A Sketch of the Life of M. C. Russell, founder of the Brainerd Tribune. By the departure of M. C. Russell, Esq. from among us for his new home at Lake City, Minn., we are reminded that one by one our early settlers drop out from the ranks of those who laid the foundation of our young "City of Pines."

After this horrible massacre was over and the bloody war was ended, Mr. Russell, now a married man, removed with his family to Tennessee, and for some time was the local editor of the Nashville Daily Union and American. This he abandoned for a position of promise on the Russellville (Ky.) Herald, and with his family removed to Kentucky, where he was attacked by the chills and fever incident to those low lands, and after suffering very poor health for some time finally decided to return north, which he did, landing in Brainerd in November, 1871, his means nearly exhausted in battling disease. Here he struck the hotel biz in partnership with a brother he changed to meet, and built what is now the No. 1, calling it the "American House"; but three months sufficed to convince him that he "couldn't keep hotel," and he turned over his interest to his brother, and with a five cent nickel in his pocket he conceived and immediately entered upon the greatest project of his life, to date—that of founding the BRainerd TRIBUNE—the first newspaper on the line of the Northern Pacific railroad. To this project is Brainerd indebted to a great extent for her early notoriety and subsequent greatness, the Northern Pacific railroad would be less flourishing, its country more sparsely settled, and its extraordinary advantages and resources by far less known to the outside world had it not been for Bro. Russell's project—the BRainerd TRIBUNE. Go where you will, speak to whom you may of Brainerd and the Northern Pacific, and they know all about them, they "have read the BRainerd TRIBUNE." We have faith greater than a grain of mustard seed that in the near future, when the question of the grand success of the Northern Pacific scheme shall be a thing of the past; when its thousands of loggers, in the shape of branch lines have reached out and opened up its myriads of tributary valleys yet uninhabited and "flowing with milk and honey"; its rich mining districts yet undeveloped and teeming with gold, silver, iron, coal—in fact nearly every mineral known; its yawning canyons in the Yellowstone valley, as yet but partially explored, abundant with mammoth caves, geyser, burning mountains and natural wonders and curiosities of every nature, including Iceland, casting Italy in the shade, and calling in magnitude, grandeur and variety anything the known world produces, that skirt its line on either hand from Lake Superior to Puget Sound, holding out inducements to the farmer, stock raiser, fruit grower, gold miner, stock miner, curiosity seeker, tourist—in fact the whole world, with something for all when it has extended its connections into Russian America, thence flying through the turbulent Bearings and passing through Siberia and Russia to St. Petersburg, Paris, London, Madrid, Rome and Constantinople, and through China touching at Peking and Hong Kong to further India, Hindostan, the Holy Land, Arabia, Egypt and the countries of Africa, running through trains and trade from all the principal points in the Old World by our very doors; when all these things shall have come to pass—even though Bro. Russell and myself should be in tottering old age, or perchance "gathered unto our fathers," having died in full faith in the final consummation of "all the prophecies in this book contained," the BRainerd TRIBUNE will stand in the glory of its might, a living, thriving, shining, invincible, imperishable monument to the memory of its founder, M. C. Russell, and a result of the success of the object of its existence.

But to return to our "story." At that day Brainerd was a "shanty" town, its streets full of logs and brush, with a surging mass of men from all parts of the country (composed of many of the worst, and some of the best men in the world) as inhabitants, with dens of vice on every hand of every description, and the day as well as night made hideous by the brawl in the streets and infamous places of resort.

We remember well our first introduction to Bro. Russell; he came to our office to disclose to us his project—that of starting the Tribune and to solicit our subscription, saying that he was "a stranger in the place and scarcely knew one man from another, but as every one seemed to be a stranger in the town, and all strangers together, he didn't know as it made much difference where he commenced his canvass." Incredibly ran high as to the prospects of the project in the crowd present, and knowing grins were exchanged freely at Bro. R's expense, but as lines were fresh laid subscribed, being somewhat captivated by the earnest, sanguine and wital honest, candid appearance of the good looking stranger. The incident was soon forgotten amid the rush and excitement of the day, and was not again thought of until Sunday morning, February 6th, 1874, at the hour of the arrival of the mail, when on a table in the post office Bro. Russell unrolled his first edition of the BRainerd TRIBUNE—red-hot, new, full of life and a pretty sheet. The post office was crowded with men, and he would six hundred copies at ten cents each as fast as he could fold them and rake in the dimes. The first six numbers were printed entire at the St. Cloud Journal office, seventy miles distant, by stage; the "copy" being written up here and sent by mail, and the complete edition being returned by stage each Sunday morning.

