A GAME OF GRAB.

THE DEMOCRATS TAKE THE ADVANTAGE OF TEMPORARY MAJORITY AND ELECT BAYARD PRESIDENT PRO TEM OF THE SENATE.

Republicans Will Show the Democrats that Two Can Play at Grab.

Republicans Will Unite to Elect David Davis or if Possible Senator Anthony Their Caucus Nominee.

The Senate.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The senate proceedings today were totally devoid of interest. Quite a crowd was attracted to the chamber in anticipation of a struggle over the election of a secretary, but the Democrats were dumb on the subject and moved an adjournment at the earliest possible moment. Senators Aldrich, Miller and Lapham, who were denied a vote in the election of a president pro tem, yesterday, were sworn in without objection this morning. The Democrats having attained their object by the election of Mr. Bayard, evidently thought it would be prudent to attempt to carry their dangerous program further, although there were several Bourbon who wanted to elect a secretary before admitting the new senators. Before Messrs. Miller and Lapham were sworn in Mr. McPherson presented to the senate a petition received by him from certain Democratic members of the New York legislature alleging reasons why those gentlemen were not entitled to seats in the senate. He did not present the petition with any desire to delay action upon the admission of the oath. Mr. Edmund said that he would not object to the presentation of the petition, and it was laid upon the table. Hereafter it may be referred to the committee on privileges and elections. A committee consisting of Senators Pendleton and Anthony were appointed to wait upon the president and inform him that the senate was organized and ready to proceed to business, after which a recess of an hour was taken. At the expiration of that time the senate reconvened, and the committee reported that the president had said that he would communicate with the senate in writing tomorrow. Mr. Edmund presented a resolution that the standing committees of the next session be continued for the present session, and that the president pro tem, if any reason there might exist. Mr. Harris promptly objected, and the resolution goes over until to-morrow under the rule. The senate then adjourned.

As the Democrats are in a decided quandary. They want the secretaryship and an equal representation on the committees, but are at a loss how to gratify their desires. The admission of the three new senators to-day, the majority of yesterday in a minority so far as the secretaryship is concerned. They have calculated upon the vote of David Davis, because at the last session he voted against the admission of Mr. Gorham; but with Mr. Davis's vote the senate will be tied. Mahone voting with the Republicans, and the Democrats cannot carry an affirmative measure. On the other hand without Mr. Davis's vote the Republicans cannot elect a secretary. The office should be filled. How to overcome this dilemma is the question. Many Democrats believe that the right to begin the fight on the secretaryship for the reason that several of the Republican senators would refuse under any circumstances to vote for Mr. Gorham; but there is no assurance that Mr. Gorham will not withdraw and a less objectionable candidate be nominated in his place, for whom Judge Davis would vote. The Independent senator is a thorn in the Democratic side. The Republicans have not yet finally decided to make him their candidate for the presidency of the senate, but there is every reason to believe that they will do so. He is eminently fitted for the place in all the qualifications which should be possessed by a president officer. In the possible contingency of the president's death he would be a much better representative of the will of the people, as recorded at the last election than Mr. Bayard. Against the latter nothing personally can be urged, but he is not of the party which the people chose to govern the country. If Mr. Davis is elected by the Republicans there is every reason to think he will vote for the Republican candidate for secretary, provided Mr. Gorham is withdrawn. The Republicans, if they secure the secretaryship, may consent to an equal division of the committees for the present session.

