Gov. Clough has issued a proclamation fixing Saturday, May 29th as Memorial Day.

STAPLES has a new paper in the Tribune which has just reached our table, and it is a newsy sheet, well filled with advertising matter.

THE new judicial district, composed of Wright, Sherburne, Anoka and Isanti counties, will be presided over by Judge J. B. Tarbox, whose appointment has just been made.

THE city council of Grand Forks has passed an ordinance requiring all dealers in cigarettes to pay a license of $100 per annum. There is a move that will help kill the cigarette habit.

THE board of examiners of barbers, or the tensorial board to speak properly, has been appointed by the governor and consist of J. V. Matthews, of Fergus Falls, Paul Pettit, of Minneapolis, and M. E. Murry, of St. Paul.

THE Minneapolis Times publishes reports from New York to the effect that many prominent capitalists interested in the Northern Pacific are firmly opposed to the Hill plan of consolidation, and that it may be defeated.

THE governor on Wednesday announced the members of his staff, and Morrison county gets two places, Col. Edgar Hoover, Little Falls, and Major I. W. Bonck, of Royalton. These gentlemen will attend the junketing party this year and next to the national guard encampments and other places.

AT Crookston the president of the local gun club has been arrested on the charge of discharging fire arms within the city limits by some person who has a grievance against the club. This would materially affect several clubs in Minnesota if they were obliged to move their grounds outside the city limits.

INSTEAD of distributing 100,000,000 pike fry in the lakes and rivers of the state, as it was planned to do this spring the fish and game commission is somewhat concerned as to whether it is going to have any considerable number for stocking the waters of the state this year. The annual expedition to Pike river, near Tower was a failure, as the pike did not get to the headwaters as usual to spawn on account of the high water.

THAT the Northern Pacific will greatly improve their roadbed the coming season is evidenced by the fact that they received bids on Saturday last from various railroad contractors at St. Paul for moving some 500,000 cubic yards of earth on that line. The improvements to be made this summer contemplate a considerable work in reducing grades and surfacing the track between Staples and Little Falls; the reduction of grades at Winnipeg Junction; the same at Mandan, and the widening of the cuts along the Yellowstone river in Montana.

Minnesota is Recognized.

On Wednesday at Washington Henry A. Castle the veteran citizen of St. Paul, was nominated to be auditor of the postoffice department; Stanford Newell of St. Paul, was named as minister to the Netherlands; Tams Bixby of Red Wing, Choctow Indian commissioner, August F. George to be receiver of public moneys at the land office at Crookston. Speaking of Mr. Bixby's appointment, the Washington dispatches say:

Considerable surprise was manifested over Bixby's selection as a member of the Dawas Indian commission. It was supposed that the president had made up his mind to nominate Bixby for United States treasurer. The place given him today, however, is said to be one that he can accept. It pays a salary of $5,000 per annum and the duties are exceedingly light. It is what most people would call a sinecure. Senator Nelson, however, designates Bixby's place as a "snap." It is said that Bixby can hold his place and reside in Minnesota the greater portion of his time.

The Passing of the Old Soldier.

Referring to the rapidity with which the survivors of the late war are answering the roll call of death the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says: The Grand Army is dying at the rate of 100 a day. Every 15 minutes of the 24 hours the final tap sounds for some one who wore the blue. Each year puts under the sod more old soldiers than there are enlisted men and officers in the United States army. Time is carrying them off faster in the nineties than bullets in the sixties. The war lasted four years to a month. In those four years 115,000 men fell in battle on the Union side. But now between 35,000 and 40,000 die in the course of nature each succeeding 12 months. And for every three Union soldiers who went to fame's eternal camping ground two confederates are numbered with the dead.

Luther Large Percentage.

Of the 2,000 elk in Yellowstone Park, 7,500 are estimated to have died of starvation last winter.

Tough on Marin.

Our distinguished member in the house, Wm. Marin, succeeded in getting an appropriation of $450 for roads and bridges, for Polk county, and it only cost us $500 and perquisites to keep him there—well done, good and faithful servant.—Polk Co. Journal.

WORK OF THE COUNCIL.

R. R. Wise is Ordered to Clean up Main Street, and the Episcopal Ladies are Granted Permission to Close Seventh Street During Their Fair.

The city council met on Monday evening with all members present except Ald. McGinn.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, after which the appointment of Sidney Hockridge as special policeman without pay by Mayor Nevers was confirmed.

Reports of different officers of the city were received, read and filed.

The following bills were audited and ordered paid.

The city clerk was instructed to notify R. R. Wise to have the sand placed by him on Main street, removed at once.

The matter of filling and grading Fifth street was referred to the street committee with power to act.

Permission was granted T. E. Smith to fence that part of the street between Hartley bridge and his property.

The city clerk was instructed to notify the owners of Lots 15, 16, 17 and 18, Block 44, at the corner of Main and Sixth streets, to have the sidewalks adjoining the same, repaired at once.

Upon recommendation of the fire committee the clerk was instructed to notify the Water company to have a hydrant put in at the corner of Gillis and Farrar streets.

The fire committee was instructed to accept the offer of A. L. Hoffman & Co. to furnish carpet and two dozen chairs for the fire department rooms for $42.70.

The request of Mr. Katz to pay junk dealers' license on the installment plan, was laid on the table until the next regular meeting.

The proposition of J. F. McGinnis & Co. to furnish sidewalk lumber to the city for $9 per thousand, was referred to the purchasing committee.

The claim of Mary and William Waldrof for $500 each against the City of Brainerd, were referred to the city attorney.

The request of the ladies of the Episcopal church for permission to close Seventh street, between Kingwood and Juniper, for three days in September for a fair, was granted.

M. R. Swartz was granted permission to fence his trees to protect them in the street.

The request of the executive committee of the G. A. R. for permission to use the city park during their encampment, was granted.

Council adjourned.

A Year of Successful Work.

The following report of the American S. S. Union has been handed us by Rev. Archibald Speers, the local representative of the union for publication.

Although the year closing March 1, 1897, has been marked by continued financial stringency, yet it has pleased God to grant his abundant blessing to the missionary work of the American Sunday-School Union.

