The Academy of Music was opened to the public last Monday evening, and he it said to the credit of the management that a model entertainment was given. It was utterly devoid of the frequent general mass of low characters, and the proprietors deserve success in their undertaking. A young Dame named Ernest Wilkoff was caught between the cars, last Tuesday while painting and jammed terribly. He was taken to the N. P. Hospital, and lingered along until Wednesday evening, when he expired. He had no relatives in this country, and only a sister in the old country.

Wednesday night's south-bound passenger carried a deputy sheriff from a county northern Iowa, who had in his charge a man with whose truck he had been for nearly a year. The crime charged is a rifle committed on the person of a girl, about 12 years old. He captured his man on a farm in Dakota, where he was working as a harvest hand. Nellie Heatbroke and another cypran, the latter from St. Paul, were arrested in a disreputable locality in St. Paul, a few days since, in company with two of the male persuasion, one of the latter white, the other black. The girls were fined $10 each and costs, while the balance of the outfit were sent up for an appropriate length of time. Having just opened a tailor shop, I respectfully invite the public that I will make custom clothes to order and guarantee entire satisfaction. I will also do repairing and cleaning of clothing, including ladies' black wear, to make them look like new. Call at Mrs. Grandelney's old stand on Front st., bet. Third and Fourth. H. GULLON.

Captain Glazier lectured to a fair sized audience in Ely's Hall, last Thursday evening, his subject being, "Pioneers of the Mississippi." The lecture was a fine production, well rendered. Many had been somewhat misinformed as to the nature of the lecture, supposing that the Captain would relate some of his experiences around the upper source of the river. This, however, we shall learn when the Captain publishes his next literary production. We wish the Captain a safe voyage down the Great Father of Waters.

FOR SALE—On account of poor health I offer for sale the following described property to wit: An improved farm, lying about one mile south-west of the town of Brainerd, Crow Wing Co., Minn., containing about 129 acres, 35 acres of bottom land under cultivation, and about 5 acres of upland, also in a high state of cultivation; balance well timbered. Dwelling houses, barn, garage and other out buildings. Good well of water, a living stream running through the farm. Good meadow attached to farm which will cut 100 tons of hay, also two span of horses, one pair of colts, two years old, two sets of harness, one wagon, one buggy, two pair of bobbeds, one harrow, one mowing machine and horse rakes. Also a farm lying eight miles from Brainerd, on Brainerd & Sauk trys, 1 1/2 M. R., containing about 140 acres, all fenced, 50 acres under cultivation, lying within fifty yards of Crow Wing station. I will sell for one-half down and balance on time, or a reduction for all cash, of farm nearest Brainerd, including stock, etc., $3,916. Farm at Crow Wing station, $400. The Big Show

It will be here on Monday, August 27th. Every one should attend. On this occasion the Saginaw (Mich.) Evening News says: "The Burr Robbins and Colvin Hiltziba's immense, all-american, American and unusually brightly show arrived on this morning, and the street parade place as advertised. The parade was good, and an enormous crowd turned out to see the notwithstanding. For the weather was rather chilly. The company has some fine specimens of wild animals, and several fine specimens of animals, too, wild. The performance in the afternoon showed that the praise given to this company by the papers in other cities was well deserved. The animals presented have been brought here, and the ring performance is superior to that of any circus which has visited this section of the State recently. The wonderful riding of Charles W. Fish makes the old circus-gazers shout with enthusiasm, and made those unfamiliar with circus performances turn pale with fright, while the other performers were not at all behind the times; and altogether the show gave perfect satisfaction."

A Peculiar Robbery. Last Wednesday night, four panes of glass were broken out of a window in the express office at this place, and two trunks, one the property of Capt. Glazier, and the other belonging to J. M. Kingley, were taken therefrom. The captain's trunk contained tickets, books, etc., while the other contained nothing but apples and nuts. The trunks were found in the woods near by the following morning, the contents scattered promiscuously about. It must have been quite a sell on burglars. There were numerous valuable packages in the office at the time, and with convenient reach, but for some unaccountable reason these were all left undisturbed. Further mention of this affair may be found in another column.

Grandelneyer has just received a full assortment of beautiful laces, and is now ready to meet the demands of the ladies of Brainerd in their choice of lace, both in quality and price. PIANOS AND ORGANS.

It will be here on Monday, August 27th. Every one should attend. On this occasion the Saginaw (Mich.) Evening News says: "The Burr Robbins and Colvin Hiltziba's immense, all-american, American and unusually brightly show arrived on this morning, and the street parade place as advertised. The parade was good, and an enormous crowd turned out to see the notwithstanding. For the weather was rather chilly. The company has some fine specimens of wild animals, and several fine specimens of animals, too, wild. The performance in the afternoon showed that the praise given to this company by the papers in other cities was well deserved. The animals presented have been brought here, and the ring performance is superior to that of any circus which has visited this section of the State recently. The wonderful riding of Charles W. Fish makes the old circus-gazers shout with enthusiasm, and made those unfamiliar with circus performances turn pale with fright, while the other performers were not at all behind the times; and altogether the show gave perfect satisfaction."

