Also Sabbath school, at 2 o'clock p. m., every Sunday.

GEN. AVERILL is personally objectionable to Democrats and Liberal Republicans, but allied as he is to the GRANT regime, and running upon a platform opposed to reform, and insulting alike to both elements of the reform organization, his defeat becomes a political duty.—St. Paul Pioneer.
The above is a right down, safely, as the "heaviest" volley of objections ever flung against a political candidate. That "raspberry," (as designed by the Greeley party, and which means: stand back now till we can all fill our pockets), is too "thin" to even decide the most voracious plover-boy; while that "insulting" of both the elements of the Greeley revolution by the Republican platform is really a shame, to be sure. Virtuous crowd! if you can't stand the shot from their political cannon, and it's really too bad, too bad—for their sakes, we mean.

DISTRICT COMMITTEE.
The following is the present Republican Executive Committee for the Third Congressional District of Minnesota, elected at the District Convention held at St. Paul, July 18th:
W. L. Wilson, Ramsey.
I. Fletcher, Hennepin.
G. M. Seymour, Washington.
W. A. Feller, St. Louis.
J. E. West, Stearns.
W. E. Hicks, Douglas.
Andrew Nelson, Meeker.

THE SONG OF THE GREAT MEN OF MINNESOTA.
The following original poem, which was delivered by Mr. Dudley, of Minneapolis, at the Third Congressional District Convention, will do for the musical department of the Grant campaign, just to a dot—filling the bill to a T. Here it is:
Freemen! do ye hear the cry that sweeps across the land, Echoing thro' the startled air, a chorus free and grand?
Against the air it heaves above the tall pine trees of Maine,
And of New England catches it to send it on again!
With double force 'tis wrestling now with old Niagara's might,
And now with startling strength it climbs the Allegheny's height!
With restless power it speeds across the base and loyal lea, Climbing the air up to the stars, O'er Minnehaha's breast!
It is the voice of Liberty!
She calls each valiant son—
"Ho! gather in your strength once more,
A better to the world!
Put on your armor once again
And stand in strong array!
Till Freedom's cause and Union's flag Again shall wave the day!
O! soldiers of the loyal faith!
We'll find the earnest cry:
It shall not find a careless ear And pass unheeded by!
Again we urge ourselves in line,
And we shall rally to the stars,
And we will hold with ballots yet What Union bullets won't!
Gallant is our leader, he is honest, true and brave, Wouldly we follow him, the cause again to save!
Lee could never vanquish him, and heroes Greeley can't.
Union wins the victory another time with Grant!

What though some, who should be true,
Have gone the other way?
And wander to the ranks of those They fought but yesterday?
We yet shall have the victory, While they shall hide in shame;
The cause they've served the backs upon!
We'll triumph just the same!
So let them have their "Dicie," With bluster, noise and fuss; Good old "Yankie Doodle," Will answer still for us;
And the eye will follow boys,
In weary days of war;
We'll pitch that same old tune again,
And "go through" Brainerd, too.

IMPORTANT CORRECTION.
It has been reported on the street somewhat extensively, we understand, that we were responsible for the contents of an article which appeared in the Duluth Tribune of last Thursday morning, relative to the hanging scene in Brainerd. This report is entirely false, as we did not see any of the Duluth newspaper men previous to Thurday noon, and besides if we had we should have made a different statement altogether. We did not send a word by telegraph to any one, neither did we write or communicate with any one in any way about the matter. What we have said and done should be said—being governed by our best judgement and unbiassed by any one—we say in our own papers today.—St. Paul reporters and others will please be notified.

