You need not answer the question, madam, for in your case age is not counted by years. It will always be true that "a woman is as old as she looks." Looking for the original beauty so deeply upon woman's beauty as every hair. It is natural, therefore, that woman is anxious to preserve her beauty, and to keep it abundant and beautiful; or, that being denied, the creative gift of Nature, she desires to possess it. Nothing is clearer than to attain to this gift or to preserve it, if already possessed. Ayer's Hair Vigor is the only preparation necessary to secure the hair to fold hair to its original color. # AN ADVENTURE STORY.

On March 13, 1892, this engine saved the life of her engineer. The words were engraved on a silver plate fastened to the side of the large Corlies engine in the mountainous region of northwestern Ontario. The engine stands in a space cut from the rest of the mill by a tight partition. At the top of the engine, near the top of the shaft, the wheel being attached to the belt runs down to the fly-wheel and the great belt or hand which carries the shaft down to the mill cone on a horse six feet up in the wall. The partition at least reaches to the wheel about the same distance as

Thus in order to pass on one side of the room to the other at the top of the mill, it was necessary to pass over the belt on the fly-wheel, or to crawl over the top of the mill. The wheel is an immense affair sixteen feet in diameter, and is supported by two large wheels on the face for the thirty-six inch belt to run. The engine makes more than a hundred revolutions per minute, and this belt whirled down through the air with a terrific condition by the terrific nature of the engine, who speaks of it as "the most terrible thing I ever saw." At the time of the accident I was very much surprised to find that the engine was not running, and that the belt was not moving. I went to the engine and found that the belt was not moving, and that the engine was not running. I went to the engine and found that the belt was not moving, and that the engine was not running.

It was a fearful accident. The engine was not running, and the belt was not moving. I went to the engine and found that the belt was not moving, and that the engine was not running.
