1776 CENTENNIAL 1876

Republican Ticket.

For President,

GOV. RUTHERFORD B. HAYES,

Of Ohio.

For Vice-President.

HON. WILLIAM A. WHEELER,

Of New York.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

C. K. DAVIS, A. K. FINSETH,
STEPHEN MILLER, HANS MATTSON,
A. J. EDGERTON.

For Member of Congress,

DR. J. H. STEWART,

Of St. Paul.

THE Maine and Vermont elections are having a telling effect upon the press everywhere. Independent papers, or papers on the fence, are coming out strong for Hayes and Wheeler. Democratic papers are either coming out Republican or independent, or giving up the ghost, and things everywhere look decidedly Hayes'y. In addition to the transformation of the St. Paul Dispatch, the only daily organ of the Democratic party in this State, the Richmond (Va.) Enquirer, a paper that has been published for seventy years, and was the strongest Tilden paper in Virginia, has recently suspended publication. The Daily News, the leading Democratic paper at the Capital of the Union, gave up the contest and closed its labors last week.

Coming nearer home, the Elk River News dropped Aunty Tilden last week, and is howling for Uncle Peter Cooper, the Greenback candidate, saying "every laboring man should turn his back on corruption, and aid to restore confidence in our country abroad, by voting for Honest Peter Cooper and Samuel F. Cary." (It would have come out for Hayes had it not changed from Hayes to Tilden so recently.) The Little Falls Courier dropped out of the race last week, and is replaced by the Transcript, a Republican sheet, so that we have not a Democratic paper in this Senatorial District. The Pioneer-Press and Tribune is dropping its "independent" dourse, and is flat-footed for Hayes and Wheeler, and says the Democratic party would "accept an alliance with Sitting Bull or the devil, for the sake of office."

Besides these recent changes, we find, farther back, the Herald; Staats Zeitung; Nation; Graphic, and Brooklyn Argus, the leading Democratic papers at Tilden's home, New York, giving their support to Hayes and Wheeler, while the Sun has become decidedly tamed in its bliad ardor for Tilden. In fact, the whole country has become thoroughly awakened to the necessity of the hour, and has decided not to place the reins of government in the hands of the Rebel South just yet. The Tilden and Reform bubble has exploded, revealing the hidden object of the South to get the government purse strings in its hands and compel the people to pay its rebel war debt; or, in other words, to effect, by strategy, what it has failed to do by rebellion—whip the North. That, though defeated, it has not been vanquished, and is just as determined to enforce Negro slavery, to subject the blacks to its subserviency, or kill them, as it ever was, and this the loyal humane hearts of the North will never, never permit.

HARTLEY, of the Brainerd Tribune, proposes to bring the insulted Republicans who supported Dr. Butler, "to time," by threatening to tell "what I know about the Pine Land Ring." That style may be good for purposes of blackmail, but how does he, if an honest man, reconcile it with the generally accepted fact, that "an accomplice is as bad as the thief?" The News is the organ of no ring or clique; but if we were speaking for the Hennepin county Republicans, we would ask Bro. Hartley to say more or less, when alluding to what he will do if that "Hennepin Co. Pine Ring don't come up to the scratch." The party whip as used by the Tribune would be a poor instrument to get our vote with, in the manner used by Bro. Hartley.—[Elk River News.

Chiefly noticable in the above is the usual manifest intense interest the Democratic faction takes in Dr. Butler and of course the pets of the Pine Ring. The Democrats of Clay county are mad to day because they failed in their attempt to carry the Republican convention for Dr. Butler, and not a Democratic organ in the district has failed to cry the defeat of Dr. Butler down as a base fraud, a dastardly outrage. "A guilty conscience needs no accusation." The News has not been charged with being the organ of the Pine Ring, yet the conscience of its editor impels him to the denial of that fact. It is a wonder he is not similarly impelled to deny that the News was purchased and run Republican for a time for the purpose of turning Democratic and carrying Sherburne county with it, and that it made a miserable failure of the job. That the Tribune is an accomplice with the Pine Land Ring, or is using any party whip, is a class of logic peculiar only to the News. If the News is not "speaking for the Hennepin County Pine Ring," who is it speaking for?

THE Little Falls Courier, a rampant little Democratic sheet, has suspended, and A. De Dacy Wood moves to Iowa.—[St. Paul Dispatch.

The Northfield robbers' wounds are unfortunately pronounced not fatal.

HELL GATE was successfully exploded on Sunday. A very suitable day for the deed.

RICE and Ramsey counties are indulging in a controversy over which has the best jail.

WILL the Sauk Rapids Sentinel be kind enough to give its authority for the call it publishes for a Republican Convention for the 30th District, and upon what basis it estimates the representation from the various counties?

THE New York Sun calls Rutherford B. Hayes a "piece of clean white and soft flesh." My! Oh, my!! When the Sun openeth her mouth, who shall be able to stand! Mr. Hayes will certainly have to withdraw under this grave and scathing charge.

We Ought to Have a Change.

[From the Burlington Hawkeye.]

"We want a change!" shrieked the Democratic orators away down in Maine; "we want a change. Last year this State went Republican by 4,000 majority. Now we want a change." "All right," replied the Republican voters, 'we'll give you a change." And they made it 15,000.

"I Would Not Live Alway."

Dr. William A. Muhlenberg, the founder of St. Luke's Hospital, New York, and author of that beautiful hymn "I would not live alway, I ask not to stay," was on the 16th inst. presented with a purse of $20,000, by his friends, he having on that day attained the age of eighty years.

THE Methodist Episcopal Conference of the State has been in session at Minneapolis the past week, and has appointed Rev. M. B. Smith to the Brainerd and Detroit districts for the ensuing year. Mr. Smith was ordained a Deacon, with power to administer the ordinances of baptism, marriage, burial of the dead, and the sacrament.

Rev. H. J. Crist is returned to Austin.

TILTON'S adventure in a sleeping car must have been caused by a return of his old trouble—sleeplessness—and a resort to his favorite remedy of trying another bed. Therefore his excuse that he was "sleepy," must have been hastily and unadvisedly made.

As he obeyed so promptly the mandate to "step down and out," let the injured party send him a card bearing the cheerful tidings of "Grace, Mercy and Peace."—[Cor. Sun.