LYNCH LAW IN BRAINERD.
It was not entirely unexpected on Tuesday evening last, by our citizens, when a log and continuous noise arose from the corner of Front and Fourth streets, which at once signified that the talked of mob had organized for the purpose of hanging the two half breeds confined in our jail, charged with the murder of Miss Helen McArthur—a tragedy which has heretofore been recorded in these columns. Although it had been noised about for two or three days, however, that they would be hung, our citizens were not looking for so sudden an outbreak, and as a consequence all those not in the secret were taken by surprise, not to say alarmed at the simultaneous uproar, and soon over a thousand people outside the mob proper were in the streets to divine the exact reason of the tumult. It seems that fifty or more persons had organized quietly near their place designated, and after a short or two proceeded up Front to Fifth and down Fifth to the jail.
By the time they reached it the street for nearly two blocks was packed with people, to witness the strange sight they knew was about to be enacted.
The crowd gathered in front of the jail, and promptly smashed it with a stick of timber which they carried for the purpose, and ere Sheriff Gurrell (who had been sitting at a table writing a check) avert a that was going on, he found himself completely in the power of the mob. They got hold of the keys to the cells and in another instant the two prisoners were in the street before the massive guard lock to the big pine tree at the corner of Front and Fourth streets, in front of the "Last Turn" saloon, which has two large limbs reaching over the sidewalk, and their heads at the fatal spot where they were allowed a few minutes for prayer, instructed and led by a minister, and after considerable trouble in getting the rope over their heads, and the fatal knot being strung high above the heads of the vast assemblage. He died hard and it was many minutes ere death relieved him of his agony. Probably ten minutes elapsed before the other was made ready for his gallows flight, during which time he pleaded piteously to be spared—telling many stories of explanation, etc., but we could not hear, from where we stood, what he had to say. Soon his arms were secured behind him, a handkerchief tied over his eyes, when he was run up beside his dread companion. In the first struggle with the arms being made for more, and sprang along up the rope to the limb above, as he reached it, however, a shot from a revolver below brought him down with a heavy shock to the ground, followed by many others, and in a short space he too was a dangling corpse. They were left hanging until morning when several photographs were taken, when they were cut down, placed in a box, and carted away. And thus ended, by a fearful scene, the lives of two young half breeds, acknowledged on all sides to be very bad Indians, and among the worst of this community, to the guilt of the crime for which they were hung. Of course there was a great diversity of opinion as to the justice or injustice of the deed, but it is generally agreed that they were deserving the fate they met, on general principals, and outside the last offense with which they stood charged. Although the carrying out of such deeds cannot be deplored by all good citizenry as long as the laws of the land are not done by a regular course of law. A higher power, however, we leave to judge of the righteousness of this deed done in our city on Tuesday night last.

SOLDIERS IN BRAINERD.
On Thursday night last, in answer to a telegram sent by Sheriff Gurrell, a detachment of seventy-five soldiers arrived from St. Paul, on the train from the east, under the command of Captain Beckner. Upon their arrival they seemed somewhat surprised at finding but some half dozen military redskins, getting out of town as fast as they could, along with the militia companies.
The soldiers coming in at the other. They landed on the platform at the Headquarters, and after forming in rank, and showing the citizens what they knew about Indian regulation, they were taken to the barracks.
The militia companies, however, were taken up to the barracks. They were taken to the barracks on Friday morning, fifty of the detachment returned to St. Paul, and he remainder are still here, awaiting further orders.

THE CONDITION OF BRAIN-ERD.
Several parties, who don't take our paper, and probably would not pay for it if they did) but borrow it regularly, have come to us complaining about some things we have said, or more things we have not said, or some things we are going to say, or some things we must say. If such of our grati-tous readers don't like our "shape" in editing a paper, we advise them to start one of their own, that they may show to the world what they know about running a newspaper. Most people who subscribe and pay for the Tribune are satisfied, and it is first, second, and best; then, that we are working for. If any one has mistaken the editor of the Tribune for a dancing-kick, sooner they disprove their mind of that impression the more happy they will become.

IT IS TOO BAD.

CONGRESSIONAL CHURCH.
We are informed that the contract has already been let for the new Congregational church here, and is to be located on the opposite corner from the public park—across the street. The church for this organization is to be built by G. J. Gregory, Smith out of his own private funds, and he will also supply it with an organ, by contributions in the east. The congregation here are only required to send and furnish the building and buy the bell. It is considered very liberal on the part of that big hearted, and christian hearted gentleman, G. Smith, and one that will be highly appreciated by our countrymen. There has been a new minister assigned to the Congregational church here, who will at once become the resident minister. The Rev. Samuel Ingalls is the gentleman, from Glenwood Mo.

WANTS TO START A PAPER.
A young man of Hagerstown, Maryland, wrote a letter to our Editor, in which he stated that he was desiring to start a paper at Brainerd—having heard of our great young city and its onward strides. Says he has eight hundred dollars, and wants our citizens to subscribe eight hundred more to the enterprise, when he will undertake the advertisement. We feel sure his chance is good, for eight hundred dollars is a good thing deal. About the other eight hundred he wants subscribed toward the enterprise of starting a paper here, we don't know so much, but we feel sure that he has a thing going on. We stated that Tuesday, six months ago, we had a capital to put in of something less than eight hundred cents, and yet we lost no man for a cent in bonuses or gifts.
The Tribune still stands, published in the best office on the line of the Northern Pacific, and here we stand, right along side of our presses, early and late, and with our own money, we need no more of a kind of advertisement. We are ready to supply the town with news, wholesome, and un-intoxicating beverage. We trust they will do well in their new enterprise.

POP FACTORY.
Trudell & Aymer's Pop Factory is still alive. Let any one that has forgotten they were once in the town, to the town and try some of his new pop, and they will never forget it again. These enterprising gentlemen have also started a cork beer factory, and are now ready to supply the town with delicious, wholesome, and un-intoxicating beverage. We trust they will do well in their new enterprise.