Gifts from friends have contributed to its support, so that $3464.80 more have been received from living givers than in the year preceding; and there has been an increase of $961.20 from funds invested by direction of the donors. But $13,469.50 less have been received from legacies, so that as the net result there has been a reduction in the receipts of the Society of $13,343.50. At the begining of the fiscal year, however, in view of a possible reduction in receipts, the Board reduced the expenditures of the Society as a matter of precaution.

There have been in the field 127 men under commission, of whom 86 were at work during the whole year and 41 during a portion of it. Many of them have from 5 to 30 counties for their field. As one result of their labors, 1603 new Sunday-schools were organized, with 61,600 teachers and scholars, 287 were reorganized, and given for the first time to 1473 existing schools, with 113,976 teachers and scholars; and 5858 visits were made to school previously reported, with 326,168 teachers and scholars.

Six hundred and sixty-nine schools were aided also by gifts of literature from the home office in Philadelphia. Of these, in this large number of feeble schools set to work and aided, the missionaries have been active in overtaxing labors, with the most successful results. It has often been impossible to obtain an exact statement of the precise number of "summer conversions" being mentioned, and only partial reports in many cases being given. And yet, excluding all such indefinite statements, the very large number of 8533 hopeful conversions has been reported as resulting from the work of these energetic and faithful men. They also made 94,378 visits to families for religious instruction and prayer, and distributed 6542 Bibles and 7870 Testaments. The organization of churches has followed the establishment of Union Sunday-schools in 109 cases.

It is because of such results as these that this Society still retains its strong hold upon the Christian people of our country.

Convention of City Teachers.

Hon. W. W. Pendergast, superintendent of public instruction of the state of Minnesota, came up from St. Paul last Tuesday, by invitation of City Sup't M. H. Carleton, to meet with the Brainerd city teachers in convention. Superintendent Pendergast and Carleton visited all the schools in the Lincoln and High School buildings before the afternoon session of the convention. Schools were dismissed at 3 o'clock. As soon as the High School room was cleared of the pupils, it began to fill with teachers and citizens, and when the hour had arrived for the session to begin, 3:30 o'clock, the large and beautifully decorated High School room was literally packed with Brainerd's most intelligent and cultured people.

Rev. M. B. Bird, of the Second Congregational church, opened the session with prayer.

Miss Woods gave an exercise, "Development of Cube Root," which was very interesting.

Next there was some fine music from a chorus of girl pupils of the High School, led by Miss Sara Jansen, assistant principal.

Several teachers had prepared papers on interesting topics, which others were to discuss, but after a consultation it was decided to postpone the reading of said papers until the next meeting of the teachers, all agreeing that they preferred to give the time to State Sup't Pendergast.

Hon. W. W. Pendergast was then introduced. He has a large, well-balanced physique, crowned with sixty years of thinking, experience and culture. He gave a lengthy talk in a very instructive, entertaining and often humorous way. We are unable in this report to give even a satisfactory outline of his very able address. The teachers listened closely and were doubtless much benefited by what he said.

After he had concluded his remarks there was music by the chorus of young ladies.

Sup't Carleton then read a paper extolling the teachers' profession, and exhorting the teachers of Brainerd to make greater advancement. He told them that in the main their work had been very satisfactory to him, and that they had done well, grandly, nobly. He also spoke highly of the good work of the janitors and janitresses of the schools.

Then the chorus of young ladies rendered another very fine piece of music, under the direction of Miss Jansen.

THE EVENING SESSION.

Tuesday evening a large audience gathered at the Presbyterian church to listen to speaking by Mr. Pendergast and others. The session opened with prayer by Rev. W. H. Travis, pastor of the First Baptist church.

The Presbyterian choir, composed of Mrs. A. L. Nutting and Miss Mahlum, and Messrs. Thompson and Pennell, with Prof. Coutu as organist, rendered some especially fine music at intervals during the evening.

Rev. D. D. McKay, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, gave a short but excellent address on the subject of "Education and Teachers' Qualifications."

Secretary Pennell, of the Board of Education, read a carefully prepared and very interesting paper on "Brander and Her Schools." It was highly appreciated by all.

Mr. Pendergast's subject was "Thinking Through the Rockies," and he gave a delightful description of the Yellowstone Park.

Wednesday forenoon Messrs. Pendergast and Carleton visited the Whittier, Lowell and Harrison schools. The former expressed himself as being very highly pleased with the schools of Brainerd. He left Wednesday noon to return to St. Paul. While he was in the city he was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Carleton at the Tabor Hotel.

THE CINEMATOSCOPE

Will be in Brainerd all of Next Week, Producing a Wonderful Display of Animated, Life Moving Pictures.

Lemaire's Cinematoscope, one of the most wonderful inventions of modern times, will be at Sleeper Opera House in this city all next week.

Nothing like this was ever seen in Brainerd before. It is the most perfect animated picture machine in the world. It is a marvel of scientific production. And is accompanied by a micro-phonograph, which is a material aid. People and objects move on the curtain with an exact similarity to real life. Such a thing as the production of animated pictures was never known until the invention was made a year or so ago. It has astonished the world. We have been trying for six months to get this production for Brainerd, and have at last succeeded, and at popular prices, too. Reserved seats 25 and 35 cents, general admission 25 cents, and gallery 15 cents.

LADIES' FREE NIGHT.

For the opening night, Monday, May 10th, every person, lady or gent, who holds a paid reserved seat ticket will be entitled to one lady's admission and reserved seat free. The reserved seat sale is now open at E. F. Atwood's drug store.

A Tremendous 30 Days' Sale!

Having just returned from the east where I have searched the markets through and through, and taken advantage of every forced condition, I have made some of the Best Purchases ever made for first-class merchandise, closing lots of lines at about half the actual manufacturers prices. In some instance we had to buy very large quantities, and fearing that we have overreached ourselves, we intend to give the PUBLIC the GREATEST VALUES in

Men's, Boys' and Children's Clothing,

Underwear, Hosiery, Hats, Caps,

Furnishing Goods, Men's, Women's & Children's Shoes,

that has ever been given to mankind. As the goods are just being opened, we can't quote any prices in this issue, we only need to say that our prices will prove the exact truth of this statement.