It cannot be definitely stated what will be the course pursued by the opposing parties in the senate with reference to the completion of the organization, for the reason that neither side has yet fixed upon a line of action. There is a deep conviction among Republican senators that every possible safeguard should be thrown about President Arthur. When Senator Bayard was elected president pro tem, it was impossible to do anything but file a protest, because the Democrats had the power. With the admission of the new senators the conditions have changed. The Republicans have at least as many votes as the other side, and it may be that they have practical majority, should Judge Davis continue his policy of refraining from voting over any way. There is a pretty well settled purpose to attempt to make him president pro tem, but the matter has not been made the subject of caucus action. It probably will be to-morrow forenoon, as the Republicans meet for consultation at that time. Some of the Republicans fear the Democrats may resort to dilatory motions to prevent a vote, but the best information to be obtained indicates that this approach is not well considered. Mr. Bayard himself is understood to hold that they cannot afford to assume the attitude of obstructionists when such a course might be traced to similar motives. At the caucus to-day it was decided that they should appear anxious to accelerate business and close the session this week if possible. This, of course, is incompatible with the idea of parliamentary tactics of a dilatory nature. It is understood that one feature of the situation with reference to the presidency is that a very considerable element of the Democratic side at heart did not care to accomplish the election of Bayard, and will do nothing to hinder his deposition. In fact, at least one of the Democrats said to-day that he could not be induced nor driven nor bound by the caucus to prevent the passage of a resolution to seat Judge Davis, except simply to vote against it, and if the other side had the power to elect him they could do so. He knew this construction would not extend him to go further than that for his party, and he would not do it. While it is impossible to say what will be done in anticipation of caucus action it seems probable that the Republicans will decide to take advantage of the divided councils believed to prevail in the Democratic ranks and offer the resolution, although some are known to favor postponement to the regular session. It is the opinion of many Democrats that Judge Davis will then be seated in the chair, which no doubt accords for the apathy of some of them upon the question. They generally believe that Judge Davis is the only man who Mr. Bayard's friends naturally resent his course. Mr. Bayard is reported to have remarked that that was not a big enough such for Mr. Davis to hide behind, referring to the expressed belief that while he would not vote to make himself president he would not vote at all. This Mr. Davis's friends claim is practically voting with the Republicans. It is explained significant that Judge Davis left the city this afternoon for Baltimore, and it is said will not return in time to be present at the session tomorrow. It may be that the Republicans will decide to adhere to the caucus nominee for president, Senator Anthony, since it is urged that if Judge Davis does not vote at all, Anthony can be elected as well as Davis.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Talk in the Republican caucus and by Republican senators outside of the caucus is not generally favorable to the proposition to elect Davis, or Illinois, as president of the senate and displace Bayard. In the first place the Republicans appreciate the fact that they would be compelled to elect Davis without any pledge from him as to how he would vote on party questions, and prominent Republicans senators say he would as likely vote with the Democrats as with Republicans on such questions. A Republican senator said this morning that he preferred Bayard as president to the caucus nominee, but he knew just what to expect from Bayard, that if president Arthur should die Bayard would naturally employ all powers of his office while acting as president to elect a Democratic president of the United States, and this would unite the Republican party. But Davis would probably adopt a middle or independent course which might weaken on the Republican party. This senator said the Republicans had no authoritative information as to whether Davis would accept this nomination or not, and that should they nominate him and he vote against himself and thus defeat the movement, it would be embarrassing. He expressed himself in favor of letting Bayard alone until the Republicans can elect one of their number.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—A Western Associated Press Agent called on Senator Davis to-night and asked him if he had been notified of the Republican purpose to nominate him. He replied that he had not, that he had heard nothing except what he had read in the newspapers, that a number of the Republican senators had approached him on the subject, not when any conversation about it at all. When asked what he would do if nominated in the senate, he declined to answer, saying he considered it delicate to talk about the matter; that he had no proper information that the Republicans thought of nominating him, and it would not be proper for him to decline something that would possibly never be offered him. He repeated that he would not discuss the subject. What he will do may not be known till the question is brought before the senate, if it ever is. A Democratic senator says that Davis declared to him that he would not accept the presidency from either party. Davis is keeping his own counsel very closely on this question, and it is not known whether he has not been formally notified of the action of the Republicans, and it is said the Republicans will take steps to ascertain definitely from him whether he would accept or not, before nominating him.

Excursion.

For Brainerd Tribune. Messrs. Editors:—Many of your intelligent readers may not know that Gull Lake is one of the most pleasant and picturesque of the many small lakes with which this part of Minnesota abounds. It was the good fortune of the writer to be one of a small party that made the last excursion of the season on the little steamer owned by Mr. Chase, (of the firm of Chase & Pillsbury lumber dealers) and named in honor of the Captain Naras, eldest daughter of Blanche.