A Peculiar Robbery. Last Wednesday night, four panes of glass were broken out of a window in the express office at this place, and two trunks, one the property of Capt. Glazier, and the other belonging to J. M. Kingley, were taken therefrom. The captain's trunk contained tickets, books, etc., while the other contained nothing but apples and nuts. The trunks were found in the woods near by the following morning, the contents scattered promiscuously about. It must have been quite a sell on burglars. There were numerous valuable packages in the office at the time, and with convenient reach, but for some unaccountable reason these were all left undisturbed. Further mention of this affair may be found in another column.

A PLEASANT TRIP OVER THE NORTHERN PACIFIC.

The Country, the Sights, the Prospects, and a General Prospectus of What is and What May be.

One week ago last Monday evening the quill driver of this great family journal, accepting the kind invitation of Mr. A. E. Taylor and others, who were about to make a trip over the road, donated the ordinary picnic ballad and a string of contentment and merriment to the party, the pay-car and observation car (No. 401) having been secured for the occasion. On the train we found Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Taylor, Mrs. E. T. Williams, with her son and daughter, Gen. Geo. C. Smith, principal of the Madison schools, at St. Paul, Mr. S. D. Buck, of Peoria, Illinois, M. L. Vining, from the postmaster's office, and who, by the way is one of the best fellows that ever drew hold on a prairie dog, or other small game. Mr. W. M. Paine, of Minneapolis, Mrs. E. W. Shaw, of Newport, Maine, Charlie and Lena Taylor. The writer counting himself competent to take up room enough for two, swelled the combination to about fourteen. Now, Vining being somewhat of a constitutionally nondescript disposition, after depositing his carpet-bag on a seat, and his hat on the rack, wandered almost about the depot; eventually trying to discover what a depot was. He probably had never seen one before, and was dead bent on taking it all in at one go. On returning to the car, he found valves which we have every reason in the world to believe was a borrowed one (however, we won't say anything about that) was missing, and had not thus far been heard from. Probably it never will. This rather served as a damper to start out with, but choking down his emotion with his gigantic game expectations, he was carefully loaded in and then but one thing seemed lacking, Vigorons with his picnic pants; but we concluded not to let Jones go this time. Speeding rapidly over the road we soon arrived at Fargo, where breakfast was served, when again the iron horse sped on toward Jamestown where Mr. A. E. Taylor left the party, business preventing his accompanying us through to the end of the track. At Mandan, however, we were joined by Mr. D. R. Taylor and daughter. D. R. is Superintendent of the Missouri Division, and an affable, jolly good fellow. After leaving Mandan several miles behind, our expectations relative to scenery were more than realized. The country, known as the Bad Lands, is a vast basin filled with the still horizontal and semi-indented sediment of an inland sea. The wear of the weather has left many deep scars, says an imminent writer, on the face of the country, and these lands present us with the mere ruins of things which were once substantial. The entire country is a treeless and desolate waste. The soil beneath the feet of the traveler covers the bones of the numerous populations which enjoyed existence in the earlier Tertiary epochs. The soil has the air of the domain of death and solitude. The view of the Bad Lands proper is a most impressive and awful exhibition. Here in the surface of the vast plain, is a sunken area of considerable proportions. From the bottom of this sunken plain rise domes, pinnacles and mountains, and massive walls, which persuade one that he is about to witness the movements of a titan to the him of a vast city. Quoting Dr. Evans, an eminent geologist, who almost "dwelt among the tombs" of the ancient world, as they lie scattered out from the Mississippi to the Pacific shores—"these rocky piles, in their ruinous succession, assume the appearance of massive artificial structures, decked out with all the accoutrements of terrace, arched doorway, and clustered shaft, pinnacle and finial, and tapering spire."

As one draws nearer this grand illusion reluctantly vanishes and all the imaginary architecture is resolved into piles of hard-packed clay and sand. These piles are washed by the vale to the height of fifty, one, two, and even three hundred feet, displaying along their verticle sides the varied courses of masonry which they are so broad and unpalatable. In water the wide and snow rush through the lanes and corridors of this city of the dead, it were, in odding which, while the withering grasses and the voiceless solitude, together with the relentless frost and never-tiring storm, make the place the true realization, comparatively, of bleakness and drear desolation. In summer the scorching sun literally takes the clays which have been kneaded by the frosts and thaws of spring, and the daring explorer of the score finds no tree or shrub to shelter him from the fond rays poured down from above, and reflected from the white walls which tower around him and the white floor which almost blisters his feet. Explorers say that the most impressive feature of the scene is the multitude of fossil bones which appear built into the massive masonry of this mimic architecture. The wearing and crumbling of the elements roll them out of their long resting places, and they lie strewn over the bottom of the valley. The traveler inevitably feels like one walking upon the floor of a long deserted and ruined vault. Of this scene, Dr. Mitchell, a great geologist, speaks of the curial death has held there, and the deserted scene of his ghastly repast and the long ages that have gilded by slabs these flesh-covered bones were slain and gathered to the charnel-house scarcely a form familiar to the anatomist reveals itself. Here are, indeed, the forms of turtles, large and small, with all the sutures of their protective carapaces distinctly preserved; but, though turtles, they are unknown species, and some attain a size which, in their present condition, must weigh nearly a ton. Here lie the bones of rhinoceroses, and deer, and the canines of a hog. It evidently belonged to a race which lived both on flesh and vegetables, and yet chewed the cud like our domesticated grazers. This has been named Oreodon. One of the most wonderful of the beings tombod here is the Titanotherium, first discovered by Dr. Prout, of St. Louis. It somewhat resembles a human being, but it is more heavily in its proportions. One of the jaws seen by Dr. Evans had a length of five feet along the crown of the teeth, and the skeleton of another individual was eight feet and a half long in length. The ribs were discovered in this ancient cemetery, it is remarkable that but one carnivorous quadruped has been noticed. The fauna of the period was evidently characterized by the presence of pachyderms and ruminants, and this in the same age when Europe was populated by a large admixture of the higher carnivora.