Homes Under the Ground.

In the salt district in Cheshire, England, the brine has been pumped so continuously out of the earth that the land has settled very considerably. The houses naturally sink with the earth, and in some of the streets in Northwich only the roofs are visible. The houses are inhabited, although the rooms are underground. In a great many cases additional stories have been added, so that by living in the upper rooms the residents may have some light and air. The roadways sink, too, but are kept up to the proper level by the government.—New York Sun.

"Oh, I know all about these Scotch marriages," he said. "Marry the girl now." And so they were wed.

The International Postal Congress, which meets at Washington in May, will probably consider the adoption of a special stamp having uniform value in all the countries of the Postal Union. Such a stamp could be used in payment for small orders of goods. It would be greatly facilitating international exchanges that the argument seems all in its favor, but a journal devoted to "collectors" gives amusing evidence of the extent to which a "hobby" may influence one's views on such a question. The stamp would be "so convenience in several ways," it is admitted, "yet it is to be hoped that in the interests of philately it may not be adopted."

By direction of Congress and the President the Secretary of the Navy has placed a warship at the command of the Christian Herald Bible House, New York, for the purpose of transporting any corn that generous farmers of this country may donate to their starving Russian brothers in Asia. Ten thousand people are dying there every day of starvation. It is likely that their cry for bread will be materially responded to by the farmers of the west and south. Every community should be ready to send a carload of corn that is now going to waste for want of a market. Committees proposing to co-operate should write to the Christian Herald. Wheat and other unperishable products will be taken.

An association recently organized in one of the suburbs of Dayton, O., has an idea which ought to be profitably adopted in many smaller towns. The association, according to Garden and Forest, has been formed for the purpose of beautifying the streets, the unimproved property, and the public grounds by proper planting, by promoting a general interest in gardening, and by systematic efforts to abate nuisances and to control the location of houses so far as possible. Lectures are given, with views, to show how house surroundings can be made attractive, and the newspaper reports say that this part of Dayton has shown marked improvement in appearance. Prizes are offered by the association for the best example of planting in individual grounds, together with the results in roadways, gutters, curbs, sidewalks, and general appearance of the houses. Prizes are also offered to boys for the best vegetable gardens, as well as prizes open to boys and girls for the best back yards, whether planted with flowers, shrubbery, climbers or grass. Photographs are to be taken of the cultivated gardens, with particular sections and decorations of the streets entered in competitions, and a neat pamphlet has been published containing views of the prize-winning grounds last year, and also containing good advice about trees, shrubs, and climbers with the methods of planting and caring for them.

The influence which may be exerted by one person is admirably illustrated in the case of a young Indian who returned to North Dakota after graduating at Hampton. He had learned there to wash and iron and bake bread, all of which was teaching to his relatives and friends; and after buying a dress for his mother he carried it to a missionary and begged her to tell him what explained that he had never been taught to make dresses, but that with a sample to felt sure he could teach even that art to the Indian women.

The intemperate use of adjectives is a form of literary disease. Total abstinence from adjectives is not practical, but a moderate use of that part of speech is essential to the best style. One learned Nansen discovered the Royal Geographical society says that in the whole discourse, lasting more than an hour, there was not a superfluous adjective.

An English woman who is expert in palmistry says American women are among her best customers, and she attributes this fact to their vanity. A better reason, however, may be that they have handsome hands.

When a husband milks the cow and allows his wife to keep the money made by selling the milk, all the neighborhood women see a halo around his head whenever they look at him.

It must be nice to be a Methodist preacher; every three or four years he has to move, and the people say as nice things of him as if he had died.

When a man makes a vigorous kick it is usually a sign that he did something yesterday that does not please him today.

Heart Failure

Of course the heart fails to act when a man dies, but "Heart Failure," so called, nine times out of ten is caused by Uric Acid in the blood which the Kidneys fail to remove, and which corrodes the heart until it becomes unable to perform its functions.

Health Officers in many cities very properly refuse to accept "Heart Failure," as a cause of death. It is frequently a sign of ignorance in the physician, or may be given to cover up the real cause.

Mrs. Bunker: You ought to have been in church Sunday, dear. The rector preached a sermon that would, I think, have interested you very much.

Mrs. Duckey: Indeed, what was the subject?

Mrs. Bunker: "The Art of Growing Old Gracefully."

They say the ensuing proceedings were fruitful.

Getting Ridiculous.

"Well," said the man without a newspaper, "what is the news from abroad today? How is the concert of the powers getting along?"

"Poorly, I should judge," said the disgusted man with more news than he wanted. "It seems to have been turned into a very low class, combination show vaudeville."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

LOVE AND PREJUDICE.

BY AMY RANDOLPH.

BUT, Hal, you would like her," said Col. Vandyke. "I am certain of it."

"That is where I disagree with you," remarked Halleck Dane. "A proud, haughty lineage, accustomed to have every one fall down and worship at her shrine!"

"A dear, gentle little girl, with just spirit and sparkle enough to redeem her from the charge of insipidity," protested Col. Vandyke. "Come, forego your prejudices, Hal, and accompany me to Miss Weyling's reception tonight, and I will present you to our little Queen of Love and Beauty."

"I have always said," he declared, with quiet decision, "that my wife should not be selected in the glare and glitter of a ballroom. My regrets to Miss Weyling, and my thanks to yourself, but I have some letters to write this evening, and I must make a hermit of myself for the time being."

Col. Vandyke shook his head.

"No, Hal, you are the Wilderness," said he, "but if you die a wretched bachelor, lay no the blame to me."

Mr. Dane laughed, but the smile died away from his lips as he entered the twilight solitude of the village street.

"I would not be introduced to Miss Durande," he said to himself, "in a manly time and individuality are his yet, I hope, but I have no surplus leisure to waste in heroic impulses."

Halleck Dane had been physician in charge of the Lindley hospital for three months now. Lindley was a gay little town, with a military station close by, half a dozen churches, a town hall, an athenæum, and several manufactories.

Dane avoided making the acquaintance of Miss Durande, the belle and beauty of the place. In fact, he had not even seen her as yet.

