When he concluded, the dance was resumed with renewed energy for a time, and then all sat down. At this stage, their principal chief came forward to address them—old Bad Boy, chief of the Gull Lake Indians. We and our interpreter were on the qui vive for this address, as it would probably be a remarkable one, from one of the most remarkable looking individuals we ever gazed upon. He made two speeches, but we condense the substance of both into one. He was a very old, yet sprightly man, with a beard of the most repulsive 'mug' on his shoulders that can be well conceived. He wore a pair of green goggles, and was otherwise very neatly dressed, and bore the most aggravated scurf on the north side of his face we ever beheld, and had a dirty calico handkerchief around his jaws, as if to hold the seamed parts of his face and head together. He wore no particular badge indicating his high office, nor did he need any, as he was a very 'marked' man, just in his every-day condition. He shuffled recklessly into the ring, and, as he began his nervous harangue,

THE TOMAHAWK AND THINGS.—On Tuesday morning last, our citizens were aroused from any lethargy they may have fallen into, by the war whoop of the red man. It may not have been a full fledged war whoop, but nevertheless it was a whoop; though it might have been simply a "Whoop'er up 'Liza Jane," or something. But, at all events, upon casting the eyes north by north-west, a little east by south it was observable that some hundred or so painted savages were approaching the common in front of Headquarters, with rapid and excited gesticulating tread, adorned with all the furs and feathers of the wild, untutored Chippewa Modocs—with Captain Jack at the head, in the person of old Bad Boy, chief of the Gull Lake band of Chippewas, which band it proved to be. Well, it is probably needless to add that our entire populace was right up on their ear to discover the heinousity of all this unseemly muchness, and to inquire why all the wild wood to the north of us had so suddenly poured forth thusly. We, with everybody else, took our straw hat in our hand and galloped up to the common to see what was the matter with the condition, and by the time we arrived, the grand cavalcade—the rear of the procession being brought up by all the squaws and papooses of the band—had halted, and an excited and almost frenzied dance had opened by the painted braves, the tom-tom band in the center, with a dozen musical(?) monotonous voices accompanying the monotonous thud of half a dozen dog-skin drums, manipulated by the connoisseurs in the dog drum business. The braves were, as before stated, grotesquely painted, and their persons decorated with any conceivable oddity that the savage mind could conjure up. Their heads were decorated with feathers and weasel skins, their faces streaked, spotted and blacked, their necks bore necklaces of bears' claws, skunk skins and other scented paraphernalia, while in their hands they held in threatening attitudes war clubs, tomahawks and other hunkidori implements of destruction. The dance went on lively, with singing and whooping, and violent twistings and contortions of the body, for half an hour, witnessed by several of our astonished and awe-stricken inhabitants. Many felt their scalp-locks to see if they were duly "locked," and the more timid viewed the brilliant orgies of the savages from afar off. Finally the dance came to a sudden close, and one of the oldest chiefs stepped forward to the center of the ring and prepared to address his constituents. After considerable search, we found a young and intelligent half-breed, whom we hired as interpreter, and with him we entered the arena to get a verbatim report of the addresses of each of the chiefs and braves, which we give verbatim, as given to us by our faithful interpreter. We felt sure something very important must be "on," and was bound to give our readers the full gist of the "trouble," even though it might be as serious a thing as the collapse of the putty market in Antwerp. The first orator was old John Washington, and he spoke in substance as follows: "My braves: You are all fine men; your eyes are sharp, and you can see if I tell you the white man; the white man admires you in your fine feathers, and in your strong dance; I am very old, and will not dance many moons longer; my legs are slow, now; I and two other chiefs are all that is left out of all the chiefs who made the first Chippewa treaty with the white men at Lake Superior; I like the white men because they have always been kind to me; my tongue never told lies to them, and they believe all I say to them; to-day one of the big war chiefs of the white men will pass through here on the railroad, and it is because he is coming that I told you to come down here and dance, that he might be pleased when he heard it. This is the first intimation we had received that Gen'l Terry and staff were to pass through the city which they did; how the Gull Lake Indians knew it, beats us, and also the devil.—Ed.

A FINE mess of lettuce, from the farm of our friend, W. Beane, Esq., ornamented our festive board, 'other day—home production, you see.

