The Fergus Falls Journal very naturally opposes the division of Otter Tail county. This county is four times as large as any county south of it in the state and the Journal should not kick if the people desire to have two or even three counties carved out of its borders. The county is entirely too large.

Al Smith was killed by his brother Frank in a Miles City bagnio. The shot was intended for one of the inmates. The keeper of the house took laudanum and died. The brothers were skating rink stars, their father a wealthy cattle man, and they were having a big spree with money sent by their mother as a Christmas present.

Canada's Big Guns.

The Canadian Pacific railway has been notified by the imperial government that twelve eighty-ton guns for the defense of Victoria, B. C., are now being constructed at the Woolwich arsenal and that they will be ready for shipment and transportation over the road in April next. Drawings for special cars requisite for this conveyance have been sent out, and the cars are now being built by the company. It is also said that large consignments of war material will arrive in the same ship which brings the guns.

A Snowball Battle.

In January, 1864, while Confederate troops were in winter quarters at Dalton, Ga., there came a big snow storm and 20,000 soldiers engaged in a regularly organized snowballing. The Georgia and South Carolina took one side of a small stream and the Tennesseans the other. The Tennesseans formed a line of battle, their drums beating, bugles blowing, colors flying and officers mounted. Every soldier had a knapsack full of snow balls. The Georgians formed and prepared to make the attack by crossing the branch. There were 10,000 men on each side, and the scene was very imposing. As soon as the Georgians crossed the stream they met a terrible fusillade from the Tennesseans, who were at home in the snow. The commander of the Tennesseans was captured, but a bold dash was made by the Tennesseeans and he was rescued. The Georgians and South Carolinas, being unused to the snow, were at a great disadvantage, and were forced back across the branch. As the Tennesseans crossed the branch they wet their snowballs, and the next volley fired at the Georgia and South Carolina boys was terrible in effect. Passing on, the Tennesseans captured the quarters and proceeded to loot the whole shebang, carrying off rations, tobacco, pipes, and everything else that did not belong to the government.

Does It Pay.

Three-fourths of our people are troubled with Dyspepsia or Liver Complaint in some form or other, which by nature of the disease has a depressing influence on the mind or body, preventing them from thinking or acting clearly in any matter of importance. Indigestion coming up of food after eating, dyspepsia, sick-headache, acidity of the stomach or sinking feeling which the whole action of our system depends) are speedily and effectually overcome by the use of Green's August Flower. The most stubborn cases have yielded to its influence, as thousands of letters received will testify. The immense sale of this medicine is another guarantee of its merits, (over a million and a half bottles sold last year.) So we ask, will it pay you to suffer from any of the above diseases when you can have immediate relief in the August Flower. Three doses will prove its worth. It is sold by all druggists and general dealers in all parts of the world.

Give the Devil his Due.

The DISPATCH last week published an article from the pen of Capt. Willard Glazier in regard to the head waters of the Mississippi river and the Journal of this city seems to have taken the matter to heart and will not be comforted. As far as we are personally concerned we do not care whether Capt. Glazier discovered (?) this fact or not, but we are cognizant of the fact that he has "stirred up the animals" to say the least. The Journal states that in 1872 the fact was known and published that Itasta lake was not the headwaters of the Mississippi river. Now, why in the name of common sense was the erroneous idea allowed to remain for ten years, and then to be changed by someone else besides the man who did actually, as the Journal states, deserve the credit! The DISPATCH does not claim and has not claimed that Glazier discovered this lake, but that he did bring out the fact to the people in such a shape, and so forcibly, that nearly everybody now knows there is another lake beyond Itasca, and that it is connected to it by a small stream. Even the Journal editor, by his own statement never heard but what Itasca was the source until this Glazier controversy came up, but in his article he claimed it was known years before Glazier saw Itasca. For the sake of consistency we will ask the Journal man how this matter could have been "known years ago" and he still claim that Itasca is the headwaters. We may be insane, but we are not so bigoted as to refuse to give the man what credit is due him. Most any man will give the devil his due, but in this instance Mr. Stivers seems to be disposed to walk on Mr. Glazier's collar, to use a slang expression, just because it is the fashion for the newspapers to be little that gentleman. If we admit that Glazier was guilty of plagiarism, and that S. H. Relf, W. E. Seelye and ten thousand other white men saw this lake which is the headwaters, and that, as Prof. Wilson states, he never heard of a school where it was taught otherwise than that Itasca was the source, and all the other evidence produced by the Journal, is it not to Glazier's credit that through his efforts the fact has been brought out and discussed and recognized and placed on the maps which are being published by the largest map houses in the world! We are just as certain as anybody that Glazier was not the first white man to see this little lake, and we desire the Journal and the public to understand that we do not claim he is a second Columbus, but we do believe in giving him credit for what he has done.

