White Dome Geyser Yellowstone Park. "A male and a half from the Fountain Hotel, and easily reached by bicycle, tourist wagon, or by walking, lies a hidden basin full of nature's caprice. At the entrance, as if on guard, stands the impenetrable White Dome. As one approaches, he almost expects to be challenged and asked for a certificate. If such challenge is given, it is in a certain fashion, in the form of a geyser eruption, for the white dome is a geyser. It is not unlike the Castle Geyser, or the White Plume of the Upper Geyser Basin. The geyser is a very white rather dome-shaped mound, built up from the scoria of the water, and is the most conspicuous feature of the locality. It is perhaps 25 feet high, with a circumference at the base of 75 or 100 feet. Its eruptions consist of intervals of from twenty to forty-five minutes, being somewhat irregular, and the water is thrown to a height of from ten to twenty-five feet."

See it in the morning at 10 a. m. and in the afternoon at 4 p. m. from the Hotel. See it in the morning at 10 a. m. and in the afternoon at 4 p. m. from the Hotel. See it in the morning at 10 a. m. and in the afternoon at 4 p. m. from the Hotel.

Notwithstanding the fact that the silver market is so pronounced that all the free silver leaders throughout the country are admitting the fact, notwithstanding they so zealously proclaimed last fall that it was impossible without free coinage. The New York Journal, the leading free silver paper of the country, on Monday after referring to the unprecedented improvement in business throughout the country says:

"At last the seemingly endless nightmare is over. The people have decided to work and continue politics to their leaders here. Capital has decided that liquidity can be carried to an extent, and that it is time for a little courage. Merchants are stocking into New York to buy goods, and banks with rich virgin deposits are flocking into Wall street to get loans. The wisest are beginning to turn again and the sun is shining. The world has been reviving America long enough. Let us show it that the electrical nerves and the mighty muscles that made this nation the envy of the earth eight years ago are still here."

Every Teacher or Scholar in the public schools of the United States, 10 years of age and over, should have a copy of the Northern Pacific Yearbook, '97. It is an especially adapted text book for use in the public schools in the study of geography and history, and an aid in the study of the Northwest and its varied and vast resources.

The book has a large amount of valuable data, but says by any means a commendation by the Northwest. The beautiful Lake Park Region of Minn.; the Red River Valley of the North; the remarkable wheat land of the country; and Pyramid Park, where hundreds of thousands of cities are raised, are described.

Tollstone Park and its wonderful canyon and lake, waterfalls and rivers has a long chapter given to it. A chapter on several of the richest mining districts of the Northwest, telling how they were discovered and developed will be an interesting one to everybody. Some of these discoveries were made in very strange ways.

Four great snow mountains, old volcanoes of the North Pacific have a chapter devoted to them which gives details of their history.

A new mountain range, one almost unknown in the Northwest corner of the United States, is brought to the reader's attention. It is a glorious region, with deep, beautiful valleys of new varieties of trout, made famous by a Bear Island of the U. S. Navy. Alaska also has a place in the book. The book has a handsome cover and is beautifully and artistically illustrated.

Any teacher or scholar can have a copy by sending six cents in postage stamps to Chas. S. Fox, General Postmaster Agency, St. Paul, Minn.

Here is an opportunity which should not be lost to obtain something of interest and value, almost for nothing, and our schools should reap the benefit of it.

Two $100,000 Trains.

On the first of June 1897, the Burlington Route placed in service between Minneapolis and St. Paul and Chicago, two new trains, built at a cost of considerable more than $100,000 each, and recognized by every one who has seen them, as the finest trains on earth.

The trains are light by electricity, heated by steam; have water radiators, compartment and standard sleeping cars, dining cars, a first-class library car, chair cars—everything in brief, that any other train has. No extra fares.

County Examinations.

I will hold teachers' public examinations on August 20th and 21st, and on September 2nd and 3rd, in the Washington school building, Brainerd, beginning at 9 a. m. each day.

I wish to meet all the teachers of the county at the meeting of the Crow Wing county educational association August 28th.

J. A. WILSON,
County Superintendent of Schools.

Black Sand Pool Yellowstone Park.

No person who visits the Upper Geyser Basin should fail to see Black Sand Pool. It lies to the north of the main Upper Basin, and is reached by a road leading past the beautiful Punch Bowl Spring. Black Sand Pool is a light blue spring some 40 feet long by 20 or 25 feet wide. The water is a clear, bright blue color.