FRIEND STRAUSS, the jeweler, has put up a fine awning in front of his metropolitan establishment on Fifth Street.

POTATO bugs have made their appearance hereabouts in grand mass. Their eternal absence would be the happiest lonesome we can imagine.

Mr. L. W. Ford, Auditor of the N. P. R. Co. here, is building a beautiful residence north of the track, which will be one of the coziest and most elegant homes in Brainerd when completed. We are delighted to see such fine improvements going on.

RAIN, in the greatest degree of abundance, has visited this country during the past two or three weeks. The streams are just "whooping 'er up," and "garden sars" is just "wztering along. Our cucumbers are on it.

THE TOMAHAWK AND THINGS.—On Tuesday morning last, our citizens were aroused from any lethargy they may have fallen into, by the war whoop of the red man. It may not have been a full fledged war whoop, but nevertheless it was a whoop; though it might have been simply a "Whoop'er up 'Liza Jane," or something. But, at all events, upon casting the eyes north by north-west, a little east by south it was observable that some hundred or so painted savages were approaching the common in front of Headquarters, with rapid and excited gesticulating tread, adorned with all the furs and feathers of the wild, untutored Chippewa Modocs—with Captain Jack at the head, in the person of old Bad Boy, chief of the Gull Lake band of Chippewas, which band it proved to be. Well, it is probably needless to add that our entire populace was right up on their ear to discover the heinousity of all this unseemly muchness, and to inquire why all the wild wood to the north of us had so suddenly poured forth thusly. We, with everybody else, took our straw hat in our hand and galloped up to the common to see what was the matter with the condition, and by the time we arrived, the grand cavalcade—the rear of the procession being brought up by all the squaws and papooses of the band—had halted, and an excited and almost frenzied dance had opened by the painted braves, the tom-tom band in the center, with a dozen musical(?) monotonous voices accompanying the monotonous thud of half a dozen dog-skin drums, manipulated by the connoisseurs in the dog drum business. The braves were, as before stated, grotesquely painted, and their persons decorated with any conceivable oddity that the savage mind could conjure up. Their heads were decorated with feathers and weasel skins, their faces streaked, spotted and blacked, their necks bore necklaces of bears' claws, skunk skins and other scented paraphernalia, while in their hands they held in threatening attitudes war clubs, tomahawks and other hunkidori implements of destruction. The dance went on lively, with singing and whooping, and violent twistings and contortions of the body, for half an hour, witnessed by several of our astonished and awe-stricken inhabitants. Many felt their scalp-locks to see if they were duly "locked," and the more timid viewed the brilliant orgies of the savages from afar off. Finally the dance came to a sudden close, and one of the oldest chiefs stepped forward to the center of the ring and prepared to address his constituents. After considerable search, we found a young and intelligent half-breed, whom we hired as interpreter, and with him we entered the arena to get a verbatim report of the addresses of each of the chiefs and braves, which we give verbatim, as given to us by our faithful interpreter. We felt sure something very important must be "on," and was bound to give our readers the full gist of the "trouble," even though it might be as serious a thing as the collapse of the putty market in Antwerp. The first orator was old John Washington, and he spoke in substance as follows: "My braves: You are all fine men; your eyes are sharp, and you can see if I tell you the white man; the white man admires you in your fine feathers, and in your strong dance; I am very old, and will not dance many moons longer; my legs are slow, now; I and two other chiefs are all that is left out of all the chiefs who made the first Chippewa treaty with the white men at Lake Superior; I like the white men because they have always been kind to me; my tongue never told lies to them, and they believe all I say to them; to-day one of the big war chiefs of the white men will pass through here on the railroad, and it is because he is coming that I told you to come down here and dance, that he might be pleased when he heard it. This is the first intimation we had received that Gen'l Terry and staff were to pass through the city which they did; how the Gull Lake Indians knew it, beats us, and also the devil.—Ed.

After this they danced in front of several stores, got a sack of flour, some tobacco, and considerable scrip, when they faded away from our streets like the dew of morning, and in the afternoon an Indian was to be seen. Bad Boy's son, the famous dancer and ladie's man of the outfit, was a character who would bear a description, did we have time and space. Some other speeches were made by minor chiefs, but we did not get sufficient of them to make an intelligible report. Thus ended one of the many "street scenes" of Brainerd, that was interesting to even those who were used to such scenes, and those who never saw the "caprosities" of the "noble red men" in their native haunts.

