M. C. RUSSELL, Editor. | "Render Unto Cesar the Things that are Cesar's." | VOL. 1, NO. 47.

THAT EXTRAORDINARY MATTER.—One night last week, a dance occurred at the Omaha House, in this city; along in the night, one of the females present, went out, and a short time afterward was found lying in the street near the house, in a half frozen and stupefied condition. She was taken into the house and after a good deal of exertion was partially brought to her senses—she is the same person who figured as the "heroine" of the Steele mock-marriage affair last summer, young and of prepossessing per son. When she came to she asserted that a Mr. McFadden, a drug clerk in Sherwood's drug store, had met her when she went out, had drugged her, outraged her person, and left her to freeze to death on the street in the bitter cold. The incensed crowd at the dance, upon receiving this intelligence, repaired to the drug store, and with cocked revolvers compelled the young man to accompany them to the scene of the dancing horror. In response to the question, "Is this the man?" she replied, "Yes, that is the man." The mob then informed the drug clerk that his time had come, and that he must die then and there by being riddled with bullets, and they prepared to put into execution the awful sentence. He begged the mob to spare him until the girl came entirely to her reason, then if they were satisfied of his guilt they might kill him. Nothing would appease their wrath, however, but his blood, and just as they were about to slay him at the muzzles of a dozen revolvers, Sheriff Gurrell with a posse appeared on the scene and rescued the victim, and took him to the jail for safe keeping. He was soon released, however, when he caused the arrest of several of the ringleaders of the mob. Subsequently on complaint of the girl McFadden was arrested, and he gave bail for his appearance at Court. Well, the trial came on, and McFadden was discharged; it having been proven that he had no connection with the affair, whatever. He prosecuted the mob, however, with vigor, and the trial of the three most prominent characters was concluded on Monday last, and they were bound over in the sum of $500 each, for their appearance at the District Court.—One gave bail, and the other two were committed to jail. The whole disgraceful and high-handed affair, is thought by some, since the trial, to have been a "put up job" on Mr. McFadden, to extort money from him, although some of those connected with the revengeful part of the drama, may have been honest in their impressions of his guilt. Mr. McFadden is a young man who has always borne a good character, and highly respected wherever known; he can think of no reason why he should have been pitched upon as the victim, unless it was for the sole purpose of "making a raise." At all events such outlandish operations, let the object be what it might, here in a community that lays claim to civilized Christianity, SHOULD, and MUST be dealt with by a heavy hand of justice, or else our community will be forever cursed in the eyes of the outside world; and if life, peace, happiness and prosperity, is to be made a target of, in defiance of law, then it is time the fate of Sodom was making its appearance, and it little matters how soon it comes. We, for one, among the many, are heartily tired of this loose, lawless manner of conduct, that has been too common in the history of this place, and we DEMAND, as we have a right to, that the municipal government, now formed, take the City severely in hand, and renovate not only its filthy alleys, but its still filthier morals.

J. L. STARCHER is just receiving a large stock of choice Wines, Gin-cocktails, Ginger Wine, Ginger Brandy, Hostetter's Bitters, Plantation Bitters, French Cognac, &c., &c.

OUR editorial brethren throughout the State are condoling with us on account of our getting cleaned out for City Recorder at the city election held here on the 23d, ult. Well, we appreciate their moans in our behalf, but don't get discouraged "boys," for we're still on the war path; your brightest hopes for us, we are bound to fulfill if it "busts" us. We have an eye on the office of Road Overseer next spring; so just lay low, and when the right time comes you'll hear something "drap."

THE NEW YEAR.—Another bright new year has dawned upon the world, and comes to us clothed in Purity's robe of white, as a type of its untarnished and unstained character. The old year, laden with crimes and wickedness of a million kinds, its pages of horrors and sad events, and likewise its achievments for the good, has withdrawn itself from the annals of Time to the unchangable pages of eternity. There before His high white throne it is unraveling before our Maker's gaze it panorama of events, and as scene after scene upon its breast is re-exposed to His all-seeing gaze, He stamps it with an irrevocable verdict for good or for evil.—We all know that the old year, just passed forever, was hideously frightened, although much good was also intermingled with the bad. Let all Christendom pray that the great Ruler of the universe may deal mercifully with the misdeeds and shortcomings of the past, and that He may lend poor fallen humanity a helping hand during the bright new year upon which all the living has just entered, and mercifully and unmistakably show His creatures the things He requires of them and give them more abundant grace to perform them. May every Christian heart throughout the world, cry out in a voice that will reach Jehovah's ear in behalf of an increase of righteousness for the New Year.

A "LO!" KISSING AFFAIR.— We have been aware for some years that among the pale faces a habit or custom was generally indulged in of making New Year's calls and wishing everybody and his brother a happy New Year, etc. But on Wednesday morning we and our household were somewhat taken back when into our cottage door some six or eight stalwart savages and as many squaws came boldly in and after a few emphatic grunts and some eloquent powwowing, they commenced a systematic series of kissing; all hands and the cook, was approached in rotation and received a rousing kiss on the cheek from each, from the greatest to the smallest, including the little ones of our household, and some lady visitors. It is needless to say that although inured to a life among the savages of the border, this proceeding on their part caused no little surprise on the part of all—for we never before knew that the poor untutored savage knew the difference between New Year's day and any other day. After getting all through their kissing business, they seemed to tarry with patronizing smiles, and our better half gave them a piece of cake and some pie, each, which they received amid grunts of approbation, and soon retired as they came, with signs of well satisfied pleasure. They were dressed in their finest toggery, and painted to kill, with all their implements of war, etc., slung on promiscuously. If any one can solve this singular phenomena, they can beat us in the line of unraveling mysteries.

OYSTERS, very choice, can be had at Starcher's, opposite TRIBUNE office, at reasonable price. Now's your time.

GETTING READY FOR BUSINESS.—Mr. J. S. Campbell, Sup't of the Brainerd Lumber and Manufacturing Co., informs us that the new and improved machinery that they have been introducing into their planing mill, is nearly ready for business. This new lot consists of Sash, Door and Blind machines, of the most improved patterns, and taking the whole establishment together, as it now stands, certainly looks like enterprise, and as though our city was hereafter to possess a manufactory equal to any in the State, of its kind. The country west of us, which will doubtless be flooded by immigration in the Spring, will find that their wants have been anticipated, and every imaginable thing, from a ready-made house to a light of 8x10 glass can be furnished them at a moment's notice, and at the most reasonable prices. We wish this Company the most abundant success.

THE post office has been removed from Hills & Co.'s store to the drug store of S. V. R. Sherwood, corner of Fifth and Front streets. Mr. Sherwood has fixed up nice quarters for the office, including a commodious lot of boxes, so that all who wish, may have a box of their own.

School Meeting.

The Board of Directors of the Independent School district, comprising the City of Brainerd, having been duly qualified, held their first meeting at the TRIBUNE office, in said city, on Monday, the 30th day of December, 1872, with Mr. C. E. Sleeper in the Chair.

On motion Mr. L. B. Perry was elected Clerk.

On motion Mr. L. P. White was elected Treasurer.

On motion Mr. L. B. Perry was appointed a committee to act as Superintendent of Schools until the Board should elect a Sup't.

On motion the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved—That this Board, appreciating the services of Misses Ladd and Fitzgerald in teaching private schools in our city, respectfully tender them the two public schools to be taught for three months, in Brainerd, commencing Jan. 1st, 1873, provided a contract for the same can be closed with them, and details agreed upon.

On motion the Board was authorized to make a contract with Teachers, offering for their services, respectively, a sum not to exceed $55 per month.

On motion meeting adjourned until Saturday evening, Jan. 4th, at eight o'clock.

The New Congregational Church.