And now a word as to the claims of this lake to be the source. Geographers have made it a rule to consider the remotest waters to which a stream is traceable as its source, and going by this rule the so-called Elk Lake is undoubtedly the source of the Mississippi, for according to Mr. Chambers and other explorers quoted by the Journal, the two lakes are connected by a stream, and Itasca, instead of being the source, is but a widening of the stream as is Lake Winnebigoshish, Cass Lake and Lake Bemidji.

"Kit Warren."

This celebrated humorist, in a well written article in a recent number of the Sunny South, published in Atlanta, Ga., says:

Everywhere I go I hear of unadvertised and remarkable cures effected by "Swift's Specific,' and this is compelled to be the experience of every man who travels and talks. For example, I was going in a buggy to town (Senoia) a few nights ago with Mr. John McKnight, when the conversation turned to the possibility of curing cancers.

"They can be cured," said he "I cured one—a genuine, well developed, long standing cancer—for a boy I've been well several years, and the former victim is stout and healthy."

"How did you cure it," I asked.

"I cured it with S. S. S."

"Did you inform Swift of the cure?"

"Why, no; what's the use? Swift knows his medicine will cure cancers."

This incident is one of the numberless prophecies that are daily predicting the future of Swift's Specific. I might go much further with this branch of the subject—might show the wonderful growth of the business—might show the expense in 1879 at $30,000 and in 1886 at $250,000. I might enlarge upon these and many other facts here I writing an advertisement, which I again assert I am not.

Rare Sport.

As tobogganing is now all the rage, the country over, and Brainerd in particular, the following lines in regard to its origin, etc., will be interesting:

"Tobogganing, while an institution of European as well as New World countries, is a recognized form of American sport. Its home and origin are Canadian, as it is in Canada and the vast expance of country adjoining it on the north that the toboggan is most extensively used, both as a means of transportation and of recreation. Appleton, in treating upon the word, says that the toboggan is a "sled without runners," made of a strip of some tough, fibrous and elastic wood, from one-eight inch to one quarter inch in thickness, and this withal gives a very comprehensive idea of the primative conveyance which in these modern times has been utilized by young American men and womanhood as means of rare exhilarating sport. The length of a toboggan varies in accordance with the number of people it is intended to carry, single flyers being from four to five feet in length, and the longest eight feet, although the rule for a racing flyer is that when standing upon end it shall exceed the height of the steerer by twelve inches, and may be from sixteen to twenty-four inches in breadth. It is clenched with short ribs of tough wood upon the upper side to give it increased strength, and along each end of these ribs just over the extreme edges of the toboggan are lashed the hand rails to which the load of the conveyance is strapped down, or to which its occupants cling as they dash over the slide. The fore end of the toboggan is steamed and bent backward like the dashboard of a sleigh. When used for coasting it is usually cushioned, the cushion being firmly strapped down to the side rails.

The toboggan dates back to an almost indefinite period in history, in that when the land of the Esquimaux first became known to American snow sleds, with dogs for motors to draw them, were used by the Northernmen in the transportation of their effects, their game, and the furs which they made a business of procuring. The Canadian Indians and the tribes occupying the far North west regions of the continent used them for the same purpose, and indeed it would be difficult to invent a conveyance more ingeniously adapted to the wants and customs of the people in these sections than is the toboggan. As a conveyance for sport or pastime the toboggan is of comparatively recent origin. Upon the hills which abound throughout Canada the Canadians took advantage of the natural slides offered, and within a season or two after the sport was first introduced in the vicinity of Quebec, Montreal, Toronto and other cities of the Dominion, it became immensely popular among Canadians throughout that entire country. The great difficulty of tobogganists, however, was in securing a slide of perfect grade and smoothness. The first attempts at the toboggan causes a peculiar condition of things, not unattended with danger, when it strikes a sudden depression or elevation during its rapid flight, and as a natural result of its elasticity it will throw its burden or occupants high into the air—unless the same be firmly attached to the hand rails —and this, too, with reckless disregard of result somewhat uncomfortable for the rider. These defects in a natural slide are called by Canadian cahots, and many are the laughable accidents as well as sore limbs and bruises that have resulted from them."