STARCHER, opposite the TRIBUNE office, is receiving a large stock of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, Vinegar Bitters, Plantation Bitters, Warner's Wine of Life, and Hennessey's Cognac, which is for sale at reduced prices.

WE should judge, from what we see in papers, that Captain Jack must have been very numerous all his life. He was raised by a white family in Oregon; he was always a wild, roving savage from childhood; he was born in Kentucky, and went to school in Maine; he was originally a Pennsylvania Mohawk, and during his early manhood, led the Winnebagoes in council and in war. He was raised in Missouri. His mother was a Chippewa, and his father a Comanche, and, during a great portion of his life, was a recognized Sioux brave on the headwaters of the Yellow Stone. He operated extensively in Lower California for many years, and was, also, later in life, the terror of the Texas border; he received the name of Jack shortly after the Revolutionary battle of Quebec, in Canada, in which fight he figured prominently against the American troops. He is a very remarkable man, to say the least.

STARCHER, opposite the TRIBUNE office, is filling his store with a new lot of fancy groceries.

Crow Wing County orders seem to be valuable, chiefly for stuffing horse-collars, at a cent a pound, or something. We became the happy possessor of one a few days ago, and immediately placed it on the market; and it was offered thirty cents on the dollar, if we would take a slow note, drawing seven per cent, with no security. We hauled it back off the market, and will probably contribute it to the Minnesota Historical Society.

Two choice cows for sale at Starcher's.

OFF FOR BRAINERD.—Our friend W. H. White, Esq., son of Lyman P. White, our Townsite Agent here, left the first of the week for Brainerd. Mr. W. proposes to establish a first-class lumber yard at that place, and will keep every line of lumber, including all kinds of finishing stuff, doors, mouldings, windows, etc., etc. We, and all his many friends here, wish him great success, for he is an eminently deserving young man. Our friends at Brainerd will find Mr. White a pleasant and honorable business man.

ELOCUTIONARY.—Prof. J. D. White, of Manchester, Ky., gave one of his elocutionary entertainments at Bly's Hall on Thursday evening last, which was one of the rarest treats ever offered in our city. The notice was so short that not half our citizens attended that not otherwise would, and we are very sorry that such was the case, for it was most worthy and meritorious. Mr. White is a young man, but must one day gain a wide reputation as a reader. He is now on his way to Montana, and will probably entertain the public with his choice entertainments all the way from here to the Pacific slope.

MISS KING, desiring to secure a class in music, will be pleased to receive all those wishing to take lessons, at the residence of Mr. C. W. Darling, late residence of Mr. Coykendall, Main Street. A thorough knowledge of the fundamental rules of music and fingering will be given. Price per lesson, 50 cents. Thorough base and harmony additional charges. Brainerd, June 8d, 1873.

SCHOOL EXAMINATION.—Miss Julia Fitzgerald held an examination in her school yesterday afternoon. Many parents and other visitors were present, and the examination proved very satisfactory, and was a pleasant affair. Miss Fitzgerald has some eighty scholars, and it is surprising that with so many she can advance them in their studies so rapidly as she does. Very many of the scholars deserve special mention for their excellent conduct and rapid advancement, did time permit; but all we can say this time is, to assure them that their parents and teacher are greatly pleased with them, and to admonish them to go forward and be good, obedient children, and learn as rapidly as they can, and all they can, while they have the privilege of attending school; for some day they will have to leave their school, their teacher, and even their homes, to go out into the world and battle for themselves—then they will be glad that while at school they learned all they could; for a good education will be a great help to them in after life. So, let all the little and big children now attending school, strive to be good and learn all they possibly can, through the kind instruction of their teacher.

PERSONAL.—Our friend and fellow citizen, Thos. P. Cantwell, Esq., returned home a few days ago from a three or four weeks' visit to the east. He looks jolly as ever, says he had a good time, but is glad to get back to the cool, refreshing groves of Brainerd. They fed well "down east," though, for T. P. looks just as though he had been well feasted. His many friends here are glad to see him home again.