"I came here to work, not to flirt," he said, brusquely.

Miss Dorella Durande did not understand this in the least. She was a pretty, if sweet natured young girl, who liked all the world, and expected all the world to like her. And she had also reluctantly made up her mind that Dr. Dane must want to cultivate her acquaintance.

Let him go," said Dorella, pretending not to care a pin's point. "There are plenty of pleasant people in Lindley without him!"

And after that she was careful to time her visits to the hospital so that she would not meet the physician in charge.

"I can't give up my poor, sick people," said Dorella, "but I won't have my evening scientist contemptuously overlooking me."

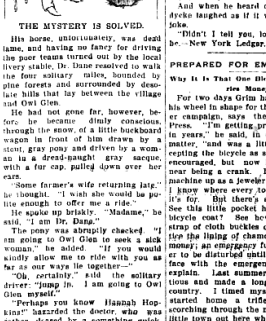
"Of all nights in the year for old Hannah Hopkins to fall sick—on the edge of Owl Glen!" said Dr. Dane, looking dolorously at his order tablet, as he shook the snow off his coat collar in front of the fire. "I suppose we have been sitting up for it—she's old and poor, and has no troops of friends to rally to her aid."



THE MYSTERY IS SOLVED.

His horse, unfortunately, was dead lame, and driving or fancy for driving the poor teams turned out by the local livery stable, Dr. Dane resolved to walk the four miles or more, bounded by pine forests and surrounded by desolate hills that lay between the village and Owl Glen.

He had not gone far, however, before he became dimly conscious, through the snow, of a little buckboard wagon in front of him drawn by a stout, gray pony and driven by a woman in a dread-naught gray sacque, with a fur cap pulled down over her ears.

Some farmer's wife returning late," he thought. "I wish she would be public enough to offer me a ride. I am heard to say yesterday that she had made up her mind to have a husband before the new year was out, and that almost any old thing would do.—Somerville Journal.

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

Without waiting for an answer, she led the pony around the corner of the house and vanished as it were into a white wilderness, while Dr. Dane opened the door and went into the sick room, where he wretched old octogenarian lay groaning by the light of a pine wood fire alone.

"Well, Hannah," said he, cheerfully, "how are you?"

But instead of answering, the old woman screwed up her eyes to peer past him into the gloom, as if expecting to see another figure enter.

"I knew you would come, pretty one," she said. "You always come where there is pain or trouble or heavy hearts, my queen."

"So," said Dr. Dane to himself, "it is neither Miss Martineau nor myself on Otway's wife. I wonder who it is."

All that wild, tempestuous night the doctor kept vigil at Hannah Hopkins' bedside, and, in his secret heart, the doctor confessed that he had never seen a gentler compassion, a more tender heart, a stronger fortitude, than that of his unknown companion. And in the dawn, at daybreak, the angel of set the prisoned spirit free, and they sat alone by the corpse, Dr. Dane spoke out:

"We can do no more for the poor creature," said he. "She's at rest, now, and with her Father and Friend."

"No," said the girl, quietly. "I shall stay here until some of the village people come. I will not leave her, poor soul!"

"Can I send some one?" he asked.

"If you choose. I do not like to leave you alone."

"Do not be afraid," she said, a little scornfully.

Miss Durande," cried the woman, the minute her eye fell on the slight figure at the bedside, "you never mean to say that you have been here all night! But I don't believe old Hannah could have died without you, she was that fond of you. Heaven bless your sweet face!"

Dr. Dane started, feeling the color mount to his face.

"Ah!" said he, striving to speak of indifferent mystery is solved! You are Miss Durande!"

"Yes," she said, "I am Miss Durande. I did not reveal my identity before, because I knew you did not like me, Dr. Dane."

"And I do like you," said the doctor, impulsively. "It was only my fancied ideal of Miss Durande that I disliked!"

"Was it just to be judge, jury and executioner, without even allowing the poor defendant to put in a plea?" asked Dorella.

"It was cowardly and base," admitted Dr. Dane. "Can you forgive me, do. But I shall find it impossible to forgive myself."

The two fates held out her hand with a most fascinating smile beginning to dimple the corners of her perfect mouth.

Of course the sequel remains to be told. Of course Dr. Dane and Dorella Durande liked each other all the better, now, for having so heartily despised each other for a day. And one day Dr. Hal told Miss Durande that he liked her better than any one else in the world—and Miss Durande's fan rapidly confessed that "she loved him—oh, so dearly!"

And when he heard of it, Col. Vandyke laughed as if it were a supreme joke.

"I didn't I tell you, long ago?" said he.—New York Ledger.

PREPARED FOR EMERGENCIES.

Why It Is That One Bicycle Rider Carries Two Rifles.

For two days Grim has been getting his wheel in shape for the warm weather. Of course he is a "scorcher." Said Press. "I'm getting pretty well along in years," he said, in discussing the matter, "and was a little slow in accepting the bicycle as something to be encouraged, but now I come pretty near being a crank. I'm the only machine up as a jeweler would a watch. I know where every tool is and what it's for. But there's another reason. See this little pocket here inside my bicycle coat? See how the thing strap of cloth buckles over it, and so ties the lining of chamois. That's for money; an emergency fund that is never to be disturbed until I come face to face with the emergency. Now, I'll explain. Last summer I grew ambitious and made a long run into the country. I timed myself wrong and started home a little late. It was scorching through the main street of a little town out here when a big fellow came out of a saloon and I ran over his leg like a colossus, threw his arms out and yelled 'Halt!' I halted and was promptly bound that I owed $2 for riding without a lamp. I tried to explain, but the big constable was not there for arguments. He was there on the ground that he couldn't fine me and that I at least had the right to a trial. I knew I'd only be roped, but I found guilty. Didn't I ketch you at it? Is there any lantern hitched to that ole velocipede of yours? You settle or go later th' caleboose. You can't come 'round here tellin' me nuthin' bout the ordinances. This is the magistrate.' My chief trouble was that I had no money. I had left home with a few dollars, and there was no provision on that route. After a long plea I got the officer to take my bicycle as security till I could come to Detroit for money. Then I broke for the station, where I knew a train would soon be. But it came upon me like a thing out shock that it takes cash to ride on railroads. I left the $10 bill I showed the agent before I could get a ticket. If such a thing should occur again there will be money right here in this little pocket."

