When we opened it our competitors thought it would not last long, because our prices were so low. INSTITUTION OF LEARNING.

Prof. Lewis H. Vath, of Sank Centre, Decides to Open an Academy and Business College Here.

Brainerd is to have an academy and business college that will rank with the best institutions of the kind in the state, and the final arrangements for opening the same have been completed. Prof. Lewis H. Vath, proprietor of the Sank Centre academy and business college, an institution which has been in continuous successful operation since 1876 and with which the gentleman has been connected since 1881, after looking the field over carefully has come to the conclusion that Brainerd will support an institution of this kind, and will open an academy in Columbus block about Sept. 15. The gentleman asks no bonus, but expects a liberal patronage. Bookkeeping in all its branches will be taught, and includes instruction in common law, business arithmetic and practice, rapid calculation, and correspondence. The short hand course will include instruction in type-writing, legal and business forms, manifolding and all other branches necessary to equip one for a stenographer or reporter. Another course will be taught especially adapted to young people who do not desire either of the above but who desire to direct their attention to a more thorough knowledge of the practical line of instruction, and special attention will be given to this class. The school will be under the direct supervision of Prof. Vath, and prices will be made reasonable and within the reach of all. It is hoped those who intend availing themselves of this opportunity will arrange to start at the beginning of the term. Prof. Vath left for Sank Centre on Wednesday morning to arrange his business there and will return to Brainerd Sept. 10th to stay.

One of the features of the Labor day festivities will be the grand ball to be given at Gardner hall in the evening, Kelsey's orchestra having been engaged to furnish the music. An effort is being made to secure the Walker base ball team for a game of ball immediately after the parade which takes place at 9:30 a. m.
The stores in the city have been requested to close during the afternoon.

A Good Production.
The Fla-Webster's "A Broxy time" took the city by storm last Friday night and certainly was the best musical farce that has visited Brainerd during the past three years and the house was sold solid Friday night and on Saturday night the "Broxy" was repeated. It is difficult to say whose work was the best, the entire company being artists. J. W. and Mattie Smith deserve special mention and were exceedingly clever. Mr. Alfred, the musical director, has certainly a great future in store for himself. Manager McLaughlin should be given credit for bringing such attractions to our city. He has Fredrick Ward, Dunne & Ryely, My Friend from Leila and the Old Kentucky booked later. Next Thursday evening Lincoln J. Carter's "The Heart of Chicago," will be presented at Gardner opera house. Any of Mr. Carter's production always call out an immense audience.

One of the most delightful outings of the season was the house party given at the Gull Lake Club during the past week. The young people are back again as before and enthusiastic in their approval of Mrs. Fannie Smith and Mrs. Fred Farrar as chaperones, who certainly entered into the spirit of fun that pervaded everything from start to finish.

The weather was ideal and the time was gaily spent in singing, bathing, dancing, fishing, moonlight rides on the lake and frequent midnight ralls on the pastry. The fun reached the climax in the fancy dress ball held on Saturday night. Many of the costumes were unique and original. That of Clotilde McCullough as "My Cool Black Lady" and Elsie Smith as "Merry" and Clotilde McCullough as "Lady Babble" were especially fine. Misses Dr. Clark and Billie Laidlaw of St. Paul as "The Infants" were simply dreams of innocence and childlike trust. The fun was opened with a grand march which soon became a cake walk, the prize, a huge watermelon, was won by Misses Onole and Clotilde McCullough, that was enjoyed by all. At twelve o'clock sharp the dancing ceased, some hint that the watches were fixed, and a peaceful happy silence gradually crept over nature broken only at times as the crash of pottery in the pantry. The ball of some midnight prowler or the "oneal two" three! ready, turn! emphasized some playfully well filled bowl.

Considerable concern was experienced about a "cock" by a sound like distant thunder which shook the house considerably. Some suggested that it might be the approaching of a tornado and "Thoughtful Billy" Laidlaw even suggested that the Phillipses were attacking Elsie's place when some one of a more inquiring mind discovered that it was only Fred Farrar snoring. He was pugged and bound and at last laid with her snowy pinions and the festive mosquito with his kind and gentle ways brooded over it.

Those present were Mrs. Fannie E. Smith and Mrs. Fred Farrar, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Laidlaw of St. Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Westfall, Elsie Smith, Misses of Grand Forks, Misses Winnie Small, Mary Small, Jess Small, Clara Small, Onole and Clotilde McCullough, Elsie Smith, Ettilie Walker, Zama Hurgoyne, Mabel and David Dyer, Messrs. Clyde Hastings, "Bob" Blake, F. V. Weisberger, Geo. Gration, Earl Mallory, John Gougenon, Jr., James Murphy, Harold Smith, W. A. M. Johnson, Earl Benjamin and Chas. The Opportunity is Here, Backed by Brainerd Testimony.

