BRainerd - MINNESOTA

THE NEWS.

At an attempt was lately made to rob the New York express train on the Toledo, Wabash & Western Railroad. The parties making the attempt had cut open the switch, and left it open. In consequence of the recent flood, the Toledo & Wabash Road, with characteristic care, has been running a pilot engine in advance of each passenger train. This engine, which was in advance, ran into the trap laid for the express train, and was thrown from the track and badly wrecked, and the engineer, Frank W. Shepherd, living in this city, was crushed and mangled to death, and the fireman, Michael Marley, who was badly scalded that death will ensue. Shepherd was an old resident here, an able and careful engineer. His body reached here to-night and will be buried to-morrow by the Brotherhood of Engineers.

A correspondent called upon Gov. Beveridge on the 7th inst., to learn if he intended to take any steps to put an end to the assassinations in Williamson county. The Governor said the matter had engaged his attention for several days, and as yet, he was unable to see just how he could reach and punish the scoundrels who were committing the murders. The legislature of last winter, though their attention was frequently called to the importance of the matter, had failed to give any money with which to pursue and bring to justice the perpetrators of the crime. The law as it now is, only allows him to offer a reward of $300, which would be simply a face, if done. The civil authorities of that county, through whom he would have to act, have not, as yet, notified him of their inability to enforce the law. While, as a matter of fact and law, the Governor could send men to aid the sheriff in enforcing the law without such notice, yet it might be regarded as an extra official measure on his part. As the thing now stands, the Governor does not see that he can do anything. Yet he will, probably, if notified of the want of power on the part of the county authorities to enforce the law, devise some mode of rendering them effective aid.

There has been a growing suspicion that the four young incriminations whose bodies were recovered from the river, and who were supposed to have been run over in a skiff by the low boat, "My Choice," were really the victims of foul play. The bodies, when recovered, were found to be horribly mangled about the face in a singular manner. The theory is advanced that this was done by the burglars they struck, but this is now discredited. At their effects, consisting of some $500 worth of jewelry, gold, silver rings and watches, etc., nothing was recovered but a tin box and a little dog. Besides this the pilot of the low boat says the skiff was empty when the boat struck it. There are two whisky botmen who appeared to know all about the parties, who got the skiff after the collision, forced the lock and took out an iron and a tin box and knife and a few other articles, and then said the skiff was burning brightly, and the authority of these men that the drowning theory rests. The matter will probably receive a thorough investigation.

A pawnbroker doing business at No. 327 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, started out one night, leaving his wife and daughter in charge of the shop. They took chairs and sat on the pavement near the front door, and while sitting there they entered the rear part, and although the gas was burning brightly, he succeeded in getting from $8,000 to $10,000 worth of jewelry out of an open safe, and escaping. The loss was not discovered until Friday morning.

Mrs. Drake, living near Ean Claire, Wis., drowned herself and one child on the 6th of August in Low's Creek. She attempted to dash out others of her children with herself, but they escaped by catching hold of a bush. So far we cannot reliably learn the cause, though of course it is guessed at by many who, however, profess to know but little about her or her family.

Billy Forrester, confined in the Illinois penitentiary, has made a statement professing a knowledge of who perpetrated the Nathan Aspinwall murder, a small affair so long as he is in prison, he, however, affirms that the relatives of Mr. Nathan have no knowledge of the deed, and implicates deeply some of the New York officials, but not by name.

The night of the 6th the lumber yard of Getchell & Son, of Des Moines, Iowa, was set on fire in several places, destroying lumber to the value of $30,000. Supposed to have been fired by thieves and cracksmen in advance of Barnum's show.

An explosion has occurred at the arsenal at Frankfort, Pa., which killed one boy and injured twenty other boys, some fatally.

A dispatch in regard to the late explosion of the magazine in the Frankfort Arsenal says the loss of life is terrible, and, as far as can be determined in the confusion and excitement, not less than forty persons were killed, and probably one hundred others are injured, many of whom cannot long survive. The building was blown to pieces. In the building were stored large quantities of powder, arms and artillery, besides battle flags and trophies taken or used in the wars of this country.

