The backers of Billy, who had been offering large bets, let up a little, but considerable money was still offered and taken. Billy was over a length ahead, but it was evident the attempt to get away from Lizard and make good the last mile was useless, as Billy was going heavy and Lizard was as bright and springy on his feet as in the first mile.

In the forty-eighth mile Billy showed punishment and wanted to quit. Both horses walked past the judges' stand. The 50 miles were run in 3 hours and 35¼ minutes. Billy was given a spurt on the fifty-first mile and wanted to quit at the customer, when he was bled. Lizard kept on taking a good gait and came in in 7:10. In the fifty-third and up to the sixtieth mile Lizard had it all his own way. Colonel Thorpe, the owner of Billy Boy, was willing to give up the race, but that there should be perfect satisfaction sent out his horse, which made the fifty-fourth mile, but on the fifty-fifth mile showed such evident signs of exhaustion, having refused all overtures of the whip and voice to open a trot, that he was led from the track while Lizard was on the fifty-ninth mile.

The game little horse kept up his gait, and he made his sixtieth mile under 8 minutes, and 60 miles in 4 hours, 28 minutes, amid the rousing shouts of the 400 or 500 people who remained to see the race out. He looked good for the rest of a hundred, and apparently did not appreciate the blankets and ribbons with which he was in an instant covered as much as he would another dash around the course. Lizard made the last seven miles in 32½ minutes, miles not noted. Lizard's average time for the race was 4:33.—Denver Field and Farm.

The Maddening Cough.

An editor who goes in largely for the high flown style of writing once began one of his extravagant leading articles in this fashion: "Tomorrow is the anniversary of the death of Louis Philippe."

The editor's pennmanship was not by any means the easiest to decipher, so when the proof was handed to him it read, "Tomorrow is the anniversary of the death of Sam Phillips."

Extremely indignant at what he deemed a wanton insult, he wrathfully wrote on the margin of the proof, "Who the dickens is this Sam Phillips?"

Having reproved the printer in soothing fashion, he went home, but at breakfast in the morning, when he turned with pride to his article, which he considered better than usual, he sprang up in a towering rage on finding it began thus: "Tomorrow is the anniversary of the death of Sam Phillips. Who the dickens is this Sam Phillips?"—Happy Thought.

The war with the Matabeles in South Africa is now said to be ended. The immediate cause of this war was the killing of their cattle by European authorities to stamp out the cattle plague, which wrought such awful havoc all over South Africa. The natives, not understanding civilized sanitary measures, rebelled.

Queen Victoria's rule is to receive no divorced woman at court, whether sinned against or sinning. This rule was recently relaxed in the case of the wife of the late Sir John Millais, who for many years ago was divorced from Ruskin with his consent. The death of Millais was known to be near, and this concession was made as a solace to his last hours.

The latest report of the agricultural department is assurance that the yield of corn will be the greatest ever known. It seems like fiction when the reports figure an acreage of 80,000,000 of 2,223,000,000 bushels. And when the average condition of the crop is stated to be 96, it means a yield per acre of 27.6 bushels on a total acreage of 81,000,000 acres.

The astonishing growth of European cities in the last twenty years is but a movement in population which is general throughout civilized countries. It is unprecedented in history, and only plausible for the fact that increase in civilization is not really accompanied by, but is dependent on, an increase of population. And no fact in economic history is of more far-reaching importance.

Even as late as the beginning of the present century, it was a common thing for a statesman to acquire a picturesque log-cavy day in the week, attend dog fights and cock fights, gamble and indulge in all manner of vicious sport. Compare this with the conduct which the statesman of the present day is required to observe, and ask if public decency has not made some strides.

If M. Bazin's roller steamer, which has just been launched in France, proves successful the greatest revolution in ocean navigation that the world has ever known will be brought about. But until it is conclusively proven that the new idea is better than the old the ships of the world will continue to cut through the waves instead of climbing over them. It is too early to think of selling the Campania, the Lucania, the St. Louis, the St. Paul, the Paris and the New York as old junk.

Li Hung Chang is said to be a plain, blunt man in the way of talking, and it is reported that he makes it a practice, whenever he is introduced to a lady, to ask her her age. He explains that this is a polite custom in China, and that the ladies of that country always respond with pleasure to such a rule. We so, but Li will find, if he attempts to show this kind of politeness when he comes here, that there is no reason balance between American women and Chinese women.

The Smithsonian Institute declares its belief that the sea-serpent is not a myth. Two of the professors, Drs. Brown and Bean, have issued a pamphlet on this subject, in which they take the ground that at the sea's utmost depth, there may exist living creatures unknown to science, which, by coming occasionally to the surface, give foundation to the stories about this marine monster which are usually regarded as fabulous.