She Saw.

On a recent afternoon, says the Washington Post, a large, stout lady—good looking, too—passed by the messengers who guard the gate of the steps along which it reverently ascended for the press. As she went by one of the messengers said: "That is private, madam." "Oh, I just want to look out of the window," she replied, and walked on. The messenger hurried after her and continued, "But that is private, and you are not permitted to go back there." "Oh, you can come with me if you want to," she replied, smiling at him sweetly. "I want to see what is to be seen from this window." And she did.

A MAN CAN ENDURE.

LIVES WITHOUT MUCH DIFFICULTY IN THE EXTREMES.

One Result of Nansen's Expedition—The Records of Meteorological Observations Are Very Valuable in Several Ways.

OF the least interesting results of Nansen's expedition are the meteorological observations that were continued for 1 year 1 month 3 days (approximately 1,000-1,400 miles) farther to the south. The lowest reading of Nansen's thermometer registered on board the Fram, was 61.5 degrees Fahrenheit, or some 13 to 15 degrees higher than the minimum noted by the fifty-third parallel of latitude, a temperature of 61 degrees is by no means uncommon, and the mercury has gone to this cause and partly from the fact that it is largely choked with ice, has lately received the name of the "ice cellar" of Eurasia.

At Yakutsk, in Siberia, a well-known governmental post, lying considerably southward or outside of the arctic circle, a temperature of from 70 to 80 degrees below is reported almost annually; and at Verkhojansk, which is situated almost within the same broad region, the minimum on the polar side of the circle, there is a registry of 92 degrees for the month of January, 1894. Prof. Mohn, the distinguished Norwegian scientist, asserts, moreover, that at the Russian station at the mouth of the Lena River, Siberia, the extraordinary low temperature of 94 degrees Fahrenheit has been recorded.

That man should be able to endure, one might say almost with impunity, such excessive severity of climate is an approximately new and it is more surprising when it is considered in connection with his endurance of the opposite extreme, that is, the highest summer temperature. We have as yet, perhaps, no absolutely reliable data for the highest temperature on the earth's surface, but it may safely be assumed to be in the neighborhood of or even beyond 150 degrees. It is claimed by Alexander Von Humboldt that Ritchie observed near Mourzouk, in northern Africa, a temperature thin a measure reflected from the desert sands) of 135 degrees in the shade, which is probably the highest that comes authoritatively from the records of travelers. But, be this as it may, we have no reason to doubt that the sun temperature was fully 15 degrees higher. With the two extremes before us, then, we have for the human subject a climatic resistance of at least 244 degrees, or 32 degrees more than is found in the range between zero and the boiling point of water. How much more than this man could endure it is difficult to say, but doubtless many degrees could yet be added to either side of the thermometric scale without materially or necessarily affecting his system. His resistance to the temperature of furnace rooms, as is evidenced in the work of stokers on board the transatlantic liners, is an indication of this. And yet more the remarkable experiments recently conducted by the eminent physicist Raoul Pictet upon his own person, by artificial processes he subjected his body to a temperature of 65 degrees.

BUDAPEST.

Budapest, as everybody knows, is the result of two cities separated by the Danube and joined together like New York and Brooklyn by great bridges. Buda, however, finds its site on hillsides of years old and rises on a great hill covered with yellow houses with red roofs, surrounded and surmounted by fortresses and ancient German looking castles and the palace of the king, with gardens and terraces, the whole crowned running down to meet the river. It still is a picturesque fortified city of the middle ages. Pest, on the contrary, is the most modern city in Europe—more modern than Paris, better constructed, with better and better facilities for rapid transit than New York, and with houses of parliament and museums more impressive as seen on the banks of the Thames and not unlike them in appearance. Pesth is the Yankee city of the old world, just as the Hungarians are called the Americans of Europe. It has grown rapidly in forty years, and it has sacrificed neither beauty of space nor line in progress. It has magnificent streets and gardens, as well as a complete fire department; it has the best club in the world, the Park club, and it has found time to put electric tramways under ground and to rear monuments to poets, orators and patriots above ground. People in Berlin and Vienna tell you that some day all of these things will disappear and be replaced, but Pesth is enjoying a "boom" and that the boom will pass and leave only the buildings and the splendid plans and the car tracks, with no money in the treasury to make the wheels go or the lights burn. I do not think this is or is not to be, but let us hope it is of the mind that sees nothing in progress but what is good and makes advancement spell ruin. People who live in a city where one is asked to show his passport, a certificate of good health, a police permit and a residence card in order to be allowed to cross a bridge as I was asked to do in Berlin, can hardly be expected to look with favor on the lighting, ambitious neighbors of the Hellenes.

Blood Poisons and Insanity.

From the New York Medical Record: While the fullest credit should be given to the staff of this important institution (the State Institution of Psychology), it is but fair to state that the study of toxæmia in connection with insanity is not a new novelty, and that to the discovery of the enterprising young establishing connection with the subject has only been applied therewith. Over a decade ago Salomon, Regis and others recognized the toxic origin of mental disease while no less than ten others, among them Herter and Smith, have written extensively on the subject. Perhaps most credit should be given to Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton, who, in 1894, in an "Analysis of a Cause of Insanity" was read before the Medical Society of London in May last, and noticed in your London letter a short time subsequently. In this paper, which contained much original research, the connection between toxæmia and insanity was fully shown.

It has been found by experiment that tea retards digestion.

SCHEMED TO GET WIVES.