CLOTHING AND MERCHANT TAILOR-ING ESTABLISHMENT.
We are pleased to announce that the building bought by Mr. Strauss, of W. W.
Hartley, on Front street, is to be occupied at once by Mr. Conrad Jachner, of Glenwood, Illinois, as a clothing and merchant tailoring establishment. Mr. Jachner proposes to put in a good stock of cloths and clothing; and to have a first class merchant tailor will open out a splendid tailor establishment in connection. This is an institution long needed in Brainerd, and we bespeak for Mr. J. a good business.

PERSONAL.
Frank Mead, one of the editorial corps of that able and influential journal, the Minneapolis Daily Tribune, is in town. He came yesterday, and is "doing" the Northwestern Pacific country as a correspondent to the Tribune. Frank and ourself are two of the old timers in Minnesota, in the news paper way, and what we know about that thing during the early history of Minnesota, would make a book of greater or less proportions. Mr. Mead is one of the journal writers, and is a very popular man.
His letters to the Tribune during his tours in various directions about the State, are not only reliable, but full of interest, and form a valuable lesson to that collecting paper. He will remain here till Monday when he will strike further west.
Frank's pleasant "pik" is still always welcome to our sanctum; and we hope he may often cheer the steady readers of our "papers" with the light of his countenance.

LETTER FROM CROW WING.
A correspondent from Crow Wing sends us the following items: FINN IS CROW WING.—Yesterday, the 21st inst., about four o'clock P. M., a fire broke out on Ash street, in the south part of Main-1-to-go-stick's residence, and in less than half the time that it took to get the building was entirely destroyed. No human beings were injured.

SEVENTY-FIVE ROUNDS FIGHT.
Twenty-sixth McAarty failed to come to time, the twenty-fifth ending the fight in favor of Sincere, who Sincere now wears the belt, and McAarty's hand hangs a good deal like the hands of a clock when it is half past six.

IF SO, HE DID RIGHT.
Sheriff Gurrell is said to have ordered Indians in and about town to leave the community, on Wednesday, but that they refused to go. Thereupon he telegraphed the Governor for troops to make them go, which was strictly in accordance with the commands of the Governor's proclamation in relation to officers ordering the Indians on to their reservation. If he did order them to leave, and they refused to go, he did just right to send the assistance to make them go. And now, we want to see them sent to their reservation and made to stay there by Governor Assin.

Some one, who says he knows, tells the following about the ball-bred hanging:
The two half-breeds hung in Brainerd on Tuesday night, died slowly—showing not the least sign of fear, either while going to the jail or under the gallows tree. Even when one had hung still he was dead, the other one laughed and joked with the crowd, as if they were his best friends, saying that the one they had hung was dead, and asking why they didn't take him down.
It may be that he had some desire to cling to life a little longer, for just before being strung up, he was several pistol shots put at that he could find the head and feet of the girl, but it was no avail, for he had scarcely uttered the words when he was changing to mere agony. The man, who was to fore the things from his hands, and the swiftness with which he climbed the rope for the limb above, showed that he was not preoccupied with fear. He had nearly reached the limb, when several pistol shots put an end to his miserable existence. While preparations were being made to hang them, they confessed several (dastardly) crimes of which they were guilty. Among them were the murder of a United States soldier not long since, at Little Falls, the killing of a humberman west of the place, last winter, and several others of minor importance.
Thus, even if they were to be proven innocent of the crime for which they were hung, there was sufficient justification for the strict measures that were carried out by our citizens.
It has been rumored since they were hung, that Miss McArthur is not dead, and has been seen at the Junction; but as this is only rumor there can be no foundation for the statement. The whole tragedy is veiled as deep in mystery as ever, and as the thing now stands, there is no hope of the true facts of the case ever being brought to light. And

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

The following is the platform adopted by the Republicans of the Third Congressional District at St. Paul on Thursday, July 18th, 1872:

WHEREAS, we cordially agree with Horace Greeley, in the declaration made by him last year, that "A Democratic National Triumph means a restoration to power of those who deserted their seats in Congress, and their places under the last Democratic President, to plunge the country into the red sea of secession and rebellion"; that "the brain, the heart, the soul of the present Democratic party is the rebel element of the South with its Northern allies and sympathizers"; that "it is rebel at the core to-day"; that "it would come into power with the hate, the chagrin, the mortification of ten bitter years to guide its steps"; that "it would hail the tidings of national bankruptcy with unalloyed gladness"; and that "whatever chastisement may be desired by our national sense, we must hope that this disgrace and humiliation may be spared us";

WHEREAS, We further agree with Horace Greeley that "General Grant has failed to gratify some eager aspirations and has thereby incurred some intense hatred"; but that "the American people let the lamentations of these disappointed office seekers pass unheeded"; that "their strong arms bore him triumphantly through the war and to the White House, and they still uphold and sustain him. They never failed him, and they never will." And WHEREAS, Horace Greeley, seduced by the pride of the Democratic nomination for President, has now united with the "rebel elements of the South and its northern allies and sympathizers," with the ring of Tammany thieves and the hungry horde of disappointed office seekers, to restore the Democratic party to power, and to inflict upon the country "the disgrace and humiliation" he has prayed might be averted, then virtually renouncing the disgraceful terms of surrender proposed by him to the rebel Peace Commissioners in 1864.

