THE LANPHER
THE HAT
—THAT IS—
STYLISH and DURABLE.

It's a cold, wet day when the grand jury in St. Paul don't indict a banker or two.

Ir now looks as if Murderer Durant, at San Francisco, would get his just deserts June 11th.

And now $13,600 has mysteriously disappeared from a St. Paul bank and no trace of it can be found.

It is stated that the Great Northern road will extend its line from Grand Rapids to Leech lake this season.

The register of deeds of St. Louis county on Monday was found guilty of appropriating to his own use public money.

A decrease of a million and a half dollars in the public debt of the country during the month of May is reported.

The new silver paper published at Staples, the Tribune, resents the insinuation that it leans toward populism and says: "We would inform the Cass county Pioneer that this is no populist paper."

Bede's Budget has been removed to Pine City. Judson got away from St. Paul without being indicted, and that's what many a prominent citizen of the city at the head of navigation is wishing that he had done.

Notwithstanding the fact that everybody has been doing nothing but shiver the past month, the weather bureau calmly announces that the temperature was normal. We must get a new weather clerk and no mistake.

A requisition for $26,182.92 has been made upon the treasury department for the payment of interest to the Mille Lacs branch of the Chippewa Indians which has been due for some time. The pay roll contains 740 names.

More progress was made in the senate in three days while considering the Dingley tariff bill than was make in that many weeks on the Wilson bill. It is probable that the bill will become a law by July 1st. Let us hope so.

The executive committee of the Minnesota State League of Republican clubs will meet in St. Paul on June 10 for the purpose of electing delegates to attend the annual convention of the national league, which will be held at Detroit July 13, 14, and 15th.

President McKinley has been petitioned by twenty-two thousand and odd citizens of San Francisco to make his summer home at Mackinac, instead of their city. With a pull of that kind and his nephew to decide the matter Benjamin will probably win.

The weather bureau and the "oldest inhabitant" are at variance in regard to whether May was a cold month or not. Those people who removed their stoves some weeks ago and have been shivering around the kitchen fire ever since are probably better qualified to give evidence than either.

The city of Moorhead is indignant because several of the country exchanges have commented on the fact that while the city applied to the state and received $5000 to aid flood sufferers in April they are about to burn up $4000 worth of fire works, also in a grand celebration on July 4th.

A government official at Washington estimates that it would cost $400,000,000 for the United States to get ready for war with Spain. Jerry Root, of Ft. Ripley, has been figuring on the matter for some time, and claims that the Washington estimate is high, says the Little Falls Transcript. Jerry is a valiant warrior and ought to know.

They have a funny way of doing things up in Roseau county according to reports. Last week the district court was in session and having attended to all the business appearing before it, Judge Ives ordered the grand jury to report, and that body not complying with the order the judge adjourned the term sine die leaving the grand jury still in session.

It is charged by certain parties that gross carelessness and incompetency among the subordinates of Maj. Baldwin and Agent Allen at the White Earth reservation, and these charges have recently been filed at the interior department in Washington. The Duluth Herald says:

Maj. M. R. Baldwin, chairman of the Chippewa Indian commission, is now attending closely to the defense of his position, but is daily expecting to receive notice of his removal. It is not likely that he will have any successor at the department. It has almost decided to abolish the commission and to adopt the plan in vogue at the Pointe Indian Agency for the disposition of timber on the White Earth and contiguous reservations.

Run the Creamery Out.

The Todd County Leader contains the following item in regard to the creamery which shows a peculiar attitude taken against an industry by the merchants and farmers:

The creamery at this place is a thing of the past, for the present at least. It closed last Saturday and on Monday O. H. Christianson left for Wisconsin to join his partner, Johnson, who went back two or three weeks ago. They have been bucking the farmers and merchants for three years and got tired of it. When they quit the merchants were paying a shilling for eight pounds of cream butter, and this is about the way it has been right along. The farmers were getting 11 cents in cash for their cream when the creamery closed, but a good many of them could see more in the shilling in trade price.

He's a Good One.

Wm. Thielman, of St. Cloud, who has shot in all the tournaments given in this city, has gained such a reputation that it is necessary for him to disguise himself in order to get into the country shoots now. Here is what the Sioux Falls Press says about his ventures at the South Dakota tournament:

Among those who attended was a roughly dressed man who gave his name as 'Tupper' and was immediately dubbed 'Duffer.' No one expected that he could shoot, but he astonished them all by winning more than half of the cash prizes hung up. He also won the special prize of a $50 hammerless gun. In that contest he tied Champion Jones, champion of South Dakota, and in the shoot off the 'farmer' won.