J. A. Clark, Esq., whom we noticed recently as being up on the Northern Pacific looking up a location, has formed a partnership with that prince among good fellows, W. F. Ball, Esq., at Detroit—in the publication of the Record, and in the practice of law. Ball & Clark will make a lively team, and "take in" whatever business there is in their line out at Detroit, to the full satisfaction of all concerned, we dare say. Go it, boys, you can have anything we can throw in your way, excepting our scalp, but go carefully, and don't allow your Record to throw our TRIBUNE too far in the shade, 'cause we was the first man that slung printer's ink on the Northern Pacific, and we have certain rights, you know.

We have had the pleasure of forming the acquaintance, during the week, of Mr. D. A. King, a prominent lawyer of New York State, who is out along the Northern Pacific to see the sights and spend a short season in our splendid climate. Mr. King is a brother-in-law of our highly esteemed citizen, Mayor E. H. Bly, and accompanied the latter either from his recent tour to the eastern cities. Mr. King and Mr. Bly went out to Brainerd on Thursday, and, after spending a few days in our beautiful young city on his return, Mr. K. will return to his home and business in New York.

The youngest son of our good friend, F. H. Harvey, Esq., arrived a few days since, from England. He will remain in Brainerd, and if he proves a "chip of the old block," we welcome him most cordially to our midst. Col. Lounsbury spent Wednesday and Thursday in the city. He was on his way out to Brainerd, where, about the 1st of next month, he will commence the publication of the Brainerd Weekly Tribune. His corps of printers passed through here yesterday, and his press is now on the road. The Colonel got away with seventy subscribers in Brainerd, and we tender him our warmest wishes for his great success in the new city of "Count Von Plamire"—for he is a prince among good fellows, and will make, as he deserves, hosts of friends out in the New Northwest.

Williams, one of Aiken's prominent literary men, was in the city yesterday. An advance sheet of his forthcoming work may be seen elsewhere, under the head of "Aiken Items."

Our friend, Mr. H. A. Hills, is seen daily on our streets now, and says his health is improving. He certainly is looking better.

Gen'l Terry and staff passed west on the road, Tuesday last. He goes to Fort Lincoln, and will accompany the great Northern Pacific surveying expedition to the Yellow Stone.

General Manager Mead went west on Tuesday last, and our friend, Superintendent Sullivan, has also been west most of the week.

RELIGIOUS.—The Baptist Society here is in a prosperous condition. Two weeks ago, hundreds of our citizens gathered at the railroad bridge and witnessed the first baptism by immersion that ever took place in Brainerd, under the ministrations of Rev. A. D. Williams, resident pastor. Three were baptized that day, and last Sunday two more. Within the past three weeks eleven new members have been added to the church, and more will soon follow, under the able and faithful christian ministry of the Baptist pastor. Mr. Williams contemplates bringing his family here in the first of next month, and locating permanently with us. A comfortable parsonage is being added to the chapel for their accommodation, which has been most generously subscribed to by the members of that church here, as well as others. Verily, the cause of Christ is looking well in Brainerd, and with faithful ministers of the Word—such as we now have—christianity will soon be found to thrive in Brainerd with as bright a lustre as in any of the proud young cities of the West.

AIKEN ITEMS. Two citizens of your city dropped in upon us during last week, and "done" our city. After taking in a fresh supply of "ardent," they again embarked and went on their way rejoicing for the Upper Mississippi. When but a short way up, they found the boat too heavy, and commenced unloading their glass ware, assisted in this arduous duty by the squaw who accompanied them. The over-exertion, or their not being accustomed to Aiken whisky—or both—had a deleterious effect upon the party, and a general row ensued, wherein the squaw was made acquainted with baptismal rites under a new regime, and fearing that faith was lacking, they administered a sound thrashing upon Mrs. Lo. This is a new way of hunting pine lands. Modesty(?) forbids us mentioning names.

Our citizens, at the kind invitation of the joint crews of Messrs. Lawrence & Leighton, were the recipients of a splendid dinner on board their wangan. It was catered for by our old friend Crouse, and was in every way a happy event.

Miss Belle Lowe presides over the young ideas at our new school house, and has become quite a favorite. It is reported that some Indians from Leech Lake have made a raid on the cattle of Sam. C. Donnel, on Willow River, and killed them, during his temporary absence from home.

