NONTREATING CLUB.

Organization organized in Chicago to remedy the Traveling Salesman.

A nontreating club has recently been formed in Chicago, the members of which pledge themselves not to treat anybody. "In a short time," says the Chicago Tribune, "members will exist in every large city from Manila to California. Five thousand letters and cards were issued the first few days, 10,000 more letters have been ordered, and the demand is expected to be greater than the supply. The organizers and promoters of the club are some of the prominent and traveling passenger agents located at Chicago, the chief among them being Elliott T. Mottet, general western passenger agent of the New York, Ontario and Western railroad, and president of the American Association of Traveling Passenger Agents."

"The traveling business," says Mr. Mottet, "has got to stop. The men of our profession know every Tom, Dick and Harry from the Atlantic to the Pacific. We are into a place to get a thing. Before we can leave we have had half a dozen or more drinks that we either had to take as a treat or pay for them. It has got to be such a nuisance that a remedy had to be found, and from the immense popularity of our scheme I believe we have struck the right thing."

HOTELS IN CUBA.

Experience of a correspondent in one of our columns.

An hotel keeper the name of Cuba goes in his distant country. Stephen Donald says that in his tour through Spain recently he was considerably surprised to find that the proprietor when he asked him what he could give him to eat was that he would cook for him anything that he had in his kitchen and some more. He had some beefsteak, and some chicken, and some fish, and some of the same way in Spain's late colony. I only spent one night in a hotel at Santiago, and a month's salary would not tempt me to spend another. An excellent man who looks any specimen to complete his collection can be secured on his name and address receive by return mail instructions as to where he can get a passport that will show present possessions in the shade.

In that hotel there were not only the various species of traps, ranging from the Indian woodpile to the various mammals, but there were not only a number of species which interested us to such an extent that we spent the night in the center table studying them. They even have some sort that can swallow a large snake. In New Mexico I had fought scorpions in Arizona and Utah, rattlers in New Mexico trying to defy the lightning of Santiago by getting into the hole of a snake in a pan of water. The next morning he looked like a dead man in a small hospital, and he accounted for it by saying that he had been bitten by a snake. There is a great opening for hotels in Cuba. Those that are now there can be taken over. - Robert J. Ormer in Atlanta Constitution.

General Kitchener's Old Experience. The leader of the Egyptian army had a very extraordinary experience, having swallowed a bullet which he had been wounded and which he now preserves as a memento. During the campaign of 1882 Major Kitchener was hit in the side of the face by a bullet during a skirmish near Suakin and was taken down the Nile and thence to the British hospital, at Cairo, where, despite all the efforts of the surgeons, the bullet could not be located. The wound was a healthy one and soon healed, and the medical officers came to the conclusion that the bullet had worked its way out without being noticed on the passage down the Nile. The major's eyes one day tempted his patient's appetite with a tasty beefsteak, which the major had no sooner attacked than he put his hand to his throat, exclaiming: "Hillo, if there was no hole in the steak, I've swallowed that bullet. I felt it go down." This proved to be the case.

Competition on a Bike. Mr. Hoke Smith, the Republican candidate for governor of this state, has started from Bristol on his novel campaign by bicycle, accompanied out of the town by the Bristol band and several hundred bicyclists. If the campaign proves successful, the politicians generally will take to bicycling.

Christies His Own Prisoner. American children have not the best example of good behavior set them at the capital. Speaker Reed declares that he is continually reminded of the early days when he taught school, while trying to control the unruly boys. The end of a session tells hunters no delight in gathering up the quills pelted from the head by the vigorous fight. It seems as if the constant use of this weapon of order would give one a mighty arm. Mr. Reed, however, does not sootered strength.

He says, by the way, that there has been a distinction between of party and party mostly against him since his portrait was painted by Sargent—the Democrats regard the portrait as a monument entitled. While speaking of it Mr. Reed led the way to the picture, standing beside it, let us say for ourselves how much Sargent and how well he has done it within the frame. The likeness has always seemed unaccountably good with the living man beside it for comparison it seemed positively inimitable. Yet Mr. Reed says it is the result of that when he is comfortably dead and the question of concealment of the ground he will be quite satisfied to be remembered by the fellow in the picture.

Some People We Know and We Will Profit by Hearing About Them.

This is a purely local event. I took place in Brainerd. Nob in Buffalo or New York. You may say to investigate it. Asked to believe a citizens word. To confirm a citizens statement. Any article that is included at home. That obtain resident advocates. Is more worthy of confidence. Than a far off foreign article. Testified to by unknown people. Mrs. M. G. Drake, of West Berlin, says:—Since taking Doan's Kidney Pills I just feel well, and that is all I can say. I suffered a great deal from inflammation of the kidneys and this became much worse than usual some months ago. My back in the region of my kidneys was sore, was lame and hurt me very much, an aching pain being ever present. The kidney secretions were dark in color, and on standing deposited much sediment. When Doan's Kidney Pills were advertised at Mr. Swartz's drug store I bought one box. I was a little afraid I would not be able to use them for I cannot take some kind of medicine. I found, however, that they were mild in their operation and did not produce any bad effects. Before taking them very long the kidney trouble was removed and the soreness and pain were replaced by a perfectly comfortable feeling. This meant a great deal to me and I ascribe it entirely to Doan's Kidney Pills. I only hope others may receive as much benefit as I have.

CHAPTER XXV. His receipt of Miss Hetherington's check seemed to come like oil upon the troubled waters of the little household. Casseidore was certainly pleased, though it was not so much, as she would have been, had she seen it. "You certainly accepted under the circumstances," she said, "but you are married, you have a husband—" young man dressed carefully in a fresh suit and wearing a wide-brimmed hat. He was standing in the light of one of the windows, talking to another man, somewhat his senior, whom he had just met. Casseidore caught a portion of their conversation. "And too long you've been in Paris?" asked the older man. "All the summer," replied the other. "I came here to study and paint, and I have been doing very well. How are all in Annapolis?" "Dearly, bravely. Where are you staying?" "Casseidore did not catch the reply, and the two men moved away with the crowd; but he had recognized, at a glance, in the younger of the interlocutors, an old friend—John Fetherington. "Fetherington," he muttered. "What has brought him to Paris? I must take care that he and Marjorie do not meet." He rose, paid for his refreshment, and waited a moment. It was now 8 o'clock. Halting a factor, he jumped in and ordered the coachman to drive to the Chateau de Chateau. Alighting at the door, Casseidore strode into the vestibule, and paid for a seat in one of the balconies. He continued to wait until the orchestra had begun to play, and then he stepped forward to the center of the stage. He was dressed in a suit of the latest fashion, and he had a very handsome appearance. He was looking at the audience with a very pleasant expression, and he was smiling at the applause that greeted him. An Apple a Day.

So much fruit is experienced by orchardists in gathering fruits that devices of various sorts have been employed to remove the fruit without injury. One of the simplest of these is a long pole to which is attached a ring or holder, and a canvas bag. The bag may be of any shape, but the long pole seems to be preferred. This has been used in some orchards for a number of years. The greatest difficulty is in devising a pole of sufficient strength to be manageable. A bamboo fishing rod has been employed for this use with very satisfactory results. It is light and sufficiently firm to bear the weight of the fruit in the basket, and it is strong enough to be used for the purpose.