How the Logs are Moving.

The Mississippi & Rum River Boom company has matters on the river as well in hand now as though the ice and logs had not seriously crippled them during the early part of the season. Every thing at Minneapolis in connection with the turning of the logs to the mills is working smoothly. There are about 30,000,000 feet of logs at the upper gap and more are running in all the time. There is a crew of men at Elk River working the logs out of the sloughs and moving gradually in the direction of Minneapolis. The logs are coming over the Little Falls dam at the rate of from six to eight million feet per day. There is a crew working at Olmstead bar about five miles above that place getting off a lot of logs that have stranded there. They are working to finish while the water is held up by the big dam above Little Falls dam. Logs are being sluiced over the Brainerd dam and being allowed to run down the river. Above that dam the logs that were cut and put into the river this winter have been stopped by the boom, and all the old logs will be over the dam in the course of a week or ten days.—Lumberman.

Will Kill Caterpillars.

The following item may be of benefit to our farmers who are being pestered with the tent caterpillar, or web worm as it is sometimes called, and which are causing a good deal of damage in various sections the present season:

"A farmer, in a neighboring paper, says every year I hear of caterpillars destroying whole orchards, and there is nothing to dispose of more easily. I bore a hole in a tree deep enough to reach the sap, fill it with alphabet soup and then plug it up. The result is magical. The sap takes up the sulphur to every branch and twig and the caterpillar at once dies. I have never known of a tree being injured by it, and have pursued the course for years."

Prof. Otto Lugger, the state university etomologist writes the following letter regarding the pest:

"The worms infesting basswood and all other trees, is a tent-caterpillar. Two species are now at work almost in every part of the state, the one on basswood is the 'tent-caterpillar of the forest,' while the other is the 'orchard tent-caterpillar.' The latter prefers plums, cherries, apples, etc., and makes a large, white and tent-like home. Upon small trees these worms are readily killed with a torch, or by the use of kerosene oil, since the worms are social and remain together in large numbers in or near their nest. They feed but twice per day, when they leave their nest in a very soldier-like manner, marching in regular order to their grub.' While at home the tent-caterpillars should be burned. This is rather a hard treatment for a worm that is so regular in its habits; in fact, it is almost wrong to punish it for staying at home. The use of Paris green or London purple by means of a spray will also kill them. The pests are more than half grown at present and will be a thing of the past in less than two weeks. Then the worms again (or their offspring) next year, hence spraying is necessary. Two years I have not been able to propagate this disease, but have not yet given up hope of being able to do so in the future."

They Were Disappointed.

A number of North Atchison girls recently invited their friends to a party, saying that a feature of the entertainment would be a swimming match between two girls. Every one went, and found that this part of the program was carried out by two girls sitting at a table, with a bowl of water between them, in which a match floated. The men felt that they had been cheated.—Atchison (Kansas) Globe.

Women Pedestrian.

Two travel-stained female pedestrians arrived in Minneapolis yesterday direct from Chicago says the Pioneer Press. They had been on the road from the Windy City since May 9th, but this was but a little trip compared with the wonderful tour the two ladies have had during the past year. Mrs. H. Eeby and her daughter Stella, from Scranton, Wyoming, May 8 and reached New York city Dec. 23rd, of the same year, after, walking, in round numbers, 4,600 miles. Not a single inch of the distance did they cover except by foot.

THE SWAT VALLEY.

A Glance at the Great Type of Native Inhabitant.

It cannot be said that the Swati variety of Pathan is a very attractive person, writes H. W. Lawson, in the London Telegraph. Among Pathans the Swatis look somewhat puny and in face not less ill favored. The type is intensely Semitic, and the race here fanatically Mohammedan. It would be unfair to judge of what standard of civilization they may be capable just now, for our system of order has not yet taken root, and murder and theft are still things of everyday life.

Two mornings before my arrival a sepoy, ill of confluent smallpox, was stabbed to death in an isolated tent, and it is to be devoutly hoped that the public prophecy of the political officer of its visitation on the murderer or murderess may be fulfilled. Only a short time since his sais went down to the polo ground in the upper valley with a pony. On the way he was killed by a Dirghar Swati, who evidently wanted to get hold of the animal, but after mounting it took the wrong road and galloped into a party of Gilzais returning from drill. One of them promptly hit the pony over the nose and the scoundrel fell into their arms. By 10 o'clock the same morning he had paid the penalty of his crime. This sort of outrage is common enough, and Swati opinion, such as it is, does not condemn the murder of a Kaffir, white or black, Sikh or English, but to kill a sahib is too dangerous to the tribal pocket and the tribal existence to be lightly attempted.