AQUATIC. The Northern Pacific, A No. 1. The Minneapolis Tribune of the 4th inst. says that information has been officially received in that city to the effect that the Northern Pacific R. R. thirty million seven and three-tenths loan has been finally closed out, a New York syndicate having just subscribed for the nine millions that remained unsold at a recent date. This makes a thorough financial success of this loan, and while placing funds at the disposal of the road for construction, strengthens its credit very materially. This entire thirty millions has been taken at home and by our own people, which fact cannot fail of being duly appreciated should the company ever seek negotiations abroad. The completion of the road to the Missouri river crossing—which is now an accomplished fact—is a matter of congratulation, especially to Minnesota, as it seems evident that the State is to be generally benefited thereby. The indications now are that the road will be pushed immediately forward across the Missouri, at least as far as the coal fields, and that by another season we shall be in direct communication with those immense mines of wealth. The present management of this road seems to be energetic and able, and to be in entire sympathy with the great Northwest. For a time it was somewhat embarrassed, but never so much so as represented. It has paid nearly every dollar that it owed in this State, and what little it owes will soon be liquidated from the proceeds of the loan just closed.

The Latest Things. The Oregon Militia ambushed a dozen or so Modoc prisoners, on Tuesday, and massacred them. Captain Jack was not among them, however. As to the Godliness of this act we cannot judge, but, as everybody and all the papers denounce it as an "outrage," we presume we must. But while we denounce the proceeding as a dirty, cowardly, unchristian, inhuman, barbarous act, (like all the rest) we, nevertheless, feel a more comfortable feeling than before, although it may be wrong; still we are very comfortable, because we know that there is less of the terrible Modocs than there recently was. Yet, we are very sorry that they were killed in so cowardly a manner—only we ain't.

Dispatches which came here on Thursday, announce the sudden death of Victoria C. Woodhull, by heart disease. Still another dispatch says she is not quite dead, but is dying. We don't know which is right, nor we don't know as we care so long as she was as well prepared to meet her Maker as she would ever be.

A large proportion of our State exchanges that come to us, have copied our endorsement of Hon. W. D. Washburn, for Governor, and endorse our article on the subject most heartily. There is no use in talking; our candidate on State office has always won, and our selection of W. D. for our next Governor, will be no exception to the rule. We consider him "just as good as elected," because he is THE man, in spite of all the snarling of many of the little, cheap journals around about the country, bogholes of the State. Clear the track! and dry up your platinary river!

After the first of next month, owing to the new postal law, our State papers must not feel hard if we do not exchange with them; because, business is business, you know, boys; yet, who expresses their desire to exchange with us, so long as our pocket-book holds out; but we shall lose no opportunity, in the future, to give the Congressmen, who imposed this tax on free exchange, the very devil—you bet. If all things go well with us, we expect to commence the publication of a first-class daily paper by the first of October or November next. If we do, our citizens can well afford to support it, as we calculate to make it of such a character that they will need no other paper to keep them posted on the news of the world in general, and on the news of the Northern Pacific country in particular. We have just the folks in Brainerd who will support us in any advance step we may see fit to take, and if they do, we assure them that their beloved editor will stick to them and their best interests, closer than a wood-tick to a man's shin on a May-day.

It seems to be an awfully vexed question as to what to do with the Modocs, now that they have got them. If the Government will simply issue an order to send every mother's son of them to Brainerd, if there remains any need of a vexed question after their arrival here, then we'll be "dod durnd," that's all.

The Attorney Generalship. The most prominent office at the present time, next to that of Governor, and on which the city papers are silent, is that of Attorney General. It must be confessed that the pressing necessities of the commercial and farming interest of the State require in this office, a gentleman of unquestioned talent and legal attainments, to meet the great railroad questions which will arise in legislation during the next two years.

In the selection of this candidate, the people desire an express assurance, unquestionably and unequivocally that whosoever he may be, he is safe and reliable on this prominent question; and that his antecedents, and present course of action can in no wise connect him with interests unfavorable to this one great object.

The candidate presented by the north and northwest of the State, Hon. W. W. Billson, of St. Louis county, for this office, is heartily identified with the people on the railroad question; and if nominated and elected to that office, would bring to it not only rare legal talents and ability, but a conscientious purpose to perform his duties in behalf of the people, upon all the questions affecting their interests, and especially the one just referred to.—[Duluth Minnesota.]

