The Governorship.

After sitting back for several weeks, listening and learning, we are prepared to express our preference in relation to the candidate for next Governor of Minnesota. We have listened to a pretty thorough canvass, by the State papers, of the merits and demerits of the various persons named for the position of our chief executive, and although most of them have many good qualities to bring with them, yet we choose without hesitation, and are glad we have waited till we could express a preference candidly, and point to the man who we honestly consider to be the best person named to serve the people as their Governor.

A Most Wonderful Phenomenon.

On Wednesday night last, this city was visited by a somewhat violent storm, the gathering of which in the western heavens was noticed as remarkable before dark. About midnight it broke loose over Brainerd in all its deluging fury, accompanied by violent thunder and sulphuric lightning; stone hearts quailed in the presence of the artillery of the clouds and the seething chains of lightning. But the most remarkable feature of this peculiar visitation, and the one that calls out this article, was the fact that when daylight came again, it was discovered that the ground was covered with a coating of sulphur! The rain-water barrels under the eaves were covered with sulphur! The mud-puddles were lined with it, and our bewildered citizens smelled sulphur almost to a stifling extent.

A Military Band.

On its way west to join its command, passed through yesterday, and kindly played a few pieces, to the delight of our citizens, during their dinner hour at the Headquarters Hotel. Thanks to the "boys in blue."

Miss King.

Miss King, desiring to secure a class in music, will be pleased to receive all those wishing to take lessons, at the residence of Mr. C. W. Darling, late residence of Mr. Coykendall, Main Street. A thorough knowledge of the fundamental rules of music and fingering will be given. Price per lesson, 50 cents. Thorough base and harmony additional charges.

A Raving Mad Dog.

A raving mad dog was killed yesterday on Ninth Street; he chased a lady a square or two, but she fortunately escaped the raving brute by getting to a house. The dog, however, caught her by the foot, just as she reached the house, but very fortunately did not bite through her shoe enough to draw blood. He was shot by Mr. Brannan. Judging from the army of useless and worthless curs in town, and our sudden hot weather, mad dogs will be an every day occurrence, unless the vermin are destroyed by the authorities.

The Minneapolis Evening Times.

having bought out the Evening News, has enlarged, and comes out a "nob-bly" sheet indeed. The Times is one of the spiciest dailies in the State, and it does us good to see that it is rapidly going up hill.

The Premium Business.

In another column will be found a new announcement from the publishers of the popular family story weekly, OUR FRESH-FRIEND. This paper is endorsed by the prominent papers of Chicago and other places, and is evidently a grand success. They announce that their second annual distribution will positively take place on the 20th of August next. Their chromo is a beauty, and all they claim for it. Read their advertise-ment. It will give you full particu-lars.

PERSONAL.

A two-minute call from our friend Chambers, of the Glyndon Gazette, on Wednesday, cheered up our melancholy to a most gratifying extent. Don't use such seldom brevity, Chambers, but come oftener and stay longer.

Deplorable State of Persia.

The telegram, says an exchange, announcing the arrival of the Shah of Persia at St. Petersburg, calls to mind a series of Teheran letters, which have recently attracted much attention in the Berlin Kreuz Zeitung. The descriptions given by the correspondent of the condition of that unhappy country are not only sad but miserably terrible. Confusion, decay, misery, treachery, corruption and crime reign everywhere. The Shah rules like a tyrant; his ministers are but valets. The most important offices—for instance, the governors of provinces, are sold to the highest bidder. Any of these governors may im-pose what taxes he likes, and has ar-bitrary power over life and death.

GRAND STEAMBOAT EXCURSION.

Capt. Houghton arrived here on Thursday, and is making repairs on the steamer Pokegama, and getting ready to build a new barge. He will commence the fall run between Aiken and Grand Rapids about the 10th of next month; but as his boat will be here till after the 4th of July, a project is on foot to have a grand pic-nic excursion from here down to the beautiful groves at Fort Ripley and return, on the Fourth. The Captain will place his boat in the finest possible trim for the holiday occasion, and if a hundred or two of our people desire to spend the Fourth in so fine a way, at a small cost each, he will take great pleasure in doing his best to make them happy. By the next issue of the TRIBUNE we can say more about it, but in the mean time, all those who would like to enjoy a splendid steam-boat ride, see Fort Ripley and its garison, and have a fine basket-pic-nic in the groves down there, with lots of music in the air, we would suggest that they register their names during the coming week with us at the Tribune office, so that it might be seen what could be done in the way of getting up a pleasant com-pany. Further details next week.