Before long the district will settle down to a more peaceful state. From an archæological and religious standpoint, this part of the country is full of a peculiar interest, for these Swat valleys were the very seat and center of early Buddhism. No mound is ever disturbed without great quantities of Buddhist relics and objects of worship being discovered. First of all, there are the statues of Asoka himself, then groups collected around him after the manner of the mediæval pictures of the adoration, and, lastly, friezes of a classical kind. The taste and style are somewhat varied, the later ones betraying the usual evidence of Hindoo influence in the grotesqueness of their art. Most of the earlier kind are full of Greek types, and were undoubtedly the result of the conquest of Alexander the Great. At Shukdurra, ten miles beyond the Malakund, there is a bridge over the Swat river at a place where tradition says a certain portion of Alexander's army crossed, coming into India the same way our force went up to Chitral. In the museums some of these Buddhist remains have been placed together, and in that way show how high was the artistic power of the artists of early days. Such is the fanaticism of the Swati population even now that they hardly ever bring in a Buddha without first initiating him by chopping off the classic nose. Very properly the finds thus spoiled earn no rewards. It is just this fanaticism that requires keeping in check. The brigade at Malakund and at the various posts and forts is kept at full strength and not without need. Even so, it strikes the most casual critic that it is too near the base and too concentrated to keep the Chitral road as open as it ought to be. A half day journey will soon have to be found and furnished.

The "English Golfer."

It can hardly be wondered that the term "English golfer" became one of reproach upon the northern courses. The pilgrims from the south were, in fact, a terrible nuisance. They had no respect for the sacred traditions of the game; they appeared on the classic heath of St. Andrews adorned in flaring "blazers," which filled the mind of the orthodox Scot with forebodings; they never played a match, but toiled round the links with pencil and card, intent on deceiving themselves into the belief that they were daily lowering their record. A famous old caddie at North Berwick expressed the general feeling of his outspoken class when he pointed to one of these misguided individuals busily engaged with his card on one of the putting greens, utterly oblivious to the fact that he was delaying the field, while he worked in the highest branches of arithmetic and remarked, in a loud tone of contempt to one of his party: "D'ye see yon man? D'ye ken the best club in his set—it's his pencil."—H. J. Whigham in Scribner's.

Domesticating the Wasp.

At a recent meeting of the British association Sir John Lubbock is reported to have exhibited a wasp which he had tamed during the three months of its semicaptivity. The little creature seemed attached to its owner, never stinging her, though it would fight any other person. Following itself to be petted and gently stroked. Trips into the outer air are allowed to the domesticated wasp, but it always returns to the bottle in which it resides. Truly this was a curious pet.

Arms and Legs.

According to the result of many measurements made at the Anthropological laboratory in London, the right arm in human beings is in a majority of cases longer than the left arm, while, on the contrary, the left leg is longer than the right leg. Sometimes, however, the relative proportions are exactly reversed, but very seldom does perfect equality exist between the limbs. The tendency of the right arm to exceed the left arm in strength is somewhat greater in men than in women, while equality of strength in the two arms occurs almost twice as frequently with women as with men.

Science knew nothing of the roc until certain Malagasy natives came to Mauritius to buy rum, bringing with them huge egg shells to serve as receptacles. Marco Polo saw some huge "quills" represented to have been plucked from the roc. They were 20 to 30 feet long.

CHAIRLESS JAPAN.

An American Woman's Experience With Furniture Made to Order.

"One of the funniest experiences I had in Japan," said a woman recently, who has been connected with missionary work in that country, "was with chairs. It had never entered my mind that what is with us such a common article of household furniture should be an unknown quantity to any of the subjects of the mikado, and it was with dismay that I discovered the house I was to occupy was quite chairless. I immediately summoned a native carpenter and tried to explain to him what I wished him to make for me. It was an extremely difficult task, for he was evidently unable to comprehend why any one should desire to sit otherwise than cross legged upon the floor. Unfortunately, my talent for drawing is strictly limited. I realized that fact, but until I had made several ineffectual attempts to portray a chair—about as easy a subject as I could have had—I had never really appreciated the extent of my incapacity. The drawings which the poor carpenter finally carried off with him as models were such that my heart misgave me.