THE Glenwood, Pope county, Press, remarks on the Congressional situation:

"There seems to be a little McNair wave, which has been set in motion by one of the rival cities of our State, but it is very doubtful whether it will rise high enough in this part of the State to dampen the ardor of any considerable number of the Republican voters. Dr. Stewart seems to have a few failings, prominent among which is his residence not being just where it should be, but as every city cannot have the representative in Congress, we hardly think the McNair wave will hit us very hard."

Ho for the Centennial.

Among those of our citizens who departed for the Centennial this week, we notice Thos. P. Cantwell, wife and three children; Wm. Ferris, wife, daughter and son; M. P. Martin and family, and Mrs. J. W. Edgerton; fifteen in all. Upon the whole, we venture to say that our town has been better represented at the big show than any one of its size in the Union, as far removed from the city of Philadelphia as we are. In this connection, we desire to say that we are endeavoring to get a complete list of the names of all our citizens who have visited the Exhibition closes, and we will be exceedingly thankful to anyone who will assist us in perfecting the list.

Cass Co. Defalcation.

We arise to enquire what, if anything, is being done in the matter of collecting the Cass county Treasurer's defalcation, amounting to $1,221.23?

Mr. Preston, one of the attorneys who commenced suit for Cass county, against the Treasurer's bondsmen, in the name of the Commissioners of the county, informs us that the suit cannot be sustained because there are no Cass county Commissioners, and, according to the decision of the Supreme Court, the Commissioners acting at the time the suit was brought, were then disqualified by the act of last winter in relation to the county of Cass. He thinks Crow Wing county has no authority to bring suit in the matter, because her powers are limited to the bare provisions of the act attaching Cass to Crow Wing. From this the query would naturally arise, can anyone collect it, and, if so, who? The creditors of Cass county would like to know just $1,221.23 worth, with interest.

Go to SMITH & CAMPBELL'S for anything you want in Boots and Shoes—cheap.

The Brainerd Branch.

The St. Paul & Pacific Company sent an agent up here a few days ago to gather up and remove the fish plates, spikes, bolts, etc., at this place, belonging to that road, and he took away a full car load. Thus endeth the fitful and faded hopes of the much mooted Brainerd Branch. Sic transit gloria mundi.

Wheat on the Northern Pacific.

We have procured from official and semi-official sources a statement of the wheat product in the Red River valley and along the line of the Northern Pacific Railroad, which is encouraging for the enterprising settlers of that region, and of interest to the people of the whole State.

The cultivation of wheat within the territory spoken of is comparatively of recent date. Up to 1875 the amount grown was scarcely sufficient to meet the demand of home consumption. The yield for 1875 was about 500,000 bushels, of which 125,000 bushels went to Manitoba, and 40,000 bushels only found its way via the Lake route to Eastern markets.

The area under cultivation in 1875, all crops included, was some 75,000 acres, of which 30,000 acres was in wheat. The area in wheat alone for 1876 was 60,000 acres, making a total area under cultivation, for all crops, of not less that 110,000 acres. In addition to this there has been broken up the present year of new ground some 80,000 acres for wheat cultivation for 1877.

The product of wheat the present year is estimated by those most competent to judge, at 900,000 bushels. The large additional area of new ground broken for cultivation next year requiring seed; the amount necessary for home consumption; and the large amounts of flour already contracted for delivery by local millers for the British Province of Manitoba, which is this year largely dependent on this source for a supply, will absorb a large per centage of the aggregate product stated, and consequently the amount that will find a market East will not exceed 400,000 bushels. The average yield per acre of the area sown this year is about twenty bushels, although some, possibly too sanguine, say it is greater. If nothing prevents the sowing of the immense new area prepared for cultivation next year, and no unforseen calamity overtakes the growing of the crop, the general aggregate will reach the enormous amount of one million seven hundred thousand bushels. If the annual increase of area devoted to the cultivation of wheat keeps pace with the present year, within five years the aggregate wheat crop in the Red River Valley Railroad in Dakota, will equal the aggregate product of the present year's crop in all Minnesota. Taking only the part of the Red River Valley embraced within the grant of lands to the Northern Pacific Railroad, it embraces thirty two hundred square miles, or 2,048,000 acres. Fully eighty per cent. of this vast area is said to be admirably adapted to wheat culture, and if fully utilized will produce thirty millions of bushels of wheat. But if the now warmly discussed project of a diversification of crops should prevail, it is still safe to say that at least one-half of the immense area spoken of will be successfully devoted to the culture of wheat.

The facts here given in brief are full of grave import to those seeking new homes in the West. Here millions of acres of excellent farming lands are suffered to remain in their pristine wilderness, although easy of access, convenient to railroads, and far from being destitute of timber. No finer field for immigration effort can anywhere be found than the work of bringing these important and cheering facts to the attention of the unemployed thousands in the East, who are looking for an opportunity of bettering their condition.—[St. Paul Dispatch.

Personal.

Jos. Hare, of Bismarck, is in the city this week, and returns home to-day.

Miss Fannie Robinson starts on Monday for a visit to La Crosse, Wisconsin.

J. R. Magahey, Esq., returned from the Centennial this morning. Welcome home.

H. A. Campbell starts on October 10th for the Centennial and a visit to his old home in Nova Scotia.

G. W. Holland, County Attorney, returned from the east on Saturday evening last, and is not sorry he visited the Centennial.

W. A. Smith, of Smith & Campbell, returned home on Thursday morning. His father, W. Smith, of Fort Covington, N. Y., died on Monday, the 18th inst.

Wm. Ferris, U. S. Express Agent at this place, and family, started on Thursday evening for the Centennial. Thos. C. Fernald will attend to the express business in his absence; office at McFadden's drug store.

Dr. A. Barnard, accompanied by a millwright, passed through here for Leech Lake, to make preparations for building a steam saw mill at that point for the Government. There will be another little job for the Billagers to burn it down.

We received a very quiet call this morning from Mr. G. J. Driskell, of Waverly, Ills., who is in town selling pictures. He is deaf and dumb from his birth, and has a child at school in Jacksonville, Ills., in the same unfortunate condition. He expects a new supply of pictures on Tuesday morning, and will gladly supply the town.

WE hear nothing this week from Huckleberry, Aquatic, or Davy Crocket. It cannot be possible that the opening of Hell Gate has anything to do with it, though the Devil thinks it has. Copy!

A VERY pleasant hop took place at Bly's Hall, on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the "Pleasant Hour Club." We were unable to accept the kind invitation tendered us to be present, and were the loser thereby, and are correspondingly regretful.