New York physicians announce a new theory of the cause of sunstroke. Instead of the sun's rays being the direct cause, as has been supposed all along by the medical profession, it is now claimed that the internal chemistry of the body and its secretions are so modified by atmospheric conditions or excessively hot weather that some of these secretions become abnormal, either in quality or quantity, and produce a toxic effect. In plain words, it means that an individual overcome by the heat is poisoned.

SCOTCH FIRE WORSHIP.

The Interesting Ceremony of Burning of the Clavie.

Burghead, in Elginshire, is unique in one respect. It has "the burning of the clavie." It is celebrated on a certain night every New Year's eve, old style. It is supposed to be a relic of pagan times, and is not known in any other community. It is said, in Britain, that the clavie is made by one of the two clavie consists of half an archangel tar barrel fixed on the top of a pole about four feet long. A Novel Solution of the Currency Question Suggested by the

LOWELL MORNING TIMES.

The Times says: It recently happened that a friend of Lowell, who is poor, but is still due to a friend who is a medical missionary in British India. The friend from whom the currency question suggested that it be paid in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which he said it reckoned

"As Good as Gold!"

On application to the J. C. Ayer Co., they readily accepted it at their value, and their agents for a quantity of Sarsaparilla to an exact equivalent to the face of the bill. A letter dated Kaburi, India, Oct. 18, has just been received at Lowell, which says: "The Sarsaparilla was duly received and as it has a greater market value here, I have converted into cash with the utmost facility. Whatever may be the views of other monetarists and the medicinal value of their currency, in this fact remains, that Ayer's Sarsaparilla is so well known in India that it has a money value, depending upon the fluctuation in the value of

as much as cotton or other staples. This is not the case with any other preparation of American manufacture. The natives of this country are very conservative, and unless an article is well known they are shy about using it. A native will buy a bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla from ally dispensary and walk off with it without asking a single question as to its purity or curative qualities. This is the first time I do not remember to have made whatever one of the statement you have made. The success of Ayer's Sarsaparilla in this country alone, what judicious advertising and meritorious qualities has accomplished. If I had a quantity of any medicine I would prefer Ayer's Sarsaparilla to any other. I have taken many over, for I know that I could get my money back in the former case, whereas in the other I should have to retail it bottle by bottle to get back the value of my money. As a currency Ayer's Sarsaparilla might be considered, but one thing I would say, and you'd always get the value of the dollar invested in it."

A New Feature of the X Rays.

Little is yet known of the physiological effects of the Roentgen rays. Various theories have been made as experimenters of loss of sensation, and inflammation of the eyelids, upper lips and tip of the nose. But all of these are generally somewhat of the nature of sunburn, but one statement appears to be well enough to have been made to investigate the causes of these phenomena. It came, however, of the deleterious influence of X rays on the human body has been proved in New York, which, with its usual speedy and well quickly. A Cohoes dentist, who has been experimenting with the X rays past been giving exhibitions in the vicinity of the city. For the past four days he would work around his apparatus from two to three hours morning and evening. He was compelled to cease active work for a while. The first sign was a swelling of his skin, which afterwards became so painful that all operations had to be stopped. The hands began to swell, and assumed the appearance of having a very deep sunburn. At the end of last weeks the skin all came off the hands. The knuckles were the most singular part of the hand. Among other effects noted were the following: The growth of the finger nails was stopped, and the hair on the skin that was exposed to the rays fell directly out, especially on the face and sides of the head. The hair at the temples disappeared entirely, owing to the constant placing of the head in close proximity to the tube to enable spectators to see the bones of the jaw. The eyes were quite bloodshot, and the eyelids was considerably inspired. The eyelashes began to fall out and the lids to swell. The chest was also burned through the clothing, the burn resembling sunburn. Finally, work has to be given up for two weeks, the physicians who treated the case recommending it as one of pure boiling. The coating of the hand in vaseline and placing it in a rubber glove gave no protection whatever. The hand was eventually protected by covering it with tin foil. The lesson derived from this painful experience seeks all those who have been in a similar position to communicate to any electrical journal their experiences and attendant phenomena, with a view to the determination of the physiological qualities of the Roentgen rays.

Mammoth Clover.

A correspondent inquires about English clover. On seeking the subject up in our authorities, encyclopedias, reports of the department of agriculture, etc., we are surprised to find that no mention is made of English clover. It seems that clover of no kind is native to that island. The common red variety was introduced there from continental Europe about 1650, and soon became popular and has been so ever since. They grow a variety called the Mammoth, or sapling clover, and we think this is sometimes incorrectly called English clover. This large variety is excellent for fertilizing the soil, but unless cut quite green is not good much as forage. The stalks become quite large very soon after they start, and will not cut them, so that a large part of the plant is wasted.