"There are plenty of women in Oregon now," observed a prominent Oregon politician, who is in Washington to see that the state is not forgotten in the matter of patronage, "but it is within the memory of many of us when women were scarce there. We gave it out that we wanted them for school teachers, and that induced many of them to come out there, but the truth was the men wanted them for wives. I remember that we were a young man to Massachusetts, where he was well acquainted, with orders to collect one hundred marriageable women and escort them back to Oregon. We guaranteed every one of them one year's employment. The active man in the matter was a fine looking young man, who afterwards served two terms in congress and two years as governor, and was unable to make a choice, but there was a lot of fine, marriageable material left. Some of these ladies are now the leading ladies of the society of the state. More than three-fourths of the hundred were married within a year after their arrival, and are still living with their husbands as happy as any couple in the state. A few of the lot however, are teaching school here today, and they did not have any offers, but because they would not accept any of the fellows who offered themselves. Now the idea of finding a husband about given up his contest to return as senator, he will likely be succeeded by a gentleman from Oregon, a man of party of school teachers to which I refer. He will bring his wife here with him, and the Washington folks can see for themselves the kind of ladies we had in the old days of school teachers. They can't be surpassed, even if equaled anywhere. I may be an interested person, though, in the statement that my wife was one of the party."

DON'T DO IT.

Why is it that in most households the dinner table become a dumping ground for the petty annoyances of the day, the cares, the grievances of the members? Probably because this is the only meal of the day when the entire family meet together, and each one feels it a duty to air a few personal grievances in order to seek consolation from the others, says the Boston Herald.

Out of defference to digestion, if for no other reason, dinner table conversation should be of the apleizat, but this fact is lost sight of in the general desire of everybody, from papa down to the youngsters, to serve up only their troubles, which have marred rather than made the day's happiness. Hardly has the man of the house finished his evening paper before he falls into an animated financial discussion with his wife. Household expenses are rehashed, bills trumbled over, and the cost of living recalculated with tedious regularity. Mother in her turn eagerly pours into any listening ear her domestic woes. The day's errors before stairs are minutely recorded. She sighs over Bridget's latest freaks, declares that the butcher's indifference to her is but a continuation of his and so on. Then the small boy (poor little tax get for family flaw-picking) comes in for his share of criticism. His failings at school are relentlessly raked up and all sorts of punishments threatened unless there is a change for the better. As in primitive United States within our memory, single rooms are rare. Two, three, four, in one house, the front room or strung along the corridors. A bathroom is also always to seek. Hardly a room alone has to pay for all the beds therein. In some places special charges are made for sleeping in the daytime, and there is a fixed rate for sleeping on the floor. That a man should wish to be private when he is asleep seems absurd. But in this whole domain we Americans, who subscribe to the abolition of the Pullman sleepers, have no right to find fault with any other nationality—we have no right to be critical on these matters. In the eyes of the world, and a large charity ought to cover the diversities of different nations and different periods in this respect. In the good old times people used to go to bed without being intimated, and no bedclothes, as we call them still, were the only clothes.

THE JAPANESE AND DEATH.

As Courteous as They Are Theatrical and Artistic.

I have just noticed that the Japanese as behaving simply at funerals. That is only partially correct, says St. Paul's. They are quiet, but not quite simple—so quiet that their manner seems simple. As a matter of fact, they have an elaborate code for prescribed rites, bowing here, bending there, strewing prayers to the dead and ceremonies to the left. But it is all done "with good accent and with good discretion." They have an air of arts, the art that hides art. Let me dwell upon this thought a moment. Let me put it another way for it is one of the most beautiful things that can be said of the Japanese. They have learned to do life and to act it (there life and art are almost one) the great art principles that Hamlet proclaimed to the players. They are not very torrent, tempest and the whirlwind of passion have acquired and been got a temperance that gives it smoothness. They are not "too tame." Discretion is their tutor, and they o'erstep not the modesty of nature. And no other occasion is this splendid national characteristic of smooth, discreet behavior and simple seemliness more noticeable or so grateful as when a number of Japanese gather together about the death of one of the players. Nails Melted by Lightning.

Somewhat recently, during a thunderstorm at Mansfield, Ohio, lightning struck a wooden pillar and melted two nails instantly. From the mass of the nails and the wood the lightning melt them. Dr. Grottewitz, an electrician, calculated that they could only be fused satisfactorily by an electric current of two hundred amperes, at a pressure of twenty thousand volts. This should be applied to give one second is equal to five hundred horsepower, and applied for one-tenth of a second would require five thousand horse-power. So if we suppose the effect took place in the gas-hundredth of a second, it would represent a force of fifty thousand horse-power.

AN OPEN LETTER.

From the Herald, Sauk Centre, Minn.

"I was born in Germany and am thirty-seven years old. I have a wife and husband on a farm. For ten years I suffered with rheumatism so that I was a burden to my friends and myself also. I had tried a number of doctors and almost every kind of medicine without securing any benefit. Seven months ago I had become so weak that I had almost given up hope of recovery. I was then told to call on the Herald for an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so, thinking from reading such at a straw, as I grasped this chance and purchased a box. I noticed an improvement in Pink Pills. I commenced taking them in full. Before I had taken four boxes I felt so much improved that I bought more, and by the time I had taken six boxes I found myself entirely cured. I have since then had a return of my rheumatism, but I am as well as I ever was, and am able to do the work of a farmer. I will call in the lot of a farmer's wife without feeling the least pain or inconvenience.

"I hope this will be the means of placing your wonderful pills in the hands of some poor sufferer who is afflicted with rheumatism, as I am satisfied that no woman need suffer from it if they will but use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as directed.

(Signed) MRS. H. STUNNENGEL.

"How do you like the organist?" asked the new pastor.

"I don't think he pays enough attention to the stops," was the reply.

"Why, I thought he was to me," reply. "Some friend ought to suggest to him that he's likely to become tiresome if he keeps on

On Tuesday evening at a meeting of the trustees of the First Congregational church, a call was extended to Rev. Geo. W. Gallagher, of Dickinson, N. D., which will undoubtedly be accepted by that gentleman. The church has been without a regular pastor since the resignation of Rev. T. M. Edmands.

Photographer J. S. Dryadale, of Brainerd, has leased the Wagner gallery at Aitkin, says the Age, and is fitting it up in tasty style, and will open the same for business next week. His sister, Miss Dryadale will be placed in charge, and the negatives will be retouched and finished by Mr. Dryadale at his gallary in Brainerd.