This beautiful structure, from designs of Lyman Bridges, built under the superintendence of Jas. S. Campbell, Sup't of the Brainerd Lumber and Manufacturing Co., for Mr. Bridges, has been completed and accepted by the building committee, appointed by Gov. J. Gregory Smith, of Vermont. This is one of the most complete and symmetrical church edifices, architecturally and mechanically, both outside and inside, we ever saw, and does great credit to the head and heart of Gov. Smith, and all connected with its construction. It would be a credit to any city. The great success of the ladies at their recent Fair for the furnishing of the Church, enables this society to start under the best possible auspices, with the church out of debt.

The following is the acceptance of the building from the Contractors:

We, the undersigned committee, appointed by Hon. J. Gregory Smith, to Superintend the erection of the Congregatial Chapel, in Brainerd, by Lyman Bridges, Esq., having examined the same, are satisfied that the said building has been erected in a faithful and substantial manner, and we hereby accept the same for and on the part of Hon. J. Gregory Smith

THE MINNEAPOLIS TIMES.—We have heretofore neglected to notice the Minneapolis Evening Times, which comes to our table regularly, and is a most welcome and valued visitor. If it was always as wide awake and full of "business" as since our old time friend Frank Mead has been at the editorial helm, it well deserves its evident prosperity. Although Frank and the "undersigned" cannot see the same object alike through a political tin-horn, yet it is a consolation to know that even great men's minds will differ on some things, though on generalities their ideas may plough along in much the same groove. The Times is an excellent daily paper in all respects, under its present management, and we warmly recommend it to the reading public as a newspaper.

ANOTHER grand presentation took place a few days ago at the Northern Pacific Machine Shops of this place. The little army of employees laid their heads together, and presented Master Mechanic Wiley with a beautiful stem-winding gold watch and chain, costing upward of $300. We are in possession of none of the particulars of the occasion, but feel sure that Mr. Wiley not only appreciated the situation, but did the handsome thing for the boys, as they certainly did by him in tendering so magnificent a token of their high esteem and regard.

THE California Minstrels gave another of their very creditable entertainments at Bly's Hall on Thursday evening, to a fair audience.

FROM JAMES RIVER.—By a private letter received by our fellow townsman, J. Ayers, Esq., from R. Lambert, at James River, Dakota, dated Dec. 24, we learn that the recent "cold storm" thereaway was terribly severe. A train of sixteen wagons, loaded with Suttler supplies for Fort McKean, was caught between the Cheyenne and Jamestown, and the whole party, including Mr. Lambert and Mr. Christie, Suttler at Fort McKean, came within a hair's breadth of perishing. They were compelled to throw away half their loads, and finally to abandon teams entirely, and strike out for Jamestown every man for himself.—Strange to tell, every man got in, but many of them were fearfully frozen. Pat. Hill, the mail carrier between the Missouri and Jamestown, came in to the latter place about the same time, but was so badly frozen that legs and one arm will have to be amputated. The Suttler party, that portion of them who escaped freezing, returned the next day to where they had left their teams and got them into Jamestown, but in a wretched condition.

Our numerous friends will please accept our warm thanks for the many kind invitations we have received during the past two weeks to be with them on various occasions. Their thoughtful kindness has been fully appreciated, but the fact is, since we first started the TRIBUNE our time has been too wholly taken up to admit of much outside pleasure; in the outset we felt inclined to eventually make the TRIBUNE the monument of our journalistic life, notwithstanding the discouraging fears of the few friends we had at the beginning; and in order to do this, we have found it absolutely necessary to devote our ENTIRE TIME, and our every energy, late and early, and all the time, to our task. For nearly a year now we have worked hard, an average of fifteen hours every working day, and have in the wilderness, so to speak, built up a business that requires three first class printers, and other cheaper help, to discharge. But we expect to work still longer, as the time has not yet come for us to give up close application to business for social pleasures to any great extent.

APOLOGETIC.—We have to ask pardon of the ladies of the Methodist Society in our city, for not mentioning the beautiful Christmas Tree they gave their Sabbath School on Christmas evening. The reason mention was not made of it with the rest, was because we knew nothing of it at the time. The tree is said to have been one of the most beautiful and richest that was given in town, and did great credit to the liberality of the ladies of that Society.

We have had, within the last two weeks, another deluge of contributed "poetry" from various persons who seem to have fancied themselves Byrons, Scotts, Hoods or Poes, requesting us to publish the same for the edification of folks who were not poets.—The nearest approach to poetry that we could discover in all of them was:

"Ja-a-a, Ja-a-a, Ja-a-a, Ja-a-a, Too-de-tiddle-oh."

hence we are forced to decline giving them to the hungry public—because our readers are not very hungry for poetry, no how.

NEAT PRESENT.— The assistants of Prof. Jones, in his Hair Dressing establishment, made him a present on New Year's morning, of a handsome watch chain, valued at $60.00 This was certainly a handsome gift, and the Professor was as tickled about it as a boy with a new jack-knife—and well he might be. He also received a new plush cap as a gift from the Headquarters "boys." Verily, the Professor is in luck.

CONGRATULATORY.—We congratulate our good friend, T. Hireen, Esq., and his excellent wife, on their presentation, Friday last, of a fine fat boy, which jerked the scales up vigorously at TWELVE pounds, large. That's Brainerd style for you, on the baby question. What town dare to come to time?

DULUTH must be a horrid dull town. We judge so, from the character of the matter that has of late appeared in the daily papers of that young city.

MASONIC NOTICE.—There will be a special meeting, of great importance, of Auro Lodge, at their room in Bly's Hall, Thursday evening next, at 7 1-2 o'clock. Brethren are urgently requested to be present.

ST. PAUL has expended during the last year the snug sum $2,346,487 in building improvements, as we see from a most elaborate statement in the Pioneer—covering ten columns of that large and enterprising paper.

HON JOHN T. AVERILL, our Representative in Congress from this district, will please accept our thanks for public documents received.

NEW YEAR'S calling was largely indulged in and enjoyed in Brainerd.

Married.

HILL—SMITH.—On Wednesday evening, Jan. 1st, 1873, at the residence of Prof. R. L. Jones, Mr. Edmund Hill to Miss Rebecca Jane Smith. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Samuel Ingham.

Our young colored friends have certainly taken the new year by the forelop, and may their future New Year days be many and happy as this one, is our wish.

A Card from Prof. Jones.

Prof. R. L. Jones of the O. K. Barber shop was the recipient of a very fine Cap, at the hands of the Railroad officials, at Brainerd, as a New Year's present, being a token of esteem which the donors have for the Professor, for the gentlemanly and courteous manner in which he has discharged the tonsorial duties of the O. K., towards those gentlemen. The Prof. feels very grateful towards the givers for the high esteem which they evidently have for him. Such notices speak well for him.

The gentlemen employed by the Professor, also presented him with a very fine gold watch chain, showing their gratitude toward him for his gentlemanly treatment of them. The Prof also wishes to say in conclusion that he is from the State of Illinois, where he has always borne a good reputation for the gentlemanly manner with which he treated all men.

E. B. LYNDE, first door east of Wallers' Red Store, let it be remembered, has one of the most varied and best stock of goods in this market, which he is selling at prices strictly suited to the times. Let the ladies, and all in need of any kind of supplies, call on him, before buying elsewhere.

THE NEWS.

At Home.

EVERYTHING indicates an early and satisfactory settlement of the land difficulties recently so exciting along the line of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad on the Osage lands.

FITCHT & EVLSWORDT's grocery store, in Memphis, was burned Sunday morning. Loss about $20,000.

THE machine shop of McDonald & Sons, at Lapeer, Michigan, were burned on Saturday night. Loss $25,000.