Mr. Wallace, in his book on Clover, Culture, says of it: "While the Mammoth is far inferior to the common red as a hay crop, and, therefore, we do not advise its cultivation when such a hay crop is the main object, it has very important advantages to the farmer who has exhausted the fertility of his land by long years of cultivation in wheat, corn, oats and flax and who is not in a single either to buy live stock or to provide the shelter necessary to keep them at a profit. In such cases as this we advise the sowing of Mammoth clover with every crop of spring grain, even though it be the intention to plow it up the succeeding year. It comes in bloom two or three weeks later than red clover, and on this account is often sown with the red, when intended for pasture, as it prolongs the season considerably."—Indiana Farmer.

Blown From a Train.

"I do not suppose that once in a hundred times we ever learn the real cause of a railroad accident," said a man who is well posted on such matters, "except in any one of the principals concerned is killed. In individual cases, where a man is lost from a train, and his body is found beside the track, the usual solution is the first thing suggested; but you can never tell. A peculiar accident happened to a friend of mine. He was traveling Eastward with some friends. He left them for a few minutes to go to the smoking car. As he crossed from one car to the other a gust was before the time of the westbound train—a strong wind that was blowing struck him and blew him to the ground. He was wearing a large circular coat, and acted as a balloon as he flated with wind, and it was responsible for his being blown off the train, as well as for the fact that he landed on his feet unhurt. He walked some distance to the nearest station and telegraphed ahead to his friends that he was all right and would come on by the next train. If he had been killed, every one would have said that he met the possibility of a man being blown from a train would seem to be an absurd idea."

Special Foods for Poultry.

Philip Snyder, writing in the Country Gentleman, thinks the hen's gizzard is a sort of chemical laboratory that converts the disgusting and repulsive things she may eat into savory and wholesome eggs and flesh, but at excessive diet of nastiness might, in time, alter the quality of her eggs. She has too much sense, however, to confine herself to such food, and may be allowed to eat anything she wants to. Mr. Snyder's idea is that too much stress is given to the fact of nutrition that special foods should be fed in order to produce wholesome eggs.

A Supreme Test.

"I knew that the wind would tax one," said little Maud Ethel, "but really, I did not have any idea that its gentle breeze from a fan could have any effect."

"It doesn't," said Flora Belle.

"Then what do all these articles in the papers about fan-tan mean?"—Indianapolis Journal.

The Japanese despise women who become intoxicated. Consequently it is rarely that a woman of Japan is seen drunk.

If his accomplice had deceived him! If he had not had the imprudent audacity to conceal his share of the spoil! If sparticus!! as much as cotton or other staples. This is not the case with any other preparation of American manufacture. The natives of this country are very conservative, and unless an article is well known they are shy about using it. A native will buy a bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla from ally dispensary and walk off with it without asking a single question as to its purity or curative qualities. This is the first time I do not remember to have made whatever one of the statement you have made. The success of Ayer's Sarsaparilla in this country alone, what judicious advertising and meritorious qualities has accomplished. If I had a quantity of any medicine I would prefer Ayer's Sarsaparilla to any other. I have taken many over, for I know that I could get my money back in the former case, whereas in the other I should have to retail it bottle by bottle to get back the value of my money. As a currency Ayer's Sarsaparilla might be considered, but one thing I would say, and you'd always get the value of the dollar invested in it."

A New Feature of the X Rays.

Little is yet known of the physiological effects of the Roentgen rays. Various theories have been made as experimenters of loss of sensation, and inflammation of the eyelids, upper lips and tip of the nose. But all of these are generally somewhat of the nature of sunburn, but one statement appears to be well enough to have been made to investigate the causes of these phenomena. It came, however, of the deleterious influence of X rays on the human body has been proved in New York, which, with its usual speedy and well quickly. Lightning Played Havoc.

A severe electrical storm visited this section on Tuesday afternoon during which time the Northern Pacific refrigerator building standing near the railroad track between Fourth and Fifth streets, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. Immediately following the blinding flash came the terrific thunder, and many people saw the bolt strike the building splintering it in many places from top to bottom, and in an instant flames of fire burst out of the roof and ends. The department turned out at once in the blinding storm and did effective work in saving the ice house and adjoining buildings. The building was owned by J. H. Koop and contained 600 bushels of oats in bins. It was insured for $800. During the progress of the fire lightning struck in several places in the city, splintering many electric light poles, and in one instance knocking two men down who were in the Last Turn saloon, but no serious damage resulted.

On the same afternoon the depot at Crow Wing was burned caused from lightning and much of the contents of the building detroyed.