Rev. Geo. Rogers, of Hawley.

will preach at the Congregational Church the coming Sabbath. His subject, morning and evening, will be, "The Tabernacle which Moses set up in the wilderness, or the Gospel according to Moses." He will bring with him a large and costly model of the Tabernacle, including all of its parts and golden vessels. This will be set up during the day on the Monday following, June 8th, and in the evening of Monday he will give an illustrated lecture in the Congregational Church, exhibiting the models, and also many large diagrams. These lectures were highly popular in England, and will be much enjoyed by those who attend. Admission to the lecture is free to all. A collection will be taken at the close. Mr. Rogers will offer for sale books of his own authorship, giving the substance of his lectures. All proceeds are kindly donated by Mr. Rogers to the pastor of the Congrega-tional Church. The lecture will com-mence at 8 o'clock.

WHAT SHALL WE EAT?

That an de question! This particular part of the year bears us as to the matter of "grub." Beans and pork; potatoes and bread. These occur three times a day, and have been so occurring till we are tired of them, and yet there's no remedy. It is just "between hay and grass," in the victuals line, and is just the season one craves for green stuff—fresh stuff—and there is none. We ought not to complain, but still we have a hankering for something we have not got, nor cannot get, and we feel sure that to give vent in words is no harm; becoming completely "busted" on such dry living, we started on a cruise, or foraging expedi-tion, the other day, fully resolved to have something "fresh," or a row, or something; went to all the grocery stores, and had nothing fresher than an 1855 codfish, which wouldn't fill any bill of ours, for we were ravenous for some green stuff; inter-viewed all the dry goods stores, shoe shops, and all other public places, and told them our sad story of hunger, but in vain; we grew almost frantic, for the more we looked the more we longed; went down to Harvey's garden to see if his cucumbers wasn't big enough to slice yet—but alas; the cucumbers had not blossomed yet, and the peas and beans were only above ground. An old cow was just outside the garden, going down for the green, tender grass, and we straddled a rail and went to calling her names; she looked up at us, ran out her tongue in derision, and went on with her repast; we wanted to drive her into a rooted pig-pasture and starve her for her im-pudence; but finally we relented, and rather enjoyed her great satisfaction; the only resort left was to go hunting for mushrooms, and so we did; we hunted over three "cubic miles" and got four mushrooms; when then returned to our humble home, went to a grocery, bought a mackerel and a paper of cucumber seeds; asked our better and more patient half to cook the mackerel, while we planted the seed; and here we sit now, expecting a mackerel and potato supper, and waiting as patiently as circumstances will allow for the development of those cucumber seed.

It is proposed to hold a grand Agricultural Fair at Duluth.

some time next fall, (under the auspices of the St. Louis County Society) whereas the products of all the Northern Pacific and Lake Superior region may be exhibited in grand array. We have received a circular from a committee of the St. Louis County Agricultural Association that proposes this thing, and we feel right in heart and hand, with our splendid idea. By all means, let our little New Northwest have a grand Fair of its own next fall, and show the world just what we know and can do about agriculture. Duluth is just the point, too, for all the folks out along the line would like an excursion to Duluth in October, and we feel sure the Northern Pacific Company would make the expenses of visitors and exhibitors in passing over the road very light. Certainly; let Duluth go ahead and make ready for the grand time.