A. T. STEWART fell on the steps of his residence in Fifth avenue, Saturday evening, dislocating an ankle and breaking his leg.

THE trustees of Columbia College have purchased a tract of land at Fort Washington, in the upper part of New York city, whereon it is expected the college will be permanently located.

SIX PROFESSIONAL nines are announced to be in the base ball field next season. The Boston nine will include Gould, Rogers, the two Wrights, Barnes, Schaffer, Leonard, Spaulding, with Hicks or Allison for catcher. McVey retires.

A STORE HOUSE on Hamburg dock, Hoboken, was robbed on Friday night, of four cases of silks and one case of foreign illustrated newspapers. Value, $10,000.

JUSTICE LAWRENCE, President of the Continental Life Insurance Company, died suddenly Saturday morning at his house in Yonkers.

WM. ORTON, after considerable negotiation, has resold to Whitlaw Reid 50 shares of the 100 constituting the capital stock of the Tribune Association, for a large advance on the price at which he purchased it. He retains one share, and will be one of the trustees of the Association.

THE remains of the bodies interred on the site of Trinity Church, Boston, have all been removed, the last casket having been taken from there Sunday morning.

A WATER main in Lowell, Mass., burst on Sunday morning, flooding the cellars of one or two business houses, and cutting off the supply of water.

DETROIT has purchased another pest-house in view of the spread of small-pox.

THE steamboat Andrew Fletcher, belonging to the New York Quarantine Department was burned early Friday morning, while lying at the Government dock at quarantine. Loss, $25,000.

NEAR Jackson, Michigan, Wednesday evening, Valentine Smith, a brakeman, fell from the top of a freight train between two cars and was killed. A train following five minutes after dragged the body half a mile, and cut both legs and one arm off.

MARTIN VANDERBY, a resident of Appleton, Wis., was thrown from a wagon down an embankment, by a runaway team, on Thursday, and instantly killed.

You Will Forget Me.

A SONG.

[The following beautiful poem is supposed to be an orphan. If its author is living he had better claim this child of his brain, for there are doubtless plenty of others who will be glad enough to adopt it.]

You will forget me, the years are so tender—
They bind up the wounds which we think are so deep;
This dream of our youth will fade out as the splendor
Fades from the sky, as the sun sinks to sleep;
The clouds of forgetfulness, over and over,
Will banish the last rosy colors away;
And th' fingers of Time will weave garlands to cover
The scar which you think is a life-mark to-day.

You will forget me—will thank me for saying
The words which you think are so pointed with pain;
Time loves a new lay, and the dirge he is playing
Will change for you, soon, to a livelier strain;
I shall pass from your life, I shall pass out forever,
And the hours we have spent will be sunk in the past;
You will forget me—grief kills seldom or never,
And forgetfulness covers all sorrow at last,

You will forget me, and the one thing you covet
Now, above all things, will soon seem no prize:
And the heart which is not in your keeping, to prove it
True or untrue, will lose worth in your eyes.
The one drop to-day, which you deem only wanting
To make life a joy, will be lost in Time's stream;
You will forget me, and the ghost that is haunting
The aisles of your heart will pass out with a dream.

THE CATHEDRAL CHIMES.

A Legend by the Author of the Schonberg-Cotta Family.

In a city whose history dates from the ages of silvery bells and stately buildings, there stood, and stands now for aught I know, a cathedral, rich in all the endless fancies of Gothic art. Inside it was solemn with shade, and gorgeous with light which came in through the elaborate tracery of the stained windows, many-colored, and broken as the sunbeams through a tropical forest. Outside, fretted pinacles and carved bell towers sprang upward, grand, yet fairy-like, as if stone towers rose as easily and naturally toward heaven as oaks and pines. But the chief glory of this cathedral was its bells. They were the pride of the city, and the great attraction to strangers. Their history formed an important part of the civic chronicles.

A lady of a royal house had given them as a thank-offering for her Love's safe return from the Crusades. All her silver-plate and ornaments! with spoils of Saracens from the recovered Holy Land, had been poured into the mold when they were made, so that from their birth all tender and sacred memories had been fused into their very essence, and their first tones echoed far-off times and lands. A bishop who afterward suffered martyrdom in the hands of African Moslems had blessed them. Their first peal had sounded in honor of a great victory. They had summoned the people through ages of conflict to defend their liberties. They had blended their life with the life of every home,—in family joys and family sorrows; at wedding, christening and funeral. They had made Sundays and holidays glad with their joyous voices. And last, but not least, by aid of an elaborate mechanism of hammers, rope and pulleys, they had for centuries celebrated the departure of every hour with a chorale, and every half-hour with a strain like the versicle of a chant, and every quarter of an hour with a sprinkle of sweet sound.

Imagine, then, the dismay of the citizens when, one Monday morning, eight o'clock, and no sound issued from the cathedral; half past eight, silence; nine, not a note of warning! Their wonder was increased when the usual peal rung out, clear and full as ever, for the morning service, and by midday the whole city was in commotion. It was plain something must be wrong with the machinery of the chimes.

Immediately the most skillful mechanics of the town, clock makers and bell founders, with men of science and the whole corporation, in a state procession mounted the clock tower. "We will soon set it right," they said to the agitated crowd as they entered the belfry door. The ropes of the machinery were tested—all were sound; not a flaw in the hammers; not a clog in the wheels; not a crack in the silver metel. Microscopes were employed, conjectures were hazarded, experiments of all kinds were tried, but not a ray of light was thrown on the perplexity. The eleven hands and the wise heads, and the will of the authorities were all baffled; and the process re-appeared to the assembled multitudes with very crest-fallen looks.

That afternoon little work was done in the work-shops, few lessons were learned in the schools, all the routine of household habits were interrupted; and when it grew dark the great square was filled with people who were afraid to separate and go to bed without the sanction of the cathedral chimes. Many foreboded some terrible disaster to the city, and some thought the end of the world was come!

But when it was dark a sound very wearied and strange, yet with a music like the old familiar tones came from the church-tower, as it rose dim and grand against the starry sky. It was a voice, not human, yet with a strange likeness to a human voice, silvery as a stream, thrilling as a battle-trumpet, familiar to each listener as his own, like the blended voices of a spirit and a bell.

"We have been born too long," said the bell-voice. "We were set here on high for other purposes than men have put us to. Is not this a cathedral, a sanctuary, and a shrine, sacred with the dust of martyrs, and dedicated to the service of Heaven? Were not we christened like immortals? Were not we consecrated like priests? The touch of holy hands is on us, and shall we be debased to secular uses? Set apart like sacred ministers in a sacred dwelling, shall we be required to mingle in the common circumstances of our daily life? Raised on high to be near the heavens we serve, shall our saintly voices serve to tell you when you eat and sleep? We have borne it too long. We will still serve heaven, and summon you on Sundays and holidays. We will call you to the solemn services of the church. We will, if necessary, sound a triumphant peal on days of national thanksgiving, in remembrance of the victory which first woke us into music. We will even condescend to ring at your weddings—because marriage is a sacrament—and at your baptism. We will toll solemnly when your spirits pass from earth, and when your bodies are laid in the church-yard we [illegible] of your [illegible] forth expect us not to [illegible] your [illegible] as well. [illegible] your gilded time-pieces—call you to work, and eat, and rest. We are sacred things, set solemnly apart from all secular uses. Our business is with Eternity, and the Church, and Heaven. Call on us no more to commune with the things of the world, and earth, and time. We are your cathedral bells, but we will be your household clock-chimes no longer."

Then the voice died away on the night air. For a few minutes there was silence, but soon it was broken by sobs and lamentations, and all the people lifted up their voices as one man, and wept.

The house father said, "Shall we never more hear your voice calling us to morning and evening prayer? Whenever you told us it was the hour, the mother came from her work, and the children from their play, and together we knelt, a united family, and committed each other to God."