A dispatch from White Mountain on the 7th of August, says there is a rumor in circulation in the hotel in which Mr. Beecher is stopping that Francis D. Moulton has been in consultation with Gen. W. H. Russell, and that the result of their consultation is a partially perfected plan to bring an action against Beecher in that county for perjury in swearing to his reply to the Tilton suit of last year, at Middleton. Mr. Beecher has introduced in the hotel the feature of morning prayers, which will be continued during the time he remains.

Wisconsin has suffered but little from the recent rains. From some points damages by chinch bugs are reported, but the yield of wheat in the State, as a whole, will be large. There will also be good crops of oats, barley and corn.

War has been declared between the St. Louis, Kansas City & Northern and the Kansas City railroads, and a great reduction in passenger rates of the roads is the consequence.

Cotton strong and active and prices show an upward tendency, but speculative elements are not sanguine. There are little or no changes in stock quotations from the closing figures of last week. Suicide of Hon. Charles Schiefer, of St. Paul.

The announcement of the tragic death, by his own hand, of Hon. Charles Schiefer will be received with deep sorrow by many thousands in the Northwest, and particularly in Minnesota.

Mr. Schiefer left his home as usual about nine o'clock on Saturday morning, the 8th inst., and went to his office, in the extensive wholesale building of Auerbach, Finck & Soehfer. There was nothing unusual in his looks or actions, but he appeared to be feeling rather better than usual. He seated himself at his desk, and wrote a somewhat lengthy letter, then went to a window, where he let a pistol for repairs, with instructions to have it done by eleven o'clock. After attending to some matters of ordinary business, he returned to the gunshop, where he ascertained that the pistol was not yet ready for him. He then purchased a new revolver, had it loaded and left the store.

On the approach of night his family became uneasy at his continued absence, and a search was commenced for him, which was continued through the night and following morning, when his body was found, about nine o'clock, near the German Lutheran cemetery, with two pistol wounds through his body. Life was extinct, and it was plain that the desperate act had been committed on the previous day.

One bullet passed into the right side, the other through the heart, killing him instantly. There was no evidence of a struggle; the loose leaves were scarcely disturbed. On his body was found a letter to his wife, with a few lines in pencil on the envelope, written since it was sealed. This was the letter, dated before he had written in the store the morning before.

Mr. Schiefer was born in Prussia, in 1838, and in 1874 he came to America. He was a poor boy when the family arrived in Milwaukee, three years later. There he secured a place as errand boy in a bank, where he made himself so useful, and developed such rare qualities that he was finally sent to Fond du Lac to start a branch bank, he being taken into partnership. From Fond du Lac Mr. Schiefer removed to Hastings, Minn., and from Hastings to Stillwater, where he was in business. In 1859 he was elected State Auditor of Minnesota, a position which he held for six or eight years.

Soon after retiring from public life Mr. Schiefer became a partner in the largest wholesale dry goods house in the Northwest, and about three years ago he became a widower. Last November he married Miss Jennie Goodrich, daughter of Hon. Earl S. Goodrich, and went on an extensive wedding tour, during which he was badly injured by a railroad accident, from the effects of which he never recovered. It is more than probable that the insanity which was the cause of his suicide, was the result of this accident. In fact indications of mental aberration have been quite frequent of late.

This ending of a life so worthy of emulation is indeed sad one, and there are those who will mourn with the immediate relatives of the deceased.

The Connecticut Earthquake.

Connecticut papers devote considerable space to the earthquake which was felt in portions of that State about four o'clock Wednesday morning, July 28th. The Hartford Courant says that it was felt in various parts of that city, and by numerous individuals, many of whom were aroused from their slumbers by it, though at the time it is doubtful if many supposed that the real cause was a disturbance under ground.

The forenoon reports were received from other parts of the State, chiefly from towns west of Hartford, as far as Canaan, showing that an earthquake had taken place, the effect upon buildings and contents in many cases being so decisive as to leave no doubt whatever.

One gentleman in Hartford, who was awakened by the shock, reports that it was the most severe he has ever felt, though how many others he has felt we are not told. A lady who came to Hartford from Winsted said that she felt the shock, and did not know what it was. She was at first greatly frightened.

