

The Brainerd Dispatch.

The Republicans of the Sixth Congressional District Without Opposition Choose the Sitting Member As their Standard Bearer for 1898.

Every County in the District Pledges Increased Majorities for the Nominee.

The sixth district republican convention met at Anoka on Wednesday and by acclamation without the shadow of opposition nominated Hon. Page Morris, of Duluth, for congress. The nomination was made by a rising vote, and the counties of the district each by its representative to the convention pledged their localities to increase the majorities given to Mr. Morris in 1894, and so enthusiastic were the friends of the present congressman that his election is predicted by from 6,000 to 10,000 majority.

The delegates had all assembled at Anoka by 10 o'clock on Wednesday, and in order to facilitate the work of the convention which was called to meet at noon, a caucus was held at 11 o'clock, at which time committees were appointed with instructions to report promptly at 12, the following gentlemen composing them: Credentials—C. C. Eastman, of Wadena county, H. H. Hild, of Hubbard, J. G. Brockbridge, of Pine P. S. Wood, of St. Louis, H. P. Craig, of St. Cloud.

Resolutions—C. F. Hendry, of Stearns, Frank Wilson, of Wadena, F. E. Thompson, of St. Louis, Warren Potter, of Aitkin, O. L. Cutler, of Anoka, R. F. Lenz, of Wright, W. M. Fuller, of Morrison, Edward Page of Carlton, C. C. McCarthy, of Itasca. The convention was called to order at noon and Chairman Willcuts read the call which was followed by the election of Wm. E. Lee, of Todd county, as chairman and N. H. Todd, of Crow Wing county, as secretary.

The committee on credentials reported that there were no contents and recommended that they be accepted as named in the credentials be seated without reading the list which was adopted.

The committee on resolutions made their report, the resolutions strongly endorsing the war policy of President McKinley, the platform of the republican party, and the excellent record made by Hon. Page Morris in Washington and unhesitatingly pledged to him the support of the district in the coming campaign. The report was adopted.

A congressional committee was authorized, to be composed of one member from each county, the delegates from each county to name the man they desired to have appointed by the chairman. The business of the convention having been completed it adjourned. It was a brief and harmonious gathering of the kind as was ever held in the state.

"BEFORE BABY IS BORN." A Valuable Little Book of Interest to All Women Sent Free.

Every woman looks forward with feelings of indescribable joy to the one most precious event of her life, compared with which all other joys pale into insignificance. How proud and happy she will be when her precious babe smiles at her breast—how sweet the name of "Mother." And yet her happy anticipation of the joys of parenthood is often marred by the thought of the danger which creeps over her. The danger and suffering attendant upon being a mother can be entirely prevented, so that the coming of a child need not be looked forward to with dread and trembling terror, as in the case of every woman who reads this valuable and attractive little book entitled "Before Baby is Born." By sending her name and address to the Bradford Dispensary, Atlanta, Ga. This book contains priceless information to all women, and no one should fail to send for it.

LUNCHEONS A LA MILITAIRE.

One of the Latest Diversions of New York Society.

Luncheons a la militaire are the favorite diversion with which the average element of society is willing away the solitudes of the day prior to the annual migration to seashore and mountains. This new display of patriotism has caused a notable boom in the trade of the caterers, although their profits have not been correspondingly increased, for they have not been accorded the usual opportunity to dispose of stock bought over from the winter's term of gaiety. The designers in their employ have been literally driven to their wits' end to devise decorations, favors and conditions that will display in a unique manner, the national emblem, colors and insignia. Their dexterity is displayed in many expressions of artistry, for many of the designs at first glance would not appear to lend themselves easily for decorative purposes are fashioned into highly effective bits of beauty. Flags, pennants, contrived either of flowers or candy, such as favorite centerpieces, flags from the gun, war medals the ribbon and gun barrels the headpiece. These contain small bombarded decorations in the form of middy's caps, which are in turn filled with tiny beads colored in imitation of the stars and stripes.

A fleet of ironclads reflected in a sheet of highly polished glass or metal is another popular design, and bombonieres fashioned in the form of cannon balls, etched medals, monuments of shot and shrapnel, mounted cannon, shells, eagles, medals, soldiers, bayoneted rifles—in fact, all the details of the soldier's equipments, and the tools of war—have served as models for the ordinary reports. Tricolored shades screen the lights of star suspended and are covered in bayonets and illumine the fair faces of the devoted admirers of the brave boys on land and sea. The patriots who are out for the stuff have good cause to bless the host of the day—Justice in Pittsburgh Dispatch.

SAMPSON A GOOD SPORT. Would Not Let a Steam Arrest Road in the War of Wagon.

That Acting Admiral Sampson takes his interest in athletics was shown by an incident which happened at Coahuila, Chile. It was at a celebration of the Fourth of July. Sampson then had a horse and had a pig crew which had been on the bottom for his majesty's ships. Sampson and Liffey.

Shortly afterward the German, another English vessel, arrived. She had a crew and a good racing boat, and immediately began to race. The German was to sail near day little was given for practice to the American crew.

On the afternoon of the day of the challenge Sampson was seated in his cabin when his coxswain entered. "Captain," he began, with deep respect, "do you want us to win this race?"

"Why, certainly," responded Sampson. "Well, captain, one of my men is under arrest. I have spoken to the first lieutenant and he says he can't be released."

"That being the case, the man a prisoner—I don't see what I can do for you," returned the captain gravely.

"But I can't without him," pleaded the coxswain, with an instance rarely given to a naval commander. "If you don't let that man go, captain, the Englishmen will beat us."

Sampson turned suddenly and touched his bell, and as his orderly entered he said briefly, "Put Lieutenant—what is the prisoner until this race is won."

It is needless to say that the race was won by the American crew, and the released prisoner smiled broadly of them all.—New York Times.

Chas. Morse Castles. Before the operations of the American warships in Cuban waters interested talks in the memorandum and geography of that neighborhood most people thought that Morse Castle meant a particular fort at the mouth of Havana harbor. In a hazy way it was imagined that the fortress was named after John Morse, or after. Now the knowledge that there is a Morse at San Juan and another at Santiago has sent the inquisitive ones to their Spanish dictionaries, where they find that the principal meaning of Morse is "anything round, or projecting over an eminence; an overhanging lip of a precipice."—New York Times.

Harmless to Colors. The "blue" and the "gray" have abolished each other, with the result of making the most perfect harmony in colors, called the "red, white and blue," remained never to fade or run.—Louisville Courier.

The Hope of Cuba. I am waiting, for an actor, though the days seem longer now. I love the harbor, and I love the sea. And though mine eyes are dimmed yet a faint light will see me. And I know that I will see coming, sweet America, to me.

At my level, across the sand and into the sea. The sea waves thruster to the beach, my eye to the light. I have had the fortune to be named in the book, my eye to the light. I have had the fortune to be named in the book, my eye to the light. I have had the fortune to be named in the book, my eye to the light.