And the mother said, "Your voices are blended with every happy household time. Sweet bells, will you mingle with our family joys no more? In the morning you wakened us to begin another busy day, and the sun's beams and your voices came together to call us to serve God in our lowly calling; and both, we thought, came to us from heaven; and both, we thought, were meek and lowly, and ready to minister to us in our daily lives, because both were sent from Him who came among us once, not to be administered unto, but to minister; and both, we thought, had caught something of the light of the eyes which wept at Bethany, and of the tones of the voice which spoke at Cana and at Nain. At midday you told me it was time to send the dinner to my husband and my elder sons. At six your voice was welcome to us all, because we knew the father's step would soon be on the threshold. At eight you reminded me it was time to lay the little ones to rest; and many a time have you brought happy and holy thoughts to me in those psalms you sang to me whilst I hushed my babe's sleep; and all my every day life seemed to be more linked with sacred things, to become, as it were, a part of the service of God, because it moves to the music of your voices. And again at night your tones were welcome, as in the morning, when they told us the day's work was over, and, wearied, we lay down to peaceful rest, for through the night we knew your sacred voices would sound to Heaven above our sleeping city, like the voices of the angels, who rest not day nor night, saying, Holy, holy, holy, Sweet bells! will you never chime for us again?"

And the children said, in their dear, sweet, ringing voices, "Dear chimes! do not cease to play for us. You wake us to the happy day, you set us free from school, and send us home laughing and dancing for joy; you call our fathers home to us, at night you sing us to sleep, and your voices are blended with our mothers' in our happy dreams. Sweet chimes: you sang so many years to our fathers and mothers; and our grandfathers remember you when they were little children like us. Dear chimes; sing to us still."

And from the sick-chamber which looked into the cathedral square, where the windows were darkened all day; and sand was strewn before the door, that the din of the passing wheels might just jar less roughly on the aching head within, came a low and plaintive voice,—"Sweet bells! your commonest tones are sacred to me. You are my church music,—the only church music I can ever hear. When I hear you chime the hours on Sunday's and on the festivals, I feel myself among the multitude within your sacred walls; and your voice seems to bear their songs of praise to me, and I am no more alone, but one of the worshippers. But at night it is I prize you most. All through the hours of darkness, so often sleepless to me, your voice is the voice of a friend, familiar as my mother's, yet solemn as the chants of the choir. It helps me to measure the hours of pain, and say, 'Thank God, an hour less of night, and an hour nearer morning.' And how often, when my suffering is great, you have come with the old psalm-tune, and every tone has brought its word to me, and spoken to me as if direct from God, and filled my heart with trust and peace! Your least sprinkles of sweet sound are precious to me; I fancy they are like the waters of time falling musically from stone to stone on their way to the great sea. I feel they are as the echoes of the footsteps of Him who is drawing nearer and nearer to me; and they draw my heart nearer to Him. Sweet bells! your commonest tones are sacred; for what is the world but that which becomes the church when it learns how God has loved it, and turns from self to Him, and what is earth but the floor of Heaven, which heavenly feet once trod, and what is time but the little fragment of eternity in which we live on earth? Sweet bells! make not my sleepless nights lonely and silent, but sing to me, sing to us all, as of old. Make all our life sacred by linking every fragment of our life to God."

But still no responsible sound came from the cathedral tower, and the people waited on in the silence and the darkness. At last a young priest, an Augustinian friar, ventured a bold suggestion: "Are not the devils proud, and the angels lowly? Did the angel think it beneath him to say to Elijah, 'Arise, and eat?' Did Gabriel hesitate to descend from the presence of God to bear to an aged priest the tidings of the birth of a child? Did the other angel deem it secular to say to Peter the apostle, 'Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandals, and cast thy garment about thee,' before he led him over the stony streets through the cold night air? And should our cathedral bells scorn to bid us 'rise and eat' or to chime at our births' or to summon us to 'gird and clothe' ourselves for every day's work? Brethren, proud thought, and scorn of daily services, and voices which call our every-day life common and unclean, are not from heaven. The bells are possessed by a proud and evil spirit. Let us exorcise them."

The suggestion at first startled the people as daring, and irreverent to the church bells, but in their despair they agreed to try it. A solemn procession of priests and holy men and women mounted the cathedral tower, and, in ancient formulas, with prayer and incense, and the music of holy hymns, they exorcised the fiend.

Then at once a tide of pent-up music flowed from the liberated bells! They conscientiously rang out at once every hour and half-hour they had omitted, and meekly and steadily resumed their wonted chimes, and continued them ever afterward, like voices of happy and lowly angels calling men to wake and pray, to "rise and eat," to pray and rest; cheering the workman to his daily labor, and welcoming him from [illegible] her babies; and in the sick chamber soothing the lonely hours with melodious sounds, and waking in the lonely heart sweet echoes of the psalms of praise.

Here the legend ended. I heard, however, afterward, that the young priest, the Augustine friar, lived to spread glad tidings through the city, but that he was burned in the cathedral square for preaching to men what he had said about church bells. Yet, in the flames, it was said, he looked up to the cathedral tower, and sang the words of a psalm of praise while the old bells were chiming, till his voice was silenced by death. And ever since the chimes have taken up his message and chant to those who will listen hour by hour.

"Whether, therefore, ye eat or drink, or whatever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

Puget Sound.

The Hon. Wm. A. Howard, of Grand Rapids, Mich., recently delivered a lecture to his fellow citizens, in which he gave a glowing account of the timber region around Puget Sound. Among other things he said he had seen pine trees there each of which would make more lumber than the average of five acres of timber land in Michigan would produce. The average yield of five acres of pine lumber land in Michigan, he said, is less than 50,000 feet; but there are trees in the Puget Sound region which will yield 86,000 feet of lumber each, without working up to within eighty feet of the small end. He had seen trees ten feet through at the butt, sound as they could be, straight as an arrow, and more than 250 feet high. The wood of these gigantic trees is coarse, and is not good for fine work; but in the same region are very large white cedars, which grow in abundance, and make excellent finishing lumber. Fir and pine trees, however, are the most common in the region described, there being three kinds of the latter, white, yellow and red, the red predominating. This has a coarse grain, something like hemlock, but is free from knots. It is the red pine which grows to such an enormous size.

Mountains of Silver.

A Colorado City letter says: I have just examined specimens of ore from thirteen new leads of silver mines recently discovered within eighty miles of this place, the assay of which has proved them to be of wonderful richness, varying from 240 to 1,300 ounces of silver per ton of ore. The Little Emma Mine in Utah, so celebrated, yields on average of only about 140 ounces in silver per ton, and that at a great depth from the surface.

These marvellous argentine deposits are found at an elevation of about 14,000 feet above the level of the sea. They will not be opened nor their wealth displayed until the melting of the snows. The miners in this Territory were unusually successful last summer and are flocking down to the valleys to spend the winter and their money. Miners, as a rule, are as improvident as sailors. Every spring they go upon a cruise empty handed, and neither hardship nor misfortune teaches them thrift or frugality. Some few in the winter months hunt game, and thus save their summer's earnings.

No Oldish Women in France.

When cabriolets came into fashion under Louis the Fifteenth, bon ton required that every woman of quality should drive her vehicle herself. But the fairest hands were not the most skillful, and accidents were fearfully numerous. The king sent for M d'Argenson, and begged him to take measures for the safety of passengers in the street. "I will do so with all my heart," he answered "But do you wish accidents to disappear completely?" "Parbiu! To be sure I do." Leave me to manage, then." The next day an ordonance appeared, to the effect that no lady under 30 years of age could be permitted to drive a cabriolet. Two days afterward, not a single cabriolet conducted by a female driver was seen in the streets of Paris. Not one Parisienne had the courage to avow, by driving a cabriolet, that she was 30 years of age.