The W. C. T. U. Oratorical contest previously mentioned in these columns will take place on Wednesday evening May 12, at the Congregational church at 8 o'clock. There will be seven contestants, and music will be interspersed between the recitations. The prize will be awarded by three disinterested judges, and is a beautifully engraved silver medal put up in a satin lined leather case. It is hoped that a large audience will encourage these young Misses by their presence. Admission 10 cents. The second W. C. T. U. contest will be held in the Presbyterian church May 26th.

Arrangements have been made with the B. & N. M. people whereby trains will stop at Webb Hills place on Fish trap lake during the coming summer. Mr. Hill will arrange to accommodate parties who desire to enjoy an outing at one of the best fishing grounds in Northern Minnesota and in connection with the trains Oscar Miger is arranging to run his steam boat from Gull Lake daily. This will accommodate parties who desire to go to the Club house or any other point on Gull Lake.

Mr. Miner's steamer will run out in the morning to meet the down train and back to the lake after the afternoon train has arrived.

While at Motley on Monday the writer visited the Excelsior creamery which has recently been started there by M. M. McKillop, of Todd county. The business is in charge of Mrs. McKillop, and is doing a paying basis although it has been in operation only a short time. The milk of from 300 to 500 cows is tributary to this creamery and there is no doubt but that it will be a profitable thing for the farmers of that section as well as the proprietor. The butter manufactured is of a high grade, is handled by several of the Brainerd grocery houses and it always found to be as represented, first-class.

Dr. H. J. Rieland, the Brainerd Refractionist, will be in the city at the Windsor House, May 10 to May 16th. If your eyes itch, burn, blur, ache, grow dim, get tired, feel dry and gritty, squint, eyelids inflame and eyeballs become bloodshot, be sure and see the doctor for these symptoms are oftimes the commencement of conditions that may cause you years of suffering and possibly blindness, and you should have advice thereon. Dr. Rieland has made the study of the eye and the fitting of glasses a specialty for many years, and his great success in correcting the work of the so-called eye specialists, is well known. Do not fail to see him and have your eyes and glasses examined. Office hours 8 to 10 a. m., 12 to 3, 6 to 8 p. m. Consultation free.

Fred Hoffmann returned from Brainerd Tuesday, where he had been for several days, completeing the purchase of the Brainerd brewery by himself and Mr. Bopple. They took possession of the property May 1, and are now operating it. Mr. Hoffmann reports the property in good condition, supplied with good appliances for making beer, but needing a few additions to increase its capacity and add to the convenience of operating. He says there is no doubt of the enterprise paying fairly well, and he is well pleased with Brainerd. The large number of men employed in the railroad shops and the saw mill bring large amounts of money in circulation monthly, and the business men generally report a good volume of trade. The people of Brainerd will find Mr. Hoffmann to be an excellent citizen, reliable and trustworthy in every particular. He is held in high esteem in Little Falls and has served several terms on the city council and board of education.—Little Falls Transcript.

Wm. Patterson was up before the municipal court on Tuesday charged with attempted arson and on the preliminary examination was bound over to await the action of the grand jury. It appeared at the examination that Mr. Patterson and his wife had some trouble and she had left his humble lodging on the day the fire was said to have been set. In order to bring her back he sent word according to the testimony that if she did not return he would burn her clothes up. She did not return, however, and shortly after noon on Monday smoke was seen to be issuing from the rooms occupied by them in the Fleming building, next to E. H. Simmons' store in East Brainerd, and an investigation showed a quantity of clothing burning on the floor in the room used for a kitchen. Patterson appeared about the time the fire was extinguished, from an ajoining room, and claimed to be ignorant of the origin of the blaze, but owing to the threats he had made in the hearing of the neighbors a warrant was issued with the above result. Patterson is about 60 years old and his wife is 18, they having been married some three years ago at Crow Wing, and in the preliminary examination yesterday she was a witness against her husband. In the meantime Mr. Patterson is stopping with Sheriff Erickson on account of being unable to get bail.

MR. J. L. SNYDER,
Brainerd, Minn.

DEAR SIR: In reply to your letter of the 24th inst., would say that The Smalley Concert Co., and J. Arthur Loining gave us two very fine entertainments. Miss Olaf Kraver we have not had yet, but she lectured in Portland, Oregon, a few years ago under my auspices, and she gives great satisfaction. In fact she is a real novelty.

John Elder's Remains Buried.

The remains of John Elder were brought to this city on Sunday morning by Mark Murphy, of Minot, N. D. The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon from the residence of D. R. Elder on Fourth street north, Rev. R. C. Opie preaching the funeral sermon, and the remains were laid to rest in Evergreen cemetery.

From Mr. Murphy it was learned that the unfortunate man who lost his life in the great blizzard of November last, had wandered some 25 miles from where he had unhitched his horses from the stage and had evidently made a hard struggle to reach some place of shelter from the storm. His sleigh when found was within a mile and a half of a stopping place, or ranch as it is called, and the ranch fence was within a few rods of him. His sleigh contained wood and an ax besides plenty of robes, but Mr. Elder after having lost the road in the storm, which is evidently did as he had encircled six or seven times before he finally took his team off the sleigh, though he could reach his destination with the horses and they were unharnessed and he started but the animals evidently refused to face the storm and went in an opposite direction. The theory advanced by those who live in that region is that Mr. Elder urged his team forward as long as they could stand and when they gave up he continued the unequal struggle on foot but finally becoming exhausted laid down in the snow. When found his head was resting on his arm with a peaceful expression on his countenance as though he had gone to sleep and death had claimed him while in that condition, which was undoubtedly the case. He was bundled up in a buffalo coat and his hand was covered with a heavy winter cap encircled with a woolen muffler, the mitten of the right hand was gone and his vest was unbuttoned, the theory advanced being that as he always carried a note book or diary in his inside vest pocket, he had taken his mitten off and unbuttened his vest to get the book in order to write some last request when he saw that he was likely to perish in the storm and that the book and mitten were dropped in the snow and lost as no trace of them has been found. The body of the deceased was in a fair state of preservation, so much so, outside of the discoloration, that the features were perfectly natural, and his relatives have the satisfaction of knowing that the remains were unmistakably identified, something unusual in a case where a body had remained exposed to the elements for so long a period. Mr. Elder's brothers in this city feel very grateful to Mr. Murphy and others in Minot and vicinity for the interest they took in the matter and will ever remember the acts of kindness extended.