WHEREAS, Nothing has occurred to render the Republican party of its admission less worthy of distinction in 1872 than in 1871; therefore Resolved, By the Republicans of this District in Convention assembled, that we still steadfastly abide by, and heartily endorse and adopt the following declaration of principles, framed by Horace Greeley in September last, for the New York Republican State Convention:

"The Republican party refers all good citizens to its record, as their warrant for giving it their fullest confidence and support in the campaign, now formally opening, of the honest men against thieves.

It abolished slavery.
It led in the suppression of the rebellion.

It preserved and enlarged the Union.
It promptly reduces the enormous force thus required to a peace footing. It has reduced the debt over three hundred and forty millions of dollars in the last three years.

It has simultaneously reduced public taxation over three hundred millions of dollars per annum.

It has preserved peace on the border.
It has won a friendly adjustment of the threatening troubles with Great Britain.

For its conspicuous share in this beneficent record we indorse the National Republican Administration.

We reaffirm the platform of principles laid down by the last National Republican Convention, and on this record, with the ticket, this day chosen, we appeal to all friends of honest government, and of whatever previous party association, for aid in the triumphant victory we unitedly pledge ourselves to win."

Resolved, further, that in the words of Horace Greeley "the President's hearty endorsement of civil service reform, and his desire to secure a pure and untrammeled ballot appeal cogently to the judgment and affections of the American people"; that "he is Abraham Lincoln's direct successor, and the popular heart beats in unison with his aspirations and his efforts."

year, that General Grant will be far better qualified for the Presidency in 1872 than he was in 1868.

Resolved, that we enter upon this campaign in the confident belief that his glorious results will demonstrate the truth of these words of Horace Greeley:

"We are led by him who taught our armies to conquer in the West, and subsequently in the East also. Richmond would not come to us until we sent Grant after it, and then it had to come. He has never yet been defeated, and never will be. He will be as great and successful on the field of politics as on that of arms."

Resolved, That Gen. John T. Averill by his faithful, zealous, efficient, and impartial labors in Congress for the interests of all his constituents of this State and of the country, has well earned the hearty endorsement which we this day give him as the unanimous choice of the Republicans of the Third Congressional District.

LATE NEWS ITEMS.

The national debt is being paid at the rate of over $2.50 a minute.

The King of Denmark has offered a prize of a thousand dollars for the best history of the United States since the war.

The relations between Austria and Russia are said to have become of a semi-hostile character. Their interests in the East are diverse.

The Philadelphia Press says: "Dr. Livingston has been found, and in a few years the New York Herald will send out an agent to find the Democratic party."

A country paper reports that the cellar of the New Hampshire house where Greeley was born is to be dug up into small holes, and retailed out to Democrats as good places in which to hide after election.

English journals are already discussing the probable awards of the Geneva tribunal. It is generally conceded that England will be obliged to pay heavy sums for direct damages, although it is thought the total amount will fall several millions below the American estimate.

Scarcely one acre of broom corn is now raised in the meadows of Northampton, Hatfield, and Hadley, Mass., where there used to be fifty. Broom corn sells for only six cents a pound, whereas for twenty-five, and it costs nearly as much to raise the one as it does the other.

The Missouri Republican declares that "even on the Mississippi river are useless. It is said that the embankments tend only to raise the bottom of the river, and that the government might go on building them eternally to a constantly rising river, until the highest natural bluffs became low lands."

An attempt was made on Thursday night to assassinate the King of Spain as he was riding, in company with his wife, in a carriage. It was unsuccessful, and one of the would-be murderers was killed by an attendant of the royal party. Great excitement prevails in Madrid in consequence. If the attempt was made for political reasons, it was a very foolish one, for it only served to heighten the declining loyalty felt by Spaniards for their king.

In a recent letter acknowledging the receipt of an invitation to address a Republican gathering in a neighboring town, the Hon. Gerritt Smith says: "Vitality important it is in my judgment that the national Republican ticket shall succeed. Democratic rule very nearly cost us the life of the nation. God forbid that we should come again under its rule! The return of the Democratic party to power—be it with Seymour or Hoffman or Greeley at its head—is the one thing we have to dread."