Sparks from Boston Ruins.

Making the grand rounds of the burned district, the whole area was found to be undergoing a constant change. The derricks, with their heavy and swaying radias of cordage, were planted all over the grounds, making the district much resemble a busy shipyard. Hundreds of carts were constantly leaving with loads of debris, and as many more coming in to be reloaded.

Many merchants in distant cities are paying what they owe to Boston, and the deposits in the banks of the city are rapily increasing. Will newspaper man please take notice and do likewise.

Lee's Monument.

The Richmond Enquirer says that the marble for the memorial sarcophagus and recumbent statue of General Lee has been quarried in Vermont, and will shortly arrive in that city, and be carved from the design in plaster. Means are now needed to enable the sculptor to go forward and finish the work. The total cost of the work undertaken by the Memorial Association is $20,000, of which $5,000 have been contributed; $15,000 are yet required. As the surest and readiest way of raising this sum the Association of the Army of Northern Virginia, at its late meeting in that city, appealed to the ladies of the South to join in celebrating the 20th of January, 1873, the anniversary of Generel Lee's birthday, in taking such steps as will secure the sum of money needed to properly adorn his tomb at Lexington.

A Forthcoming Royal Marriage.

There is no reason to believe that England will shortly have another Royal marriage. The visit of the Duke of Edinburg to the Hanoverian ex-royal family at Gmunden is believed on the Continent to be connected with the Duke's betrothal to one of the ex-King's daughters. He has two, both of them, it is said, under twenty-one, and both very pretty. Their father is reported to be one of the richest men in Europe, so there ought to be no difficulty about the dowry, which will be especially gratifying to Mr. Lowe at this season of discontent.

THE New York Herald says: "It is remarkable how the value of some singers' services increase with success in the smaller cities For instance, Mr. Jacob Muller, the baritone, writes from San Francisco that he will sing in concerts in this city for four hundred dollars per night."

Proceedings in Congress.

SENATE.—Among the bills introduced on December 16th was one by Mr. Carpenter regulating the taking of private property for public use. A resolution for the appointment of a committee of five on the question of providing cheaper transportation from the West to the East was passed. Mr. Sherman, from the Committee on Finance, reported, with amendments, the House bill authorizing the exchange of registered bonds for coupon bonds. As amended the bill authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to issue coupon bonds in exchange for registered bonds in [illegible] tion provided the expenses of their issue be paid by the owner thereof, and under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe. Mr. Sherman also reported the House bill revising the mint and coinage laws, with amendments, among which is one providing for a trade silver dollar of the weight of 420 grains troy, a silver half-dollar weighing $12\frac{1}{2}$ grammes, and a quarter-dollar and a dime, respectively one-half and one-fifth the weight of the fifty-cent coin. All these silver coins are to be legal-tender at their nominal value for any amount not exceeding four dollars in any one payment. No other business of importance was transacted.

HOUSE.—Among the bills introduced were the following: Authorizing free banking; to repeal the law requiring double postage on matter not fully prepaid; to repeal the tax on tobacco; granting one million acres of public lands to the Brown Theological Institute in Florida; also for a like grant to the Agricultural College of Florida. Mr. Garfield presented a petition of the two sons of the late Senator Douglas for compensation for cotton taken from them in North Carolina during the war. A resolution was passed, yeas 115, nays 53, that no measures be taken toward removing from the army register or regimental colors of the United States the names of the battles of the rebellion. A resolution instructing the Post-office Committee to enquire as to the propriety of the election of postmasters was adopted. A bill was passed for the tranportation through the mails of agricultural and flowering seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions, etc., at the rate of two cents for every four ounces weight, not to exceed four-pound packages. A resolution offered by Mr. Cox, in regard to affairs in Louisiana, was rejected. The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the deficiency bill.

SENATE.—On December 17 the following gentlemen were appointed a committee to consider the question of cheaper transportation from West to East; Messrs. Windom, Sherman, Conkling, Ames, Casserly and Norwood. The Indian appropriation bill was reported with unimportant amendments. The Senate resumed the consideration of the French spoliation bill.

HOUSE—The bill providing for determining the boundary line through the Haro channel as decided by the Emperor of Germany was passed. The bill appropriating $100,000 for American exhibitors at Vienna was discussed at considerable length. Brooks denied the Credit Mobilier charges made against him by H. S. McComb. A desultory discussion took place relative to enlarging the scope of the investigation, and as to sitting with open doors, but no action was taken. The report of the conference committee on the bill to remove the sunken wrecks from the channel of Sandy Hook was taken up and agreed to. The House then took up as the special order the bill reported from the Judiciary Committee last session for a settlement with the states of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, of the five per cent. of the net proceeds of the sales of public lands within those states but adjourned without action.

SENATE—On December 18, Mr. Pomeroy, from the Committee on Public Lands, reported a bill for the relief of the settlers on the Cherokee lands. The bill was discussed until the expiration of the morning hour. Bills were introduced to secure a more efficient and honest administration of Indian affairs, and authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to negotiate with the Creek Indians for the cession of a part of their reservation. Mr. Stevenson formally announced the death of his colleague, Garret Davis, and delivered a eulogy. Messrs. Vickers, Cameron, Thurman, Sumner, Bayard and Trumbull also eulogized the deceased. Mr. Sumner, in his remarks, made an allusion to Seward and Greeley as cotemporaries of Davis—like him followers of Clay. After the addresses the customary resolutions were adopted and the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE—On motion of Mr. Monroe, a bill was passed authorizing the Comptroller of the Currency to examine into the condition of the savings banks in the District of Columbia. The bill for settlement with the states of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois of the five per cent. land claim under an act of March 3d, 1857, was passed. The House spent some time in committee of the whole on the deficiency bill, and upon rising, eulogies on the late Senator Davis, of Kentucky, were delivered, after which the House adjourned.

SENATE.—The House bill amendatory of the postal code, with amendments, was reported on December 19th and passed. The amendments change the rates of postage on seeds, authorized to be transmitted, from twenty cents for four ounces to one cent for two ounces or fraction of two ounces, and provides that all mail matter of the third class must be fully prepaid. Several bills were reported from committee adversely. Mr. Sherman, from the Finance Committee, reported a substitute for the bill prohibiting the sale of liquors in the District of Columbia and other territories The bill authorizing the exchange of registered and coupon bonds was discussed and laid over. Mr. Ramsey reported a postal telegraph bill. The Senate then resumed the consideration of the French spoliation bill.

HOUSE.—A resolution was adopted authorizing the Banking Committee to inquire whether unlawful combinations for locking up gold and money exist, causing commercial and financial stringency, and report legislation to prevent and punish such unlawful combinations. A bill to defray the expenses of the Mexican Commission was passed. The diplomatic appropriation bill, appropriating $1,832,000 was reported and made the special order for January 7. The consideration of the deficiency bill was then resumed in Committee of the Whole, and upon rising the measure was passed. Yeas 139, nays 71. The bill to defray the expense of transporting goods to the Vienna Exposition was passed. Leave of absence was granted to a great many members. Amid much confusion and pressure for adjournment several bills were introduced and referred, and the House adjourned.

SENATE—A bill, on Friday, December 20, extending the time for the completion of the Winona and St. Peter Railroad passed, as was also the deficiency appropriation bill. No other business of importance was transacted, and the Senate adjourned over the Holidays.

HOUSE.—Bills were introduced, To extend the time for entries for Osage lands in Kansas; To secure a more efficient Indian administration in the territories; To amend the Constitution in regard to the election of President, Vice-President and Senators by the people. The House adjourned over the Holidays.

A Washington Sensation.

From the Capitol.

