Look out for the "Brainard column" in the St. Paul Dispatch hereafter. That energetic paper has a local reporter here now.

The branch lines of the St. Paul and Pacific railroad were sold this week in St. Paul to the bondholders who accordingly proceeded to contract for the building of the missing link of the Paulina branch from Alexandria to Glasgow via Fergus Falls, Minn.

Gen. Washburn has peddled off his stock, rolled up his sleeves and gone to work in earnest to do something for Minnesota, and he has not been idle. Among a long list of measures he has under way of interest to this State, is a bill to authorize the Duluth & Winnipeg Railroad company to extend its line through the Red Lake and Paulina Indian reservations to Glasgow to extend the time for the payment of ex-proctors on certain public lands in the State of Minnesota.

A team belonging to C. F. Kindred took flight from a man riding on the freight depot on Tuesday morning last, and running into the street toward Broadway, between the Wood and Main streets, ran against a tree, which separated the horses from the wagon and each other.

An accident of a trifling character took place on the Northern Pacific railroad on Wednesday evening last. A Switch, which a sensational Pioneer Press reporter has located within ten feet of the deep gully, but which was ascertained to be a narrow escape from one of those sickening horrors which it would soundly punish. It was a solid mass of iron and steel, and was bolted to the side of the car, striking its knees at every jump.

The house committee on railroads have decided not to report back any railroad bills this session. It will go right on all the same. We will do nothing if we can't get it.

Gen. Washburn has introduced the following bill in Congress for opening up the Fort Ripley reservation in the State of Minnesota, and for other purposes. It is a bill to restore to the public domain a certain tract of land in the State of Minnesota, and for other purposes.