Neighborly Advice.

Last week the DISPATCH did not get to press until after twelve o'clock Thursday night. Every legal notice in each paper on that date is culled by this. Lawyers and others who placed those notices in that paper, had better look after them and have them reprinted.—Sauk Centre Tribune.

GEN. LOGAN DEAD.

The Distinguished Soldier and Statesman, Lies Cold in Death.

Surrounded by His Devoted Wife and Friends, He Peacefully Passed to the Great Beyond.

Gen. Logan suffers greatly from inflammatory rheumatism, and by the advice of physicians, will go to the Arkansas Hot Springs to recuperate.

All the business predictions for the New Year are very favorable, and some writers foresee a tidal wave of prosperity, such as has not been witnessed for years. There are no stormy petrels in the air at present.

The bones of a great animal were found recently at Brownsdale, Loyola county, Ohio. According to State Geologist Stone, the bones are one and a half times larger than those of Jumbo. The lungs are pronounced to be those of a mammoth. The skeleton is nearly complete.

Ex-Secretary of State Hamilton Fish of New York and his wife have just celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding. Although the celebration was domestic, the event was memorated in the life of one who has faithfully served the state was the occasion for the proffer of the congratulations of the people at large.

The New York Financial Record has compiled the railroad earnings for the month of November, and a very good showing is made. The compilation includes reports from eighty-five roads and the aggregate shows an increase over the earnings for the same month last year of more than $2,000,000, which is equivalent to nearly 7 per cent.

The secrecy enforced in the British camps, dockyards, arsenals, and government offices concerning the military and naval preparations which are known to be going on at high pressure, is one of the most ominous war signs of the times. There must be something more threatening known to the government than any authoritative news yet made public.

A curious movement in Northern Louisiana is the organization of anti-miscegenation societies, whose object is to prevent the intermarriage of whites and blacks. The method of those societies smacks of the old Ku-Klux Klan, as white men living with negro women are to be driven out of the parishes where they live, by force. Many colored men are members of the societies, and they are bitterly opposed to the alliances mentioned.

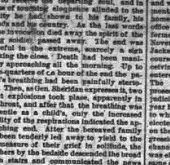
General Boulanger has made himself the hero of the French army by numerous reforms tending to the comfort of the soldiers, and by his improved methods of warfare. He is very properly considered the strongest man in the French Ministry, though some certain fears that his warlike proclivities may eventually lead France into serious trouble with other nations, especially Germany, which seems to be prepared and awaiting the onset.

Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island has introduced his old bill for refunding the 4 and 4 1-2 per cent. bonds in 2 1-2 per cents, payable at the same date as the old bonds, but not to be redeemed so long as higher rate bonds are outstanding, the Government paying to holders the present worth of the interest lost, computed at 4 per cent. compounded quarterly. The new bonds would be available as security for national bank notes to their full par value.

During the three months ending June first the marriages of 100,418 persons were registered in England and Wales, equal to an annual rate of 15.8 per 1,000 of the population, estimated by the Registrar General to be 28,000,000 of persons. This marriage rate was 0.2 per 1,000 below the mean rate in the corresponding quarters of the ten years 1876-85, and, with two exceptions, was lower than the rate recorded in the corresponding quarter of any year since the commencement of civil registration in 1837.

Judge Kelley, member of Congress from Philadelphia, popularly known as "Pig Iron Kelley," from his alleged domination in that interest, has just returned from a Southern tour, and cites the fact that at Asheville, N. C., cotton goods are being manufactured for the Chinese trade. "It has been demonstrated that that mill makes better cloth than can be found in England. The Chinese tasted it by a peculiar method. Not a yard of the product of that mill can be bought in this country. It is better adapted to send all it can make to China. This is only a beginning." Mr. Kelley was greatly impressed with the vast manufacturing resources of the South and manifestly admitted that Pennsylvania had strong competitors in that region.

The reported finding of large beds of red hematite iron ore in Cherokee, Lauderdale, and Clarke Counties, in Mississippi, excites a good deal of interest. The discovery was made by a negro, who had worked in the iron fields at Birmingham, Ala. It is said that the world's greatest industrial need to-day is a sufficient supply of red hematite iron ore free from silica and phosphorus for the manufacture of Bessemer steel. England and Belgium have long been importing it from Spain, where the mines are said to be in course of rapid exhaustion. Besides the German mines there are no other extensive deposits known in Europe. The supply of this ore heretofore known in the United States was not so large as could have been desired, the Birmingham ore being better suited for making steel by the basic process than by the Bessemer method. Just now, while the demand for red hematite is being loudly proclaimed, this reported discovery is most timely.