At the end of this time he had saved enough to buy a small outfit of printing material, and thereafter he printed his paper at home, and by strict economy and hard work, as time rolled on, he added new material as he was able, until within a couple of years he had a fine newspaper and job printing office, costing nearly four thousand dollars. Finding his quarters a board shanty—too small for his growing business he removed his office to the second story of a fine building on Front street, which on Dec. 18, 1874, was burned to the ground, leaving him where he started, excepting that he was minus the five cent nickel. This was a severe blow to Bro. Russell, and his cherished project the BRainerd TRIBUNE, and doubtless cooled his ardor to a great extent, yet, though not a little abashed by what with one possessing less fortitude and experience would have been a signal defeat, he was not vanquished, but with an eye single to his one great aim he at once determined to raise the Tribune from its ashes, which he did with the aid of our citizens, purchasing a new office complete, largely on credit, and issuing the BRainerd TRIBUNE the next week on its regular publication day.

But the hard times grew harder, the heavy debt incurred in his purchases grew heavier from accrued interest, etc., and he found the load greater than he could carry, and in April last he decided to sell the Tribune, the present proprietor becoming the purchaser. After disposing of the Tribune, Bro. Russell, office to get his life of labor and adventure experienced by few of his age, he was called to the balance of his life in his domestic calling—that of journalist, with the Lake City Leader as his journal.

Although Bro. Russell can beat the fellow who started out in life without a cent, and after thirty years "labor didn't have a darned cent" yet, "with" owing to his misadventures and untoward circumstances generally, he leaves our "City of Pines" with but a little of this world's goods to show for the extraordinary labor he has bestowed and hardships he has undergone, and we sincerely hope that hereafter his labor may be attended with that success he deserves.

NORTHERN PACIFIC EXTENSION BILL. A private letter to one of our citizens from a friend at the Capital, conveys the unwelcome intelligence that the probabilities are strong that the bill extending the time for the Northern Pacific company to complete their road will be defeated in the lower house of Congress.

The writer gives as his reason for the prediction the fact that the Democrats in the Senate, when the bill was on its passage in that branch, voted solid against it, and that being true the probability is strong and quite reasonable that the Democratic House will defeat it. This would certainly be a very serious set back to the Northern Pacific and this section of country—in fact a territory equal to one-fourth of the Union looking to this road to open it to civilization would be very materially damaged by it, as it would check and probably stop entirely the tide of emigration thus fairly turned in this direction, which in any event could not be regained in two or three years.

The time under the present charter expires July 1, 1877, and the road must have an extension or forfeit its grant, the immediate result of which would be to defeat the present Montana project, leaving that Territory to accept its only alternative—the narrow gauge road offered by the Union Pacific—and to postpone indefinitely a resumption of construction, which would effectually place the hope of any aid from Montana forever beyond the reach of the Northern Pacific.

In fact, a breach occurring now at the very juncture of success would overthrow all present laid schemes, necessitate an entire change of base, and be largely detrimental, financially, to the company.

We trust, however, that these fears are not well grounded, and that the required time (eight years) will yet be granted.

CASS COUNTY DEVALUATION. In another column will be found the Report of the Board of Auditors of Cass County, Minn., upon the condition of the treasury of that county, which does not show up very well for either the treasurer, his bondsmen or the county.

The Board was called and made its investigation, as the report shows, last week, closing its labors on the 11th inst., and reported a devaluation upon the part of the treasurer, Mr. S. C. Tennis, in the sum of $1,184.70. Since that time, however, the auditor has discovered additional deficiencies in the shape of collections, the duplicate receipts for which had not been returned to the auditor's office as required by law, which swells the amount to near $1,400.

