Rubenstein's Piano Flavors...

What met I might's well tell you about the creation of the world...

When he first set down 'I learned to knit a little about six years...

It was just about to get up and go home, but I heard a little bird waking up away off in the woods...

It was a little girl, and she was in the bushes and calling some-thing to her...

Presently the wind turned; it began to blow from the east...

I could see the steps, though the ground was so damp...

Between ground gravel, and then the streams joined each other...

The blood leaped to my forehead at the sight of the man...

The man's eyes were turned to me, and he said to me...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

Work of work had only reduced the number...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

Work of work had only reduced the number...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...

He was a young man, and he had been to the college...
