NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Items of Interest in Neighboring Towns Gleaned from Exchanges and from Special Correspondents.

The Inspector Willis, of Brainerd, was here yesterday, and we understand some of the tie-buyers were handled roughly.—Veranda Sun.

Little Falls had two more serious fires on Tuesday. The first at 4 a. m. was the Berke house, situated on the west side, which was total loss, the occupants barely escaping with their lives. The second was the fine residence of J. W. Berg on Third street, at 2:30 a. m., and although workmen were in the house when the blast started the origin of the fire is unknown, and the building was a total loss for lack of water.

St. Cloud is adding to her population three at a time. Last week Mrs. Geo. Trevelick, of that city, gave birth to three girls, all of whom are doing well. They have been named Louise, Veronice and Cecelia, and they weigh five and a half, six and a half and seven pounds respectively. The first has a piece of red ribbon tied about her tiny arm, the second has a piece of white ribbon, and the third a blue ribbon, and this is the way the fond father of the trio knows who is whom, says the Journal-Press.

The public are learning fast. Learning to appreciate merit. Learning to distinguish between claims and proof.

Home proof is the best proof.—Doan's Kidney Pills are endorsed by Brainerd people.

Read what Dr. Williams says: "Mrs. Moses Derocher, of 127 7th street south, says: 'I had not been feeling well all winter long. Low down in the small of my back there was a pain distressing, by spells becoming much worse and causing me much discomfort, to say the least. Early in the spring my husband bought me a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and I started taking them. Other medicine which I used failed to help me, but I can truthfully bear witness that Doan's Kidney Pills relieved my back entirely, and corrected a disorder of the kidneys which accompanied the back ache. Therefore, with my own experience with Doan's Kidney Pills, I certainly do not have any hesitancy in endorsing the claims made for them.'

THE RIGHTFUL HEIR

BY M. T. CALDWELL

CHAPTER I
The summer of 1790, when the belle France was endeavoring to get rid of her gilded and gilded ones, she had passed close to Lady Violante's long drive and had swept away a tree, which had just escaped the smothering folds, had reposed itself on the banks of the innocent stream.

Wheeling around abruptly, the good-bye dashed by the started train, and frantic with pain, fell to repeat to rein or call. With wonderful presence of mind Lady Violante kept her seat and held on firmly, while she was borne furiously along and only when the animal dashed away from the light was she aware of a precipitous cliff. She had struck for all she could do, and she was aware of a precipitous cliff. She had struck for all she could do, and she was aware of a precipitous cliff.

The sparkling waves of the life covered valley, like an emerald between two precipitous hills, closely wooded with chestnut trees, interspersed here and there with a birch or larch. Beyond him lay a smiling tract of cultivated land, showing in the distance a few orange and lemon with apple and cherry trees, and crowning a gentle slope was the stately tower of the noble proprietor, Count Beauvais. Still further across the river, the country rose the stately towers and high parapet walls of another chateau, and scattered here and there, here and there, the low walled dwellings of the peasants and dependents of these warm friends and close neighbors, Counts Beauvais and Germain.

But it was on another lofty dwelling on the dark eye of the solitary mountain, turned so eagerly, but upon the point directly between him and the chateau. The highway to it into the distance, from the hill and thence passing through a narrow and shaded gorge, from the hill and thence passing through a narrow and shaded gorge, from the hill and thence passing through a narrow and shaded gorge.

New Successful Pasture Operates The Department of the Farm—A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

By J. M. TROSBAND, an address to Pennsylvania farmers, said: It is possible to raise excellent calves on a farm. Take a large plot and fill it with early cut clover or timothy hay, cover it with water and soil for half an hour. The soil then is made very nutritious and is much relied by the calves. I have made a common practice of watering a little skim milk by pouring into it hot hay, and found it very satisfactory for calves. The clear tea may be improved by adding a few drops of molasses and also a small amount of steamed middlings. Two gallons of hay tea with the steamed middlings and molasses and ground oats, and clover hay for a few days would be a good start's ration for a calf two months old.

Calves dropped in spring should be turned out to pasture the first summer, as more uniform growth will be obtained. Feed the calves with hay after the heat and flies. If the calves are to be raised grown up, they should be kept in a good condition to make use of pasture in the fall, as they can be given more food than in the winter, and at six months old, however, they should be turned out to pasture. If they have a darkened horn or shed to which they are so get away from the horn before the cold begins to set in.

The second winter the yearling calves should be fed with good hay, corn and clover. They will be better off than the yearlings of the straw and corn fodder, but will not be so good a feed as the hay and clover. The second winter the yearling calves should be fed with good hay, corn and clover. They will be better off than the yearlings of the straw and corn fodder, but will not be so good a feed as the hay and clover.