"Madam! Wilsonburg may have been a respectable man, for all I know. If he had lived, and had become a parent, he would have had a perfect right to name his first child..."

"You are cruel! Wilsonburg never talked so to me." "Wilsonburg be-be-be-hanged! He never was a parent..."

And then there was a scene—the first our married life—which had its continuance in the matter through and through...

"Bury me by the side of Wilsonburg." The request was granted. This occurred two years ago. There is to be another wedding shortly...

She who is to be my bride this time, perhaps it is well to remark, hasn't had any experience in the husband business...

It is sufficient to say that the interview was mutually agreeable. The young lady was sitting in mourning, which was so becoming to her complexion...

Her politeness was charming. Her conversational powers were superior. "Her voice was ever sweet and low, and as excellent thing in a woman..."

Her figure was natural, not being made to order by supplies of whalebone, and altogether, your humble servant was completely alive to her virtues...

I wrote her a letter, and in due time received a reply. Other epistles followed, and the pleasant affair found myself in East Pleasant, in the presence of Mrs. Wilsonburg...

ORDINANCE No. 10.—An ordinance to require the streets, alleys, and other outlets of the city of Brainerd, and all the lots of said city to be cleaned and the filth thereof to be removed.
 The Common Council of the city of Brainerd do hereby enact as follows:
 SECTION 1. That all persons being the owners or owners of any lot or lots within the limits of said city of Brainerd shall be required, within ten days after the passage and publication of this ordinance, to clean up and remove all the filth, dirt and rubbish being on any street, alley or other outlet adjoining to his or their said lot or lots, and to remove the same and clean up said streets, alleys or other outlets adjacent to said lot or lots, at his or their own cost and expense.
 SEC. 2. Be it further ordained, that any owner of any lot or lots within the limits of said city shall remove accumulated filth, dirt or rubbish on the same within said ten days, as aforesaid, at his own expense.
 SEC. 3. It is further ordained by said Common Council, that in case any default be made by any person or persons in removing said filth, and in cleaning said streets, alleys or outlets of said city, then, and in that case, the Street Commissioner of said city shall cause said streets, alleys and outlets, or any portion thereof, to be cleaned up and filth so accumulated on any lot, as aforesaid, to be so removed as aforesaid, and that the real property adjacent to said streets, alleys or outlets so cleaned up, and the lots from which said filth is so removed by order of said Street Commissioner shall be assessed for the expense of so removing said filth and cleaning said streets, alleys or outlets, and that said expense shall be a lien on said lots until paid.
 SEC. 4. Be it further ordained, that in case any such dirt, filth or rubbish shall be removed by order of the Street Commissioner as above provided, or by any other person, from said streets, alleys or other outlets within the limits of said city, or from any lot or lots therein, the occupants of any such lot or lots are hereby made liable for the expense of said cleaning or removing of said filth after said first cleaning or removing shall be done, and in case they fail to keep said streets, alleys and outlets in a clean condition, and the lots which they occupy free from filth, they shall pay a fine of Ten Dollars for the first day they may fail or neglect to keep said streets, alleys or outlets adjacent to their residences clean, or the lot or lots on which they reside, free from filth, and one dollar per day as an additional fine for every day thereafter until they comply with the provisions of this section, whether said occupants are owners of such lot or lots on which they reside or not.
 Passed May 14th, 1873.
 E. H. BLY, Mayor.
 F. X. GOULET, Recorder.
 H. D. PETTIBONE,
 President of Common Council.

DR. CROOK'S WINE OF TAR!
 Ten Years of a public test has proved Dr. Crook's Wine of Tar to have more merit than any similar preparation ever offered to the public. It is rich in the medicinal qualities of Tar, and unequalled for its cures of the most remarkable cases. It is especially curative of Croup, Whooping Cough, and Croup. It has cured so many cases of Asthma and Bronchitis, that it has been pronounced a specific for these complaints. For Croup in the Breast, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, and all the other ailments of the Throat, it is a most valuable remedy. It is also a superior Tonic, Strengthens the Appetite, Restores the Weak and Debilitated, Causes the Food to Digest, Removes Dyspepsia and Indigestion, Frees the Stomach from Acidity, Gives tone to your System.