DEATH OF GEN. LOGAN.

HIS LAST HOURS.

WASHINGTON, Special Telegram, Dec. 26.—At three minutes of 3 o'clock to-day the soul of John A. Logan, patriot, soldier and senator, passed to his rest. The wife and children with whom life in his own was so closely knit were by his bedside, and received the last flickers of intelligent recognition which the failing brain was permitted to give. The chief of the army of the nation in whose service he had achieved such radiant deeds watched with a brother's love and sympathy his last sad fight; and his associates of the senate and house, impressive of rarity, awaited in reverent awe the end which all alike deplored. When Surgeon General Hamilton entered upon his allnight vigils by the sick man's side last night he stated confidently to one of Gen. Logan's brother senators that unless a reaction should set in within twenty-four hours he would have no hope of his patient's recovery. Throughout the long watches of the night the physician watched in vain for some indication of such reaction. The terrible pressure on the brain which was caused by the life blood away from the heart had reduced, at all through the night the condition remained unchanged except for the worse, the fever and restlessness increasing, and when Dr. Hamilton was relieved by Dr. Baxter shortly after 9 o'clock he abandoned all hope of recovery. His sighs during the night were shared by Gen. Beale, Gen. Grant's most intimate friend in the senate, and Representative Symes of Colorado. The lurking tendency to these complications, which had been present in a greater or less degree, had constantly increasing in severity during the fortnight's illness, and the end was hourly expect the worst. The racking pains which he suffered during the early day of the illness yielded to treatment, but left him in a weak and exhausted condition from which he never rallied. Yesterday at 1 o'clock he fever jumped with increasing violence until the hour of his death. After last midnight his pulse grew weaker and weaker, and at 4 o'clock this morning his condition was such as to cause great fear of his immediate death. After this he rallied somewhat, and at the consultation which was held at 9 o'clock this morning his pulse was found to be somewhat stronger, but his general condition was not such as to give hope of ultimate recovery. The physicians again met in consultation at 2 o'clock, and it became apparent that the patient was rapidly sinking and could not last a few hours. At 2 o'clock the general retired sufficiently to recognize his wife, who sat in the bedside night and day during his entire illness. He was able to him he looked up into her face, and all who were present saw that he recognized her. This was the last manifestation of consciousness. [illegible] which closed and sank again.

[illegible] a lethargic sleep, from which he never awoke. While the public has been aware for a week or more that Gen. Logan was confined to his room with rheumatism, the danger of his immediate friends were as late as yesterday afternoon unsuspicious of the serious character of the attack, and to the masses the announcement in this morning's papers that the senator was "very low" at his death's door came with a shock of sorrowful surprise.

All day long the card of sympathetic callers have occupied the space in front of Calumet place, while hundreds of policemen have utilized the hill upon which Gen. Logan mansion stands, to ask if it were true that all hope was gone. At 5 o'clock a consultation of all three physicians, Doctors N. S. Lincoln, Baxter and Hamilton was held, and then it was announced to the waiting people that the last faint flickers of intelligent recognition had left the patient beyond all hope of recovery.

Mrs. Logan attended the call session of congress in July, 1861, and immediately afterward left for her home in Illinois to the front. He was in the first battles of Bull Run, and returned at last to leave the field. Returning home, he raised a regiment, was raised troops, and Sept. 13 the Thirty-first regiment of Illinois infantry was organized with Logan commissioned as colonel. His first engagement in which he and his command took part was at Belmont, in Missouri, in November of the same year, when his ability as a commander and his dash and daring qualities foreshadowed the fact that he was to play a conspicuous part in the operations of the army. He was wounded in the battle of Belmont, where he received a severe wound, but refused to leave the field until next day. weeks afterward, on the evening of the last day of the year, he was made a brigadier. On March 3, 1862, he was made brigadier general, and participated in the siege of Corinth as commander of the Second brigade of the Second division of the right wing of the army, and for his gallant services was specially thanked by Gen. Sherman in his official report.