A good story is told of Bishop Whitehouse, of Illinois. He undertook to illustrate a point in his sermon by telling his congregation how he had once been lost on the prairies of Illinois, and had wandered for a long time, weary and almost hopeless. At last he saw a light, and made his way slowly toward it, shouting for help. "Just as I thought I could go no farther," said the bishop, "and was about sinking down in despair, the door of a cabin opened before me, and the long-looked-for Suoker came." The unintentional pun brought the house down.

A little boy in Shreveport recently asked a lady who made her teeth. She replied, "God." "Well," remarked young Shreveport, "Dr. Kendall made mother's and they beat yours by a sight."

The last joke on the author of "What I Know About Farming" is a recipe, which is attributed to him, for the cultivation of fish-balls. It is as follows: "Never put over five potatoes in a hill with a codfish if you would insure a crop."

"Papa, stand on that heath," said a little triobrarian to his dotting parent, who objected that the heath would be scratched, and his mother would not like it. "Yes, papa, do; I wish you would." "But why, my child?" rejoined the paterfamilias. "Because mama'll give you fits if you do, and I want to see her."

At a Sabbath-school concert in New Hampshire, the pastor, who prided himself on the quickness and cleverness of his little ones, said:

"Boys, when I heard your beautiful song to-night, I had hard work to keep my feet still. Now what do you think was the matter with them?" The answer came with great promptness, "Chillblainth."

The Rev. Mr. H— had a large family of unruly boys, but as none of them would confess it, he declared he would whip ———— and then he would be sure to punish the real culprit. Jimmy, the youngest retired to a corner and grumbled. "What is that you say?" asked his father. "I think," whispered Jimmy, "that 't' just the children too that he would be there to kill little Jethuth."

A few days since one of our popular attorneys called upon another member of the profession and asked his opinion upon a certain point of law. The lawyer to whom the question was addressed drew himself up and said, "I generally get paid for telling what I know. The questioner drew a half dollar 'fractional' from his pocket, handed it to the other and coolly remarked: "Tell me all you know and give me the change." There is coldness between the parties now.

THE "DANGEROUS DISTRICTS" OF LONDON.

Colonel Higginson, who is now sojourning in London, was very much disappointed in the morality of that city; that is, he found it so much better than he expected—so says Mr. Conway. Having always read and heard of the "dangerous district" of London, where no respectably dressed person was safe from affront, at least, if not absolute assault, he, Yankee like, sought them out and investigated them for himself. He walked alone through "Seven Dials," but was unnoticed although dressed in irreproachable black; next he tried St. Giles, with the corner of his pocket handkerchief temptingly displayed, but he came out with pockets unpicked, having encountered nothing more formidable than "some old women peering at him over rows of dilapidated shoes which they proposed to sell, and which are generally supposed to have all been taken by force of the wasters." All of which rather disgusted the Colonel.

But Mr. Conway, who knows London better, sees an explanation of his safe passage through these places, in the military whistlers and independent bearing of the New Englander, which deceived the inhabitants into thinking him a disguised policeman.

SUMMER.

Let my Summer, swarthy, in the sun Lie & gazing, with bare bosom, upon the Swelling her limbs in hose warm and dim, Where splendors into dusky splendors run,
And sultry glory all the heaven's orrills.

Not a white dimple glows through the eye, Nor a low ripple stirs through the hair; Bliss, wrapped in gold and crimson gleams unshorn,
Comes pouring through the east the regal morn, Nor throated twitterings gurgle round the eyes.

Flooded in mazy silence alope the knee;
In languent murmure breathe bliss and flow,
The quartet fair gambles in the right shine,
And round them familar homelytwine twine.
And close beside them sundowners burn and blow.

Alone the geyring head I lay me down,
And into before me swims the noted ad, Glants up before me sways a fannons tower, Pillared and crested with a regal crown, Outhammering in an ordent purple glare;

Lo! lowly Tadmor, burping in its sand—Rebeck and Baby!—I see slow streams Gilding by moonc and minarets—see the gleams Of sea in sun—slips of distance;
And watch Duglad baricd deep do dream;

See swarthy monarchfashed in purple rings Of silken courtiers—through half open doors Catch the splendor, and the cool of springs Leaping forever in a mane of wings.
See light forms dancing over pearly floors!

Sleeping seraglio, drowsy, and tremulous dome Winking and spying splendor all the day—See forest laurels where thick the loose green See airy garbures splashed in bloody foam Leap terribly as lightnings on their prey.

Or stand 'with Cortes on a mountain peak Above the laster city—see on earth Gem-brooded shores of Montezuma weak; See the white temples swarming thick and sleek And sunny streets stretch up by towers of gold!