THE attention of our readers is called to the advertisement of Wilson & Co., for a live young man or woman who is acquainted in our neighborhood, to act as their agent, either on salary or commission. The offer is bona fide in every particular, and we hope the best man may get it.

THE following property in this town was forfeited for taxes of 1873, on the 19th inst.—the two years for redemption having expired on that day, to-wit.:

—John Burke, lot 5, in block 49, to A. A. White; J. S. Styles, lot 20, in block 49, to A. A. White; C. T. Hobart, lots 1, 2 and 3, in block 97, to A. A. White; R. L. Jones, part of lots 11 and 12, in in block 45, to State; O. Beal, part of lots 7 and 8, in block 47, to S. V. R. Sherwood; A. Johnson, part of lots 11 and 12, in block 69, to State.

DEPARTED.—It is with regret that we have to record the fact that one of our best citizens and leading business men has taken his departure from our midst, to open in business elsewhere. It is to be regretted by all our citizens, upon two accounts. One is, we lose a good citizen and neighbor; the other is a rupture in our business directory that is not easily repaired. We refer to our watchmaker and jeweler, Mr. E. L. Strauss. He took his departure on Monday morning for Bismarck, there to open a similar establishment to that he has here. He has decided for the present, however, to continue his establishment here, in charge of Mr. J. Lebon, an efficient watchmaker and jeweler, and his family also remains with us. Mr. Strauss is well known in Bismarck, as he is here, and needs no recommendation. If it were necessary, however, we could say heartily, that he is a straightforward, honorable business man in every particular, such as is seldom met in every-day life. What is Brainerd's loss is Bismarck's gain.

A NUISANCE.—The most disgraceful and dangerous public nuisance in this town is the piece of side-walk on Fifth Street, between Front Street and the alley, along the side of Currier's hardware store. It is full of treacherous holes, a few of them botched up with clumps of wood or board, making stumbling blocks, and the whole is littered and obstructed with pieces of cord-wood carelessly or maliciously tumbled onto the walk, from the large pile in the gutter joining, so that it is all one's life is worth to pass over it after dark. Your foot first strikes an ugly, ungain botch over a hole, and you stumble, you strike forward to regain your equilibrium, and plant your other foot in a hole half way to the knee, peeling, if not breaking, your shin. You are prone upon your face, and, ten chances to one, badly gashed upon a clump of oak purposely set to trap some one. You clamber to your feet, if you are able, count your losses, rub your bruises, and start on to repeat the scene.

Our authorities will consider themselves duly notified of this nuisance, and when some one brings suit against the town for a broken limb, as will surely be done if this is not repaired, perhaps our citizens will find they have not evaded all responsibility by repealing the city charter.

There was a general knock-down among lawyers and officers in a Waco, Texas, court the other day. Maxy and Pearre were fined $25 each; Haralston was fined $100. Some twenty or more pistols were drawn by friends of the party, but Judge Gerald corraled the crowd.

Gen. Crook Kills Two or Three Hundred Indians.

A report from Fort Sully by way of Sioux City, Sept. 18th, contains the following intelligence:

"Heavy firing was heard on the river ten miles below here last Tuesday, apparently in the direction of the Black Hills, but no explanation of it was had till yesterday. About ten days ago Colonel Buell, commanding at Cheyenne river agency, sent some scouts out to General Terry, who failed to reach him, but were attacked by Indians, and one was wounded in the shoulders. Retreating they came across a large military trail, which proved to be General Crook's. On the way the scouts saw a camp of thirty lodges near Slim Buttes, north of Harney's Peak, and when Crook was overtaken the scouts informed him, and, turning back his cavalry by a rapid march, Crook surprised and killed every one, estimated to number between two and three hundred Indians. Not one escaped. To-day General Buell takes a census of all the Indians near here, and will to-morrow disarm and dismount them. It is expected the Indians will try and oppose him, but General Buell is firm and will carry out his orders to the letter."

Society-Foam in Paris.

Says a Paris letter to the Boston Post: What a prodigious life is rolling along the chosen road! There are nimble jockeys and Jesuits; blood Princesses in delicious English tandems; long-haired students, blacklegs bawling brotherhood! There are files of shuffling jolly abbes, quaving out "Aves," and pale little altar boys in scarlet, circling the pious throng with twinkling lights; grumbling grocers, swaggering attorneys, professing clever thieves from neighboring Montmartre (where they are honest tradesmen in the day-time); and marvelous undertakers in black and white embroidery, cocked hats, and silver lace; and a rollicking, illuminated Tivoli Vauxhall (blaze, fireworks! bubble, sparkling fountains! squeak, fiddles!). I wonder are there elsewhere such cancans, beer-drinking, shrieking waiters, and a costumed ball at midnight! And M. Worth (Prince of Puffing and Grand Duke of Trains), and the operamore than eighty ravishing rouged houris ere cutting flic-flacs, bounding, fluttering, blinking their pink eyes, and pointing their satin slippers at a thousand hearts, whilst the foot-lamps flicker and white gloves wave from the boxes, whilst ever so many trombones, bassoons, and shrill, lively fiddles are piping out their merry tunes, and so on. And you see how easy it is for the Parisians, confused and delighted by all this racing, preaching, fiddling, scheming, dancing, of the vivacious press they move in, to be pretty indifferent and rather ignorant of what is performing elsewhere.

THE OUTLAWS CAUGHT.

Four More of the Northfield Bank Robbers Secured.

After it was generally supposed that the Missouri outlaws who attempted to rob the Northfield (Minn.) bank had escaped, the people were gratified by the intelligence that the hunt had been renewed resulting in one robber being killed and three more wounded.

It appears that on the morning of the 21st, four of the gang called at the house of a farmer named Ole Sanburn, in Linden, Brown county, and bought some bread and butter. As soon as they had gone, the farmer mounted his boy and sent him to the nearest village, which was Madelia, eight miles distant. The boy reached Madelia between 9 and 10 A. M., and notified Sheriff Glispin, of Watonwan county, and the citizens of the whereabouts of the robbers. A party was instantly organized to pursue them, and in one hour from the time the boy arrived with the news they overtook four of the robbers just as they had crossed the Lake Hanska slough. This slough is not passable for horses, but as Glispin was within gun shot he cried out to the robbers to halt.

