Origin of the Liberty Cap

Known as the Emblem of Freedom to the Boys of the Boston Empire.

The "Liberty cap" that has been sold for years on the heads of the children of liberty and which represents the national color of our country, was first made in the Philadelphia fair, since the time of the Boston Empire, when it was given as a sign of the nation's independence. The first Liberty cap was made in 1776, and it was the first Liberty cap to be made in America. It was made by a woman named Mrs. Elizabeth Hart, who lived in Philadelphia. She made it for her son, who was a member of the Continental Congress. The cap was made of white muslin and had a blue band with the words "CONSTITUTION" and "LIBERTY" on it. It was the first Liberty cap to be made in America, and it was the first Liberty cap to be made in Philadelphia.