The social life of Washington is agitated by the rumor of a lawsuit brewing, wherein a gay, dashing widower, after winning the affections of a young lady, had the day agreed upon and the trousseau purchased, suddenly turned up with a wife that he married in an adjoining city. The mortification of the young lady—an official, by the by—was made more painful by the publication that had been given the affair. Not only had the day been fixed, but as we have said, the trousseau obtained and the guests invited. Her mortification is somewhat modified by learning from general rumor that the poor girl is not alone. This gay deceiver it seems, flung his promises, if not his affections, about in the most promiscuous manner. It has been suggested that the sufferers hold an indignation meeting and resolutions. But the suit for breach of promise is more substantial, and generally ends in bringing upon the head of the offender the wrath, contempt, and indignation of the virtuous community, to say nothing of damages that will be assessed.

The defendant in these cases has generally two suits—one with his wife and the other with the disappointed. The wife is generally very much disappointed, then indignant—a storm arises. What: this late lover of hers, now her loving husband, to be in such a scrape! Trifling with other woman's affections—has he not been trifling with hers? But the storm dies out, and the wife from being an angry enemy becomes an active ally. One can imagine the poor devil of a husband pleading piteously with his better half, by law and the sanction of the church, and then going exhausted into court to fight that other fair one who cannot be captured.

Hymn of Peace.

We sing to thee, O glorious river!
Descending all the hills of time;
To earth's bright field a gladsome giver,
We bring the songs from every clime.
Sing, happy hearts! sing low and tender!
Sing soft, O sea! sing sweet, O shore!
Sing, bending blue! thy scroll of splendor
Bear notes of peace forever more!
Songs ever blending and ascending,
Sweet peace, we give thee o'er and o'er.

[illegible] stream, born 'mid the mountains lonely—
Those far-off years whose peaks rise high:
Child of love's ocean, God, the only,
Gave thee to earth from out the sky.
We trace thy course through time's commotion;
We shudder at the dread survey
What fearful storms have checked thy motion
What frightful rocks have barred the way!
Yet all triumphant to the ocean,
Sweet peace, thy waters flow to-day.

O silent river, smoothly flowing!
How bright the blue that blends o'er thee!
Millenial sunlight now is glowing
Across the nearing western sea.
Blest prince of peace! thy sons and daughters,
Rejoicing to thy gift to them,
Send far adown the widening waters
The echoing song of Bethlehem,—
The song all-glorious and victorious,
The angel-song of Bethlehem.

Like some old composer hugging his work with childish delight, Mr. Brougham kept his play locked up in his desk till Miss Temple appeared, when he determined upon giving us the new play and the new player without further delay.

The Night After Christmas.

ILLUSTRATED BY D. SCATTERGOOD.

'Twas the night after Christmas, when all through the house
Every soul was a-bed, and still as a mouse;

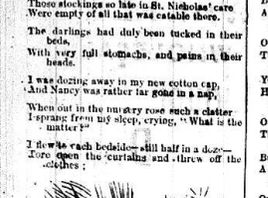
Those stockings so late in St. Nicholas' care
Were empty of all that was catable there.

The darlings had duly been tucked in their beds,
With very full stomachs, and pains in their heads.

I was dozing away in my new cotton cap,
And Nancy was rather far gone in a nap,

When out in the nursery rose such a clatter
I sprang from my sleep, crying, "What is the matter?"

I flew to each bedside—still half in a doze—
Tore open the curtains and threw off the clothes;



"In the twinkling of the objects below."

While the light of the taper served plainly to show
The puzzling plight of those objects below:

For what to the fond father's eyes should appear
But the little jade face of each sick little dear,

For each pet that had crammed itself full as a tick
Knew in a moment now felt like Old Nick.

Their pulses were rapid, their breathing the same
What their stomachs ejected I'll mention by name:

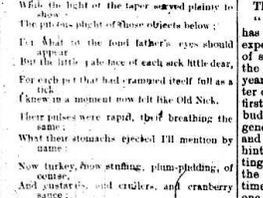
Now turkey, then stuffing, plum-pudding, of course,
And mustards, and crullers, and cranberry sauce;

Before outraged nature all wept to the wall,
Yes, lollypops, flapdoodle, dinner and all.

Like pellets which urchins from popguns let fly,
Went figs, nuts, and raisins, jam, jelly and pie.

Till each error of diet was brought to my view,
To the shame of mamma, and of Santa Claus too.

I turned from the sight, to my bedroom stepped back,
And brought out a vial marked "Pulv. Ipec."



"I don't you think you had better, love, run for a Doctor?"

When the Nurses exclaimed, for their sufferings should be relieved.
"Don't you think you had better, love, run for a doctor?"

I ran; and was scarcely back under my roof
When I heard the sharp clatter of old Jalap's hoof.

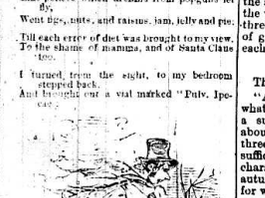
I quickly say that I had scarcely turned myself round
When the doctor came into the room with a bound.

He was covered with mud from his head to his foot,
And the suit he had on was his very worst suit;

He hardly had time to put that on his back,
And he looked like a Falstaff half huddled with sack;

His eyes, how they twinkled! Had the doctor got merry?
His face looked like port, and his breath smelt like sherry.

He hadn't been shaved for a fortnight or so,
And the beard on his chin wasn't white as the snow.



"But inspecting their tongues in spite of their teeth."

But, inspecting their tongues, in spite of their teeth,
And drawing his watch from his waistcoat beneath,

He felt of each pulse, saying, "Each little baby
Must get rid"—here he laughed—"of the rest of that lady."

I gazed on each chubby, plump, sick little elf,
And groaned when he said so, in spite of myself;

But a wink of his eye, when he physicked our Fred,
Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread.
He didn't prescribe; but went straightway to work,
And dosed all the rest—gave his trowsers a jerk—

And, adding directions while blowing his nose,
He buttoned his coat, from his chair he arose,

Then jumped in his gig, gave old Jalap a whistle,
And Jalap dashed off as if pricked by a thistle.

But the doctor exclaimed, ere he drove out of sight,
"They'll be well by to-morrow; good-night.
Jones, good-night."

"The doctor exclaimed ere he strode out of sight."

Love's Last Relic.

BY WILD EDGERTON.

Only a little silken curl,
Cut from the head of a laughing girl
In happy long ago;
But alas! the happy girl is dead,
And from my life the light has fled,
For, O! I loved her so!

Only a little lock of hair
That crowned my darling bright and fair,
Before death's parting blow;
Yet it brings me back her vanished charms
Her pressing lips and clinging arms,
For, O! I loved her so!

Only a little golden tress
That used my sweet one's cheek to press,
And o'er her shoulders flow;
But, looking back through long-gone years,
A holy thing that trees appears,
For, O! I loved her so!

Only a little sunny shred
By which my heart was captive led
In happy youth—and, lo!
It still leads on through grief and pain
To where the parted meet again,
For, O! I loved her so!

Only a little ringlet fair,
Only a dead girl's glossy hair,
But worlds could not bestow
Treasure enough to fill its place,
And summon back the one lost face
That I have worshiped so!

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

What Buds Give the Best Grapes.

The Pacific Rural Press says:

"We would mention a fact which has come within our observation and experience, which, if generally true, is of some importance. It is this: That the fruit from the base of the past year's cane throws out larger and better developed grapes than either the first or second. The grapes from these buds seem also better flavored, and generally superior to those on the first and second. In accordance with this hint we have adopted the plan of cutting the cane at such length as to leave the third bud, generally, and sometimes the fourth, when a good strong one, and then rubbing off the first and second buds, and leaving the third and fourth for fruit. The number of fruit buds left on the vine must depend on the age and strength of the vine. If the vines are strong and vigorous at three years, from two to three bunches of grapes may be allowed to mature on each without injury."