It is not easy to see the pool, but it is many instances—especially beautiful, from whose surface the steam constantly rises. The great peculiarity about this hot spring is the silica, which are in places fifteen feet high, and are composed of thin, probably decomposed obsidian, sand.

The above is taken from "Wonderland '97," a new book published by the Northern Pacific Railway. Send six cents to Chas. S. Fox (Gen'l. Agt.), St. Paul, Minn., for it.

Finest Train on Wheels.

This is what Mr. Pullman says of the Burlington's new train between Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago. Finest traveling and sleeping cars, with wide vestibule, steam heat and electric light, and composed of compartment and standard sleeping, first-class library car, chair cars and dining cars. It is without an equal in this country or abroad. No extra fares.

Did You Ever?

An advance of dress reform.
In dress reform army.
Walked out for reasons known to her.
It was a rainy day.
But dress was neat.
And freshly washed her hair.
And she wore the latest fashion,
Embellishing with each shining glance.
Did you ever?

The advance of dress reform.
Without the least demerit.
One who only over the weekly street
And lightly as her way.
Her attire free.
And dress and shape.
Their garments with a fringing group
And left their feet, quite unseen.
Of delicate and dress reform would dare.
Did you ever?

The advance of dress reform.
One whose curls fresh and dry.
And full of satisfaction, puts
Her curly curls out by
Her attire free.
And dress and shape, and yet
One who has been selected by the press.
"At least we were a woman's journal."

SHE HAS A RECORD.

A New Englander who went to the Front in the Field of Archaeology.

Miss Alice C. Fletcher, fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the first and only woman who has been elected to the presidency, is a native of New England and enjoyed the educational facilities common to girls of her age. Later her studies in American archaeology and ethnology were pursued under the direction of Professor F. W. Putnam, Peabody Museum, Harvard University. She began her field work in 1878 and in 1881 published her first paper in the Indian, a journal of the Smithsonian Institution, in which she lived, winning their confidence and learning of their needs as well as their habits and customs.

In 1884 Miss Fletcher was commissioned to prepare the exhibit of the Indian Bureau for the exposition at New Orleans, and at the World's Fair, 1884, she acted as a judge in the department of archaeology and ethnology.

In 1885 she made a tour of the Indian Bureau and was received to them by the efforts of Miss Fletcher, and she was selected by the government to visit these lands in several of the tribes. In 1885 she was called for to report on her Indian education and civilization, and Miss Fletcher was selected for the task. The year following she was to Alaska to make supplementary reports upon the natives of that territory. In 1887 she was commissioned United States special ethnologist agent and the Bureau of Peabody Museum as assistant in American ethnology since 1888 and now holds the Shaw fellowship. She is a ready and pleasing writer, the author of several important papers, among these a work on Indian mounds published by the Peabody Museum, and "Home Life Among the Indians," a record of personal experience published by the Century Company.

Miss Fletcher is a corresponding member of several foreign societies, president of the Woman's Anthropological Society, Washington, and a counselor of the American Folk Society from its foundation.—Latest Free Press.

The Outdoor Woman.

It was doubtless a happy reaction which took place last year from the epidemic of bloomers to a more graceful and becoming cycling dress, which included a skirt among its component articles. Most people were well pleased with the change, and the costume now worn by the better class of women riders stands as quite a triumph in evolution. The skirt is six or seven inches shorter than that of a street gown, and this length has been found to meet all requirements as to appearance, comfort and safety. But I should like to say that there is a little tendency now among a few people to go over to the other extreme and to wear the wheel, as is commonly done in England, a skirt of ordinary walking length. Nothing could be more foolish than such a practice, the dangers of which have been set forth time and again in accidents of various kinds. If English women choose to take such risks, that is no reason why we should feel obliged to imitate their foolishness. Keep the skirt at its sensible, comfortable and pretty length, which is at present the most convenient one—mark a prophesy—we shall have a not unjustifiable change to the bloomers fever.—Harper's Bazar.

A Strict Cleveland Woman.

Miss Marie L. Brew, who has charge of the department of expression in the high school of Cleveland, is widely known as a champion scholar and has presented a number of papers from her dramatic and tragical. She is chairman of drama in the Cleveland school and is a writer of recognized ability. She has had 1,500 people to her classes this year. Her method is to give individual attention to each in her class, and the possibilities of the mind of each pupil are studied with a view to developing it to its truest and most noble.
