

Brainerd Dispatch

Issued every Thursday except on Brainerd, Minn. a $1.50 per year in ADVANCE. M. H. Ingessell, Editor and Proprietor. F. W. Walsland, Business Manager. OFFICIAL PAPER OF CROW WING COUNTY, MINNESOTA.

POPULATION OF BRAINERD 12,000.

Texts have one ranch larger by 25,000 acres than Rhode Island.

The New York Woman's Medical college graduated nine doctors Thursday.

U. S. Grant, Jr.'s Belmont coal mine at Chattanooga, is hopelessly inoperative.

Hiram Sibley of Rochester has given $45,000 to the Cornell mechanical school.

The Massachusetts legislature voted to raise salaries from $500 to $750, but the senate killed the bill.

Pete McCoy, who whipped Dick McDonald in a thirty-one round fight on May 18th, at Butte, Mead, is back in New York.

Maria Rigme, a Wilmington, Del., Italian, was hit by McCullough, the New York slinger, the other night, and died of a skull fracture.

Samuel M. Shoemaker, one of the most prominent business men of Baltimore, and a director of the Adams Express company, is dead.

The body of Amelia Krutz, sixteen years old, was attached in Philadelphia, because her father was too poor to pay costs in an assault and battery case.

The stamping and loud neighing of twelve horses in a stable next to a saw factory in Brooklyn, gave the first alarm of a $50,000 fire Thursday.

Abraham Jackson, a leary Boston ferry, sentenced in 1871 to ten years in prison, was let out last week, "good time" having shortened his term. He is seventy and will come West.

The Northern Pacific Conference composed of delegates from the Congregational churches of Northern Minnesota, will meet at Duluth, June 17th, and continue in session two days. The exercises will consist of reports from the churches, papers on important topics and discussions, and an interesting and profitable meeting is anticipated.

The State farmers alliance convention is called to meet at Minnetonka on June 10th. This is the beginning of an extensive movement on the part of the farmers of the State, looking to organization for common protection.

Miss Becky Jones, the Hammersmith will witness, announces to her friends in London, that she is about to be going out of jail to a wedding June 9, and that Deputy Warden Phil Kieran is going with her.

John Twigg is on trial at Raleigh, N. C. for the murder of John McCall twenty-two years ago. He was captured last fall after an escape of twenty-one years. He is now an old man, and has since the war been living quietly in Tennessee.

Emo's servant maid who waits at the door is making a reputation. She is a witty Irish lass, wears a Swiss mullin dress, a French cap, and frames herself in the bay window, while she shines saucy accents at everybody who rings the bell.

As was to be expected, London papers are again harping on the old story that America is responsible for all dynamite outrages, and are calling for the arrest of the blackguard Bessie. So far as Bessie is generally concerned, there are probably few persons in the United States who would not be delighted if some legal way could be found to extinguish him finally and forever. Still, there is something to be specifically proved against him. The whole detective force of the British government has been unable to lay any over set at his door, and the only way to carry him would be out of his own mouth. If England can show any direct connection with any of the dynamite outrages she will be in a better position to demand action on the part of this government.

Devor's Annual Fish Story.

We have frequently stated in this paper that a "monster of the deep" of some description inhabited Detroit Lake, and have spoken of him as the bass serpent, but it is now conceded that the monster which has caused so much excitement at different times is simply an able-bodied and full-fledged California salmon, and that there is not one, but a number of them in Detroit Lake. During the past three weeks they have been frequently by different parties, and are said to be about six feet long, and to weigh in the neighborhood of one hundred pounds. Capt. Day, authorities us to announce that he makes a standing offer of $35 to the first person who can catch or shoot one of the diving salmon, and deliver it to him at the store. Now boys, get out your big hooks and strong lines. Detroit Record.

The Minimum Locomotive.

Following are some points about the little locomotive built at Oil City, Pa., being but eight inches long and weighing but a pound and a half. Three years, counting ten hours as a day's labor, have been devoted to its construction. There are 885 screws in the engine. The steam-gauge is but one-quarter of an inch in diameter, the driving wheels are but one drop of water (grey stroke); the headlight is only one-half an inch in width, seven-eighths of an inch high, and three-eighths of an inch long. The space in the lamp is small, the light was almost impossible to get enough oxygen in it to support the combustion. The fire is kindled by using a gill of alcohol, which runs the engine for half an hour. The boiler is one inch in diameter, the boiler is six-eighths of an inch long; the reverse lever is one inch long arranged with a thumb-screw and click; the connecting rods are eight of an inch wide and one inch long; the smoke stack is five inches high and 5-16 of an inch in diameter; the steam-dome 9-16 of an inch in diameter; the fly-wheels are 1 1/2 inches in diameter; the front truck-wheels half an inch, and those of the tender the same size. The tender is but 2 1/2 inches long, 2 inches wide, and 2 inches high. The metal used in its construction are brass, solid iron, gold, and steel.

Poor Vanderbill.