Winter Pears.

The Country Cultivator says:

"A young cultivator wishes to know what varieties of winter pear will give a supply from the present time or about the first of winter, for two or three months—such sorts as have been sufficiently tried to be of established character. He has a good supply of autumn pears, but has overlooked those for winter. In answer to this inquiry we may state that we now enjoy only the Anjou, which is unquestionably the best of this season, the Winter Nells and the Lawrence. These will probably furnish a good supply till about the first of the year—sometimes the Lawrence last much later. February. Very much depends upon the manner in which these fruits are kept, and the fitness of the apartments for storing them. Keep the specimens in as cool a place as possible after they are gathered, and before they are placed in the cellar. A cool out-house, or a suitable apartment in a carriage house, fronting the north, answers a good purpose. A fruit room, built above ground on purpose, is best, where there are large quantities to be stored; or in the absence of this building, an apartment may be divided off by double boarding in some other building, and covering the boxes in which the fruit is packed with chaff of fine straw. This protection will often be sufficient until the time has far advanced into December, and these will be no danger till intense ly cold weather sets in, and it will be some days before the frost can pass the barrier of double partitions and the thick stratum of chaff. When they go to the cellar, keep the apartment well ventilated and regulated to a low temperature above freezing by a thermometer.

"We have mentioned the Anjou as the best early winter pear. If kept in a warm apartment, it will ripen in autumn, even as early as the first of October; but by keeping cool, according to the mode just mentioned, they may be had even as late as the first of the year. There is some variation in different seasons. We have known the Winter Nelos to ripen fully in November, when the autumn had been warm, but the period was retarded some weeks by keeping the pears in a cool place.

"After the Anjou, Winter Nells and Lawrence, the Josephine de Malines is the best, ripening in January, and keeping till February. Doyenne d'Alencon ripens about the same time, but is not so good in quality. It is, however, a hard tree and good bearer, and is on the whole a desirable sort. The Eastern Beurre, when it matures well, will keep into April, and ripen into a delicious fruit, but on the whole it is rather an uncertain sort. Josephine de Malines is poor in some places, but is mostly delicious and excellent. It grows well on quince.

We should not omit the name of the Vicar of Wakefield as an early or mid-winter pear of value. It is a free grower and a prodigious bearer—the fruit large and fair. It is occasionally, when well grown and ripened, of good quality for the table, being pleasant and agreeable, although not rich; but its chief value is for baking and stewing. The principal reason why the fruit is so often poor is that it is allowed to overbear."

Household Recipes.

ROLL CAKE.—Three eggs, one cup of sugar, one cup of flour, stir well into it one teaspoonful of cream tartar and half as much soda, bake quick, and roll with jelly when hot, bake in square tins.

HICKORY NUT CAKE.—Take one-half cup butter, two cups of sugar, and four eggs beaten separately, three cups of flour, one-half cup of sweet milk, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, two cups of hickory nut meats cut fine, one tea spoon extra vanilla.

FRUIT CAKE.—Four eggs, one cup of butter, two cups of brown sugar, one cup of molasses, three cups of flour, one teaspoonful of soda, one nutmeg, clove, allspice, mace, one teaspoonful each; one quarter of a pound of citron, one and half pound of raisins, one pound of currants, one glass of brandy, more spice, and some extract of lemon if you wish. Bake two or three hours.

GRAHAM MUFFINS.—Take three pints of lukewarm milk, half a teacup of home-made hop yeast, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt; stir in into three pints of Graham flour and one pint of barrel flour. Set it in a warm place to rise over night, and next morning pour it into "gem" pans of muffin rings, and bake in a very hot oven.

GRAHAM BREAD.—Take one quart milk-warm water, or two-thirds milk and one-third water; stir this into a pint of wheat flour, and enough Graham flour to make a stiff batter. Mix with it half a pint of home-made yeast, or two tablespoonfuls of baker's yeast, add a pinch of salt. Let it rise in a warm place over night. In the morning add at it a small teacup of molasses or brown sugar, and stir in enough Graham flour to make as stiff a batter as possible to stir with a spoon. Put the batter into two bread tins to rise, and let them stand about an hour, or until the sponge is well risen. If there is any danger of its becoming acid, a small teaspoonful of soda dissolved in hot water could be added with the molasses. Graham flour requires a thinner or softer sponge than wheat flour, and it cannot be moulded with the hands: it is also needs baking a little longer than loaves made of bolted flour. It is well to stir the yeast into the milk warm water, and then turn that upon the Graham and bolted flour. The latter is added to give more gluten or consistency to the dough.

BUTTERNUT GRAHAM CAKES.—Take three cups of rich buttermilk; add to it one teaspoonful of soda, dissolve in hot water; mix with one large handful of bolted flour, and enough Graham flour to make it as stiff as griddle cakes; put in a pinch of salt, and one egg thoroughly beaten. Put a spoon pan on the stove and heat it very hot; butter the apertures, and turn in the batter Let it stand on the stove until the bubbles rise in the batter; then put in a hot oven for twenty minutes. These are more delicious than cake raised with yeast.

RICE PUDDING WITHOUT EGGS.—One gallon milk, one large teacup of rice, one teacup of sugar, raisins in quantity to suit; bake three hours in a moderate oven, stir after the first hour.

A Preventive of Small-Pox.

The Atlantic Medical and Surgical Journal of last April published the following: Dr. G. D. Norris, at a recent meeting of the Alabama State Medical Association, stated that during the prevalence of the small-pox in Huntsville, certain families, at the instance of some one unknown, had resorted to the free use of blue tea of the cimicifuga raeemosa, or black-snake root of the United States Pharmacopœia (black cohosh), as a preventive of small-pox. In the families using the cimicifuga there occurred no case of the small-pox, though they were exposed to the disease. In the same families Dr. Norris vaccinated the members, but without effect so long as they continued the use of cohosh; after ceasing the use of the tea as a prophylactic he again vaccinated them, when the specific effects of the vaccine virus were produced. He submitted the results in these cases as new, and not without interest to the profession.

A Revolting Story.

From the New Albany (Ind.) Ledger, Dec. 13.

The particulars of the death and burial of a small-pox patient in this city has just been reported to us, which contains some revolting details, and which, if true, demands more than mere mention. Some three weeks or more ago a colored man named Bradius Smith, living on Upper Fourth street, was taken down with this terrible disease, and died on Monday, the 25th of last month. After his death the notorious Bill Watkins was employed to bury his body. It is said that he went to the bed, seized the dead man by the legs, dragged him out of bed on to the floor, and thence down the stairway, where he placed the body in a wagon, hauled it to West Union, and kept it for nearly a week before it was interred.

It is also rumored that Watkins never interred the body in any burial grounds, but conveyed it to a swamp and there covered it from sight.

LIVER COMPLAINT, LIVER DISEASE, I. E. BILIOUSNESS.—Bilious complaints—by some termed liver disease—are very common in this country. The ordinary indications, such as yellowness of the skin and whites of the eyes, pain in the right side under the inferior ribs, with sometimes difficulty of respiration and troublesome cough—are familiar to a host of sufferers; but the liver, sometimes, is by no means unsatisfactory state without the presence of such symptoms. When we reflect that the liver is the largest gland of the body, that it secretes the bile which lubricates the bowels and keeps them in order, is the great blood purifier or cleansing machine of our system, may truly be called the Housekeeper of our Health. Sudden transitions of climatic temperature, or impure air or water are disturbing elements which arrest the functions of the liver, and render it corpid producing, diarrhœa, dysentery, bilious, remittent, intermittent fevers, and a general prostration, at it unhealthy state of the whole organization.