A meeting of the Board of Commissioners was called on Wednesday the 15th inst., to take action upon the report of the auditing board, when the county auditor was instructed to bring action forthwith against Mr. Tennis and his bondsmen, (who happen to be Dorville Morrison, Daniel Bassett, Edgar Nash, Charles M. Loring, and D. G. Shillock, all of Minneapolis, Minn.) of the amount deficient, and complaint was made and action commenced accordingly in the District Court in this county on Thursday, demanding judgment for the sum of $1,400, with ten per cent. penalty and interest and costs.

On Friday the commissioners removed Mr. Tennis and appointed as his successor D. E. Shipp, of Leech Lake, who gave his bonds and qualified for the office. In justice to Mr. Ahrens, in whose account the report shows a deficiency of $192.49, we desire to say that, at the expiration of Mr. Ahrens' term of office, he deposited as collateral security for the sum of $218.16 in orders of said county, and asked that the deficiency be adjusted therefrom by the Board of Commissioners. This they failed to do (though twice reported upon by the auditing board) until their meeting this week, when it was finally adjusted by them, and Mr. Ahrens discharged from further liability.

Mr. Tennis acknowledges that he has used the money, but states that it was his intention to have replaced it prior to the day of settlement—the first of March—and that he had been disappointed in getting it, and was unable to do so in time, but still avers that the deficiency will be supplied in a very few days, and he started this morning to Minneapolis for that purpose.

Mr. J. P. Farley, of Dubuque, in whose hands the Northern Pacific road will be placed in a day or two, is at the Metropolitan.

There are inquiring along the N. P. railroad—so says one of the travelers on that iron highway—as to what new line to take upon the management of Mr. Farley, the lately appointed general manager. So far as we can tell them, Mr. F. will be found to be a first-class man, capable of managing the road well. [Pioneer-Press, Minneapolis Ed.]

The P. P. is in error. They are inquiring along the N. P. (those who care anything about it) what next the reporter of the P. P. will get tall foremost. Mr. Farley is not never has been, and never will be the general manager of the N. P. railroad, but he is the general manager of the St. Paul & Pacific, and probably will be until it becomes the property of the Northern Pacific company. Such careless mistakes as the above, and of such frequent occurrence in the Pioneer-Press, are very annoying to those interested, coming as they do from a journal occupying the prominence that it does.

PERSONAL. W. E. White, of Fargo, has been visiting Brainerd this week.

H. A. Campbell returned from below this week with a large stock of spring goods.

Henry Dressen has disposed of his barber shop and business on Front street, and contemplates removing to Bismarck to engage in business.

Ex-Sheriff A. F. McKay received orders last week from the Sergeant-at-Arms of Congress to subpoena C. H. Beaulieu, sr., to appear before the Committee on Indian Affairs to give testimony.

F. B. Morton, one of the boys who figured in Brainerd's early history, having for the past two years made Cincinnati and Chicago his home, has returned to his old stamping ground to reopen his "Soap Works," and has opened a Club Room in the old Keim & Taylor building, opposite the post office, where he will make it lively for the boys.

THE TOWN MEETING passed off very quietly Tuesday, resulting in the election of the following officers: Supervisors, E. H. Bly, chairman, N. Gravelle, G. G. Hartley, Clark, F. X. Goulet, Treasurer, B. F. Hartley; Overseer of Highways, L. P. White; Assessor, Wm. Payne; Justices of the Peace, H. D. Follett and Jos. Hare; Constables, John E. Conant and Jas. Dewar.

We were shown this week by Dr. Rouser a tape worm, taken from the stomach of one of his patients, that will measure nearly four feet in length, and is certainly a curiosity to one who has never witnessed the like. We do not covet such an occupant for our tenants, and should procure one of the Doctor's writs of ejectment at once as this patient has done if we were so inhabited.

CURRENT TOPICS.