The robbers broke into a run at the sheriff's command, going due south towards the Watonwan river. Glispin and two of his party fired at the fleeing robbers without effect, and the robbers were soon out of range. At this moment a party of four farmers with poor guns joined Glispin. Glispin divided his party, four going east to go around that side of the slough, and then going west about two and a half miles to find a western crossing. Before Glispin and his party could cross, the robbers had made a distance of over two miles to the south, being only about three-quarters of a mile from the river. Glispin and Will Estes were in advance, and riding up to within 20 rods of the robbers they called out, "What do you want?" Glispin replied "Throw up your hands and surrender." The robbers answered: "Come up and we won't hurt you," and continued walking off. Glispin and Estes opened fire on the robbers, and the robbers returned the fire, each one firing. Glispin and Estes were obliged to dismount, a ball just grazing Glispin's horse, and others whizzing all around. Many shots were exchanged, and the skirmish ended. The robbers retreating to the Watonwan river, and skulking in the brush. By this time Glispins' five parties had joined, and forming a skirmish line, advanced around the robbers and persued them into the river and into the willows and plum brush on the south side.

By 2 p. m. the party of citizens had been largely increased and the willow patch, covering some five acres, where the robbers were concealed was completely surrounded. Capt. Murphy of Madelia volunteered to Sheriff Glispen to skirmish the brush with any man who would accompany him. Promptly Col. Vaught, James Severson, Benj. Rice, George Bradford and Chas. Pomeroy volunteered, and under Glispin and Murphy were formed in a line east and west, the men being posted about five paces apart, the line slowly advancing northward toward the river, striking the river without stirring up the robbers. This line of brave men then wheeled, following the west, and moved up the river, the right flank resting on the river. Hardly ten rods of ground had been passed when one of the robbers rose from the thick brush, only a distance of fifteen feet from the line advancing, and opposite Murphy and Glispin, whose places in the line were next the river. The robber drew his revolver upon Glispin, Glispin drawing at the same time his rifle on the robber. Both firing at nearly the same instant, Glispin bringing down his man. Glispin dropped to his knees to re-load, when Captain Murphy advanced and fired five shots at the stooping robbers, who were all firing rapidly at the advancing line. All of Glispin's men opened fire at the same moment and the engagement became general. In five minutes over thirty shots had been fired by the robbers, without taking effect, one ball striking Capt. Murphy on the right stomach, but providentially striking a large rosewood pipe in Captain Murphy's vest pocket, and thus saving his life. George Bradford had been struck on the wrist with a slight flesh wound, but so true was the fire of the citizens that three of the robbers were laid prostrate on the ground, one being dead and two badly wounded, the last man being the man who was wounded at Northfield. He threw up his hands and said, "I give up; the rest of the boys are all shot to pieces!" He advanced to the citizens and surrendered himself to Captain Murphy, who took his pistols. This robber led the citizens to the place where lay his three companions. Glispin had the dead and wounded placed in a wagon and brought to Madelia, where Drs. Overhott and Cooley dressed the wounds of the living, and they were placed in beds in the Vaught hotel.

One of the wounded men will probably die, and probably two. The three living ones admit that they are the Younger brothers.

The excitement and rejoicing over the capture of these outlaws is intense.

The remaining two bandits supposed to be the James brothers, are in the neighborhood of Sioux City, Iowa, with a large party in close pursuit, and their capture seems probable.

Another Account.

(Report of J. C. Wise of the Mankato Review.)

Soon after arriving at Madelia we were fortunate in capturing Captain W. W. Murphy; one of the gallant captors, who rendered valient services in the memorable fight.

[After speaking of the news brought by the boy Oscar Suborn, the account continues.]

Sheriff Glispin was one of the first to receive the intelligence, and within five minutes he and several others were mounted and started. Others were directed to go in other directions to intercept them in their retreat. The first sight Glispin's party had of them was at the right hand outlet of Hanska Lake, 6 miles west of Madelia. Here Glispin called out to them to surrender, but continuing to retreat, the first shots were exchanged.

A horse in the pursuing party owned by a Norwegian, was wounded, and it is thought fatally. The robbers then waded a slough. Glispin and his party being mounted could not follow them, but had to go round a distance of several miles. After crossing the slough the robbers made straight for the Watonwan river, which they struck at the bend, six miles west of Madelia, and near the house of Andrew Anderson, where they crossed. Glispin and party crossed about a mile east and got in front of them. Saw the robbers and drove them back into the brush of willows and palm trees lining the banks in that vicinity. By that time horsemen and teams from town began to arrive, and there was probably fifty persons occupying the bluffs. Here the horsemen were dismounted, and recruits called for to charge the brush.

Only seven persons responded, and their names are James Glispin, sheriff, Ben. Rice, son of the ex-senator, of St. James; Capt. W. W. Murphy of Madelia; Geo. Bradford, Clerk; Chas. Pomeroy, jr., T. L. Voucht, of Flanders House; and James Severson, clerk in Yate's store. Others were called for, but they refused to respond, and the gallant little band of seven, charged the robbers, passing through the thick brush in a northerly direction until striking the river, when they deployed as skirmishers, their line being formed about five feet apart. Then moving westward up the river, after going about fifteen rods, they ran upon the four men, secreted in thick willows. Glispin was on the extreme right of the line, advancing in an open path, and being seen by the robbers, a shot was fired at him, which he dodged by falling on his knee, at the same time returning a well-directed shot from his carbine. Seeing Glispin fall, Murphy, next at hand, supposing him to be shot, opened fire with his revolver, the rest of the party following suit in rapid succession. Glispin kept up a rapid fire and Murphy having exhausted the six chambers of his revolver, Glispin handed his revolver to Murphy, the party steadily advanced and sending volley after volley at the robbers. All stood up manfully, not flinching, but each and every one doing his whole duty. In the hottest of the fray assistance was called for from those in the rear, but not one responded. Then the order to charge was given. The man who seemed in advance of the robbers was hit, ran two rods in a cornering direction from the attacking party and fell mortally wounded. Cole Younger and his brother were seen to fall and were heard groaning, and the other brother, wounded at Northfield, stepped out of the brush saying, "Don't fire any more, we are all shot to pieces." The persuers ordered him to hold up his hands, which he did, and fearing that it was a plan to decoy them, Glispin ordered his men to take aim at the man, and then commanded him to advance and deliver his pistol to Murphy, which he did. The firing then ceased, and advancing one man was found dead, and Cole Younger and his brother were found lying together on the ground, badly wounded.