When the attempt to take Vicksburg began in the fall of 1862 Gen. Logan was in command of the Third division of the right wing of the Thirteenth corps. On the anniversary of the battle of Belmont, Nov. 31, 1862, the Seventh army corps was constituted, and on Jan. 11, 1863, Gen. Logan was assigned to the command of the division he had participated in the siege of Corinth as commander of the Second. He was in command of the division of the right wing of the army, and was specially thanked by Gen. Sherman in his official report.

A TRUST WELL KEPT.

The torrent of mutiny in India that had been gathering volume and force in secret for months had burst its barriers at last, and was sweeping along as though past all control. The gallant old Colonel Pratt had paraded his regiment in front of his bungalow, and, with his gray hair rippled by the warm breeze, had expressed to them his all-but-confidence that, though all the other Sepoys rose in rebellion, they would never rise. His men whom he always spoke of as "his children," greeted his speech with ringing cheers. Two hours later they had murdered the veteran, and, under their chosen leaders, were marching to Delhi, their head-quarters, with the glorious mutinous prize. He was one of a long line of Sepoys tied to a staked rope running forward from the muzzle of a shotted gun.

"Boden Singh" I said, "I cannot save you this time."

"Would you if you could?" he asked. And as I looked on the scarred face, and recollections of the past crowded upon me, I could only reply: "I don't think I would."

STORIES ABOUT LINCOLN.

His old Law Partner, William H. Herndon, Indulges in Reminiscences.

Chicago Tribune.

Lincoln's old law partner, William H. Herndon, was in the city for a few days. He was seen at the rooms of the "Lincoln Memorial League," entertaining several interested listeners with reminiscences of the great man during his career as an Illinois attorney.

"Yes," said Mr. Herndon, "I could always tell when Lincoln was ill in good humor or not. Sometimes he would not enter the office at 9 or half-past 9 in the morning. If everything was serene and lovely he would enter briskly; in a wooden chair, throw his feet over the office desk, and whistle loud. He would keep this up until dinner time, and very little work would be done throughout the forenoon. If, on the other hand, matters had not been as pleasant as they ought to be, would come into the office in a quiet, doubtrusive way and, after taking a seat, would proceed to whittle his brand-new pine crackers and cheese. Sometimes his whittlings would wear off before one or so, and hisgenial, sunshiny disposition reasserted itself. He was not a great student. He was never troubled a case lawyer. Given a case he would first familiarize himself with all the points at issue and then look up the reports containing similar adjudicated cases. He was sympathetic at all times and never bitter or abusive.

"We had an old way of keeping our accounts. We never kept any books, but when we were paid a fee would simply divide it. When Lincoln went out on the circuit making money he did just the same as when at home. If he received a $5 fee generally took out a fee, and wrapping a piece of paper around the bill, would hand to Boden Singh. Boden Singh was the "banker," or body servant, of the office who had been warned. I was the officer.

"Quick, Sahib!" she exclaimed, hastily, as I stood irresolute in the middle of the road. "They will see us in a minute. Hide in the chimney of the bungalow. And in a moment we were crouching there, side by side, while the mutineers came on, shouting with that steady military step that they had learned in years past from their English masters. They had learned some other things, too, from the same teachers, and the first few months they showed all too plainly that the use of instruction had not cast upon barren soil.

"Why did you put grease on the cartridges?" At that moment the life and death hanging about evenly in the balance, those words, from their evil inferences were ringing in my brain. Assuredly the pork grease on the cartridges had in a large degree hastened the mutiny. The cartridges had been served out to Bhoondoo and Musselman alshor the flesh of the pig, though the higher castes eat imported hams and bacon, and greased that they are used in the moment at all. The Sepoys had gone to biting the cartridges contentedly, and with not less that three months' pay

The Little Falls Transcript says it is rumored with apparently good authority, that a division is to take place in the Catholic church at that place, and that the Catholic Germans and others will build a new church to be presided over by a priest who can speak German, The Catholic congregation at that place is almost entirely French and German, and the former are in the majority, and a French priest has heretofore had charge of the parish. It is plain that either nationality would be better pleased to have a priest who speaks his tongue.

The accident which happened to A. A. Olson some three weeks ago resulted fatally on Saturday last, the funeral occurring on Monday from the residence of H. Rosenblatt, in whose employ Mr. Olson had been for the past eight years. His brother from Chicago was sent for and arrived in time to attend the funeral. We understand that the physicians in charge deemed it necessary to amputate his arm in order to save his life but Mr. Olson would not listen to it saying that he had rather die than to go through life with one arm. The gentleman who brought him to Brainerd from Mille Lacs on the day of the accident killed his horse by over driving.

