PLINGS AND SNEERS.

From Harper's Weekly.

It is constantly asserted—but constant assertion does not establish a fact—that the Republicans who favored the re-nomination of the President are bitterly intolerant of those who did not.

The people of the country who do not personally know the President must judge him by his words and acts. It is a skillful sophistry which charges him with every evil that may appear in the administration.

Some certain Senators are warmly, even contemptuously, opposed to civil service reform, which the President favors.

...until they are accepted as true, and one such fact, as it is called, is supposed to indicate a myriad more of the same kind.

We do not believe that the people of the United States bear with patience these incessant slings at a President who the most elaborate ingenuity has failed to stain even with suspicions.

By the amended tariff, on and after August first, next duties on wool and woolsens will be reduced 10 per cent.

While there are and will be attempts to depress prices below fair rates, we believe there is some cause for the hesitancy manifested by many manufacturers and dealers.

FOR GOOD.—It appears now that the Colorado potato bug is fastened upon us for good.

DEACON DODD. Deacon Dodd once feelingly said, About his Betsy, long since dead, "If ever an angloved a man, That angel, sir, was Betsy Ann; If I happened to scold her was so meek"

—The best conundrum out: In my first my second, my third and fourth I ate? Ans.—In-sat-i-eat.

—Speaking of theoretical farming, Josh Billings says he once knew a man who wouldn't even set a gate-post without having the ground analyzed to see if it possessed the proper ingredients for post holes.

—A writer in Temple Bar says: "It is impossible for a man of business not to sympathize with an eminent physician, who informed his future wife that he had no time for courtship; but that if she would marry him, and be ready on a certain day, he would be happy to meet her at the church and make her his bride."

—Josh Billings says: "All you have to do to raise oats is to plow the land deep, then manure it well, then sprinkle the oats all over the ground, one in a place, then worry up the ground with a drag all over, then set up nites, to keep the chickens and woodchucks out or them, then kradle them together with a kradle, then rake them together with a rake, then bind them together with a band, then stack them up with a stack, then thresh them up with a mill, then sharpen both ends of them with a knife, then stow them away in the granary, then spend wet days and Sundays trapping for rats and mice. It ain't nothing but plun to raise oats—try it."

PROPERTY FOR CHILDREN.—Every girl and every boy, should have the care of something belonging to them, to grow or cultivate, or improve.

INFLUENCE OF PARIS GREEN UPON THE POTATO. Prof. R. C. Kedzie, of Michigan Agricultural College, recently read a paper before the Natural History Society of that institution in which he discussed a question which we supposed was settled in the minds of most farmers.

At a meeting of the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture, Dr. Chabourne, now President of Williams College, and who has used his wonderful observing power in Agriculture as well as in other matters, said: "My opinion and belief is that the best time to cut grass is when it is well in blossom. Just as the blossom comes out, just as the seed begins to form, is the time when the nutritive material which the plant furnishes is mainly in the plant, and is best distributed in it."

For tomatoes the ground should not be made too rich. If so, the growth of vines will be large and the tomatoes ripen later than when planted on soil of average richness.

—Human knowledge is very short, and don't reach but a little ways, and even that little ways is twilight; but faith lengthens out the road, and makes it light, so that we can see the road the letterings on the mile stans.—Josh Billings.