Cole Younger said to Capt. Murphy that if he hadn't been in this business he would have been a preacher. He talked about dying and pretended great seriousness and a desire to repent. The one least injured, when told of this, said it was only a blind and thought that Cole had no idea that he was going to die.

In Mr. Wise's interview with those two, they gave him a detailed account of their passage through Mankato, the passage of the bridge, etc., with which our readers are familiar. They then went on to say that the three Youngers were all wounded at Northfield, and the two men who escaped were unharmed, and left with the knowledge and consent of the remaining four, the oldest brother remarking that we parted in peace.

He says his own judgment was against doing anything in this State, and especially against going to Northfield, and had he known the character of the country there he would never have gone. When he got there several of the boys had been drinking and forced the job against his advice. He says he was not in the town much over five minutes. One reason for going there was the amount of money in the bank, and some of the boys had a grudge against the ex-governor of Mississippi, who was supposed to be interested in it.

It is surmised that the man who killed Haywood is the one killed near Madella. He is a very handsome man, erect and powerful in statute, of great courage, determination and severity.

The survivors persistently refuse to tell the name of those killed or escaped, saying their obligations to each other bind them not to divulge the secrets of each other, though each man can tell as much as he pleases about himself. The oldest said that the Kansas City detectives were not correct in identifying the men killed at Northfield; they examined the pictures and pronounced them very accurate.

They manifest remarkable kindness towards each other, and the two oldest especially to the one wounded in the mouth.

The Outlaws,

are fine looking, well informed men. They display remarkable intelligence in their conversation, talk candidly, at times saying things about themselves that men ordinarily in their situation would not say.

A number of ladies spoke to them about the life they had led, beseeched them to repent, and promised to pray for them. At one time an old lady of intelligence and great kindness of heart spoke to them feelingly about their mother and sister, the men responded in the most affected manner, tears streaming down their cheeks, and there was scarcely a dry eye in the room, some of the ladies giving way in audible sobs to their grief.

Both said they had braved every danger, but that such scenes as this was too much for them.

The oldest said he had been brought up under Christian influences, his parents being Christians, but he had never professed religious belief. The younger brother said he had once been a believer and member of the church, but had fallen.

They express the most profound gratitude for the kindness received, and express resignation and willingness to abide their fate.

Disposition of the Prisoners.

The three wounded men were taken by Sheriff Barton of Rice county to Faribault on Saturday via Owatonna, and safely lodged in jail. All along the route crowds of persons gathered at the stations to see the bandits and the excitement was intense. At Faribault the arrival was unexpected as they came on a freight instead of regular train, and the people were caught napping. They rallied, however, very soon, but the prisoners were safely lodged in jail before their arrival was generally known.

POLITICS.

Gov. Hayes in Earnest.

Extract from Carl Schurz' Speech.

I have already shown how much the President can accomplish by the exercise of his constitutional powers. And if then, Congress refuses to aid and perpetuate the reform by such legislative measures as may be necessary, let the President appeal to the good sense and patriotism of the people. In an election held without the civil service as a party agency, such an appeal will scarcely remain without a response. I, therefore, declare this to be my honest conviction, not only that Gov. Hayes, as a man of patriotism and integrity, will, if elected to the presidency, be true to his word in using all the constitutional powers of his office to carry out to the letter the programme put forth by himself, but that, powerful as the opposition he will have to encounter may be, the chances will be strongly in favor of the success and lasting establishment of the reformed system, sustained as it will be by the best elements of the Republican party and a patriotic public opinion.

Indeed, when examining the relative positions taken by the two candidates for the presidency, and the prospects they open to us, the apponents of Gov. Hayes seem utterly at a loss to discover a flaw in the systematic reform he proposes to establish. They find themselves forced back upon the small expedient of discrediting his intentions. "Gov. Hayes," they say, "cannot be in earnest with this plan; for if he were believed to be in earnest there would be a multitude of Republican politicians who would rather see their candidate defeated than such a reform succeed." There may be such Republican politicians. But Gov. Hayes' own word, publicly spoken, warrants me in telling you that he is in earnest, uncompromisingly in earnest. If there were Republicans who would try to defeat him for that reason, I am confident it would not change his position.

Gov. Hayes will ever be proud to have stood up for so good a cause, and would rather be defeated as its faithful champion than succeed by betraying it. But now I ask you, my Independent friends, if that cause is so good that the spoils polititian would fear its success more even than the failure of his party, is not there, for you, as sincere friends of reform, every reason to desire and work for its triumph! Considering with candor every circumstance surrounding us, carefully weighing every probability, and feeling the

THE OLD SILVER DOLLAR.

How dear to our hearts are the coins we once minted.
When fond recollection recalls them to mind!
How sweetly they chinked, and how brightly they glinted,
And told us of value and beauty combined!
The eagle, the half, the five-dollar, the quarter,
Poured forth from the mints and delighted the land;
We stuck to those coins, then, as bricks stick to mortar,
And cherished the dollar that chinked in the hand—
The old silver dollar, the honest old dollar,
Our forefathers' dollar, that chinks in the hand.

But war, that played many a curious caper,
Soon gave us a promise, in place of our chink;
Our coins flew away on the wings of the paper,
And left us to worry with rags and with ink.
The presses worked hard, as the paper they printed,
And when the shinplasters spread over the land,
We said a farewell to the coins we once minted,
Good-by to the dollar that chinked in the hand—
The old silver dollar, the honest old dollar,
Our forefathers' dollar, that chinked in the hand.

The people who hold the time bonds we had given
Determined to strengthen and tighten their hold;
A Congress, by bondholders hastily driven,
Declared that our coin should be nothing but gold.
Columbia then proved a very apt scholar,
Obeying at once the bondholders' command,
And blindly abandoned the old silver dollar,
The cherished old dollar that chinked in the hand;
The old silver dollar, the honest old dollar,
Our forefathers' dollar, that chinked in the hand.

So now we demand that they give us our money,
Our money of silver, as well as of gold,
That clouds may pass over, and days may be sunny,
And plenty be with us again, as of old.
Our paper shall yield to the weight of our metal,
Our promise no longer be writ in the sand;
Our debts, as of old, we will honestly settle
With the old-fashioned dollar, that clinks in the hand—
The old silver dollar, the honest old dollar,
Our forefathers' dollar, that chinks in the hand.

A DOUBLE DANGER.

A story or two from an old hunter will not prove uninteresting, I know, consequently I will copy a few pages from my diary in relation to my adventures in Africa, where I spent considerable time, nearly a score of years ago, hunting the wild and ferocious monsters of the forest and jungles.

