N. V. Chamberlain, a temporarily insane man of Davenport, imagined that he was going to be hung, and when officers came to take him to an insane asylum, he shot himself fatally. Carr has been placed under arrest by order of the president. The cause is not definitely ascertained, but it is reported on good authority that it was on account of certain facts brought out at the recent trial of Indian scouts.

A general rising of artisans is expected in the northwest Balkan peninsula. The situation in southern Herzegovina is very grave. It is said a force of 1,000 insurgents have overpowered the military posts near New Sijgo.

Tull, second brother of the boy of Tunis, was arrested in his residence last evening by his brother. He is suspected of conspiracy against the boy. The arrest has caused a great sensation.

Much danger and damage is expected from the overflow of the high water in the Mississippi and Gov. McEnery of Louisiana has issued a proclamation for the repair and improvement of levees.

The Iowa State Horticultural society opened at Des Moines yesterday. The session was occupied by reports on orchard culture, and the display of California fruit was both uninteresting and astonishing.

During a ball fight at Malovera, near Havana, of Spanish, a part of a scaffold supporting seats gave way, and nearly 300 persons were precipitated into the stables. One person was killed and many injured.

Box Charles Stockman, an alleged Lutheran minister of Beckwith, is a candidate for a music business in addition to his clerical duties, and swindled the eastern firm for which he worked. He then pawned the communion set at a cheap-bonding house and stayed there until he was pounced. When he went to live on a poor parsonage. It is said that twenty of the most influential democrat newspaper in Indiana are strongly in favor of woman suffrage and will bolt the state ticket if the Convention takes a stand against the proposed amendment to the Constitution. Woman suffrage is very popular in the state, and it is confidently expected that it will win. The success of a prohibition amendment to the constitution is more doubtful, at least until the women begin to vote.

It is estimated that the railroads took in $5,000,000 last year for transportation to their various destinations. The 140,000 immigrants who landed at Castle Garden. There has been a falling off in the number of Russians arriving, and the immigration fever does not seem to have reached Spain and Italy yet, at least the Spaniards and Italians do not come to this country, probably preferring lands further south where their languages are more commonly spoken, and the climate more to their taste.

DISASTERS.

The curious tendency of disasters to occur in groups has been again strikingly illustrated by the swift succession of four startling railroad accidents upon as many consecutive days. The Spayten Duvall horror on Friday had not been fully comprehended by the public mind before it was followed by the La Crosse bridge accident on Saturday; the Syracuse casualty on Sunday, and finally by the nearer and more startling disaster to the Flying Dutchman train on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road at Lansing, Wis., yesterday. Remembering this people will be inclined to tremble for what to-day may bring forth. Yesterday's disaster falls far short in reality of the shocking reports that came flying to St. Paul early last night. Instead of 26 dead, the whole number of injured will hardly reach twenty-five, and only two persons, an unknown man and a child, were killed outright. Two or three more are so seriously injured, however, that they are likely to die. The disaster was of the sort technically called derailment, with sensational features. Two cars, were thrown from the track by a broken wheel and rolled down a twenty-foot embankment, causing a crushing more or less all the occupants. The smoking car took fire, but the speedy extrication of the passengers from the ruins prevented a repetition of the Spayten-Duvall calamity. The disaster is described in several separate dispatches to the Pioneer Press. Those received up to 2 o'clock give barely more than the outline of the incidents and the names of the injured. Though the train was that which left St. Paul for St. Louis yesterday morning, only one person certainly identified as a Minnesotan was among the injured. Had it occurred during the traveling season, it would have probably carried mourning to many Minnesota families. The earlier dispatches throw little light upon the cause of the broken wheels, but it may be supposed the train could have had something to do with. There seems to be no evidence of carelessness on the part of the train officials. Flying Dutchman trains were in operation in the city of St. Paul, and it is a not very safe road was a matter of some comment by travelers last summer, but it is gratifying to know that circumstances, disaster was caused by inadequate or control.—P.