A party of friends were spending a few days at the logging camp of the jolly lumbermen Jeff Saunders. Mrs. Saunders who is intending to spend the coming winter in Europe, by her pleasant manners and hospitality makes one forget that it is only a logging camp. Oct. 7th being the first anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Saunders' marriage, it was proposed to celebrate it with a boat ride before the "Blanche" was tied up for winter. Mr. Chase said: "You and John for it," John Sloan was engineer, and John's heart must have been hard indeed to have resisted two such pleaders as Mrs. Saunders and Mrs. J. C. Martin. At 3:30 p. m. we steamed out of White Lake and steered for Gull Lake with John at the engine and Mr. Saunders pilot. Mrs. Martin and Mrs. J. W. Frazer acted the flag and Mrs. Saunders and Mrs. Frazer attended to the white part which worked to a charm. Two miles brought us into big Gull Lake. The scenery is charming and varied on the bank, rising abrupt in many places and rocky standing out as if defying the wild dash of the waves as the wind hurled them against the shore. Off to the left the reef was plainly visible, looking almost white with the gull's gathered there. Landing at Gray's point, we had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Saunders' father who came on board to see his little daughter, baby Ella. Our time being limited, we had not the opportunity of seeing so much at this point as desired, but were well pleased with what we saw. Long Lake is connected at this place with Gull by a small stream across a narrow strip of land. This return trip was much the same as going out, arriving at camp about midnight having rode about twenty miles. Too much cannot be said in praise of the crew, which consisted alone of engineer, as the rest of the crew had been dismissed for the season and Mr. Saunders had never taken the wheel before, but I presume knows every foot of those lakes if any man does. Some of the party had never been on any kind of water craft larger than a horse ferryboat across a small river. For real fun and a good time I must say it was the best I have ever had considering the circumstances and number of persons on board, and we say long may the "Blanche" wave.

MELISSA FOSTER.

Gray's Point, Minn., Oct. 11th 1881. The Minnesota Senatorship. WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Secretary Windom stated to the agent of the National Associated press today that he preferred the senatorship from Minnesota to the secretaryship of the treasury, and that the president was fully aware of the fact and had been requested to accept his resignation as soon as he could do so without inconveniencing himself. His resignation, however, was in no way contingent on his election to the senate. Windom said his seeming urgent desire to get out of the cabinet was by no means to be attributed to any lack of sympathy with the administration of President Arthur, with whom he had always been on the best terms. He further said he wished to correct the report that he intended to go to London to engage in the legislative election. He should do no such thing. He should remain in Washington as long as the president wished him to. In answer to a direct question, he said he did not suppose his successor would not be appointed immediately, and he could not say who it would be. According to the will of Minnesota, if Windom were chosen for the senate, he could not be elected for two weeks from to-morrow.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Senator Edgerton of Minnesota has written a letter to Secretary Windom, withdrawing from the contest, but the legislature in favor of the latter. Senator Edgerton has been troubled by the thought that the Democrats in their eagerness to break down the Republican majority, might raise a question about his right to stay in the senate after the Minnesota legislature has met. He consulted with Senator Edmunds to-day upon the subject. Senator Edmunds said that an unbroken line of precedents in the senate was in favor of all appointed senators holding their seats until the day the legislature would have power to elect. The Minnesota legislature cannot elect a senator until the second Tuesday of its session is reached. It would be also in accordance with precedents for Mr. Edgerton to hold his place until Mr. Windom, if re-elected, is sworn in as a senator. Secretary Windom will go soon to Minnesota. His resignation as secretary of the treasury has been accepted by President Arthur.

His resignation as secretary of the treasury has been accepted by President Arthur.

In Hot Water. WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Senator Mahone was denounced as a coward and a liar by Gen. Early of Virginia at a political meeting in Richmond last night, at least, so a report of the meeting in a Richmond paper, which Senator Morgan of Alabama read to a little group of senators this afternoon shows. Gen. Early and Mr. Mahone have had differences before which led to arrangements for a hostile meeting but the present senator from Virginia made an explanation which was deemed sufficient by Early. There is much speculation as to the outcome of the present affair. Mahone will have difficulty in resting quietly under Early's aspersions in Virginia, and to fight a duel would place him under a dark cloud in the senate. However, he is not offered to fight yet, and it is thought he will pocket the insult as best he can, and bide his time to get even with Early in another manner.

The Stalwarts. WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Folger's is the only name mentioned to-night in connection with the treasury. The president has so far appointed, without question, all persons recommended by Garfield's cabinet, and he has now in hand over a hundred names selected in the same way. He has not examined the credentials or recommendations of a single one of them. The Stalwarts think he has gone far enough, and an attempt is to be made at once to induce the president to give some scrutiny to those he has not yet sent in. Among them are some very pronounced anti-Grant men, whose intemperate expressions against Conkling and Arthur subsequent to Garfield's wounding are now to be placed before the president.