With no more preface, then, my good friends, I will at once proceed with my narrative.

I had been out on a hunt for several months, and had had a number of thrilling adventures—far more exciting than really pleasant.

This season I was accompanied by a friend named Morris Kelly, and, as usual, several sooty-faced natives. The latter were not much to be depended on, however, in a moment of trouble or danger. In fact, they were rather cowardly, and almost always ready to run, if the chance for flight was anyways good. On several occasions they had left Kelly and me to face the music, wholly alone and unaided.

Well, early one morning, before we had made a start, and while the natives were preparing breakfast, Kelly declared his intention of going out a little to look around. No sooner said than done, and out he went, leaving me to smoke my pipe and enjoy my leisure.

"You stay here," said he to me, "and see that the breakfast is properly prepared by the time I get back, which won't be long, I assure you, for I'm mighty hungry myself. I'll just take a squint around here, and see if there is any game stirring, though there's never much lack of that, I take it, in this section of the world."

"Well, hurry back," I replied "Breakfast is almost ready now, and we'll make an early start. Besides I wouldn't venture far away alone."

Kelly said he should run no risk, and would be back in good season. In fact, he added, he should not go out of the sound of my voice. With these words he complied with the latter, and in a few minutes disappeared from my sight.

Fifteen minutes afterwards I was startled by the crack of a rifle, not very far off, either. Leaping to my feet, I excitedly cried out:

"There! Kelly's into it already, some how."

Bidding the natives follow me, I seized my rifle and darted off in the direction of the sound. The darkies obeyed my hurried behest, but managed to lag a good ways behind, as usual. Quietly—for I enjoyed silence—we hurried along.

At length we began to mount the side of a huge hill that lay before us. Up, up, up, cautiously crawling on our hands and knees, for there the crack of a rifle was almost always a warning of danger, and the hunter made his calculations accordingly.

At length I reached the top, where I found a level plateau of several acres. The spot was almost barren, and the tropical sun poured down with a scorching power. However, I could see but one thing, then, with any distinctness, and the sight of that fairly curdled the blood in my veins.

In the centre of the plateau appeared the form of a lion, and the mighty monster was ripping and rending the body of poor Kelly into a hundred pieces.

I think the animal came suddenly upon my companion, who fired his weapon but missed his aim, and before he could reload—hiding-place there was none, not even the trunk of a tree—the terrible animal bore him down. Such things often happened, and to the best of hunters, as may well be supposed.

On the edge of the plateau I suddenly halted, riveted to the spot by what I saw. Before I fully recovered my senses, my natives reached my side, and just as they arrived at the top of the hill, and took in a realizing sense of what was before them, the lion raised his head and uttered a roar that seemed to shake the very air. Quick as lightning they took to their heels, and tore back down the hill, leaving me alone to do the best I could.

All this—the appearance of the natives at the brow of the hill, the roar of the lion, and the flight of the blackeys—occurred almost simultaneously; and the next moment, quick as a flash, the roaring monster sprang away from the gory carcass of poor Kelly, and darted at me, with a single bound clearing half the distance, and the moment he struck the ground, fiercely bounding forward again. As the lion left the ground a second time, I sank down below the brow of the hill, dropped upon my knees, pointed my rifle upward, and fired away at the monster while he was flying through the air, almost directly over me. The ball struck him, but not fatally, and the next moment the animal landed a few feet beyond me, on the side of the hill. Alighting in such a way and in such a place, the fierce brute could find no footing. After a few struggles to retain his balance, he toppled over and rolled down the hill, uttering roar upon roar.

At the same moment I sprang up on the level ground above, and rapidly began to reload my rifle, accomplishing the task in an extraordinary short space of time.

Meanwhile the lion had reached the bottom of the hill, which was pretty steep, I assure you, and regained his feet. For a moment only he stood, and looked around, as if a little bewildered, and then he spied me, and darted up the hill toward the spot I occupied.

The monster was bleeding in several places; both Kelly and myself had evidently wounded him, and he appeared to be maddened with the pain of his injuries. Such a roaring as he made, mortal ears seldom hear. It was a critical moment for me, but, thank God! my nerves were firm, and my eyes undazzled. To the fullest I realized the peril of my situation, but I was too old a hunter to be so easily dashed.

Well, the mighty monster glided steadily toward me, and, when about half way up the hill, I raised my rifle and took a steady aim at his shaggy head. I thought I had him sure, but, you know, "man proposes and God disposes."

One moment I stopped to make myself doubly sure. All ready! I laid my finger against the trigger, but just then a sudden sound stayed my purpose. It was the cry of a leopard that struck upon my ear, and the sound came from right behind me, bursting upon me like a clap of thunder.

I dropped the muzzle of my rifle, and rapidly looked behind me.

"Good God!" I cried, with a feeling of alarm which I could not control. Not twenty feet behind me, crouched down for a deadly spring—down so close that it lay almost flat upon the ground—with its fiery, burning, glaring eyes fixed steadily upon me, was a huge leopard.

There I was, between a lion and a leopard, and I ask you now could any mortal man be placed in a more desperate and perilous a situation!

"Heaven help me now!" I muttered.

Not a minute elapsed after I turned to look back before the ferocious leopard vaulted from the ground, and went whizzing through the air. The moment for action restored to me a measure of my forethought, and I jumped backward several paces, at the same time stooping down under the flying monster.

The leopard landed on the very spot where I had been standing—what would have been my fate if I had not moved back, you may guess—and just as his feet touched the ground the lion's head appeared above the hill, and, almost instantly afterward, the lion himself.

A roar from one, and a screech from the other followed and mingled together. Between the two I seemed to escape observation, and I tell you I was mighty thankful for it. I looked on with bated breath.

Instantaneously the monsters bounded at each other, taking the fight wholly out of my hands. Standing, as they did, their charge upon each other overturned their balance, and they rolled over and over down the hill, ripping and tearing, and screaming and roaring like very devils.

I ran to the edge, and, looking over, watched them. That was my time to escape, you will say, but I was fascinated by the sight of two such dreadful monsters engaged in battle array, and I almost forgot my own imminent danger.

At the bottom of the hill the battle was renewed with three-fold fury, and for a long time the denouement seemed uncertain. I could have shot either, but that would have left me exposed to the attack of the survivor. Besides, I really wanted to see the monsters fight it out, and felt pretty sure that they would demolish one another in the long run.