He says this valley of death has the appearance of a battlefield in the wide extended plain. The suggestion is so natural that one almost irresistibly regards it as a vast sunken grave, where the slain of geological conviction have been gathered together and desolately entombed, and earth has at last settled down upon their crumbling remains. A better judgment, however, discovers the valley to be the work of excavating waters. Gigantic as indeed novel sight presented itself to our view. A town of perhaps six or eight hundred inhabitants almost wholly under tent roofs, not more than three or four permanent buildings as yet having been erected. The town is made up of a post-office, two or three stores, a hotel or two, and the balance saloons, gambling houses and houses of assignation. After a hearty supper at the Grand Pacific Hotel, which is kept by a Mr. McKee, formerly of Brainerd, we turned in for the second night on the road, having passed the night before at Mandan.

In the morning, the male proprietor of the outfit boarded a construction train, and rode to Iron Butte, the present terminus of the track, or nearly so. A good portion of the day was passed in specimen hunting and shooting prairie dogs, and other amusements. Mr. Vining, by the way, is a good shot when it comes to prairie dogs. We didn't intend to mention his experience in shooting with a Winchester rifle at 20 yards some five or six times, when a second canine popped up from the burrow, and seated himself immediately beside his companion, evidently thinking that the safest place in the vicinity was to have a similar story at his relative to two birds on a telegraph wire, but little credence should be given to this report. Vining is a good shot, we expect. He can shoot a gun just as easily as we. We can shoot a gun. After a day's tour about Glendive and vicinity, gathering specimens from the buttes, and from the banks of the Yellowstone, the party reluctantly started on the return trip, remaining the first night in Blainmarck. A great deal of fine country may be seen along the line between Blainmarck and Fargo. The grasshoppers are doing very little damage. They were noticed first about Tower City, Situation and Caswellton. On the accommodation of Mr. A. E. Taylor, who was our serious misfortune to lose a brain new hat, which was wrecked from the line of the N. P. R. by a furious gale of wind, as we were passing from one coach to another, this leaves us in a somewhat precarious situation as we had saved up our extra money to attend the first circuit that came to town, and now that it is coming, it is somewhat embarrassing, to say the least, to be obliged to choose between a new hat or a ticket to the show. However, if the difficulty may yet be dissolved. As it is, we shall trust in Providence and Burr Robbins' ticket agent, and see which way the wind blows. Various species of game were observed from the train, such as black-tailed deer, antelope, mountain sheep, wild ducks, geese, mullard, brant, etc., the feathered birds being almost numberless. Our excellent marksmanship might have been the means of securing considerable game, but lack of a culinary assistant at home prevented our making the attempt, and we know that such high living would be somewhat deleterious to the system of the junior proprietor of the Titanium, whom we have every reason to believe is subsisting upon cucumbers and cracked wheat, judging from various points of view, and the fact that subscriptions are coming in so slow.

We had intended mentioning in particular the various points along the line, but lack of space forbids, owing to much being taken up with comments on the Bad Lands. However, we hope, at no very far distant day, to take another trip over the road, with the sole intention of procuring a general idea of such places as Fargo, Blainmarck, Jamestown, Valley City, Mandan, Glendive, et al. At present suffice it to say that the golden Northwest from St. Paul to the end of the Northern track, a country of which a nation may well be proud. Its rapid growth must indicate a great future, and we are rapidly speeding onward to that illustrious goal, at which we may stand as a criterion and without rival in the known world. Many who know nothing of the northwestern country, only from hearsay, can not see the adequate corroboration of the reality of these assertions. It requires personal observation to take it all in.

Sunday morning at 1:30 the crew sadly arrived in Brainerd, all satisfied that they had never passed a more enjoyable season in their lives. However, before leaving the train, in consideration of the exceeding kind accommodations and drives from the hands of Messrs. A. E. and D. R. Taylor, the undersigned have been enabled to make a pleasure trip from the line of the N. P. R. to the end of the track, with extraordinary courtesies extended throughout the entire journey, therefore, be it so.

Resolved, That as a unit we tender our heartfelt thanks to those two gentlemen for their kind interest manifested in our behalf, and the courtesies extended at their disposal.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be published in the Brainerd Express.