It is not surprising that a medicine which can restore the healthy operations of the liver, should command general attention. Such a medicine is CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS, The Housekeeper's Towel and Broom.—Com.

The Chicago Tribune

Now occupies its rebuilt premises with greatly improved facilities, and appears in a new dress of type, which makes it one of the largest, handsomest and best newspaper published west of New York. Its distinguishing features are its full, fresh and reliable telegraphic despatches, at whatever cost; full and accurate commercial, real estate and financial reports, and great ability in its editorial, literary and agricultural departments. It is independent and outspoken in its views, with full faith that Time, which sooner or later gives to every truth the victory, will vindicate its principles. It has been and most powerful agency in the Northwest in organizing and moulding that strong, free public sentiment which, at last, has united all parties in maintaining the equal rights of all, irrespective of race, creed or color. The advocate of Progress, the friend of Virtue, the fosterer of Art, Education and general culture, its great success is largely due to its high character as the best representative of the Industrial and Business interests; and the marvelous enterprise, of the West. Its advertising columns reveal the great fact—more convincing than words—that, whoever wishes to know, or to make known anything patronizes the Tribune. It is emphatically the people's Tribune, which no Western man of business or culture can afford to be without.

The Tri-Weekly contains, in addition, the substance of two Dailies.

The Weekly will contain the cream of the Dailies, the unrivaled articles of Rural on "The Farm and Garden," so eagerly looked for by Western readers, and original and selected sketches, tales and articles of special interest to the Home and the Fireside. In the comprehensive and fearless of its news, literary excellence and adaptation to the wants of Western people, it has no equal.—Com.

A Manual of Health.

An edition of between nine and ten millions of copies of any useful work is now ready for gratuitous distribution, and can be had for the asking at any drug store in the United States, the British Colonies, Spanish American or Brazil. The work referred to is Hostetter's Almanac for 1873. The medical portion of it treats of the various ailments to which the human system is subject, and sets forth the peculiar properties of Hostetter's stomach Bitters—the purest and best tonic at present known—as a remedy for debility and indigestion, fever and ague, and all the principal languages of the civilized world, and is recommended by hundreds of families and individuals than any other medical treatise that ever issued from the press. No man or woman who has a due regard for the well-being of himself, herself or toothy vigor, should fail to read the plain, simple and convincing articles which this truly practical publication contains. The miscellaneous matter is varied, instructive and amusing, and the calendar department contains much valuable information. Hostetter's Almanac is, in short, a household convenience, adapted for the use of all classes and ages. The farmer, the planter, the miner, the merchant, the mechanic, the laborer, the professional man, all need it, and to insure that both secure it, literally an article of prime necessity. The medical technical matter which renders certain of the treatises intended for popular use unintelligible to the general reader, have been carefully avoided in this pamphlet. All that need be said of Hostetter's Bitters is that they are a thorough, reliable and expeditious remedy for every disease arising from a disordered stomach, liver or bowels, and a powerful preventive of fever and ague, which with reason and common sense.

The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburg, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

A FRENCH surgeon has now inserted successfully into the skulls of his dogs watch crystals, through which he can observe the processes of the canine brain during sleep, in digestion, when influenced by rage or other emotion, and of the mental movements. He can pack scem to show no exertion in having an ore set on their inmost thoughts, nor to contribute anything to science brought their dogs close, and the asian expects to show, as clear as crystal, that the theory that blood tends to the head in sleep is an error.

A CHALLENGE

Is extended to the world to place before the public a better cough or lung healer than ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM.

WEEKLY IT HATH NO EQUAL.

CONSUMPTIVES, READ!

Would you cure that distressing cough, and bring back the healthy flush of health to your pale cheek? If you would, do not delay; for, ere you are aware, it will be too late.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM

Is your book. It has been tried by thousands and not found wanting. Go to any druggist and inquire gratuitously, and he will tell you of its wonderful cures. Many have lent their names to us, that sufferers may write them and read their testimony and letters. Don't experiment with new and untried mixtures, when you can get the tried—the invariably certain article. It is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours. Time, the great test of merit, has proved it to be the best. It never fails. It is guaranteed to give entire satisfaction in all cases of lung and throat difficulties.

UNSOLICITED EVIDENCE OF ITS MERITS.

READ THE FOLLOWING:

WHAT WELL KNOWN DRUGGISTS SAY ABOUT ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM.

SPRINGFIELD, TENN., Sept. 11, 1872.

GENTLEMEN,—Sold 6 gross Allen's Lung Balsam at once. We have sold more of it in one Store, than more reputation than any cough medicine we have ever sold. Have sold Dr. Wistar's Balsam for more than seven years; we miss it just what we say about Allen's.

Very truly yours, HURT & TANNER.

AGAIN READ THE EVIDENCE from a Druggist who was cured by one of his own remedies, and now sells it largely.

LODI, Cottrell, Druggist at Marine City, Michigan, writes, Sept. 12, 1872: "I am out of Allen's Lung Balsam; must have one half a dozen gross sent me. I would rather be out of any other medicine in my store. The Lung Balsam never fails to do good. Have suffered with a cough."

It is harmless to the most delicate child.

It contains no opium in any form.

It is sold by Medicine-dealers generally.

CAUTION.

Be not deceived. Call for ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, and take no other.

☞ Directions accompany each bottle.

J. N. HARRIS & CO., Cincinnati, O.

PROPRIETORS.

☞ Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

VEGETINE is nourishing and strengthening; purifies the blood; regulates the bowels; quiets the nervous system; acts directly upon the secretions, and restores to the diseased parts health.

ATTEND TO THE FIRST SYMPTOMS OF CONSUMPTION, and that the disease may be checked in its infancy, use at once Dr. Jayne's Expectorant, a safe remedy for all affections of the Lungs and Bronchia.

TO CONSUMPTIVES!

The advertiser, having been permanently cured of that dread disease Consumption, by a simple remedy, is anxious to make known to his fellow-sufferers the means of cure. To all who desire it, he will send a copy of the prescription, used (free of charge), with the directions for preparing and using the same, which they will find a perfect cure for CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, and all Throat or Lung difficulties.

Parties wishing the prescription will please address

VINEGAR BITTERS
R. H. McDONALD & CO.
DRUGGISTS
SAN FRANCISCO
CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS

Vinegar Bitters are not a vile Fancy Drink, made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the native roots and herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the Great Blood Purifier and a Life-giving Principle, a Perfect Remedy for Invigorating the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to healthy condition, enriching it, refreshing and invigorating both Mind and Body. They are a gentle stimulant, when such is required, in the form of Bitters, prompt in their action, certain in their cures, and harmless in all forms of Disease.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
COUNTY OF MORRISON. }

The State of Minnesota to Peter Kelley, Defendant:

You are hereby summoned to be and appear before the undersigned, one of the Justices of the Peace in and for said County, on the 8th day of January, 1873, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at my office in the village of Little Falls, in said County, to answer to Michel Lafond in a civil action. Should you fail to appear at the time and place aforesaid, judgment will be rendered against you upon the evidence adduced by said Michel Lafond, for such sum as he shall show himself entitled to.

Given under my hand, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1872.

S. P. FULLER, Justice of the Peace.

A MAN WITHOUT AN ADVERTISEMENT.—Talk about a woman without a baby, a man without a wife, a boat without an oar, a ship without a rudder, what is the lack of each of these individuals or things to that of a man without an advertisement! He is a hopeless cuss, a "goner in the community," talk of being successful in business. You might as well talk of ascending to the moon on a greased moonbeam. People point at him in the street, and say: "Poor Cassius has a lean and hungry look." It may, however, be consoling to him to reflect that when he dies he will be advertised at last, and gratuitously at that.