"That I had good reason for my fears was shown when the chairs were sent home. With the proverbial oriental faithfulness, the man had made precise copies of his patterns. Where the chairs of my sketches had weakly balanced backs, slanting seats and crooked legs, their wooden counterparts exhibited the same peculiarities. They were more difficult to sit on than I should ever have imagined chairs could possibly be. Some of them needed the moral support of a friendly wall to enable them to make any sort of success of standing on their legs.

"It was a little after this that I gave a small reception to a few of the people whose acquaintance I had made. One of the first to arrive was a city official of high rank. Anxious apparently, to do the correct thing in my eyes, he seated himself on one of the chairs, very gingerly, it must be confessed, for he confined himself to the extreme front edge, and looked as if he expected some accident to happen at any moment. When I handed him the tea cup which comprised the refreshments, he took the cup in one hand and the plate in the other. Then he sat there, with his hands full, not knowing what to do in order to be free to eat, and looking thoroughly miserable. After a minute or two of this agony, during which I must say I was enjoying, he begged me in a most deprecating manner for permission to sit in the fashion of his country. Of course I hastened to grant it, and I shall not soon forget the look of relief with which he slid gently and gracefully to the floor. Then he disposed his cup on one side of him and his plate of cake on the other and proceeded to eat and drink in comfort. The latter callers took their one from him and fought shy of the foreign innovations also. Considering how the chairs looked, I don't know that I can blame them, but I am afraid that they would have treated even the finest specimens of American workmanship with the same distrust."—New York Tribune.

The Russian government is said to be considering the extension of the Transcaucasian railway south through Teheran to a port on the Indian ocean. This is said to involve no engineering difficulties. The opening of such a line, it has been urged, would not fail to be of the utmost possible advantage to Russia, both in extending her commercial relations with Persia and neighboring states, but also opening a new and rapid outlet for exports to the Indian ocean. "The only difficulty at present in the way is stated to be the possibility of opposition by the Persian government to the construction of the proposed line."

The last British consular report from Havre and the towns in that district show that on the whole the introduction of British coal has not been injudiously affected by the new tariff on the northern and western railways of France, which was designed to increase the consumption of French coal. The American consul at Rochelle reported that, in spite of freight reductions all over Germany and the other efforts to encourage the consumption of German coal, the trade in British coal is still very large. In 1895 it amounted to 1,000,000 tons, and it increased next year. Even in Berlin, while the consumption increased by 40 per cent, the increase in German coal consumption there was on 12 per cent, the rest being British. England's coal, the American consul adds, is cheaper and better than that of continental countries.

The press department of the Stockholm Exposition continues to send out alluring notices of the various attractions offered there this summer. Emperor William of Germany will send his 550-ton yacht, Meteor, and the German navy the yacht Komet, of the same tonnage. Many other German and English yachts are also expected which, together with the Norwegian, Danish, Finnish and Russian clubs and the fine fleet of Sweden itself, give promise of some very interesting races.

RUMORS OF WAR.

Greece Hopes to Benefit From a European War.

London, May 31.—The Athens correspondent of the Times says: Turkey's continued arming and reported Russian preparations, with other signs more of a bellicose character, raise the question of some of the leaders of Greeks that Greece may yet benefit from a general European war. But the majority of the sane men, after the experience, is only desirous that Europe should prevent Greece against the conquerer. There is no reason to fear that either Bulgaria or Servia will abandon the policy it has followed these past. The Turkish troops who have been sent to the Servian and Bulgarian frontiers are only intended to replace those who have been withdrawn from the war began. Reports of storming anti-dynastic demonstrations, published abroad, are a pure hoax, as there is no sign of any such movement. Even the unfortunate Politician likely to commit himself to an anti-dynastic programme. It appears that the prince of Wales has expressed his personal desire that the Crown Prince Constantine should go to London for the jubilee festivities, and this is regarded as indicative of English good will toward Greece.

Condensed Proceedings of the Senate and House.

Washington, May 30.—The debate on the tariff bill began in the senate with crowded galleries and a large attendance of senators and the tariff leaders of the house.

Minor business claimed attention up to 2 o'clock, when Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, in charge of the tariff bill, took the floor for the opening speech. Mr. Aldrich said that the Democratic members of the finance committee, followed with a statement in opposition to the amendments, to the unfitting of piling up taxes on an overflowing treasury, with a balance in advance of $120,000,000 in the treasury. He criticised the schedules in the house bill, declaring that of them were designed to be profitbrides. Mr. Morgan declared that the speaker of the house was enforcing an autocratic regime of rule by which representatives were assembled and kept from voting. He considered this action as an outrage against popular rights. Mr. Pryo first gave warning that a protest would be made against criticisms of the other house, and when Mr. Morgan vehemently repeated his criticisms Mr. Hale made a point of order against him. The temporary presiding officer directed Mr. Morgan to resume his seat and then ruled that the point of order well. The Alabama senator, somewhat chagrined, accepted the decision of the chair when Mr. Hale withdrew the point of order and further friction was avoided. Mr. Morgan resumed his criticisms during the course of which he said that the present congress was not now in session in accordance with the constitution, the house of representatives having created its functions.