Ordained a Pastor.

A council called according to Congregational usage met at the Second Congregational church of this city on Wednesday at 2 p. m. to advise in regard to the ordination and installation of M. B. Bird. Rev. T. M. Edmands was chosen moderator and Rev. D. M. Cram, of Staples, scribe. It was voted unanimously, after a thorough examination of the candidate, to proceed to the ordination and at 7:30 p. m. the installation services were held, at which time Rev. J. H. B. Smith preached the sermon. Ordaining prayer, Rev. J. C. Huntington. Charge to the pastor, Rev. C. H. Patton, of Duluth. Charge to the people, Rev. T. Merrill Edmands.

Besides the above named gentlemen Rev. Brown, of Aitkin, and several lady delegates from Walker and Staples were in attendance.

The Second Congregational church is starting on an era of prosperity under the leadership of Rev. M. B. Bird. The congregations have increased and it is hoped that by another year a new church building will be erected.

Information Wanted.

Thomas Finley, who lives at Whiskey Creek on the Pine River road, was in the city to-day in search of his son, a lad 11 years of age. Mr. Finley says that on Wednesday evening he sent his boy after the cows, and he has not been seen since. The cows came home, but the lad was not with them, and the father is nearly crazed with the thought that he has been drowned. The lad had on a pair of blue jean overhauls and a striped shirt and any information will be gladly received by the grief stricken parents.

Pure Leaf Lard.

Pure steam rendered leaf lard, three pounds for 25 cents. Special prices for larger quantities.

Superstitions of the Seventeenth Century.

That it is very ill lucke to have a hare crosse one in the highway. That to have yellow speckles on the nailes of one's hand is a great signe of death. That when the left cheeke burnes, it is a signe some bodie talkes well of you, but if the right cheeke burnes it is a signe of ill. That when a man's nose bleeds but a drop or two, that is a signe of ill lucke. That when a man's nose bleeds but one drop, and at the left nostril, it is a signe of good lucke, but on the right ill. That if a man stumbles in a morning as soone as he comes out of doors, it is a signe of ill lucke. That if a man walking in the fields finds any foure leaved grasse, he shall in a small while after finde some good thing. That it is not good to put on a new sute, pare one's nailes, or begin anything on a Chilldermas day. That if a man be drowsie, it is a signe of ill lucke. That it is a signe of ill lucke to finde money. That it is naught for a man or woman to lose their hose garter. —Notes and Queries.

A Reader That Interests Sleep.

The Hydract yeti is a native of South Africa, and, taken all around, he is a curiousity in the reptile line. Unlike the regulation snake, he has no teeth in his mouth, but has a full set of grinders in his stomach. These dental wonders grow from the center of each vertebra. They pass through the walls of the stomach and are each crowned with enamel. Hydract is the champion egg sucker, and the teeth in the stomach appear to be nature's provision for breaking the shell of the egg without running the risk of losing the precious contents. When the egg lands in the stomach and the serpent's instinct tells it that everything is all right, the abdominal walls contract and the egg is crushed against the long row of vertebral teeth.—St. Louis Republic.

Where to Find Appreciation.

Is it talk wasted for an unmarried woman to boast of her economy to an unmarried man. A man never appreciates economy in a woman until after he has married a woman who doesn't practice it.—Atchison Globe.

LOUIS TAOMS, Co. Auditor.

Brainerd the Banner City.

Mr. Geo. Empey, who was a Brainerd last Tuesday looking up the Cass county matter, says that Brainerd is the banner Republican city of the state. They have a McKinley and Morris club with a membership of nearly 700, and everyone seems to be taking an active interest in politics. Townsend says there will be very much on the "slim" order.—Verndale Sun.

FOR FIVE CENTS A DAY

The Public Can Secure a Practical and Thorough Education.

The Duluth News-Tribune has a number of representatives in this city engaged in advertising that paper. The paper has undertaken an educational work, and is now pulling out the Encyclopedic Dictionary, a publication of great worth. The work in question consists of a total of 5,859 pages, divided into four immense volumes. It is delivered to the purchasers immediately and paid for at the rate of five cents a day.

People interested in the work are requested to drop a postal card to Charles S. Donilon, at the Arlington, and sample sheets of the work will be forwarded to them at once, together with an explanation of the method of making payments.

This rule our mothers followed when roasting meats in their cast-iron stoves. We are now living in another day. The rule does not apply by any means to the

Majestic Steel Range

The MAJESTIC oven operates upon a new and scientific principle. When meat is roasted in the oven (which is an air-tight compartment), the natural juices are preserved. Bread baked in it is sweet and moist, and will keep so for days.

The MAJESTIC is like no other stove you ever saw. It is better than any other.
