A New York doctor says there are millions of bacilli and bacteria streptococci, and advises people not to touch on their straps.

Handball games are credited with having such an accession to muscle will never, if not avoid it, go into the church and into the moral and musical exercises are concluded.

When Senator Mortimer said to consider presiding over the Senate the hardest work he ever did in his life, it is a task that made him nervous and tired.

Affairs of the Ames West wedding in Boston, the father of the happy groom, E. L. Ames, had settled the sum of $1,000,000 on his son as his share in the joyous occasion.

NATHANIEL PAGE, recently returned from Europe, says the biggest American, an Englishman estimates that James G. Blaine and Grover Cleveland.

OSCAR B. F. BICKER delivered an annual report to the directors on Woodell Phillips, and announced that this would be his last appearance on the lecture platform.

The roller skating craze is having its own twist, and some believe it will soon be again. It is one of the most interesting novelties in the section.

No one ever talks out loud when taking a walk upon Victoria avenue in response to a direct question from the majority. The guests answer among themselves in whispers.

The twenty-nine railroad presidents who met at Newport Monmouth, N. J., to discuss the question of railroad competition represented $3,000,000,000 of capital.

SIXTEEN WARMS, of Wyoming, is six feet tall, and his form is as straight as a Rocky mountain pine. He is a student of the art of talk and drowns well. He is forty-six years old.

Mr. Jefferson Davis is in New York giving the finishing touches to the life of his husband, which is nearly ready for publication. His main theme there until April and into the Colorado Springs.

The wealth of all the presidents was probably Washington, who received when he became chief executive $200,000 in New York, to the $500,000 in Washington, D. C., that would be the equivalent of a big fortune these days.

MISS NELLIE KELLY, of the Ohio state legislature, is a regular "first wife" operator in the Association of the same salary that is paid to first wife men. She takes 150,000 words in a night, and at 2:30 a. m. the gose here alone and unharmed.

The supply of natural gas at Pittsburg seems to be increasing so rapidly some of the large manufacturers are remodeling their furnaces for the purpose of resuming the use of coal. It is thought that coal will have to resume her old title of "Smoky."

In 1881 the number of women registered to vote in Boston was 20,000. In 1890 the registration list showed only 10,000 and in this year only 9,000 women have qualified to exercise the right of suffrage. In no State is the number of women so deficient as in this State.

The vote in Wisconsin shows that where every man voted for a ticket, he was to be checked by the ticket, the last names on the ticket suffer. The breaking counter in that year error here over 14,000 more votes than the men on the same ticket eight months before. The fact cuts no particles in the way that the vote is almost equally divided between the parties.

The Salvation army in New York has toned down its brass drum and ruffled conceit, and it is making counter, chiefly among women who never in this country have taken kindly to noise. The Salvation army is now doing its best to work in visiting the poor and sick families in the slums, and to a large extent abandoning the unique street melodies which formerly were the small boy with the tenorstruck.

The world is no longer of dirt for many years to come. The people are willing to give intelligent culture to the soil. English authors assert that the soil is not the arable land in the Argentine. Consideration has been entertained. Even the United States could find its present crops fit for the soil as well as the best from the small boy with the tenorstruck.

FRED ACTON'S TREASURY

The elegantly furnished drawing-room of a certain mansion was a familiar scene to the young man, whose good looks, bearing, broad nose, blue eyes, and high forehead, were as well known to the young woman as to the young man.

For five years, Fred Acton had been a student in the law, and he had just returned from a tour of duty in the army, where he had been honorably discharged.

At last, apparently unable to sit still any longer, he arose, and, walking to the window, stood tapping his foot on the glass, and watching the clouds in the chamonix-like crowd that passed.

And he thought to himself: "I have been waiting for you, Fred Acton, for five years, and you have not come back to me."

She was a medium height, of slender, delicate figure, and possessed a nameless grace of movement, which was not to be met with elsewhere.

Her beauty was of the true classic type, and she was in the prime of life, and she looked well for her years.

She had a small, elegant nose, and her eyes were of a deep, lustrous blue, and her hair was of a rich, dark brown.

She was dressed in a simple, elegant gown, and she looked well for her years, and she was in the prime of life.

She was a woman of high intelligence, and she was a woman of high character, and she was a woman of high position.

She was a woman of high intelligence, and she was a woman of high character, and she was a woman of high position.

She was a woman of high intelligence, and she was a woman of high character, and she was a woman of high position.

She was a woman of high intelligence, and she was a woman of high character, and she was a woman of high position.