After a brief contest with the tariff leaders Mr. Quay succeeded in carrying a motion to suspend the order declaration of a celebration to-day.

It is claimed that the police were assembled in several rifles and a large lot of bullets were captured which the men were making. The armory has a large gallery which had not been erected at the time of the fire. It was to have been used for a picnic was being held in celebration of the release a few days ago of Henry Clay Frick from the Western penitentiary, where they had served four years for inciting riot at Homestead during the big strike at that place. Bauer and Nold, the anarchist leaders, declare that the action of the police is an outrage, and some one will be made to suffer for it.

Jarred the Telescope.

Chicago, May 31—Yerkes observatory, at Williams Bay, Wis., will be closed for the summer. The movable floor of the dome having been wrecked by a fall of forty feet. The floor which was seventy-five feet in diameter, was supported by an inch cable and unbalanced the floor, which fell to the bottom of the dome. The fall fractured the winding stairway of the support of the telescope with it, crushing the iron railing and demolishing it. The floor lies now a complete wreck. The cause of his part of the accident is slight, but it is feared the jar may have disturbed the accurate adjustment of the very delicate machinery of the telescope.

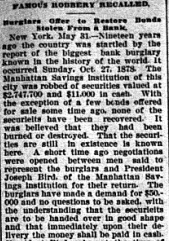
PHYSICIANS BAFFLED.

Prof. R. S. Bowman, Instructor of Natural Science in Hartsville College, Cured of a Severe Illness by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People After Physicians Failed.

From the Republican, Columbus, Ind



PROF. R. S. BOWMAN.

Prof. R. S. Bowman, the able instructor of natural science in the famous Hartsville, (Ind.,) college, is well and favorably known, not only as an educator, but also as a minister of the gospel, as for a number of years he was pastor of the United Brethren church at Charlotte, Mich., before coming to Hartsville.

"A minister in conference learning of my condition, advised me to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I had heard much about them, and had seen pictures of the medicine, but it was with reluctance that I was finally persuaded to try it, as it seemed that nothing could do me any good. I procured a box, however, of Pills and took them strictly according to directions. Before I had been using them long I was almost cured, and in better health and spirits than I had been for years. After using the pills a whole longer and was entirely cured. I am now a firm believer in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I feel that I owe it to suffering humanity to tell of this medicine, but it was with reluctance that I was finally persuaded to try it, as it seemed that nothing could do me any good. I procured a box, however, of Pills and took them strictly according to directions. Before I had been using them long I was almost cured, and in better health and spirits than I had been for years. After using the pills a whole longer and was entirely cured. I am now a firm believer in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I feel that I owe it to suffering humanity to tell story which was further endorsed by the following affidavit:

State of Indiana, Bartholomew County, ss.

I affirm that the above accords with the facts in the case of R. S. Bowman.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 10th day of March, 1897.

LYMAN J. SCUDDER, Notary Public.

My commission expires Jan. 15, 1900.

They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of female weakness. They build up the blood and restore the glow of health to pale or sallow cheeks. Y., at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

KEPT HIS WORD.

Jarrois.

They really are the most useful article in the household repertoire Among fifty ways of utilizing them, here is one:

Take out the lower barrel head securely. Take out the upper one, to allow a free draft to the lower one. Build the shelf, which should follow the line of the barrel, every other side, where the circle must be squared. When this shelf is securely set in, fasten the second barrel head in its place. Now business it was to go across the country and win the favor of the residents, and so that they would not object to an intermountain region, and found that that particular county was completely dominated by an old farmer away up the ridge. The road wanted a public hall in the county seat badly, and this skirmishing party appointed a committee to go to the old man and request for his assistance. The old fellow, after some time, said he was willing, on one condition, to help out. He wanted the road to come near his house. This was agreed to, and the road followed over the hill. Then the old man's barrel. When it opens, the shelf will hold canned fruit, and the cross line in the middle of the opening. Put hinges on the door, and then you have a comfortable little sanitary closet for the family

Why She Gave It Up.