How A MAN HOLDS A BABY.—If the baby is quite young, the tolls and aches a man undergoes, while trying to relieve its mother for a few minutes of tending it, is truly terrible. He volunteers to give her a nice rest just after the yet nameless little creature has shored back from its morning meal. He squares himself around, stoops down, and, after gouging his little neck several times with his finger nails, finally gets the left arm through underneath; he wants the other arm to go over the top of the little bundle to steady the whole thing, but right run underneath, the little creature, lower down; but he works a little strategy by wrapping the right arm clear around and back through under, thereby making one arm fit two offices. After getting a good grip on the wrappings, he finds that his right arm has secured all the wrappings, but the left only contains the gown and baby with-in its embrace. Here is a pretty kettle of fish; "wif" sets out to breakfast; the wrappings all hanging down to the floor, and the baby getting ready to sneeze; he reaches away backward, gets the baby up on his shoulder and strives to bring up the loose ends and get them into position; he holds the baby up to his shoulder with the left, and with his right feels around down below in search of the delinquent rags; while he is feeling all around, the youngster gives one of those unhappy squirms and slips down about a foot; "wif" brings the double-gowns, etc., all up around the baby and there it is kicking around, with nothing but a square yard of unmentionables to keep it from catching its death of cold. He now wishes his wife hadn't gone out to the kitchen to get her breakfast so quick; begins to sweat profusely, and his back aches from leaning over so far. The baby is kicking wildly, and thumping its nose against his stiff coat collar, and how to get things straightened is what he is trying to solve. The idea strikes him to lay by on the bed. He gets his gowns pulled down in front, then rolls it over on its face and pulls them down behind, and then rolls it back again. By this time the little chaver, not being in full sympathy with this style of nursing, begins to cry in a manner that must very soon burst a blood vessel. By this time he is sweating and puffing like a porpoise, and don't know exactly how to proceed. He runs and grabs up the wrappings on the floor and rushes back to the bed and spreads them out; he then commences rolling the baby over and over to-ward them, and finally gets it about the center of the wrappings, and goes to twisting them around it preparatory to taking it up again, when his wife comes rushing in to see what's up, and finds him in a frenzy of anxious excitement, and the baby just splitting its sides with grief. "She gives him a vertical furlough, and he goes to business reflecting upon the saying, "Everybody to their trade."

The General Offices to be Removed to St. Paul or Minneapolis.—In a Horn.

BRAINERD, MINN., May 31, 1873.
PRESIDENT CASE, of the Northern Pacific Railroad, returned last evening from the west, and was waited upon by Mayor E. H. Bly, who stated to President Case that he had been re-quested by several of our citizens to call upon him and ask the truth in reference to the reports continually being circulated by the St. Paul and Minneapolis papers, that the General Offices of the road were to be removed from Brainerd to one of the other of those cities. Mr. Case very promptly, and in the most emphatic manner, as-sured Mr. Bly that such a thing had never been dreamed of at the New York Headquarters; that these stories had originated in St. Paul and Min-neapolis; that no such intention was entertained by the Northern Pacific Company, and that it WAS the intention of the Company TO KEEP THE GENERAL OFFICES AT BRAINERD—on the line of the road.
Will the intensely enterprising(?) and reliable(?) journals of St. Paul and Minneapolis please stuff this bit of in-formation into their cobb-pipes and smoke it? and then give us a rest on "removals."
P. S.—The Directors of the St. Paul & Pacific Railroad hold an im-portant meeting in St. Paul on the 11th of June, at which meeting it is expected arrangements will be made to complete the Brainerd & Sank Rapids Branch Railroad, forthwith.
We predict that from and after the first of July, Brainerd will experience a more solid and continuous prosperity than ever before, and that, com-mencing with early autumn, our streets will resound with business and industry, that will change any town could be better for you to come. Our beautiful and beautiful location. Our General and English National. Our Steam, Fire, and other Factories, with our city just as full of genuine western enterprises and No. 1 men as a nut is full of meat! Who says "dull!" Oh, cost!

Another P. S.—The grand mill-site at the foot of the River Switch, is likely to be improved ere long by putting a $50,000 gang saw mill, planing mill, basket factory, etc., thereon, which will only be the first gigantic manufacturing institution of a dozen or more that will be bowling in the city inside the next two years.

Still another P. S.—Brainerd holds out the greatest number, and the most desirable attractions to the tourist, to the man of leisure, to the invalid, to the sportsman, to the lovers of grand natural oddities, to families, and all other, of any other place in the United States. We already have the private and public hotel accommodations, and just as soon as the Brainerd Branch Railroad is completed, thousands of visitors can come here from St. Paul in five or six hours—passing up a beautiful and romantic valley, and landing in a young city and among a people they will be very loth to leave.

Concluding P. S.—St. Paul and Minneapolis papers will please do themselves the honor of publishing the above FACTS, and they will be partially forgiven by Yours truly,