The Hartford Post has telegrams giving more details, from which it appears that at Collinsville the shaking lasted about fifteen seconds. Windows were shaken, dishes and lamps rattled, and many people sprang from their beds in terror. There was a low rumbling noise, with considerable vibration, such as might result from the explosion of a heavy blast near by.

At Winsted the sound approached from the north, a little before 4 o'clock, with a rumbling, gradually increasing noise, and retiring in reverse manner to the south. It was as loud as an ordinary clap of thunder, and its force was sufficient to shake windows, shut and open doors, move loose articles and considerably alarm many people.

At New Hartford the shock was accompanied by a rumbling noise as of a heavy wagon proceeding over a rocky roadway. Windows rattling and houses were shaken so as to awaken the occupants. In one house a number of pickle jars on a shelf were broken. A butcher who was out in his yard at the time of the earthquake describes the noise as resembling a heavy blast or large wall falling.

At Canaan the vibration of the earth seemed continuous rather than in distinct shocks. No property was injured, but many people were awakened by the jarring of the houses and the rattling of windows and crockery.

At Litchfield the shock came at 4:08. At first a low rumbling sound was heard, which was accompanied by a heavy tremor running through the ground. Dishes were rattled on shelves, the windows shook, and many persons were awakened from sound sleep, and great alarm was felt. One family was so frightened that they fled from the house in alarm. The shock was also felt in Waterbury, Morris, Sandisfield, Mass., Winchester Centre, Wolcottville, and over an area of several hundred square miles in the northwestern part of the State, which is a mountainous district.

Persons in Simsbury report nothing of the kind, and it is probable no shocks were felt so far to the eastward.

The French assembly adjourned the 4th inst., to November 4th.

A Self-Propelling Steam Engine. (See Page 10.)

Fire Commissioners Hoekin and Rankin, who, together with Captain Smith and Engineer Kahl, visited Manchester, N. H., to purchase a new steamer for the Hotchkiss and Rankin have purchased a second-class self-propeller for $4,800, subject to the approval of the Board of Fire Commissioners, who meet to-night. The visitors were shown through the works at Manchester and were given an opportunity to become acquainted with the workings of the self-propelling fire engine under test. The propeller consists of two endless chains which run over drums on the hinder axle and over shafts projecting from the fly-wheels. The rear wheels are very heavy, and the tires are studded to prevent slipping when the steamer is ascending a hill. Yesterday, one of these classes of steamers was taken from the race-course at Manchester, where it raced a mile in three minutes; where it afterwards tested on ordinary roads, and in ascending a hill, it is as fast as any in Troy. It went up hill faster than either of the four Trojans could. Nine of this class of steamers have been made and sold; five are in New York, two in Brooklyn, one in Boston and one in Detroit. The steamer which was tested yesterday can be finished in about a month, but it is considered too heavy for Troy. If the Fire Commissioners ratify the bargain made by the Committee, a second-class steamer will be built within three months for this city at a cost of $4,800. One of the home-bred Trojans stopped in Boston and looked at the self-propeller in use there. It gives great satisfaction. In going to a fire the tender is hitched behind, and the horses are used at all, saving the cost of buying horses, and of replacing them when worn out, and their keeping, and of the wages of a driver. Sixty pounds of steam is kept up constantly at a cost of 50 cents per cord. It looks as though the days of horse flesh in our fire department were numbered. The cost of keeping the steamers supplied with horses has been one of the largest items of expense. A team will last not to exceed two years, when they must be sold for almost nothing, and a new team must be purchased, besides the cost of the harness, and $30 per month for a driver. The self-propeller costs as much more than an ordinary steamer as a team of horses, and eats nothing and wants no driver.

The Crisley of an English Butcher. (See Page 10.)

It would be difficult to imagine a more disgusting case of cruelty to animals than one which came before the magistrates at the Newcastle-under-Lyme Police Court on Wednesday, when a journeyman butcher named James Heath was charged with having slaughtered a sheep by partly skinning it, and partly by cutting up the neck, and then turning it into the street to be trampled on by the public.

Heath was a young man, and was charged with the crime of being a public nuisance, and with having committed a breach of the provisions of the Newcastle-under-Lyme Police Act, which prohibits the slaughter of animals in the street, and the disposal of the carcasses in a public place.