Geo. F. Merwarth, aged 42 years, died at his home in East Brainerd on Tuesday morning of heart failure. Mr. Merwarth has not been well for some time and his death while a shock to his family and friends was not entirely unexpected. The deceased was a highly esteemed citizen and had been an employe of Parker & Topping in the Northern Pacific foundry for some time. The funeral will be held this (Friday) afternoon from the residence in East Brainerd under the auspices of Unity Lodge No. 194, I. O. O. F., the Moulders Union also participating, and Rev. D. D. McKay will preach the funeral sermon. Relatives of the family from Parsons, Kansas, are expected to arrive on the afternoon train today to attend the last sad rites. The deceased leaves a wife and five small children to mourn his loss.

Mrs. Samuel Gerard, aged 63 years, died at her home south of Brainerd on Saturday last of heart disease. Funeral services were conducted on Tuesday from the Catholic church, Rev. Fr. Lynch officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson mourn the death of an infant daughter, aged 13 month, which occurred on Thursday. The funeral will be on Sunday from the residence, Rev. Romo officiating.

New Paper for Cass.

A. G. Bernard will start a new paper at Walker at once, which will be known as the Walker Pilot. Under a law passed by the last legislature to fit this exact case, a newspaper in a newly organized county may be established and at once become a legal newspaper for official publications. Whether arrangements have been made with the commissioners whereby the new publication will get the legal advertising of the county or not remains to the seen, but undoubtedly that is the plan. The Cass County Pioneer, which has struggled along for some years, is, for some reason best known to the locality in which it is published, not suited to a new, hustling town, and hence it was deemed necessary by the powers that be to make if possible for another paper to live there.

Encampment.

The 12th annual encampment of the Park Region Association, G. A. R., will will be held in this city on June 22nd, 23rd and 24th. Arrangements are being made to make it a grand success.

Not Dead but Drunk.

On Monday W. D. McKay received a telegram from the superintendent's office at Duluth stating that the engineer on No. 6 had reported a dead man lying near the west whistling post at Wheelock and requested him to notify Coroner Dean and have him go on No. 6 to the place and report the result of the investigation to that office. Mr. Dean had about nine minutes to get his pick-up box to the depot as the train was in when he got the message from Mr. McKay over the telephone. In order to get the "full" particulars regarding the fatality the writer accompanied the coroner on his trip. When the whistling post was reached the conductor kindly let the coroner, the newspaper man and the coffin off and a thorough search for two miles up and down the track revealed nothing dead and the idea dawned upon the two men that either the dead man had come to life or the railroad man who reported the matter was an infernal prevaricator. At this juncture it was remembered that a section crew had been sighted some two miles down the track and their services were secured to convey the box and the men that accompanied it to Motley where it was found that the dead man was only dead drunk and had been lying near the track at the point indicated until just previous to the arrival of the party that had been sent out to pick him up.

The good people of Motley, however did not propose to let Coroner Dean return to Brainerd without a "stiff" and they very neatly arranged a figure representing a man clad in overalls, rubber coat, cap, etc., and placed it in the pick-up box and when Mr. Dean opened the box at the express office here on Wednesday morning to see what made it so infernal heavy, as he termed it, he discovered the joke that had been so neatly perpetrated.

Let it be Brainerd.

The Minneapolis Journal is authority for the statement that James Theilman has issued a challenge to any strap athlete in Minnesota, for $1,000 a side, the terms of the match to be 50 clay birds, sixteen yards rise, 50 live birds, thirty yards rise, and the gun to be 12-gauge. It is also stipulated that the match shall occur at Brainerd, Little Falls or Duluth.

New Officers.

At the regular meeting of Ascalon Commandery No. 16, A. F. and A. M., Tuesday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing term:

E. C.—George A. Keene.
Gen.—Geo. D. LaBar.
Capt. Gen.—Henri Ribble.
Sen. Warden—T. E. Netterauer.
Jun. Warden—F. B. Johnson.
Treasurer—J. N. Nevers.
Recorder—E. M. Westfall.

Proceedings Board of Education.

The board of education held its regular monthly meeting on Monday evening, all members being present except Mr. Hurley.

A communication from Rev. Pentzwith, asking for the use of the old third ward school building for Sunday School purposes was referred to the committee on buildings and grounds.

The resignation of Miss Hawkins was accepted.

A communication from Miss Marilla Fuller asking for a change of room, was referred to the committee on teachers.

Miss Jennie Paine was granted a raise of $5 per month the coming school year, on account of being a grammar grade teacher.

The complaint of Mr. Martin against Earl Mallory was referred to the committee on teachers.

The teachers of the city schools were requested to turn out with their classes on Memorial Day, and assist in the exercises.

The president appointed Messrs. Preston, Nolan and Titze a special committee to provide lemonade, etc., for school children on Memorial Day.

Miss Johnson, Miss Jansen and Miss Woods were designated to assist in the state examination after the schools close.

The superintendent was given full control over all examination papers hereafter.

On motion the board proceeded to vote for high school principal. The informal ballot resulted as follows: Prof. Haaft 5, Prof. Biggs 2, Miss Johnson 2; the first formal ballot was: Haaft 6, Biggs 4. Eight ballots were taken without a choice. The ninth ballot stood Haaft 8 and Biggs 6. Prof. Biggs having received a majority of the full board was declared elected, and his salary fixed at $100 per month.

For first assistant principal of the high school Miss Jansen received 8 votes, and was declared elected and salary fixed at $60 per month.

For second assistant principal of the high school Miss Holland received 8 votes and was declared elected and salary fixed at $50 per month.

A ballot was taken on Miss Whitehead's application, which resulted in 6 votes for and 3 against. Having received a majority of the entire board, she was declared elected and her salary fixed at $47.50 per month.

Miss Nellie Merritt was unanimously elected a teacher to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Miss Hawkins, and salary fixed at $47.50.

The matter of electing a teacher for the new room expected to be opened in the third ward was deferred at this time.

The finance committee was instructed to borrow funds to meet current expenses.

Several claims against the board were audited and allowed.