See silken sails float by ambrosial Laden with spice, up a Persian gulf;
Or stand on Lebanon, 'mid the cedars tall, Or hear the soft and silv'ly fall Of water down a just of Darien.

But lo! a waking elvir in the trees,
And voices 'mid the hay-cocks in the glen;
The sun is setting; and the crimson seas Are shaken into splendor by the breeze,
And all the busy world is up again!

GOD IN NATURE.

No one has a better opportunity of witnessing the wonderful workings of God in the wide field of nature than the farmer. His occupation brings him every day in full view of them. He is familiar with the progressive development of the young plant, and the matured beauty of its full growth. He is well acquainted with the sunshine and the shadow, the softly falling dew and the heavy rain, the gentle breeze and the rushing tempest. Some from their very familiarity with these evidences of divine wisdom, lose all interest in them with little more regard than the beasts that perish. Others, indeed, recognizing the hand of God, look on its movements with awe and dread—but go no further. But it is only the Christian that can see in everything the hand of a Father. Other men may wonder and admire; he can love and praise. Everywhere around he sees the fingers of God, and he rejoices to know that God is his friend; and when, in the tempest or thunderstorm men's hearts are failing them for fear, he can be in peace, knowing that he is a son of them whom the winds and the seas obey. Truly, the Christian farmer possesses greater pleasure and more exquisite joys than other men have any idea of, and if they have not experienced these, they have never met true happiness. Reader, have you?

FROM THE PHILADELPHIA LEDGER.

The fierce heats of summer tempt the incautious to frequent "refreshments." First in the list come various discharges of alcoholic stimulants. The refreshment gained from such drinks is a delusion. Taken in very small quantities when the strength is exhausted, and the person has leisure to rest, the last effect of the drink may be such coolness as results from getting away from a fire. Neither meat nor drink tends to cool the body, except as a relief to the heat and excitement of digestion and perspiration have passed away the person is cooler than while he was eating or drinking.

As the living body is constituted, eating and drinking are necessities. But as necessities they should be limited to the smallest satisfactory quantity. Temperance in eating and drinking is the only condition under which comfort and health can be expected during the torrid heats of the summer. The more simple the food, and the more free from stimulus the drink, the cooler and more comfortable will be who partakes. To eat to repletion, or to drink except in moderation, is sometimes equivalent to suicide, and is inevitably the cause of discomfort, if not of illness.

Many innocently injure themselves by flooding the stomach with fluids, or distending it with frequent resorts to what is called "light food," keeping the digestive organs at constant tension, and, of course, exhausting the vital energies. Of all things "strong potations" are to be avoided. Those who have unfortunately contracted the habit of daily indulgence—even moderate indulgence—in intoxicating drinks find the heat of summer very oppressive. Those whose appetites or whose temptations lead them beyond moderation, are sufferers to a degree which the temperate can scarcely appreciate.

The young, who have as yet formed no such habits, should steadfastly resist the beginning. Paradoxical as it is, the temptation to indulge is strongest at the very season when indulgence is the most dangerous. Patience and equal temper, avoidance of unnecessary exposure, are better than frequent drinks or even ices; while to resort to fiery drinks, under a fiery sun, is simply madness. There are large classes of men whose employments compel them to exposure to the burning heat. While, in their favor, it is true, that custom renders them less sensitive and more able to endure, yet it is equally true that they suffer very much, as frequent cases of exhaustion or sunstroke testify. The proper understanding which exists between fair employers and fair workmen suggests expedients which modify the hardships of exposure. But, after all, every man is his own best judge as to what he can bear under a burning sun, and should consult health and prudence above every other consideration. The idle man, panting and fretting, and dissatisfied, resorts to artificial means, which add to his discomforts instead of relieving them, and is, perhaps, a greater sufferer from the heat than he who modestly pursues his accustomed occupation, making up his day by constancy and avoiding fitful efforts. Temperance both in meats and drinks, and care not to overload on overheated stomach are safe rules in hot weather.

THE GUILLOTINE.

Hay Franco Kills Her Criminals.

Dr. Joseph Ignace Guillotine, on the 1st of December, 1789, proposed in the French constituent assembly to alleviate the horrors of capital punishment by adopting a machine which would dispense with the axe or sword. Dr. Guillotine's motion was not formally acted on until the 20th of March, 1792, when a resolution was passed ordering a decapitating-machine of the kind described by the doctor to be adopted. A young German mechanic named Schmidt, agreed to make eighty-three of the new instruments—one for each department—for the sum of 500 francs each. It was first tried on the 18th of April, 1792 upon a number of corpses at the Bioster hospital, and was found to work with rapidity and decision. A week later it was employed for the decapitation of a convicted highway robber named Pelletier. The dreadful use to which it was afterwards put in the wholesale massacre of innocent men, women, and even children made it very name a horror and contributed not a little to its not being adopted in England and the United States, instead of the Gallows, as a means of inflicting capital punishment. It consists of a block resting between two upright grooved posts, between which slides a heavy-weighted knife with an oblique edge. The sufferer is strapped firmly to a plank, and thrust face downward between the posts, so that his neck is directly under the knife. A spring is touched, the heavy keened-edge blade descends, and the head is severed from the body as a sharp razor severs a hair.