Lying flat on my stomach, with my head just over the brow of the hill, I watched the sanguinary battle below. With eager interest I noticed every phase of the unusual conflict.

At length the leopard stretched himself upon the ground, and uttered a loud and wailing cry. Standing over the twitching and kicking animal, the conquering lion proudly threw his head aloft, and uttered a roar of triumph.

At that moment his eyes fell on me, and the gory, unsated animal again darted up the hill. Once more I leveled my rifle, and this time nothing occurred to mar my purpose. I fired and struck the brute between the eyes. Weak and wounded as he was, that was almost too much for him with a cry of pain he tottered and nearly fell backward down to the bottom. By a mighty effort recovering himself, however, he clung to the side of the hill, and struggled fiercely to maintain his footing. I felt no pity for the monster, however—could not be expected to feel any.

A large stone, just as much as I could lift, happening to be lying loose at my feet, I picked it up, and with all my force cast it at my enemy. The heavy stone struck the dying beast in the head finishing his career. With a last roar he rolled over and over down the hill.

Shortly after I was rejoined by my native guides, but it was quite a while before I could induce them to approach the plateau. Finally, I somewhat overcame their alarm; and that accomplished, I had a grave dug for poor Kelly, in which he was laid to rest, and left to his eternal repose.

"Peace be with you, my friend!" I mentally prayed, as I bowed over the hunter's lonely grave.

The mule that had been ailing for several months and was finally killed about six weeks ago, by being struck with two bolts of lightning, got up day before yesterday and ambling painfully into the office of the Augusta paper, demanded the name of the editor who had started that infamous lie about his oath.

Hay for Stock.

Let it be said with emphasis to every farmer: "Place more importance on feeding good hay and less grain in the winter." Good hay is secured by cutting grass a little green, and by all means securing it before the seed matures. Do not sun-cure grass; let it wilt in a good sun from three to five hours and then cure in cocks. All classes of stock should have good bedding in the winter.

Feed For Short-Horns.

At a fine stock convention held recently at Vinton, Iowa, the well-known short-horn breeder and dealer, S. W. Jacobs, said the average wieght of his short-horns at one year old was 1,000 pounds. He fed milk six months and grain six months, giving four quarts daily. He also said:—I treat a calf kindly, give it its mother's milk only; at four weeks old it will eat dry shelled corn. I do not measure the quantity, but let it eat what it will eat clean; feed three times per day; do not let it out in the hot sun to graze; curry it sometimes; at three months old I feed some wheat, and about what will lay in my hand of linseed meal. That does not physic, and improves the hair and appearance of the head; and also when an animal scours, give it oil-cake. For a large bull you want a double stall; half an hour of exercise by letting him run in the yard; water as often as he wants it. We water our stock three times a day. Feed a bushel of cut hay mixed with fifteen pounds of corn meal and three pounds of oil-cake.

The Annatto Plant.

Annatto, used so extensively by dairy men, in coloring their products, is a substance taken from the seed pod of the annatto plant, bexa orellana, of Brazil. The plant is an evergreen, and is grown in some green-houses as a curiosity.

The coloring matter is wholly upon the outside of the seeds, which are about the size of common raisin seeds, which they much resemble. They are contained to the number of forty or fifty in the pods.

The coloring matter is about as thick as common writing paper, and may be scraped off from the seeds, leaving the latter as clean and bright as buckwheat grain, and of about the same color. This outer covering from which the coloring is extracted, is a portion of the dried pulp of the fruit adhering to the seeds like the mucilagenious matter of unwashed pumpkin or squash seeds. It is entirely free from taste or odor, and appears to be pure color and nothing else.

Annatto, as it is received in paste form, from Brazil, has a peculiar aromatic or nutty odor, which is derived from the flour and meat of the seeds. This flour is as white as the flour of wheat or other grain, but is not as dry and starchy, resembling in consistency more the meat of a fresh shagbark or butternut.

Experimenting with Grades.

S. W. Hart, of Lapeer county, Mich., has been experimenting with grades, and the following is a report of the results as given by the Michigan Farmer. It shows conclusively that hay is not a sine qua non with stock, and that it can be successfully bred, in seasons when the hay crop is short, by the use of auxiliary crops. These cattle were bred from fair native cows, and the bull a thoroughbred Short-horn, so that we may consider them half-breeds. The cattle were sold as follows:

One pair oxen	3636 lbs.
One cow	1450 "

The 3-year-old steers bred and fed by Hart are as follows:

1 pair 3-year old steers	3015 lbs.
1 pair 3-year old steers	2754 "
1 pair 3-year old steers	2632 "
1 pair 3-year olds (twins, steer and heifer)	2400 "

Hart raised these 3-year olds on skim milk when calves; they never ate a ton of hay, and no hay at all, for the reason that he did not have the hay. All the past season he fed them cornstalks, turnips and grain. The drover who purchased them took the whole lot with an allowance for shrinkage of 91 lbs. for their delivery in Detroit, below their weight at Milton. We have a lesson here about feeding. Hart, by the use of a good bull has good stock to work with, and taking into consideration that he was short of hay, fed a splendid lot of cattle, making up in attention to his stock for his want of hay. In this he has set us an example, and we are much pleased to present his report to our readers, for it shows that "blood will tell." We ask, then, can any farmer that takes his chance of the bulls met with, show anything like this record!

On Souring of Milk During Thunder Storms.

It is a fact, to the truth of which all housewives will testify, that immediately after a brilliant display of atmospheric electricity, milk which was sweet before will be found to be sour. The souring of milk is undoubtedly caused by the sugar of milk being changed into lactic acid. But what produces this change in so short a time! Under natural conditions, milk will remain sweet for at least a day, while during a thunder storm the change will take place in an hour's time.

A great number of reasons have been given for this rapid souring of milk, as the jarring of thunder, etc. But the simple explanation was the result of an experiment tried by an Englishman named Andrew Crossee, about fifty years ago. The gentleman was endeavoring to produce crystals by decomposing a silicious solution by meahs of the electric current. After he had passed electricity through the solution several hours, he was astonished to find some oval bodies covered with bristles moving through the solution, and kicking out in every direction. At first it seemed as if electricity produced life, but further experiments showed that it simply hatched the germs already in the liquid, for if precautions were taken to exclude them, no animal life was produced by electricity.