"Did that young Mr. Croesus who's so attentive to you ask you to give up the bicycle?" asked the scornful bloomer girl.

"No, he didn't," indignantly replied the young woman, who had locked up her bloomers and put her bicycle away in the basement.

"Well, it's mighty funny that you should give up the bicycle, just when a nice young man who doesn't ride 'em comes devoted to you. Didn't he say anything about bicycles or bloomers?"

"He has never mentioned them," said the girl who had given up, and then she added, as she looked significantly at the costume of the girl in bloomers, "the only thing he said was that he admired a little dignity in a young woman."

Thereupon there was enough indignation on both sides to stock a church dissension.—Chicago Post.

SISTER ELIZABETH.

NOTHING is more startling to a person, especially if that individual is a maiden lady of thirty-five, than the consciousness that others begin to think her too old for the society of young people.

"It is a 'laying on the shelf'" that is by no means agreeable.

At least such was my feeling as I plodded at the invitations to the moonlight excursion, in the table which were handed in by John while we were seated at our cosy breakfast-table in Snow Cottage, one lovely morning in June. The note was directed to Miss Lottie and Miss Cornie Whittaker, and addressed, as previous envelopes had been, to the Misses Whittaker, which would of course include Elizabeth Whittaker, spinster, the last word I hardly dare to be so bold, and yet I must confess I was fair lady, and I must not lose my courage."

"Never very, dear, I am sure," I thought. "Can he not see that he has but to speak in order to win?"

I smiled assuringly, and he proceeded.

"Do not think me precipitate in my election, though I have known you so long been so brief, for I cannot be mistaken in my feelings, and only wait your permission to offer my hand to your protector, Cornie. You stand in the place of a parent to her, and therefore I address you first.

Ah, Will, Will! It was well you could not read my heart just then! As I sat there, with my head bowed down a convulsive sob, and replied that he had my full, free permission; and added that I trusted he would speak to him directly, left the room a sadder and a wiser woman.

There is not much to add. Cornie's love was already given to the handsome man so recently a stranger; and in very few months later she became his wife.

Lottie was a fair and stately bridesmaid, while I witnessed with maternal complacency the ceremony which united the destinies of the only man I had ever loved and my child-sister, Cornie.

Peace and contentment were my guerdon, again that night, and with a serenity that was sincere and unaffected I returned the kiss which the bridegroom gave me, as he said tenderly and gently, "Sister Elizabeth!"

CARRIER PIGEONS.

Some Birds Have the Homing Instinct Very Strongly Developed.

Two interesting questions present themselves concerning the length of time during which pigeons can recollect the place of his home and the distance from which he is able to find his way back to it, says the Popular Science Monthly. Some birds have found their way home after five years' absence, and it is generally considered that good birds can be depended upon for six months. Pigeons have returned from Vienna and from Rome to Dresden, and others, sold to be carried away to America, have made their way back to their old home in a year or so in Belgium. When pigeons were to be sent back and forth it has been usual to let them have their first experience at home, which they are to be dispatched. An ingenious process has been devised to overcome this difficulty, which causes the birds to fly with equal certainty in both directions. Pigeons, for example, whose home is in Paris, are confined for several days at St. Denis, and fed there at a stated hour every day with some favorite food which is not given them at their home in Paris. When they come, in the course of time, familiar with their new home and its chotce delicacy, they are liberty they can fly off at once for Paris, without forgetting the good things they enjoyed at St. Denis. They are to be sent back they are made to fast a little while and are then let loose about Versailles. When on the road to Paris they are made to fast a little while and are then let loose about Versailles. When on the road to Paris they are made to fast a little while and are then let loose about Versailles. When on the road to Paris

In the morning at 9 o'clock Pap Thomas Post and the Woman's Relief Corps assembled at the G. A. In the afternoon although the wind blew a gale, the program as previously published was carried out and hundreds of people gathered at the park and listened to the exercises, the addresses being made by Judge Fleming and Prof. Carlton and which were listened to with interest by all. The large number of school children that joined the procession on Front street each carrying a flag presented a very pleasing appearance and was one of the interesting features of the occasion.

The Encampment.