Why is not Oh Perkins happy? Why is he not had an egg thrown at him in three months.

This campaign has commenced. At Greeley, Colorado, the grasshoppers are hatching out by the millions.

Another insurrection in Mexico! The next thing we shall hear will be that Brazil is enjoying a revolution.

A mine of whitewash has been discovered near St. Louis. How convenient it would have been if found a few months earlier, in time for the whisky trials.

Nor only is the backbone of Winter broken, but the old monarch is really shuffling off his mortality, and soon all will be over and nothing left but dust.

It appears that Gen. Piller is not resting upon downy beds of ease, and the prospect is that very soon he will have no place whereon to rest his head, so unfortunate has been his late financial ventures.

Oh! what a fall was there, my country-woman. Susan B. Anthony says "Woman want bread, and not the ballot." Poor Susan! what a pity she didn't find that but a hundred years ago, while yet in her girlhood's days!

It is said that ex-Senator Nye's family are in destitute circumstances. He is still in the asylum with no chance of recovering his sanity, while his son and daughter are seeking employment in the departments at Washington.

The Indians have commenced war upon the Black Hills miners, and if all accounts are true, it will require all the troops at the command of the government to watch the many small prowling bands which are organizing.

Another terrific cyclone swept over a portion of Missouri, last week, almost totally demolishing the town of Lambert. The elements are evidently looking around for Prof. Tice, who has lately been interfering in their private affairs.

A cute Connecticut chap proposes to fit up a steamer and tow an iceberg to India, where it would sell for eight cents per pound. A better way would be to fit a propeller to the iceberg itself, and run it with a Keelboat motor, and thus save the expense of shipbuilding.

A son of Col. Robertson, of St. Paul, writes from the Black Hills that he had not yet seen any gold taken out, although he had spent several days of the "best" gulch yet found. He says numbers of dissatisfied ones are daily leaving, and now none arriving.

PENNSYLVANIA has a new constitutional provision which might be adopted in other States to good advantage. The oath of all public officers is required to a statement that they have not promised any office, gift or valuable consideration, either to obtain the nomination or election.

WHAT shall be done with the bad boys! The city of Stokton, Cal., undertakes to pass upon this question by establishing a separate school where the best of teachers will be employed and all boys who cannot be controlled by the usual discipline, are to be sent and governed according to the requirements of each case.

PERHAPS it can be made to appear that the great German government is not displaying just a little "smallness" in refusing Von Arnim permission of quietly returning to his home to take a father's place at the bedside of his dying son. To an American, who is accustomed to the rule of a magnanimous government, it looks somewhat strange.

How long will it be before all men will learn that it is not safe to be dishonest? It may appear to be safe to-day, but it is never safe to indulge in swindling, bribetaking, or cheating. Recent events in Washington fully illustrate the truth of this. Even at the very beginning it was said, be sure your sins will find you out.

Anonymous letter-writing don't pay down in Vermont. A doctor in St. Albans received several anonymous letters warning him to leave town or he would get his head punched, but he simply advertised that he would shoot any person who attempted to lay violent hands upon him, and offered a reward for the name of the writer.

As an indication of the manner in which the country is flooded with patent rights—most of which are worthless frauds—it is stated that the patent office issues a new patent every twelve minutes. If these patents could go through a rectifying office and about ninety-nine out of every hundred culled out, the country would be saved many dollars and rid of many bores.

The plan which has been approved in committee at Congress of placing the Indians entirely under the care of the War department, meets with very general approval, as a means of money and corrupt appointments. An army officer, having a life position with chances of advancement seldom thinks he can soil his hands with corruption, for the sake of a few dollars.

Some people are very nice. Some people are a little, just a little, over-nice. Some people who never played a card in their lives, because it is so wicked, nor attended a secular concert because they cultivate a taste for improper amusements—some people have been known to exact fifteen cents interest from a poor widow after she had paid every cent in her scant purse. Some people are very nice.

CRIMES AND CRIMINALS.

John W. Johnson, district attorney of Lancaster, Pa., was arrested the 13th, charged with issuing fraudulent naturalization papers. The alleged offense was committed four years ago.