The New Bridge.

The temporary bridge across the Mississippi at this point was completed Wednesday, less than two weeks from the time it was commenced, and the regular passenger trains crossed over on it Wednesday evening, being held here a few hours for the finishing touches.

Very many availed themselves of the opportunity to ride over it, and their safe arrival at this side was greeted by loud cheers from the large crowd assembled to witness the first test of the structure, and the loud and long whistle of the crossing locomotive as she reached the bank, like a great shout of triumph, was taken up and repeated by the locomotives standing on other banks, reminding one of some large monster greeting its mates after a hard fought battle.

A motion for three cheers for Mr. Wallace, the Superintendent of the construction of the bridge, was responded to with loud huzzas, and once more this great public thoroughfare, the Northern Pacific, was opened for travel and freight.

A celebrated wit once said of his debts that it was neither his interest to pay the principal nor his principal to pay the interest.

In Norway, the longest day lasts three months. The man who six months ago promised to call in a day or two and settle his little bill, must have gone to Norway on a visit.—Turner Falls Reporter.

The Minneapolis Mail publishes a statement showing that within the past thirty days eleven persons in this State have committed suicide, and two more have attempted it.

A decision has been rendered by Judge Curtis to the effect that a telegraphic dispatch agreeing to accept a draft is the equivalent of a written acceptance.

Starting a newspaper is fun—anybody can do it. But we have known people who had to sit up nights and bustle around pretty lively to keep one going after it was started.

The unanimous vote of the party of scientific railroad men visiting Brainerd last week was that for thorough equipment and fine road bed, the Northern Pacific stood the peer of any road in the west.

A pleasant time was had down in Scambler town last Friday evening, the occasion being the gathering of a large number of old and young folks at the new residence of Mr. Frank Hartley, for purposes of fun and frolic.—[Aitkin Journal.]

It seems pretty certain that the right men have been arrested for the larceny of $47,000 from the United States treasury. A large number of bills supposed to be a portion of the stolen money have been seized at a bank in Alexandria, and the whereabouts of $20,000 more is known to the officers.

By a terrible railroad accident in Chili, on the night of the 6th, twenty-five persons were crushed or burned to death. The accident was caused by a rotten bridge.

By a collision between a cattle train on the St. Louis & Northern and a special on the Hannibal and St. Jo. railroads yesterday, a number of prominent visiting railroad officials were more or less injured.

Monday six citizens of Niagara Falls visited the Cave of Winds without a guide, as they had frequently done. After passing through the cave two of the party, Mr. Ethelbert Parsons, aged 29, and Miss Lottie C. Philepott, aged 25, descended to an eddy which is never visited by guides. The lady lost her foot and was caught by the gentleman, but the current carried them into the river below, where they were drowned. They were soon to be married.

Mr. F. M. Campbell, of Crow Wing, showed us this week his models of a car-coupling he has recently invented and is having patented, that in our opinion will take the place of all others now in use when introduced to the public. It is arranged in such a manner that any accident throwing a car from the track instantly uncouples it from the remainder of the train, and has a brake attachment that sets itself upon the next car in the rear immediately upon the unfastening of the coupling by dropping a sort of shoe under the wheels, thus preventing the other cars from following the truant car into the break. Such an arrangement would have saved most of the train here in the recent bridge disaster, and would have prevented any loss of life, as the portion of the train this side the break would have been instantly stopped, and the forward portion cleared, saving the engine with the engineer and fireman. We can only wonder, in looking at this simple contrivance, that such an arrangement was never invented before.

Says Rev. J. R. Smith, D. D., of Chicago, Ill.: "The Mount Carmel Seminary, for all the highest purposes of education, and the best in our knowledge. . . . We regard it as unsurpassed in the West, in fact as respects the thoroughness of the discipline, or the substantial value of the instruction." "Taken altogether, the exercises demonstrate that the Mt. Carroll Seminary will stand where it has stood for the last 15 years, the peer of any similar institution in the West. The able corps of teachers, and the numerous degrees of thoroughness with which everything attempted is carried through, aside from its many other attractions, render it a most desirable place for a young lady to qualify herself for the duties of life. . . .
