

THE INAUGURATION.

General James A. Garfield Inducted into the Presidency.

Imposing Ceremonials Attended the Transition from the Old Cabin to the White House.

The morning of March 4, 1881, dawned dark and cloudy at Washington, but long before the hour for the inauguration ceremony the President-elect, General James A. Garfield, and Vice-President, Schuyler Colfax, were seated in the grand old building, the White House, to receive the guests of the inauguration. The President-elect, General Garfield, was seated on the right, and Vice-President Colfax on the left. The ceremony was attended by a large number of guests, including members of the cabinet, the judiciary, and the military. The inauguration was a grand affair, and the President-elect was sworn in by Chief Justice Roger Taney. The ceremony was held in the presence of a large number of guests, and the President-elect was sworn in by Chief Justice Roger Taney.