United States revenue agents in South Carolina claim to have broke up thirty-three illicit stills, valued at $25,000, and arrested 111 distillers.

Three prisoners undertook to escape from the Sioux City jail on the 9th, by overpowering Deputy Sheriff Dan. McDonald and his father when they came in with supper. One of the prisoners, named Sumner, was fatally wounded by young McDonald and another named Sautsey was wounded in the leg. The third, named Morris, escaped.

POLITICAL.

The President has nominated Judge Taft of Ohio to be Secretary of War vice Belknap disgraced.

The bill to appropriate the State of Wisconsin into Senate and assembly districts, passed the Legislature on the 11th.

The joint resolution providing for female suffrage in Iowa, which had passed the House, failed to pass the Senate, the vote being 22 yeas to 24 nays.

The Farrell-Le Moynie contested election case has been argued before the House committee at Washington, and Le Moynie is said to be very confident of retaining his seat.

Washington telegram, 6th: Notwithstanding reports to the contrary Gen. Babcock has not resigned his position in the army and to-day said that he had no intention of so doing.

The Wisconsin Senate, on the 6th, adopted a joint resolution that the final adjournment be Monday, the 13th, and that no new business be received after Friday, the 9th.

The California Assembly has passed a concurrent resolution asking Congressional action to secure the release of Edward O. M. London, the American citizen imprisoned in Great Britain for participation in the Fenian troubles.

On the 11th the Wisconsin assembly passed the Senate bill for an investigation of the expenditure of the contingent fund by the late Governor and Superintendent of Public Property, with an amendment extending the time six years back.

The House of the Iowa legislature the 10th, devoted most of the day to the railroad tariff questions, and have substantially agreed to the Thayer bill, which provides for a committee to investigate the tariff on the present classification, and to amend the present law. The commission are allowed a sliding scale of 20 per cent, above or below the schedule, and allows a fee of 25 cents on all packages requiring bills of lading.

The House of the Wisconsin Legislature was the scene of an interesting proceeding on the 10th, the presentation to Speaker Field of a beautiful silver service, consisting of a large square silver salver, with a complete set of six pieces, a coffee urn, a large cup and saucer, a cake basket, butter dish, syrup and creamer, and a presentation spoon holder, costing $150—the presentation speech being made by Mr. Edward Lee, the leader of the Democratic side of the House. Mr. Field responded in a speech expressing deep feeling. Mr. Field has made a most acceptable Speaker, and won hosts of friends from both sides of the House.

PERSONAL MATTERS.

A. B. Clarke, special revenue agent at San Francisco, makes the report that the investigation of whisky frauds on the coast has resulted in implicating Senator Bargent in such frauds.

District Attorney Wells has informed the Attorney General that on account of the flight of Marsh, and the refusal of members of the committee on expenditures to testify, he is unable at present to procure the indictment of Belknap.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Cogswell of East Saginaw, Mich., were to have celebrated the sixth anniversary of their wedding on the 6th inst., but the wife died in the morning from an sudden attack of heart disease, after a number of her friends had assembled to congratulate her.

D. M. B. Goodrich, ex-writing machine peddler, is under arrest at Des Moines, Ia., for seduction of Mary Margaret Shelton, a poor widow's daughter, under promise of marriage. The girl is missing and Goodrich tells her mother he has sent her away to have an abortion procured.

GENERAL MATTERS.

The price of admission to the Centennial will be fifty cents, payable in one note, the gatekeeper making no change, but a bank note by returning it.

Suit has been entered by the government against the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad company to recover three hundred thousand dollars of unpaid taxes.

The committee of arrangements for the inauguration of the freedmen's monument to President Lincoln, in Washington on the 4th of April next, has issued an address inviting the friends of impartial freedom, equal rights and free institutions in our country to join the interesting and appropriate exercises.

Ex-Senator Stewart is to leave San Francisco for Washington, Tuesday, the 7th, to testify before the Emma mine investigating committee. He asserts that neither Schenck himself received any of the stocks as a gift, his being received from Lyon for services in a professional way, and Schenck having bought his.