The Park Region G. A. R. Encampment which is to occur in this city on June 23 to 26 inclusive, will be one of the principal events of the season in Brainerd. Arrangements are now well under way to make the encampment a success in every particular and prominent speakers have been engaged for the occasion among whom are Gov. D. M. Clough, and Gen. Jos. P. Rea, of Minneapolis; Judge D. B. Searle, of St. Cloud; E. B. Wood, of Long Prairie; C. W. McKay, of Fergus Falls; Chaplain C. C. Salter, of Duluth; Asst. Adjt. Gen. J. K. Mertz, of Minneapolis and Hon. H. A. Castle, of St. Paul. The City Park will be headquarters and it will be known as Camp Spalding. Tents will be erected there and will be occupied by those who desire that kind of accommodation and a large pavilion will also be erected that will seat several thousand people.

Humorist and Impersonator.

On Tuesday evening next, June 8, W. I. Nolan, the humorist and impersonator, will appear at the open house under the auspices of Brainerd Lodge No. 1, A. O. U. W. and Ameriea Lodge No. 46, Degree of Honor. Mr. Nolan comes to Brainerd with the best of recommendations and will not disappoint the public in his entertainment as a guarantee of his engagement by the above named societies. The opera house should be filled on this occasion. The following complimentary notices are clipped from exchanges where he has appeared.

The admirers of W. I. Nolan gathered together at the Unitarian church last evening to enjoy an evening's pleasure with this very funny impersonator. From begining to end there was not a dull number on the program which is no more than can be expected when Nolan entertains. Whatever he attempted he made very happy, investing his readitions with a beauty that was very tuching and soft, and clothing his funny numbers in a garb that was enormously laughable. Every body felt well pleased with the entertainment.—Minneapolis Times.

Mr. Nolan rendered his selections in a very happy manner. His powers of imitation are great and as a humorist he has few equals. Every one was well pleased with him, and hope they may have the pleasure of hearing him again.—Wadena Pioneer.

Admission, reserved seats 35 cents, General admission 25 cents, children, 15 cents.

Shot at in Bed.

Jesse Williams who lives with his wife on a farm near Billings' mill in this county was in the city Tuesday to see the county attorney and receive treatment for a wound which he says he received a few days ago in a rather peculiar manner. Mr. Williams is of the opinion that an attempt was made on his life and says that about midnight on Thursday he and his wife were awakened by the report of a gun and on jumping out of bed another volley was fired, one of the buckshot striking Mr. Williams on the head, having penetrated the side of the building. Other buckshot were imbedded in the head board of the bed and numerous places were found where the outside of the house had been perforated. Mr. Williams says he is certain that it was the intention of the party to kill him and his wife as the shots were fired into the corner of the house where his bed stood and which was occupied by them. He says he has suspicions as to who did the shooting but did not want to tell who he suspected or why, merely stating he had had trouble with them. The wound in his head was not of a serious nature and looked more as though it had been received from a blow with a club than from a bullet and his story as to the affair did not seem to impress the authorities that any great crime had been attempted. Williams came to this country last fall from Missouri.

For Amateurs Only.

The Brainerd gun club will hold a meeting this evening to make the final arrangements for the sixth annual tournament which is to be held on the 24th and 25th of June during the Park Region G. A. R. encampment. The club will offer no inducements that will bring crack shots to take all the money and the shoot will be arranged especially to attract local shooters. The program will be issued shortly and a glance at it will show the members of our neighboring clubs that they can come to Brainerd on that date and enjoy a tournament in which all will stand an equal show. Besides this the event will be one of interest to the members of the G. A. R. who will be in the city at that time. A reduced rate of a fare and a third will be made by the railroads on that occasion and it is expected that the various attractions during encampment week will bring in a goodly number of local shooters from Wadena, Staples, Aitkin, Little Falls, Duluth, Grand Rapids, and other points.

Caught a Horse Thief.

C. F. Parrish, a deputy sheriff of Hennepin county, arrived in the city on Monday and located a man by the name of Sam. Morris at the Stratton House at which place he arrested him and placed him in the county jail. Morris was wanted for stealing a horse from a farmer named Gotlieb Cirspinski, of Long lake township in Hennepin county, the animal being taken in February from the barn of the owner together with a harness. Morris is a traveling stove repairer and he used the animal to convey him about the country with his outfit. When at Bay Lake, however, he left the horse with a man to pasture for some reason and the officers by this means located him at the place as above stated. When arrested he said he had no intention of stealing the horse but intended returning it. The prisoner was taken to Minneapolis on Tuesday, the horse having been recovered and sent to its rightful owner some days ago.

Bad Man of Long Ago.