A METALLIC MARVEL

EXTRAORDINARY GROWTH OF IRON PRODUCTION IN AMERICA

From Making 5 Per Cent of the World's Supply in 1881, We Made in 1924 25 Per Cent of the World's Supply

When the Hon. William D. Kelley took his seat for the first time in congress, 1881, we were making 5,156,166 gross tons of pig iron, as compared with 2,000,000 tons made in Great Britain. This was about 5 per cent of the total pig iron production for that year, England making 47 1/2 per cent. When the Hon. Kelley was elected to the Fourth Congressional District in Pennsylvania, we were making as much iron as Great Britain. Since then we have made more pig iron than the United Kingdom for last year a total of 11,774,384 gross tons, against a probable production by Great Britain of 4,500,000 tons. That is our contribution to the world's output of pig iron was probably less than 25 1/2 per cent, as against 34 1/2 per cent by England.

It is doubtful if any one man has done more to put this country in the front rank as an iron producer and in the whole world, than Judge Kelley. A professional in all things, he fully appreciated the fact that the rate of output of iron was the key to the success of the country. He was dependent on a low price of iron than on any other factor. And he knew that the only way to permanently reduce the price of iron was to increase the supply. He was not content with increasing the supply of iron, but he was also interested in the quality of the iron. He was not content with increasing the supply of iron, but he was also interested in the quality of the iron.

The Hon. Kelley was a professional in all things, he fully appreciated the fact that the rate of output of iron was the key to the success of the country. He was dependent on a low price of iron than on any other factor. And he knew that the only way to permanently reduce the price of iron was to increase the supply.

It is doubtful if any one man has done more to put this country in the front rank as an iron producer and in the whole world, than Judge Kelley. A professional in all things, he fully appreciated the fact that the rate of output of iron was the key to the success of the country.

AN HONEST PROPOSAL

A Washington dispatch asserts that the work of the Anglo-American commission is about completed, and the treaty will be drawn up by September immediately after the holidays. It is alleged to be a triumph of American diplomacy, but perhaps that depends on the point of view. It is alleged that it is based to suit interests, North Atlantic seaboard and the right to construct new ships in the harbor, the United States has secured what it wanted, but nothing is said of the most vital question of all—the Alaskan boundary, nor of the Canadian Pacific bonding privileges. The price paid is alleged to be small, the free entry of Canadian coal into American ports. Inasmuch as the benefits, so far as it goes, are all for the Atlantic states, while there is nothing for the coast in return, is a terrible blow to one of the greatest industries of this state.

The Dingley tariff had the effect of increasing the activity in our Washington mills. More men were put to work and the benefits were felt in every direction. In this connection it is made and we have come into competition with the Chinese mined coal of British Columbia. It will be a blow to our great industry solely for the benefit of the coast, and since we receive no return.

Every citizen of Washington should be proud to stand by the tariff. It is a protest against this action, and in the case there are the Washington representatives.

Not a Partisan Question. This is not a partisan nor a party question. It is a question of the national question—a question of the national question. It is a question of the national question—a question of the national question.

Let's Make Our Ships. Surely, if our ability to build ships as cheaply as they can be built elsewhere is likely to cause American shipbuilding to decline, it is a national question. It is a question of the national question—a question of the national question.

Always Results in Cheaps. A British trade journal says that the cost of producing creosote steel in the United States, which was about 87 1/2 cents in 1905, has risen to 1.10 cents. The fact is that which ought to impress on the iron trader that there is a fall in the price of creosote steel.

Commercial Reply. Uncle Sam excels in everything; that is, it is the reason why we prosper; and another reason is that there is an administration at Washington which protects and encourages him, and so we have the old world complaining bitterly of the "aggressive commercial energy" of the United States—Cullerton (Nob.) Era.

Electricity for Tonnage. A scheme for operating the trains of the Great Northern railway between Leavenworth and Skunkman, Wash., through the Cascade tunnel, upon its completion, is being talked of. Great Northern officials will confirm the report no further than to say that the scheme has been under consideration.

Marked Attention. "He attention to you have been marked, have they not?" said the young woman experienced friend. "Oh, yes, He has never taken the price off any of his presents."

WELCOMED THE ANNOUNCEMENT

"What is the plot thickens?" exclaimed the boy, as he strode across the stage. "Good!" responded a voice from the gallery. "It's pretty thin so far," Ohio State Journal.

William McCarty, Esq., Immigration Commissioner, Washington, D. C., in a letter to the Executive, U. S. A., in reporting the results of our trip to the Pacific coast, said that we had other large regions to visit, we could only spend a short time in the Pacific coast. We examined, however, the principal cultivated areas in the southern parts of the territory. The results of our trip to the Pacific coast, said that we had other large regions to visit, we could only spend a short time in the Pacific coast.