Don't take our word for it.
Don't depend on a stranger's statement.
Read Brainerd endorsement.
Read the statement of Brainerd

And decide for yourself.

Here is one case of it:

H. J. Magdalen, of LEO, Ninth st. north, says: "For thirty years had more or less trouble with my kidneys. Some attacks held me up, during others my back ached so severely that I could not sleep at night nor work during the day. On many occasions I could not stand and talk to a man for two or three minutes without suffering with twinges across the small of my back which radiated towards the shoulders. As time passed by and the complaint became more pronounced difficulty with the kidney secretions set in.
As might be expected I tried everything when the attacks occurred, to check them but if I had met with any marked degree of success I never would have resorted to Doan's Kidney Pills. Finding suffering severely went to a drug store and got a box.
I expected the results would be stimular to those obtained by using other preparations. In twenty four hours I changed my mind. I noticed they were acting totally different to any thing hitherto tried, and encouraged I kept on with the treatment until I finished two boxes. Now I may have recurred but at the seasonal moment, and it is now some time since I stopped the treatment I have not a symptom of my old complaint. To anyone interested I will be only too pleased to give minute details and substantiate the above statement in a personal interview."

Chance to See Sheandeah.

The production of Bronson Howard's great drama of the late civil war, "Sheandeah," which Jacob Litt will present at the Grand Opera House, St. Paul, during the week of the State Fair, is the same which Mr. Litt used at the Broadway Theatre, New York City, last May, which was said at that time to be the handsomest production that had ever been given on the stage of a New York theatre. The great feature of the Litt production is the battle scene which comes at the end of the third act. It is so real that it becomes actual. The Union troops are in full retreat, driven back by the Confederates, the day seems lost. Suddenly in the distance are heard shouts: "Sheridan is coming!" In the cry, and a moment's delay is changed into victory. Squadron after squadron of cavalry and company after company of infantry dash across the stage, followed by the heavy artillery. It is a wonderful piece of stage mechanism and realistic to a degree. The company includes fifty horses and over two hundred people.

No need to fear sudden attacks of cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhea, summer complaint of any sort if you have Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry in the medicine chest.

SAD FATES OF FAMOUS HORSES.

The famous racer Albatross, known throughout the United States and out of the turf a few years ago as one of the most reliable winners to be seen in a season's running on the tracks, is being sold at a bargain sale in London today pulling a harness and illustrating the sad fate of this perfectly.

ing, and so much of his hair was profaned from mane and tail, that he was put in a cage to insure a little peace. When he died a magnificent colt was created in his memory. Moreover, Napoleon's famous white charger, spent his last days under equally happy conditions in England.

As a still worse fate was the lot of George Frederick, the winner of the Derby of 1874. Winning the Derby was at once the crown and end of his racing career, and after many vicissitudes he found himself some years later in the stable of a cab. The ultimate fate of this "blue-ribbon winner" was in the knacker's yard, where he was converted into a cab's meat. Another horse which descended from the proud plumed a horse ever occupied to the shafts of a cab was Geo. Bonaparte's black Arab, which, with its arched neck and proud carriage, so impressed the "brave general's" worshippers. Within a few years of his owner's death he was "going for hire" in the very street that had witnessed his triumph. Horses, too, like men, have their tragedies, and more than one famous racer has come to an untimely end. Blue Gown, a Derby winner of thirty years ago, was on his way to America to a new owner, when he bought him for $20,000, when he died on the voyage. Kingbird, a Derby favorite, was honored to death while traveling by rail to his headquarters. Kingbird's career ended with winning the Derby, in 1870. Fourteen years later he was sold for a small sum to an American sportsman, and the blue Gown, did not survive the voyage. Fitzroy was shot, a fate which Kingbird's racing career was ended by a cycling accident in the world. It is a standing fully seven feet high. It requires five men to operate it, one to direct, its course and eight to propel it. It is a fine, but it is a great piece of machinery, being capable of over thirty miles an hour. The first horse was built by the Boston Woven Hose company and has been run by the company upon the streets of Boston on several occasions. Its great size has attracted for it much attention. Its driving wheels are each seven feet in diameter and weigh in the neighborhood of 250 pounds. They are rubber-tired and fitted with ball-

A TRICYCLE BUILT FOR N.E.

Boston has just built the largest bearing to facilitate their smooth running. They are driven by chain gear, and are connected with a double shaft. Four sets of pedals connect with each shaft, the most striking is a row between the wheels.

On a level road one man could readily push it along from behind, but at least three would be necessary to move it by the pedals. But, however, have it so difficult even in fairly high gear.