Guillotine himself narrowly escaped being a victim of the instrument which bears his name. He was thrown into prison during the reign of terror, but was released on the death of Robespierre, resumed the practice of his profession in Paris, and died quietly in his bed on the 26th of March, 1818. The story that he died broken hearted because of the infamy attached to his invention is of course untrue.

CAPITAL VS. LABOR.

Now that the working men have succumbed in a hopeless fight against capital, it is stated that the employers are forming combinations which are esteemed sufficiently strong to resist all their encroachments of labor. Every thinking person has for years foreseen that this would be the inevitable result of the petty tyrannies of trade-unionism, but the leaders of the latter shut their ears against even the kindest warnings. Still, now that the working men are defeated it would be infinitely more deplorable were the capitalists to carry to excess the baneful principle that has originated with labor. On the contrary, their noblest victory would rather be to make, immediately, all possible concessions to the vanquished, and show them that henceforward no money on the one hand nor brute force on the other shall sit in judgment upon grievances. A kindly, sympathetic sense of justice, American mechanics ought not—must not—be mere drudges; and it is not beyond belief that the time is near at hand when this fact will be generally recognized.

A "MAGNIFICENT ECHO."

Up the Lehigh Valley there is a hotel keeper who has a mountain about a quarter of a mile from his house, and it occurred to him that it would be a good idea if he could fix things so that a magnificent echo could be heard from the mountain by persons who stood at his hotel and hall, and so he engaged a boy to secrete himself behind a clump of trees, with orders to repeat the words of any one talking on the roof of the hotel. After practicing to make sure, the landlord announced one day his discovery of the echo, and took up a lot of people to enjoy it. They called for half an hour but no echo responded. At last, when the landlord had become crimson with rage and was about to give in, the echo came, but not in the shape expected. It said "Bin down to the spring for mother. Fire away, now I'm all right." The guests smiled, and my best suddenly disappeared. It is dangerous now to mention the word "echo" at that hotel.

HOW TO GET PLENTY OF EGGS.

E. Dwight, of Hudson, Michigan, writes to the Hermantown Telegraph: "I fed my hens plenty of corn and got but few eggs. I reasoned up the matter, and happened to think that the constituent parts of milk and the whites of eggs were much alike. Now, it has long been known to milkmen, that wheat middlings and bran are about the best of any feed to make a cow give milk; why not, then, the best to make the hens lay eggs? I tried it, and since then have had no trouble.

"My mode of preparing the food is to mix about five parts of the bran with one of middlings. In the morning I mix up with water about four quarts of the mixture in a large tin pan, taking pains to have it rather dry, though all damp. This I set in a warm, sunny spot, south of their shed, and they walk up, take a few dips, don't seem to fancy it like corn, and start off on a short hunt for something better, but always coming round in a short time for a few dips from the dish of bran. There is but little time during the whole day but what one or more are standing by the pan and freely helping themselves. At night just before they repair to roost, I usually throw them about a pint of shelled corn, well scattered so that each one can get a few kernels. If your hens don't incline to eat the bran at first, sprinkle some indian meal on it. I would like all who complain of not getting eggs to try my plan, and I think they will never be sorry."

COOKED CUCUMBERS.

We find the following in the Rural Southland: "It does not seem to be very generally known," says an exchange, that the cucumber is one of the most useful vegetables we have, and can be dressed in a great variety of palatable ways than any other, except the tomato. It is better than squash and most delicate than egg plant, prepared in the same manner; can be stewed, fried or stuffed, and above all, can be parboiled, mashed up in batter and fried as fritters; more pleasant and more easily prepared than any vegetable or fruit. When a cucumber just becomes too old to be used for pickling, it is then at its best for cooking, and may be used for that purpose even until the seeds become hard. A raw cucumber is, for most persons, an indigestible abomination, however much they may admire its flavor and odor."

DRINKING TOO MUCH.