The returns of pork packing in Chicago for the season just closed, show total of about 1,585,000 hogs. In the six principal packing centers of the West, the number packed is put at 2,900,000. The average weight will be about 217 pounds, and the yield of lard about 96 per cent.

Rev. James E. Payne, who has succeeded Joseph J. Roberts as president of the Republic of Liberia, is a full-blooded African but a native of Richmond, Va. He was educated at the Moravian College at Liberia, and has for twenty years or more been a missionary in Liberia of the M. E. Church of America.

A Washington telegram says: Gen. Babcock's friends in New York, Philadelphia and in this city have undertaken to raise a fund of $30,000 to reimburse him for the expenses attending his late trial at St. Louis. The subscription paper in New York is headed by Sellman. Among the other subscribers in New York are District Attorney Bliss, William A. Darling, Isaac H. Bailey, Clinton Wheeler and Darling & Griswold.

Henry O. Bowen appeared before the special committee of Plymouth Church to try his case the evening of the 8th, all the members of both the special and examining committees being present. The charges against him were read, to which he made a lengthy reply, denying himself guilty of the charges, and denied all the allegations, after which an adjournment was had to the evening of the 14th, when Bowen will put in his defense.

A bill was introduced in the House of Representatives on the 13th, providing that on and after the first day of July next shall be levied and paid a tax on all sales or contracts for gold and silver bullion or written contracts for the purchase of gold and silver on one-twentieth of one per cent on the amount of sales or contracts for sales thereof. A failure to make return of sales or the rendering of fraudulent returns is to be punished by a penalty of $200.

In the British House of Commons on the 10th, George Anderson, one of the members for Glasgow, asked the government if it were true that Gen. Schenck, the American Minister, had withdrawn at the demand of Great Britain. Robert Burke, one of the Under Secretaries for the Foreign Department, replied that there was not the slightest foundation for the report that the British Government had demanded the recall of General Schenck. The declaration was greeted with loud cheers.

The presence in Chicago of the Governor of Georgia and Mayor of Atlanta, is most curious to that section from the North-west, and has been the subject of a long article in the Maxwell House, at which several hundred guests were present. Toasts were given by Governor Porter of Tennessee, President Benaley, of the Chicago Board of Trade, President Godech, of the Nashville Cotton Exchange, and a number of prominent citizens and members of the various northern delegations. The latter found themselves literally starved with hospitality from men of the South. Only the best of tea and both sections can see from this mingling of representative men.

Commercial.

ST. PAUL, March 14. Business continues extremely quiet. With one or two exceptions prices are steady as previous quotations. One of the principal exceptions is eggs, which have suddenly broken down and are now selling at 12 1/2c, with a not very active demand. Dressed Hops, arriving in small lots, are held at $3.00. There has been not a full car load received in a week. Corn is fairly active at 36 1/2c to 37c on board for good lowland. Dealers are buying at 36 1/2c for bulk lots on track; better prices are $4.34 1/2 on board. Butter is scarce and unchanged in price. Dressed beef and poultry are not arriving in amounts worthy of note. Mess pork is very firm held at $22.50 for jobs, cash or very firm short time, and $22.75 for small lots on account. The quotations of cured meats are very widely advanced. Although hams and shoulders are still selling very actively at formerly quoted prices, viz: 13 1/2c for hams, and 9 1/2c for shoulders. Wheat is arriving in large quantities; quotations are the same as recently reported. Bran is dull at $6.50 per ton. Ground feed is in moderate demand at $19.00, selling price for sales. It is feared that the market for sales may follow to long time term at $19.50 per ton.

MILWAUKEE, March 14.—Wheat firm at $1.10 for No. 1; $1.15 for No. 2; $1.05 for No. 3; $1.00 for No. 4; $1.00 for No. 5; $1.00 for No. 6; $1.00 for No. 7; $1.00 for No. 8; $1.00 for No. 9; $1.00 for No. 10; MISCELLANY.

DOMESTIC BLISS—A FRAGMENT.