It was a bloodless war—that war of July, 1872, when the three militia companies of St. Paul stood in arms against the savage Chippewa who was raging in all his tribes like a revengeful beast says the Minneapolis Journal. In order to give authenticity to the lurid tales told by the survivors of the Blueberry war they have decided to meet at the St. Paul Commercial Club on the evening of June 10 and organize an annex to the Loyal Legion and the G. A. R. The Blueberry war resulted from the murder of a school teacher near Brainerd by two drunken Indians who were pursued and caught, lynched by the real bad men who lived in Brainerd in those days of the building of the Northern Pacific. Thereupon the sages and warriors of all the Chippewa nations bathed their faces in vermillion, sharpened their knives and hatchets and breathed war. No harm was done, but the price of blueberries went up 3 cents, with the Indians who blockaded the swamps where they grew. Hence the name.

WM. BARRON.

Didn't Care a Penny.

A. F. Ferris, of this city, and A. N. Dare, of the Elk River Star News, have been enjoying a trip on the western coast and Mr. Dare writes his paper the following in regard to the trip on the ocean from Portland to San Francisco:

"Most people think a sea voyage very monotonous, but I am not one of the number. I can sit for hours on the deck of a ship and watch the wide expanse of water as it passes by without getting tired. The sublimity of the ocean with nothing in sight in any direction but water, always appeals to my imagination, and I drank it all in on this trip with an avidity that perhaps everybody would not appreciate. There is a sort of free masonry among people who travel by water that makes all of kin, and it takes but little time to make acquaintances, many of them proving to be very agreeable, and it is with feelings of regret that one parts with them at the end of the trip. I am so much infatuated with this part of the trip that I am trying to persuade my traveling companion, Mr. Ferris, to return to Portland the same way, but as his experience on the trip was mostly confined to a stuffy bunk in which he did not care a penny whether he lived or died, the probabilities of my succeeding do not at present look very bright."

Strayed.

UNRELENTING.

I walked with my friend of an earlier time,
Whose guidance I strive to heed,
Who checks my spirits that lightly climb
In praise of some modern deed.
"There was a good man," he assures me oft,
"Like those that we knew of yore,
The saints and sages have completely doffed
The glories that once they wore.

"The pictures they paint," says my mentor stern,
"Are patches, devoid of art,
And the girls are no longer demure and trim
Like the girls who ensnared my heart,
And the tales we read and the songs we sing
Are reflections of other days,
We halve what we write, and may fling
O'er posterity's books and lays."

So I thought to beguile him with other themes
And I spoke of the light that shone
Where the west, adame with the sun's last beams,
Proclaimed that the day had flown.
Unwilling, to watch the scene he stood.
Its radiance brought no joy.
"It's fine," said he, "but it's not so good
As they gave us when I was a boy."
—Washington Star.

She Spoke Latin.

Perhaps, after all, the comic papers have some foundation in fact for their continued slurs, under the guise of jokes, at Boston women on account of their "bluestocking" proclivities. I had never believed that examples were common where a homely obtrusive use of their learning.

Recently in a Back Bay car there was an empty seat beside a young lady, evidently of that much disputed class, but who gave no outward appearance of it. To be sure, she had a slightly protruding forehead and wore gold bowed eyeglasses, but there was no azure blue halo visible, nor was she in any degree prim. A young gentleman, evidently a stranger in town, was about to take the empty seat, when the car gave a sudden start, causing him to crowd the lady.

Notwithstanding his hat, he politely begged her pardon. With a slight inclination of the head she replied:

"Tea coms est."

I have no doubt my face looked a little blank with astonishment, but the expression on that young man's countenance was a study. A sort of dazed look came into his eyes, as, drawing a long breath which was almost a gasp, he instinctively again crunched his hat and murmured, "Thank you;" but he was manifestly in terror during the balance of his ride.

That young man "won't do a thing" but tell stories of Boston women when he reaches home.—Boston Post.

English Naval Troubles.

Those unduly pessimistic souls who have been overimpressed by the series of accidents which have occurred in Uncle Sam's navy should read the Hampshire Telegraph, an English newspaper which makes a specialty of naval notes and news. On one page of a single recent issue the following startling and self explanatory headlines occur: "On a Dangerous Course. Grounding of the Galatea. Navigator's Serious Mistake." "Shocking Accident on H. M. S. Howe. Three Men Fatally Injured." "Accident on Board H. M. S. Blake. Seaman Fatally Crushed. Two Artificers and a Stoker Scalded." Another headline has in it a certain amount of humor. It reads, "Shocking Occurrence on the Sans Pareil." The shocking occurrence was the death of a gunner who tried to put seven pints of rum under his skin, and succeeded, but did not live to enjoy the proceeding. —Philadelphia Press.