Drinking wine is a habit; so is drinking spirits, ale, cider, coffee and water. The last is thought a necessity; but to drink much is a habit. Some people drink little—not because their constitutions require less than others: it is their habit. These people never persevere so much as those who drink more. The more that is drunk, the more water passes away, or the system would suffer. As it is, the strain affects it. The skin, the kidneys, bowels, lungs, all are drawn upon. The result is, as may be naturally expected, exhaustion. For this reason, the men who drink much water, particularly during the summer and in the hottest weather, is less able to endure fatigue. The water is of no benefit to him—that is the excess. It must pass away, and this requires an effort of the system, which is the sweating process. Had he not used the excess of water, he would not have been perished so; it would not have been there for the system to expel. It is a habit to drink water so much a false thirst is created. We should drink only what is needed. The habit of drinking more will soon be overcome, and the person will feel much stronger and more capable of bearing fatigue. In winter, little fluid is needed beyond what our food furnishes; in summer, some more, but not much.—Courtesy Gentleman.

HATTEN PROVERBS.—The day that the little chicken is pleased is the very day that the hawk takes hold of him.—Eggs ought not to dance with stones.—Before you speak turn your tongue over seven times.—A little dog may have courage before his master's door.—It's only the shoe that knows whether the stocking has holes.—The cock wears spurs, but he is no horseman for all that.—Pardon does not heal the wound.—A pig that has two owners is sure to die with hunger.—Repent is heavier than a barrel of salt.—A promise is a debt.

OUT THE WHEAT EARLY.—Farmers of Minnesota! The golden harvest is at hand. Be sure and sow your wheat early. Cut it when the grain is in the dough. Don't wait until it gets ripe. Don't wait until the kernels are hard, but cut when the grain is in the dough.—Farmers' Union.

TO KEEP ICE.—Make a double pocket of strong woolen cloth, no matter how coarse and sated it is. Have a space of two inches or so between the inner and outer pockets, and pack this space as full as possible with feathers. You have no need to use goose feathers; hens' feathers are just as good.—With a pocket thus constructed and kept closely tied at the mouth, a few pounds of ice may be kept a week.

"Very well, sir," said a Democrat, "as my party has finally confessed that Republican ideas are right, and Republican amendments to the constitution and Republican legislation are to be maintained, I will go for Grant, who carried those ideas, amendments and laws to success."

"It was commonly said that every one has a right to half the road. When two meet on the road, their rights are equal, so the law directs each to turn to the right, leaving six to eight feet between teams in passing, if the road will permit. Courtesy should be shown heavy teams, to give them as little trouble in passing as possible, and the same courtesy should always be returned by those who have favored."

"In consequence of eating the green fruit now exposed for sale in many of our streets, our obituary columns will be filled with such paragraphs as 'We had a little Charles once,' 'I would not live always,' etc., etc., thereby putting money in our pockets.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

—Some one writes: "The brain of a horse seems to entertain but one thought at a time; for this reason, constant whipping is out of the question, and only confirms his stubborn resolve. But if you can by any means change the direction of his mind, give him a new subject to think of, nine times out of ten you will have no further trouble in tarring him. As simple a trick as a little pepper, or the like thrown back on his tongue, will often succeed in turning attention to the taste in his mouth."

THE Brainerd Tribune
M. C. RUSSELL, Editor.

A GOOD STORY OF HORRORS GREENEY.
Postmaster Jones, of New York, tells a good campaign story for old Horrors. Some time ago one Norton, cashier of the Post-office, turned up a defaulter, and the United States government came down on his securities, among whom was Horrace Greely, responsible to the extent of about 30,000 dollars. Greely was very reticent under this obligation, and he is so much in fear of what he actually wanted to give his clerk for the whole sum and get it off his mind. Finally a meeting of the endorsers was held, and Mr. Greely put on his spectacles, took up his bond and solemnly reviewed the conditions. "Say I write an infernally bad hand," said Greely, "but they can read it plainly enough when it gets on one of these things."

THE AMERICAN HOUSE
Changed hands this week—Capt. E. U. Russell having disposed of that property to a Mr. Kiefer, from Shakopee, giving immediate possession.

W. W. HARTLEY
Sold his fine new business house on Front street, on Monday last, to Mr. E. L. Strauss, our Brainerd Jeweler. This is a fine stand, and no mistake, and we feel sure the investment will prove a profitable one to the enterprising gentleman who made the purchase.

KILLED.
One night this week somebody's horned critter came to grief, on the N. P. at this place, in attempting to butt one of the powerful locomotives of the road. It got so excitedly scooped out, and now lies in the valley.

This has been a year of strikes, but perhaps the most curious is that known as the "Strawberry, Strike," which recently occurred in London. The strike was simply on the part of the pickers, who struck for higher wages, which they refused. Thereupon work was stopped, but the market men, determined not to be outdone, sent carts into the purlieus of Drury Lane and other like court yards, and engaged the hells, the lines—the same culottes generally, who under the promise of a warm dinner, plenty of the fruit and a free ride into the country, turned out in crowds, and discharged their duties so satisfactorily that they were permanently engaged. In this respect, this strike is not unlike all others—the places of the strikers being filled, and they left to shift for themselves as best they could.