A married lady of thirty odd. Every evening I see in their beds A "black" dozen of curly heads...

STEPHEN HATTON.

(From Temple Bar.)

A crowd, composed mainly of fisher folk, whose rough faces and bandaged hands their coarse, weather stained garments...

A man was being tried for his life. The court was small, and so densely packed with men and women...

"Praps not," but Steve didn't kill 'um for all that," muttered Lisa. "Who saved more lives on this coast than any other man for five miles round?"

"You never saw the corn a-growin', did ye, Mother Lisa?" asked a young fisherman. "but you've seen the grain put in, haven't ye, Mother Lisa?"

"Praps not," but Steve didn't kill 'um for all that," muttered Lisa. "Who saved more lives on this coast than any other man for five miles round?"

"You never saw the corn a-growin', did ye, Mother Lisa?" asked a young fisherman. "but you've seen the grain put in, haven't ye, Mother Lisa?"

"Praps not," but Steve didn't kill 'um for all that," muttered Lisa. "Who saved more lives on this coast than any other man for five miles round?"

almost at his elbow, and touches his arm, not roughly, rather as though his crime and approaching end invested him with a certain greatness.

"Man, fellow poon, with whom I ha' tolled an' labored an' sorrowed an' joyed, with whom I ha' stood good times an' bad times, who ha's taken out of my cup an' platter I ha' ate an' drank, ye believe that I ha' done this thing?"

"There are other winners in the world," said Lisa, nodding. "Did ye ever see a fair man with blue eyes and a gay smile stick to one?"

"He loved me," said the pilot, saying he would be back to spend the evening with her, as he always did, and she never asked him again.

"An' no one ever saw him after," said the young fishwife, turning pale. "I kept Simon, who saw Steve an' him standing together by the river-side as he passed on his business."

"Dinah knows," muttered Lisa. "Oh, ye, Dinah knows." "It was a very wonderful love," said the pilot, "for Maurice had a right to be proud of it."

"No, no," he would lose her pity for ever so. Did he hear the way she said she credited him? It should have made Maurice's name more famous."

"You speak truth, mother," said the pilot. "The lad was a brave one, and his life was clean, but he spoilt it all—all by a cowardly crime!"

"Maurice was a no'er-do-well," said Lisa stoutly. "and if he's dead it's his own doin', not Stephen's."

"Lisa is a clever woman," said the red-faceted pilot. "but she don't know what she's sayin'."

last with a look of horror in her face, as though it bore some fatal significance to her mind. The net slipped from her hands, and from her bosom she drew a plain gold locket that looked out of place with the coarse garments she wore.

"I don't know," said the pilot, "but I think I have seen it before. It is a very fair, blue-eyed young man, whose very sunny smile seemed to mock the pale girl who looked at him."

"There are other winners in the world," said Lisa, nodding. "Did ye ever see a fair man with blue eyes and a gay smile stick to one?"

"He loved me," said the pilot, saying he would be back to spend the evening with her, as he always did, and she never asked him again.

"An' no one ever saw him after," said the young fishwife, turning pale. "I kept Simon, who saw Steve an' him standing together by the river-side as he passed on his business."

"Dinah knows," muttered Lisa. "Oh, ye, Dinah knows." "It was a very wonderful love," said the pilot, "for Maurice had a right to be proud of it."

"No, no," he would lose her pity for ever so. Did he hear the way she said she credited him? It should have made Maurice's name more famous."

"You speak truth, mother," said the pilot. "The lad was a brave one, and his life was clean, but he spoilt it all—all by a cowardly crime!"

"Maurice was a no'er-do-well," said Lisa stoutly. "and if he's dead it's his own doin', not Stephen's."

ground, and then who had called him murderer stood by his grave and called him martyr. And when, some three years after, their Dinah laid down the burden of her desolate life, they buried her by his side, and planted delicate flowers over their heads, for they had a strange fancy that, though both were soundly asleep, they knew that those who loved and remembered them, and perhaps they did know, and maybe talked of them, in that fair, mysterious land, where they sojourned, let us hope, forever.