Sheriff elect McLaren is in trouble. When Mr. McLaren offered his bond to the county commissioners last Friday for approval a protest was entered by P. Mertz on the grounds that he did not believe McLaren was a citizen of the United States, and action on the bond was deferred. Mr. McLaren stated that he thought he had taken out his papers at Flint, Michigan, but a telegram to Holland & McClenahan, attorneys, state that no papers were ever issued to a man by that name in that county. Mr. McLaren instead of going to Michigan went to St. Vincent near which place his parents reside immediately, and has not yet returned so we are unable to state what the outcome will be. If he is not able to qualify, which is not probable, it will devolve on the county commissioners to appoint a sheriff for the next twenty months. Sheriff Mertz will not serve even if McLaren is unsuccessful in finding his evidence that he is a citizen.

Give It to Ft. Ripley.

The Pioneer Press says that Representative Flynn, of Morrison county has a scheme on hand that he claims is a big one. He admits, to start with, that St. Paul stands a fair show of getting the new soldier's home at Como Park. "But" he argues, "if St. Paul don't get it, then we want all the assistance we can to have it located in Morrison county. Years ago the government abandoned Ft. Ripley in that county, but still retains its title to the 300 acres of land on which it stood. We want the government to cede the land to the state and then to locate the home there. "That's what I'm working for."

Gull River Crumbs.

Ed. Palmer shot a horse belonging to him last Friday which was afflicted with the glanders.

Mrs. Flint is getting along first rate, thanks to Dr. Rosser's skill.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Whipple gave a Christmas dinner and of course they were well patronized by their many friends, and a good time was the consequence.

When the Gull River people undertake to do anything they always do it in first class shape, and the fact was proven at the school house on Christmas eve. Two Christmas trees were loaded with presents and an interesting entertainment had been provided for the edification of young and old. The opening song by the school was nicely rendered, which was followed by recitations. Just before the distribution of the presents the audience was favored by a quartette by Mr. John Lucas, Leander Hallett and Misses Hill and Campbell, and to say it was fine is but feebly expressing it. Mr. Lucas, well John always sings well, but in this instance he just handed it down to the audience in great chunks. At the close of this song Santa Claus with his long white beard, fur cap and buffalo coat, appeared amid roars of laughter from the juveniles. It was unanimously voted that Seth Phillips makes a first class Santa Clause. Through the kindness of Mr. Horr every child in and around Gull River was made happy by receiving a nice sack of candy. The Yerxa Dam Question.

The location of the dam has not yet been satisfactorily settled. The city council at its special meeting Monday evening appointed a committee consisting of A. E. Taylor, W. A. Fleming and Dr. Hemstead to confer with the president of the water power and boom company to see if an agreement could be made between the city and the company to insure the construction of the dam at the old ferry, provided the city pays the additional expense for overlaw below the brickyard. An agreement was drawn up by City Attorney Fleming and the committee waited upon Mr. Kindred, Wednesday evening, at which time he told them it would be impossible to sign it, as the agreement that the company had offered was that the city give to them the title to the lands to be overflowed, and that he considered the written agreement unprecitable, stating his reasons at length. Material is being hauled to the upper site, and if we not miss our guess the works will be located there.

A New Idea.

In conversation with W. A. Fleming, superintendent of schools, a DISPATCH scribe extracted the following. In regard to the headwaters of the Mississippi:

"Strictly speaking, I can't see how the Mississippi river rises in any other than lake Winnibegnibish, the same as the St. Lawrence river rises in lake Ontario. But if it is the headwaters of the Mississippi they are after certainly the most remote body or stream of water to which it is traceable must be its headwaters, which is Elk Lake, the same as the St. Lawrence river has its headwaters with the St. Louis river. That the Mississippi river rises in Elk Lake, or that the St. Lawrence rises with the St. Louis, and the lakes through which these rivers pass are only spreadings out of the rivers themselves, are more speculations. A river rises where it begins to flow as a continuous, uninterrupted stream. As to who first discovered Elk lake nobody probably knows. I think Capt. Glazier is the first to bring the matter thoroughly before the public."

A Card of Thanks.

To the many friends and neighbors who so kindly aided and sympathized with us in our late sad bereavement. To the many loved ones who, by kind acts and words helped to cheer and comfort our dear one during her illness, and to all outside friends who extended to us their sympathy and spoke words to lighten our burden, we return our most heartfelt thanks.