Liverpool Record. The partition of Vanderbill's wealth, which have lately been given by the daily papers, are extremely interesting. In January, 1883, he told an intimate friend who dined with him one day that he was worth $19,000,000. "I believe I am," said Mr. Vanderbill, "the richest man in the world. In England, the duke of Westminster is said to be worth $30,000,000, and it is mostly in land and houses. It is not worth his 2 per cent. A year from now I shall be worth more than $20,000,000, and will have an income equal to 6 per cent on the amount." Vanderbill can take life comparatively easy on an income of $19,000,000 a year, and watch his wealth pile up without any effort of his. From his government bonds he draws $275,000 a year; from his railroad stocks and bonds, $794,300; or $10,549,046 from his investments alone. Thus every day they earn for him $28,334. Every hour sees him $1,180,539 richer; and every minute makes $19,877 added to his hoard. Beside this, he calculates to make $2,000,000 every year by lotteries and raffles. He knows all this information, which are impetuous people to do to prevent them from saying as rich a man? The best they can do is to play the unhappy millionaire. He cannot fancy he is in paradise when he is taking a three-year ride in a steamboat to New Brighton or making one of eighteen occupants in a third-class compartment of a new and dirty railway carriage bound for the Aintree race course. Poor fellow! He must always travel first-class, and before he is hungry, never wear a set of clothes or a pair of boots when enough to get food of them; and let him work as hard as he will, he cannot spend his money as fast as other people earn it for him. He cannot be happy as a lord "for his own sake." He has no fancy that you would not change places with him if you could. You little may fancy this, if, like the little Marchioness, when she was better positioned to demand action on the part of this government.

Too Many Children.

Two young women were talking a few days since, one of whom was married last fall, and the other was going to be married this summer. "One thing I would do, if I was in your place, before the engagement went any further," said the married one, "and that is to find out if your intended keeps a shot gun and likes to go shooting." "What has that to do with it?" asked the girl. "Well, don't marry a man that keeps dogs and guns, that is all, or you will never know where anything is. My husband is real good, but if he were to shoot me, he would go right into my bureau and take the first white cloth he finds. He tore off one leg of one of my under-vests to clean his rifle and the black powder spoiled it, and only the other day I found one of my silk stockings tied around the neck of his setter dog, because the dog had a sore throat, and I wouldn't be surprised any day to see my husband strap my bustle or keep skirl on for a game bag and go off shooting. O, it awful. He breaks his pup's retriever, my slipper, and he used my hat with feathers on, on the lawn, to learn a pup to come to a point. I don't want to marry any more hunters." The poor girl who was going to be married about concluded that there are too many chances in matrimony.—Puck's Sun.

Coeur D'Alene's Failure.

Times writes: "I have just returned from my exploration of the mines at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, and might as well have saved myself the trouble; for, owing to the high water, scarcely any of the claims located on either side of the creek have been worked, and none are in working order. Besides the high water, another reason causes enforced idleness; and this is that nine claims out of ten located on the creek have been 'jumped,' are in litigation, and before the lawsuits are settled none of the holders are likely to spend any labor or money on the property in litigation. The result is that I have seen and heard here, it is very doubtful if the work will pay the trouble, and prospects being very poor, and the indications are more favorable to the amount of money which will have to be expended to open the mines will exceed the power of small capitalists, and it can now be safely said that unless some wealthy company interested them in the Coeur d'Alene mines they will prove a failure. This conviction has forced itself upon everybody during the last week. Eagle City is emptying fast. Many people possessing the means to leave the camp have left it or are leaving. One by one the lodging houses, saloons, etc., are being closed, and the sheriff is busy giving notices to the debtors of the unfortunate. At the present moment is the most important and most dreaded officer in town. Some of the storekeepers who were wise enough to provide themselves with a limited stock are selling off or packing the goods up with the intention of locating some where else.

Servants of a Mormon Orphan.

"Why are you crying, my little boy?" "Cause dad's dead," answered the boy. "Two months ago. When did he die?" "Two months ago." Why it is a very long time; you ought not to be crying now; you must have been very fond of your father. "Well, so; can't say that I was; but you see he was the only one I ever had."

X. B. Hock, the Perham and Brockbridge banker who collapsed last year, has been indicted upon the charge of embezzlement by the grand jury of Otter Tail county.

Volume 1, No. 1, of the Battle Lake Review, Bronson Strain publisher, has been received. It is a seven column folio, and quite well filled with advertisements. Bron will give them a good paper, provided they give him encouragement.

The Tin Can's Mission.

Philadelphia Record: The empty tin can at last has a mission, and a profitable one at that. Empied of its contents of peaches or tomatoes, discarded and thrown out at the kitchen gate, it may soon be sent to the front door or find an honored place in the best room in the house. Thousands of these cans are gathered in Philadelphia every week and made into shining sheets and used to decorate or cover large traveling trunks and thus get a promotion from the backstreet to the boulevard. On the outskirts of the city, within a short time, a number of factories for the conversion of these old buffed and battered cans and other tin refuse from our households have sprung up, and the business is a growing one. One of considerable size is on Myramonting avenue, below Millin street, where a large force of men are kept busy day and night. The cans are collected in various ways, but principally from the city ash heaps and hotels and large boarding houses. The factory, the soiled cans seem to be subjected to an intense heat in such a way that the solder is allowed to run into a receptacle, and is carefully saved and sold, the profit from this source alone amounting to the expense of gathering and handling of the cans. The tops and bottoms of the cans are melted and turned into window-sash weights. The labels on the tin plates are easily taken off, after having been thoroughly soaked in water and the plates themselves rolled out flat by machinery. The inside of the plates are not much affected by the outside of the can they present a clean surface and make excellent covers for trunks, the seams being hidden by the trunk braces, either of wood or sheet iron. Other uses are also made of the tin plates, and there is considerable profit in the business. The process is quite simple, and very little capital is required. One concern in this city rolled out 20,000 of these plates in less than two months, and the industry promises to be largely developed both here and elsewhere.