These wonderful experiments set the scientific world to experimenting; and, as the result, Hallier, Pasteur and a host of investigators, have shown that the souring of milk is caused by the presence of a large number of minute plants called fungi. The presence of negative electricity is essential to the rapid development of these minute plants. By charging milk with positive electricity, it may be kept sweet for several weeks. This fact may prove to be of practical utility in the arts.

Now, during thunder storms everything is favorable to the growth of fungi. The air is warm, moist and charged with negative electricity. In a short space of time whole forests spring up in every pan of milk, and succeed in souring the milk and the temper of the housewife.

Dried Sweet Corn—As it is now the season for drying sweet corn, I send my process: Pick the corn the night beforehand; husk it in the morning, in order to give it the benefit of the fire while morning's work is being done up. Cut the corn from the cob. It dries quicker not to scrape the cob with the knife afterwards. Put it into pans and set it in the oven, with the doors open, if the fire is brisk. Stir it often until it is thoroughly scalded through. Spread it in the sun. When sufficiently dry, put up in paper bags and hang near the fire some time, as it is apt to gather dampness. Some complete the process by the fire entirely, but it requires more attention. The object in scalding it and hurrying the drying is to prevent the corn souring. In good weather a batch can be finished in twenty-four hours. Many housekeepers do not know the luxury of having dried sweet corn for a winter dish. To cook it, soak over night in cold water, then simmer on the stove until tender, then season like succotash, with cream and butter. The Minnesota sweet corn is the best and earliest variety we have ever tried.—FARMER'S WIFE.

STOP THAT COUGH!

From the sale of 50,000 bottles of Hale's Cough Cordial, sold in the northwest within the past year, on a guarantee to refund the money in case of a failure to cure, there were less than fifty bottles returned, being less than one failure in a thousand. This fact speaks volumes in favor of this wonderful remedy for Colds, Coughs, Sore Throats, Bronchitis, Asthma, &c. Physicians everywhere acknowledge their surprise at the wonderful results from the use of this medicine. We authorize every druggist to warrant a cure or return the money in case of a failure after using one-half the bottle. It is very pleasant to the taste, making it a very desirable remedy for children.

D. 1874, at 11 o'clock A. M., whereby said mortgagors did duly mortgage and convey unto the said Alfred Sully all that tract and parcel of land lying and being in said county of Wadena, State of Minnesota, described in said mortgage as follows, to-wit: The north half of the north-west quarter (n ½ n w ¼), the south-west quarter of the north-west quarter (s w ¼ n w ¼), and the north-west quarter of the south-west quarter (n w ¼ s w ¼), all in section number seven (7), in township number one hundred and thirty-four (134) north of range number thirty-five (35), west of fifth Principal Meridian, and containing one hundred and forty-six and thirty-five one hundredths (146.35) acres according to the United States Government survey, be the same more or less, together with the appurtenances thereunto belonging, which mortgage was conditioned for the payment of one promissory note with coupons attached, made by said Aaron W. Lake, as follows, to-wit: One note for six hundred and sixty ($660) dollars, payable on the 16th day of July, A. D. 1879, with interest thereon from date until paid, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum, payable annually on the 16th day of July in each year, at The Corbin Banking Company, 61 Broadway, New York City, and bearing even date with said mortgage; and there is claimed to be due upon said note, at the date of this notice, the sum of eight hundred and eighty one hundredths ($880.80) dollars, principal and interest, and twenty-one and five one hundredths ($21.05) dollars, taxes for 1875, paid by the mortgagee herein.

And, Whereas, Said mortgagors did covenant and agree in said mortgage to pay all taxes that might be assessed on said premises, and in case of foreclosure thereof, to pay said mortgagee, his heirs or assigns, the sum of fifty dollars attorney's fees.

And Whereas, Certain taxes for the year 1875 were lawfully assessed on said premises, and on the 11th day of September, 1876, the same remaining unpaid, the said Alfred Sully paid the same, amounting at the time of said payment to the sum of twenty-one and five one hundredths dollars. And no suit or proceeding at law has been instituted to recover or collect the debt due upon said note and coupons and mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, By virtue of said power of sale contained in and recorded with said mortgage, and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of said tract and parcels of land therein and above described, with the tenements and hereditaments thereunto belonging, by the sheriff of Wadena county, at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, at the front door of the Wadena Hotel, in the town of Wadena, county and State aforesaid, on MONDAY, THE 30TH DAY OF OCTOBER, A. PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS,

Which may be done with one-fourth the usual expense, by using our

Patent Slate Paint

MIXED READY FOR USE,

Fire-Proof, Water-Proof, Durable, Economical and Ornamental.

A roof may be covered with a very cheap shingle, and by application of this slate be made to last from 20 to 25 years. Old roofs can be patched and coated, looking much better, and lasting longer than new shingles without the slate, for

ONE-THIRD THE COST OF RESHINGLING.

The expense of slating new shingles is only about the cost of simply laying them. The paint is FIRE-PROOF against sparks or flying embers, as may be easily tested by any one.

IT STOPS EVERY LEAK,

and for tin or iron has no equal, as it expands by heat, contracts by cold, and NEVER CRACKS nor scales. Roofs covered with Tar Sheathing Felt can be made water-tight at a small expense and preserved for many years.

This Slate Paint is EXTREMELY CHEAP.

Two gallons will cover a hundred square feet of shingle roof, while on tin, iron, felt, matched boards, or any smooth surface, from two quarts to one gallon are required to 100 square feet of surface, and although the paint has a heavy body, it is easily applied with a brush.

No Tar is used in this Composition, therefore it never cracks in Winter, nor runs in Summer.

On decayed shingles it fills up the holes and pores, and gives a new substantial roof that will last for years. CURLED OR WARPED shingles it brings to their places, and keeps them there. It fills up all holes in Felt roofs, stops the leaks, and although a slow dryer, rain does not affect it a few hours after applying. As nearly all paints that are black contain TAR, be sure you obtain our GENUINE article, which (for shingle roofs) is when first applied, changing in about a month to a uniform slate color, and is to all intents and purposes SLATE. Or our red color is usually preferred, as one coat is equal to five of any ordinary paint. For our BRIGHT RED is the only reliable Slate Paint ever introduced that will effectually prevent dampness from penetrating and discoloring the plaster.

CHOCOLATE COLOR,

TIN ROOFS

BRICK WALLS

These paints are also largely used on outhouses and fences, or as a priming coat on fine buildings.

Our only colors are CHOCOLATE, RED, BRIGHT RED and ORANGE.
