OUR CANDIDATE. The Chicago Convention, after several days labor, nominated Gen. James A. Garfield, of Ohio for president.

The field being against Grant, with the field strong to prevent his securing the majority, it was deemed unable to gather the field from the favorite son the question became a search for the man who could take the Blaine strength and gather the field.

Gen. Garfield was nominated as the Wisconsin candidate, and upon that issue that if a reasonable time, they would go down to Garfield, the Blaine force would follow.

President Hill's of the North Pacific is now on a visit of inspection over his road to the terminus was interviewed by St. Paul on Wednesday.

Our leader is an able, eloquent, pure, true man, one of eminent culture who inspires the respect and admiration of everyone he comes in contact with.

Mr. Bly is greatly improving his work of buildings, or of Fifth and Front streets. The wood found during the excavation for the new building will be put in the store-rooms.

Gen. Garfield's Acceptance. The following is Gen. Garfield's reply on Tuesday evening at the Grand Pacific Hotel to the resolutions adopted by the National Convention to notify him of his nomination.

With voters—balcony, gallery, pit, aisle and stage. The nine bishops are seated on the stage and take their turn in presiding. They are a fine looking set of men and add to the character and body over which they preside.

What They Say. The nomination of Gen. Garfield by the Chicago Convention on Tuesday receives the following tributes from prominent sources in both parties.

Gen. Garfield has long been in public life, and the fact that he is yet in the prime of his life, and is personally accepted as proof that he is personally the best man for the position.
